Britons, in Thousands, File Past Flower-decked Churchill Grave

BLADON, England (Reuters) — The pilgrimage to the grave of Sir Winston Churchill resumed at dawn today as the small village churchyard where the statesman lies buried appeared to be turning into a national shrine.

By 10 p.m. Sunday night about 125,000 persons had filed past the grave since Churchill's burial Saturday.

Sunday's crowds continued to file past the flower-decked grave until 2:30 a.m. Four hours later, residents on their way to work, and several schoolchildren, began a new day's tribute.

A mile-long stream made up of three lines of pilgrims stretched Sunday from the edge of the village into the churchyard. Police sealed off the entrances of the hamlet to cope with the cars bringing an ever-growing number of visitors.

Police and Bladon officials said they were astounded at the size of the crowds that have descended on the village, 72 miles northwest of London, ever since Churchill was buried in a private service in the churchyard following his state funeral at St. Paul's Cathedral in London Saturday.

Shortly after members of the Churchill family left the churchyard, a stream of visitors started arriving. They came by train, bus, car and bicycle, clogging all roites leading to Bladon.

After the enormous influx Sunday, N. A. Veness, chairman of the Bladon parish council, said: "This place is about 800 years old. I am sure we have never seen a day like this before, and I do not believe we will see a day like it again."

The small churchyard of 300-mois stained graves where Churchill lies buried contains the bodies of his parents, Lord Randolph Churchill and New York-born Jennie Jerome.

The church itself stands close to Blenheim Palace, the huge mansion presented to Churchill's warrior ancestor, the Duke of Marlborough. It was in a ground-floor room of the palace that Churchill himself was born 90 years ago.

Explain Loraine, Mr. Swain

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Everyone involved except Mrs. F. Earl Swain is satisfied with the explanations in the case of Loraine, the slain murdered blonde; said Capt. Sterling Ford, assistant chief of detectives, is still apologizing to Mrs. Swain.

"We've loved here 20 years," she said. "What will the neighbors think?"

Capt. Ford said he will explain to the neighbors, too.

It goes like this:

Sixty - three rookie policemen were taking their final examination in detection Saturday. It was murder. Loraine, pretty if non-existent, fought furiously before she was done in. Capt. Ford and his faculty planted the evidence liberally. The rookies formed teams and went to work.

One team was assigned to check out a car reported near the murder scene and quickly traced the vehicle's registered owner, Robert Torrence, filling station operator.

Torrence was a very cooperative, but he finally answered some questions. The first: Oh, he'd sold it to a Robert Hoffman. In answering other questions, Torrence dropped some other names— as he had been coached to do. One of them was Swain.

The rookie investigators could not find Robert Hoffman, of course; but, co-ordinated by two-way radio, the team converged on the home of F. Earl Swain, who by coincidence did exist.

Swain was finishing his morning coffee when he noticed them. Men at the front door. Men at the back door. Men peering into his car and into the car of his son, Wendell Swain, 24.

Soon they knocked at the door, badges flashing.

Almost the first question was directed to Wendell Swain.

"You know anyone by the name of Loraine?"

"Yes."

"Is she a blonde or brunette?"

"She's a blonde I met at the bowling alley," Wendell answered innocently.

The fledgling detectives took another look around and invited Swain and his son to ride downtown. They protested. The men with the badges persisted.

The case is made, they radioed to headquarters.

Downtown, the Swains protested some more.

"Something has gone wrong," said a referee of the exercise.

Torrence's ad lib had cast the Swains in roles not in the script.

The Swains, father and son, accepted Capt. Ford's apology in good nature. Mrs. Swain wasn't so sure.

King Summons Negro Masses To Right-to-Vote Parade

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. summoned Negroes by the hundreds to march on the courthouse today in a right-to-vote demonstration that could surpass any yet seen in Selma.

At the same time, other civil rights leaders organized a voter registration drive in neighboring Perry County, the only county in Alabama where a federal referee has been assigned to handle complaints of racial discrimination.

King, the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize winner, promised to lead the procession in Selma under the protective shield of the newly - amended federal court injunction giving Negroes more freedom in dramatizing their struggle against alleged racial barriers.

The federal court order still limited to 100 the number of Negroes who can apply for registration in any one day. But it was modified by District Judge Frank Johnson to specify that other Negroes can join the waiting line without interference if certificate's deputies as long as they gather peacefully.

The voter registration board will reopen again today for a one-day term after a four-day recess which ended a prolonged session in January.

The Perry County board at Marion, 30 miles west of here, also opened its doors to prospective voters for the one day under a state law which requires registrars in all counties to meet on the first and third Mondays in each month.

Froze to Death While Walking To His Home

HARRISTON, Ont. (CP) — Arthur Armstrong, 60, of Harriston from to death Friday night while walking from his stalled car back to this community, about 45 miles south of Owen Sound.

Police in Harriston said Mr. Armstrong's car became stuck in snow drifts up to six feet deep.

His body was found Saturday along the road back to town. Winds of up to 40 miles an hour, together with a 12-inch snowfall, caused the drifts on highways in the district.

Doctors Oppose Hall Plan

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Medical Association, drawing up a new policy on medicare, has come into disagreement with some major aspects of the report of the Hall royal commission on medical services.

In a two-day special meeting that ended Saturday — only the second such session in its history — the CMA's policy-making general council declared itself firmly for medical insurance but just as firmly against placing it on a universal tax-support basis as the commission proposed.

A spokesman said after the closed meetings that CMA officials do not anticipate any "stand-up fight" such as Saskatchewan doctors staged with a strike against that province's plan in 1962.

The general council's decisions concerning the whole area of medicare are on their way to becoming, but are not quite yet, official CMA policy. They were turned over to the 2,800-member association's economics committee to be drafted into a formal declaration this week to be put to the house of CMA's annual convention in June at Halifax.

TAKE STAND

Strongest stand taken by the doctors, reporters were informed at press briefings, was on the point that doctors must be allowed to practise outside any official scheme and that a patient must be allowed to go to any doctor without the risk of losing his insurance benefits.

"We regard this as one of the fundamental rights of doctors and patients," said Dr. A. D. Kelly, CMA general secretary of the CMA.

The executive committee reaffirmed its stand for the availability of optional plans in addition to government - run programs, declaring that a program with a single source of financing and compulsory coverage would restrict progress in medical services.

The main disagreement with the royal commission came on the question of whether insurance should cover the full cost of medical care—as the commission recommended — and the council held that part of the bills should be paid by those subscribers who are self-supporting.

REVERSES ATTITUDE

This was a reversal of the CMA's attitude as it prevailed medicare policy determined in 1960, and spokesmen said the new view was necessary after opposing it held it would be "disruptive" toward plans in the provinces where it do not contain this "patient participation."

However, the majority stand was that it would help bring about "a harmonious relationship" or in private plans—and discourage over - utilization of the royal commission over the section of the population to be covered wholly by government-run medicare. The CMA declined to comment with some major aspects of the report of the Hall royal commission on medical services.

Gurkhas Repulse Invaders

KUCHING, Malaysia (AP)— Under cover of a heavy dawn mist, 60 Indonesian guerrillas slipped across the jungle border into Malaysian Borneo but were driven off by a British Gurkha patrol, a military spokesman reported Sunday.

He said several Indonesians were killed in a short but fierce gun fight and their bodies taken back across the border. One Gurkha trooper was killed and several others were wounded.

The encounter Saturday took place about 400 air miles northeast of Kuching, capital of the Malaysian state of Sarawak. It was the fourth and biggest in 10 days.

Two days ago a small group of Indonesian guerrillas crossed the border into Sarawak in the same general area, but retreated into Indonesian Borneo after a short gun battle with the Gurkhas.

On Jan. 20, a party of 40 Indonesian guerrillas clashed with a party of Gurkhas in another region of Sarawak and retreated, leaving one dead.

A week later, another Indonesian raiding party launched a rocket attack on a Malaysian military position but retreated after a brief exchange of fire. There were no casualties.

Military circles in Kuching expect the Indonesians to step up their raids and attacks as soon as the monsoon season ends, in about a week.

On the Malaysian mainland, the government braced for more possible bombings by Indonesians across the Strait of Malacca.

Chas. Millard Did Not Sign Maritime Trustees' Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The long-awaited 1964 report to Parliament by the federal maritime union trustees was delivered to Labor Minister MacEachen this weekend, providing fresh evidence of a sharp division within the trusteeship.

Informed sources say the report, not yet public, is signed by only two of the three trustees—Mr. Justice Victor Dryer, who resigned as chairman Dec. 15, and Judge Rene Lippe.

Missing is the signature of Charles Millard, the retired union leader who recently made public a letter to the Canadian Labor Congress advocating a labor - sponsored trusteeship to end the present federal one.

The federal trusteeship, set up by Parliament late in 1963 to take over five maritime unions and restore labor peace to the Great Lakes, runs until March 31, 1965.

Mr. Millard has charged that the trusteeship has become overbureaucratic, self - perpetuating bureaucracy; that it is considering the takeover of the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC), and that it trusteeship has become a force constitutional changes on the union; under its control.

A spokesman said the trusteeship said Sunday Mr. Millard's charges are both inaccurate and illogical.

"He has never once discussed these things with his fellow trustees," the source said, then gave this item-by-item denial of Mr. Millard's charges:

1. Although Mr. Millard said

Ethiopians Will Make Queen's Eight-day Visit "Spectacular Occasion"

By SHANE GUEBENLIAN

ADDIS ABABA (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrived here by plane today from London for an eight-day state visit to Ethiopia.

The Queen became the first reigning British monarch to visit Ethiopia, the oldest Christian country in Africa.

She was returning a state visit to Britain by Emperor Haile Selassie in October, 1954.

A member of the Ethiopian imperial family said Sunday the visit would be "a great and joyous occasion. There is a mood of unparalleled welcome in the country."

Emperor Haile Selassie lived in England during the Italian occupation of his country in the late 1930s.

The Queen's program outside the capital, involving flights totalling about 1,200 miles, will take her to some of the historic cities of this ancient kingdom.

WILL VISIT FALLS

The trips will include the Blue Nile Falls, Axum—Ethiopia's original political and religious capital—and Gondar, a later capital.

The royal party will visit Gondar Friday and will drive north to spend the night at a specially-erected tent camp perched on the edge of a 3,000 - foot drop and spectacular jagged mountains.

Saturday the Queen will fly to Asmara, former capital of Eritrea and now Ethiopia's second biggest city.

Thursday the Queen and Duke will be guests at a picnic with the emperor and his family in mountain foothills, riding part of the way by horseback.

The same day, the Queen will receive the key and freedom of the City of Addis Ababa at the new city hall perched dazzling white atop the capital's highest hill.

ENDS FEB. 8

The Royal visit will end Feb. 8 with the Queen leaves Asmara for Khartoum to start a five-day state visit to Sudan.

The Queen will then fly home, but the duke will set off on a tour of four African countries, covering another 21,000 miles before returning to England.

He will spend a week in Australia, 10 days in India, four days in Pakistan and six days in the Malaysian Federation trouble spots of Sabah (North Borneo) and Sarawak, where British and Commonwealth troops are facing Indonesian guerrillas in the jungle.

Singapore, Nepal and Bahrein are also on Philip's itinerary. He is scheduled home March 28.

Stop War To Greet Snake Year

SAIGON (Reuters)—This week's South Vietnamese calendar today teemed with merry-makers ushering in the lunar new year.

The scene was in sharp contrast the political and military strife and anti-American demonstrations of last week.

A Communist Viet Cong cease-fire went into effect at midnight Sunday night for five days to match a similar one by U.S. military officials noted a lull in fighting Sunday.

The new year actually begins Tuesday, but the Vietnamese were taking the opportunity to bid farewell to the Year of the Snake while bidding farewell to the Year of the Dragon.

On the political front, the new military government Sunday made a lu that a 145-seat National Congress will be convened in March.

WILL BE LEGISLATURE

The congress will write a constitution and serve as a provisional legislature. Elections will be held March 21 in the big cities.

Provincial representatives will be chosen by an electoral college whose members will be picked by village chiefs and government representatives.

Chain Pet Lions in Garden, Drive Goats Outside Town, Queen to Visit Addis Ababa

ADDIS ABABA (AP)—Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie Sunday ordered the pet lions chained in his palace gardens to be hosed down and flea-powdered to welcome the Queen.

The Queen arrives here today on a state visit and the whole capital is being scrubbed up. Even the herds of goats and donkeys, a normal traffic hazard in the main streets, are being driven out of town.

Most of the residents were in a state of anticipatory joy, but a local Greek jeweler had a headache.

When word went out that tiaras would be worn at royal receptions, Ethiopian society ladies took it to mean they were obligatory.

The Greek imported 300 from Europe to meet the anticipated demand. In the meantime, the British embassy tactfully explained that those ladies who had tiaras could wear them but no tiara-less lady would be prevented from curtseying to the Queen. Now the jeweler has what is probably the world's largest stock of unsold diamond tiaras on his hands.

U. S. Is Willing to Go Along With Assembly Adjourning

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Diplomats talked Sunday about adjourning—and even ending—the 19th United Nations General Assembly session while private talks continue on the U.S.-Soviet financial deadlock.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson was cheered by informants as willing to go along with an adjournment—although unwilling to propose it himself —if there is a demand to halt the stalemated proceedings.

The assembly has been unable to deal with anything but routine matters because of the unofficial arrangement to postpone all voting until the financial dispute is settled.

The Soviet Union is more than two years behind in its assessments because of its refusal to share in the Congo and Middle East peace-keeping operations. The United States insists on invoking Article 19 of the charter which stipulates that an assembly member may vote if it is two years in arrears.

Some diplomats predicted that the assembly would adjourn until September—to its next session—to avoid a showdown.

Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey will electrocute the assembly at 3 p.m., today after a five-day recess.

After a statement on the world organization's financial plight from Secretary-General U Thant, delegates is expected to recess for two days to a week, diplomats predicted. If no inroads are made on the financial deadlock, the assembly would reconvene briefly to finish non-controversial routine business and then adjourn, possibly indefinitely, they said.

Camp Calls PC Meet For Feb. 6

OTTAWA (CP) — Dalton Camp, the national Progressive Conservative party president, has called a meeting of the party's national executive for Feb. 6 in Ottawa, it was announced today.

The brief announcement from party headquarters gave no reason for the meeting, but Mr. Camp had undertaken a poll of the executive to determine whether it wanted to meet the 10 members of the caucus demand for a meeting to decide on a leadership convention.

The executive meeting would precede by five days a to-day meeting of the party's parliamentary caucus that has been called by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

More than two weeks ago the Quebec caucus demanded an executive meeting before Parliament resumes Feb. 16 to fix a date for a leadership convention.

Army Officers' Coup d'Etat Appears to Have Collapsed

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters) — An attempted coup d'etat by a group of army officers appeared to have collapsed today—15 hours after it started, political sources reported.

After a meeting at the residence of neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma, Col. Bounleut Sykoxy, a staff officer at Laotian army headquarters and leader of the brief revolt, agreed to withdraw his troops to the village of Ban Na Ly, 15 miles outside Vientiane.

The coup attempt, in which tanks and armored cars reached roadblocks set up, was staged Sunday night as a protest against Laotian army leaders and not against the government.

Military sources said only three companies of the 17th Brigade were involved in the abortive coup. They added it was doubtful whether the rebels could have held the capital against any counter-attack in view of the small number of men involved.

Bounleut, a Washington-trained staff officer, said earlier the coup was aimed at strengthening the army.

It was staged after reports that pro-Communist Pathet Lao positions were being reinforced throughout the country.

Bounleut said his revolutionary group intended to intend to remove Souvanna from his premier's office. He said the coup had no political aims.

Souvanna heads a coalition government of neutralists, right-wing elements and pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces. The regime was formed in 1962 after the 14-nation Geneva conference guaranteeing Laotian neutrality.

The conference ended years of leftist-rightist civil war, but fighting has continued spasmodically ever since.

Crow's Nest Night Club for Teens Had Successful Opening Saturday

By BILL SEYMOUR

Saturday night was opening night for Belleville's newest night club - The Crow's Nest - a club exclusively for teenagers.

Nearly 500 crows and sparrows (that is what members are called) danced to the music of Bobby Lane and the Disciples, a lively group sent especially for the occasion by Jonnie Hawkins from the Hawk's Nest in Toronto. The group is Mr. Hawkin's personal band.

If you are between the ages of 16 and 19 and have a membership card - a Crow's Nest membership card that is, then you are entitled to visit this club every Saturday night at the Commodore Building located at the Belleville fair grounds.

Entry to the Crow's Nest is granted by membership and manageress, Mrs. Joan Bennett says that membership cards will be available for the remainder of this week only. So far, 300 of the limited number available have been sold.

Inside the club door, the atmosphere is as the name implies - a crow's nest. A huge black crow sways above the stage, from the breeze of a heating fan, while white crisscrossed trellis work dones the railing, along both sides and east end of the dancing area, depicts the resemblance of a thatched crow's nest.

Supporting pillars along the dance floor will each be decorated with a crow's head in the near future, and sections along the walls will display crests and colors of the three local high schools.

To add to the atmosphere, colored spot lights cast a soft glow on the colorful decor of the "nest."

As a special attraction, a different band will be featured each Saturday night, along with Master of Ceremonies, Dave Charles of radio station CJBQ. The bands are selected by the members themselves. "If the kids tell us what band they would like, we will do everything we can to get them," said Mrs. Bennett.

There are strict house rules against drinking, casual wear and rough behavior. Any infraction of these rules will mean an automatic suspension from the club for a period of one year. Membership cards are $1 and there is an admittance fee of $1.50. Once inside, however, the only other initial outlay is for soft drinks or edibles such as potato chips, candy bars, etc., available at the snack bar.

At the entrance, a young doorman watches for signs of drinking and checks to see that boys are wearing a tie and sport jacket and the girls, a dress or skirt.

Inside, the Crow's Nest offers that particular type of decor which sends teenagers "into orbit," so to speak, while off the dance floor, couples sit in small groups sipping on a soft drink.

By the midnight closing time, the evening has passed without a harsh word or an unruly incident; there are no tipsy teenagers and everyone appears to have had an enjoyable time.

The Crow's Nest was the brainchild of co-owners, Phil and Joan Bennett of Bleecker Avenue, who were also responsible for decorating the club. Mrs. Bennet sponsored Saturday evening dances for adults up until last July. She took the opportunity of visiting the Hawk's Nest in Toronto last year and it was then that the idea of operating a night club for the youth of her community, struck her, she said.

Says Mrs. Bennett, "we want parents to feel that when their children are here at the club, that they are in a good, clean atmosphere, and will not be permitted to do anything they could not do in their own home."

A personal appearance at the Crow's Nest will be made by Ronnie Hawkins sometime in April, although a definite date has not been set as yet.

Trent U. Design Is Approved By Governors

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Trent University's Lakefield campus near here will start to rise above the Otonabee River next May. The board of governors has approved architect R. J. Thomas's design for the $4,000,000 development.

The first buildings will be two residences, containing 210 students. They will be built of Ontario stone, set in concrete and will have a U-shape, with the open side towards the river.

Each building will be four storeys high and—at Oxford and Cambridge — students' rooms will be organized by staircases rather than along corridors. Each college will have six staircases with five undergraduates' rooms on each upper landing and seminar rooms or professors' offices on the ground floor.

Rough stone will be set by hand into forms and the spaces filled by concrete under pressure. When the forms are removed, only the stone face will show on the outer wall.

The stone, from a vein running between Kingston and Georgian Bay, will be quarried west of Toronto for the first buildings, but local quarries are expected to revive as construction continues.

The first two residences will comprise Champlain College, the first of up to 12 at Trent University. President T. H. B. Symons proposes to organize the university as a federation of self-governing colleges, on the English plan, rather than as a single unit.

Future Work For Retarded Is Considered

The future role of the Retarded Children's Association was the main topic at the association's January board meeting.

On hand to give a two appointees to the newly organized Belleville Retarded Children's Education Authority, Mrs. D. W. Maddocks, reviewed the recent transfer of operation of the John Ross School to the Authority, with the cost jointly charged to the Department of Education and the municipality of Belleville. Freed of these responsibilities, the Association is seen by some as the equivalent of the Home and School Association of a public school, its objective being to promote good relations between the public's family and the school staff.

Mrs. Maddocks said, however, that the Association's role is not that of the Ch.I. Under existing legislation, the Association made the initial request that the Authority set up an Authority. It also retains ownership of the school building, and is responsible for renovations to it as well as for any new additions to the present facilities. Newly formed Associations must still purchase or otherwise obtain a suitable building which it will make available to an Authority for school purposes.

A provincial grant amounting to 50 per cent of the cost of such renovations or new buildings is available. The president, Dr. C. D. Dondale, noted that experience of the Belleville school would involve the raising of considerable money by the Association, and that, in view of the need for a gymnasium at the school, fundraising would have to be continued.

A report by the residential care committee warned that the Association must continue to organize facilities for retarded persons other than those able to attend school.

Reports from other committees revealed a growing need for preschool nurseries, home care programs, recreation, and sheltered employment for the retarded in the Belleville area, and considerable funds and personnel would be needed to operate in these fields.

On the whole it was generally agreed that though the launching of a day school has been a tremendous step for the Association, the greatest challenge is still that of directly helping the affected families.

Mel Sjostrom's RCAF Rink Wins Top Event of Spiel Staged by District Clubs

By C.D.T.

Mel Sjostrom's RCAF rink brought the Tri-Quinte fourth annual bonspiel to a spectacular climax Sunday evening, as Sjostrom drew flush against a rival rock to win the Corby Trophy by a 5-4 score with four ends blanked. It was a pressure shot, and such as seen only once in a lifetime. The league gallery was thrilled. On the winning rink were George Peters, Vince Gallipeau, Edward Walker and Mel Sjostrom. Bill Lewis, the loser had C. McAlpine, W. Carss and H. McGinnis on his rink.

Four final games were played Saturday night, for the Corby and Elliott Motors trophies at the Quinte Club and in the O'Keefe's, LaPalm events at the RCAF Station rink.

A rink of Robert Wartman, Glen Wagar, Neil Lambert with Glen Jerome of Napanee as skip win over Bill Pattison of the RCAF in the O'Keefe event, while two rinks from the Quinte curling club, Mac White and Al. A. Carruthers played off for the Elliott Motors trophy with Mr. McCorquodale, Al McCallum, Ron Benn and Mac White defeating Lloyd Lantz, Fred Deacon, Gordon Edwards and T. A. Carruthers as skip.

Lyle Carr of Trenton defeated a stubborn Neal Ramsay, general chairman of the spiel committee in the LaPalm event. The eight rinks mentioned were for the British American Bay of Quinte Shield starting at the RCAF rink. Mac White was unable to play due to the arrival of a baby boy in the family.

PRIZES PRESENTED

The mornings of the week will remain long with those who participated. The winners and runners-up in the four events were presented with their prizes at the Trenton Curling Club; goodbyes were said and all thanked for making the event a success in every way.

Pete Aziz, president of the Trenton Golf and Country club was master of ceremonies and Neal Ramsay, general chairman of the spiel, handed out the prizes. Mr. Aziz thanked the curlers for participating, and providing such good competition. "There was plenty of variety in the games," said Mr. Aziz, "but it was on a high plane and many new friendships were made during the spiel."

The Bay of Quinte shield, presented by the British American Oil Company for the rink winning the greatest number of games in the spiel was won by an RCAF rink of Wayne McAlpine, Bill Carss, Bob McInnis with Bill Lewis as skip. Runner-up in this event was a rink of Dr. McCorquodale, Al McCallum, Ron Benn with Mac White as skip, from the Quinte Curling Club.

In the Quinte Transport event a rink of Al Kemster, H. Sullivan, Jim Fennell and Jim Lord, skip, won over a Quinte rink of Melville Burrough, Joe Vetsher, Lloyd Sheppard and Claude Tice, skip.

Bill Henderson, representing Bill Spinelli of the Pepsi-Cola Company, presented this trophy to Jim Lord, Al Watts, Al Nicks with Don Wilkinson of the RCAF as skip. The runner-up in this event was a rink of Bob Duncan, Ed Hyatt and Fred Metzger with Bob Barlow of the Trenton club as skip.

A Trenton rink of Carl Charlton, Frank Hyland and Ken Bailey with Howard Aziz as skip won the Bata Shoe event and throughout the spiel, a one-year curler threw last rock and showed what can be done by a curler who will practice and try to learn the rudiments of this fine game.

The runner-up in this event was a rink of Bob Landry, Bob McCallum, Jack Sands with Bill Gostick as skip. The Gostick rink was in every complete played and the skip stated this was one spiel that should never be missed.

Mac White of Quinte summed up many thoughts of the spiel when he stated that hospitality was one of the main themes of every curling club participating. The members of the various clubs went out of their way to provide the best of everything. Bruce Cardy, manager of the spiel, comes in for a word of praise for his general conduct of the spiel and his kindness in all situations.

Expect Finish Fed. Building By May 4

TRENTON — Work on the new federal building on Front Street has been "stepped up" to the point where the completion date, (originally scheduled for July) has been set as May 4, according to a report released this week by John B. Brant, job superintendent for T.A. Andre and Sons, Ltd., general contractors.

The building which will cost $412,000, will house a post office, customs' offices, the unemployment insurance office and other government agencies, which include the Departments of Agriculture and Transport and National Revenue.

Newspaper Story Brought Letters

TRENTON — Pet Control Officer for Trenton, Mrs. Hilda Jones reports receiving an influx of mail following her publication in the Ontario Intelligencer last week, which outlined Hilda's never ending fight to gain justice for the animals of the district.

One of these letters, and representative of the whole, was from an elderly Tweed resident, Mrs. Doris McQuaig.

Mrs. McQuaig says in her letter that persons living outside Tweed are "driving into town and "dropping" dogs and cats in the streets. She says she has taken several such strays into her home and cared for them. . . . and if they are ill, paid to have them destroyed. Mrs. McQuaig says, in part, "it hurts me to have them put to sleep, but it is better than having them starve or freeze to death."

Mrs. McQuaig has a bird feeding station in her yard, so she only lets the cats which come under her care out at night, when the birds have gone to roost.

Mrs. McQuaig suggests Trenton, Belleville, Tweed and other communities could get together and erect a proper animal shelter.

She also suggests the law should be enforced regarding small boys carrying B.B. guns and shooting birds, small animals, etc.

Association Plans Annual

TRENTON — Feb. 24 the Trenton and District Builders' Association will hold its annual meeting in the Quinte Manor Hotel. At this dinner meeting the executive for the year will be elected.

On Feb. 10, representatives from the association will meet with presidents and officials of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce to discuss the proposed erection of a chamber office on Front St. The builders have pledged to erect the building free of charge. The chamber will supply materials for the riverside building, almost across from the new federal building. The lot has been donated by the town.

Mr. Charlesworth is also immediate past president.

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Walter Gordon said Saturday the Liberal government at Ottawa has been so tied down and frustrated by the opposition in Parliament it has not spent sufficient time telling the voters about its good works.

"This must be corrected in the future," he told the annual meeting of the York-Scarborough Liberal Association.

He cited government measures and policies to correct a softening of economic conditions when the Liberals took office in April, 1963, and that have "contributed to the increased prosperity which can be seen around us."

"Unemployment is still too high, especially in eastern Canada, but the improvement everywhere has been steady and substantial," he said. Unemployment in mid-December was 4.0 per cent of the labor force, compared with a high of 7.8 in February, 1961.

Mr. Gordon also said Prime Minister Pearson was the first English-speaking Canadian in a responsible position to recognize the changes taking place in Quebec required adjustment in relations with the other provinces.

"Because of the way he has handled a very delicate and difficult situation, the Canadian Confederation will survive and we shall remain united."

Strike Set For Today Is Averted

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—A strike scheduled for early today by 300 union members at the Canadian General Electric plant here was averted Sunday when the United Electrical Workers, Local 524, sent a telegram to General Manager L. Robert Douglas.

A union spokesman said members will wait for a reply until Wednesday, after which—Douglas says he's given assurance the company will reconsider its proposed pay cuts in August or Sept. at the plant—They will meet again next Sunday to consider strike action.

On dispute is a company proposal to change rates of pay to a single from an incentive rate system. Under rates of pay would be reduced by up to 80 cents an hour.

The union says the proposal contravenes the union-company agreement and also an Ontario Supreme Court order that CGE must honor an arbitration board award by making incentive payments to those who already have had them cut.

MR. DEPUTY SPEAKER—Elmer Sandercock, MPP for Hastings West, shown at home before he leaves for Legislature which he now serves in added capacity of Deputy Speaker.

Elmer Sandercock Will Referee Debate on Spending of Billion

For many a Sunday night in the past 17 years Elmer Sandercock has packed his bag in Belleville and set off for a busy week of business in Toronto.

This year, however, the MPP for Hastings West may be packing it with more problems than ever. Among other demands on his legislative time, he will be responsible for shepherding bills covering the expenditure of a billion dollars in public funds through the Ontario Legislature.

Recently the veteran MPP was appointed deputy speaker for the Legislature, on motion of his party leader, seconded by the leader of the Opposition.

In such a capacity, it will be his function to take the chair in committee of supply — when private bills and government estimates are debated.

This is one of the crucial periods in that democratic process known as parliamentary government. Controversial and critical debate flares across the assembly.

That reason does not desert the process is the responsibility of the chairman — in this case Mr. Sandercock.

POPULAR MEMBER

However, he has one acknowledged asset operating in his favor before he even sits down — the popularity of his appointment.

It is a quality which has carried over from his home riding since it first sent him to Toronto as a Progressive Conservative member.

For years before he actively entered politics he was a well-known local figure as owner-superintendent of Hastings County Home in Belleville.

He relinquished that post in 1948—after 17 years of service—on his first election to Legislature. He has been re-elected four times since, the last in 1963.

During that time he participated in the processes of government, not only on the floor of the House, but on many of select committees. His latest appointment was to the current committee on problems of the aged.

Premier Robarts made note of this January 22 when he moved Mr. Sandercock's appointment.

OPPOSITION APPROVES

Immediately after, Opposition Leader Thompson rose to second the motion, saying that the Liberal Party was "delighted to learn the elevation of the honorable member for Hastings West.

"I personally," he added, "have had a deep respect for the contributions he has made." NDP leader Donald MacDonald "unhesitantly" echoed the sentiments, but added a warning.

He questioned the wisdom of appointing Deputy Speakers for only one session, adding that "even with all of the outstanding qualities the honorable member has, he will have to be something of a superman to preside over the business of the assembly effectively because his term of office is only for one session. I just state this, as to whether or not it is unfair to the people who are appointed to these positions."

J. M. Legate Heads Accident Prevention Body

Mr. J. M. Legate, Canada Cement Company Limited, Belleville, was elected chairman of the board of directors of the ceramics and stone section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, at their annual meeting in Toronto on ary 28th.

The ceramics and stone section is one of ten specific trade groups which meet regularly to discuss improved methods of accident prevention in their own industry.

At the annual meeting, the directors resolved that during 1965, they must find more and better ways of encouraging top management to maintain safe working conditions and instituting that employees work in a safe manner.

No Help Here

Communist China is hinting that it may organize a second United Nations, made up of lands dedicated to the spread of the Marxian gospel.

If this comes about, the usefulness of the present United Nations will be severely diminished, or radically altered.

What we might have would be two opposing leagues of nations, two alliances, each embracing its own creed.

This, of course, is not what the United Nations was designed to be, but it is what some people have tried to make it, an alliance of like-minded countries.

The irony of it is that if China does form a second United Nations, it is likely to live up to its name much more closely than has the original organization, which has remained split in spite of the selectivity shown in admitting new members.

What the world needs is not an alliance of countries with similar policies, but a debating place—for all the nations on earth. It is just possible that the United States may soon become converted to this idea, perhaps just at the time when it becomes unattainable. It is also significant there is no indication Russia favors the establishment of a rival organization of united Red lands, but rather that it is merely engaged in a struggle to get its own way as frequently as possible in the existing organization.

The Mysterious East

The Occident has always considered the Orient mysterious. Probably the Oriental, in his own habitat, has viewed the West in the same light.

One of the penalties of progress has been that this aura of mystery, which lends enchantment, has tended to vanish, or at least diminish, as we go about the business of becoming One World.

Now, out of troubled South Viet Nam, comes an Associated Press story which tends to restore the mystery.

It tells of a village of Roman Catholics which is waging a battle against the Viet Cong. At sunset the children, who are gay by day, fearfully make their way to the church, to pass the night there secure from the communists. And why do they, with their priest, feel safe in the church? Because the communists have told the priest they would never harm the church and the priest believes them.

This sounds like a fairy tale. Like fiction, too, reads a report of communist occupation of this village, with the invaders burning babies, praising the virtues of virginity and stealing $18,000 from the richest landowner. The villagers were not indignant about any of these incidents. And so the Reds disappear, the struggle with the Catholic priest and his villagers is resumed and the church still offers sanctuary at nightfall.

It is virtually impossible for the Occidental mind to understand such people, but amid the new veil of mystery which descends over them glimmers a hope that, eventually, as in all fairy tales, they may live happily ever after.

Job for Profumo?

Are there no dishonest English-speaking Liberals around?

If there are, then the next best thing would be a prominent English-speaking Liberal who could manage to get himself accused of some misdemeanor, the more startling the better, and who could be depended upon to cover up all evidence of his innocence.

Only in this way can Mr. Pearson get fast, fast relief from the embarrassment attendant on a succession of accusations, insinuations and innuendos, all targeted in on men with Gallic names.

It is never easy to foresee what sort of country is going to arouse your passionate adherence. There are so many kinds of beauty. The Greek landscape went to my heart straight as an Ionic thrust; it is stripped to the bone of all pretence, and owes its moving character solely to outline, color and the quality of the light."
—Janet Teissier du Cros in a BBC talk.

Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another; but let him labor diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built.—Abraham Lincoln.

What Youth Is Thinking

By Rolf Baerli in UNESCO Features

What are youth's values in East and West? How do their reactions differ in Asia, Europe and America?

This question was asked by the United Nations Educational Cultural and Scientific Organization (UNESCO) in a survey conducted in three Eastern countries — India, Japan and Malaysia — and three Western countries — Canada, Cuba and France — by youth organizations with the aid of social science experts.

The survey questionnaire, prepared by Dr. André Berge, director of the Paris Psycho-Pedagogical Centre, consisted of 64 questions on people aged 18 to 21 towards the world at large, other individuals and society; their dominant urges, motivations for conduct, and reactions to beauty, truth and good.

The answers, analyzed by specialists in each of the six countries, are discussed by Dr. Berge in the latest issue of the International Journal of Adult and Youth Education." Some of his conclusions are presented here.

Are modern youth interested in themselves or in the outside world? Their answers leave no room for doubt. The great majority expressed a desire to understand others — about 95 percent in India and Malaysia, 91 percent in France and 87 percent in Canada.

Yet, however much they may wish to know and understand other people's lives, despite new experiences, they are much less eager to visit another planet. Among the Japanese, who rate courage among the highest virtues — only 16 percent wished to become astronauts, compared with 28.9 percent of the French and 31 percent of the Canadians. Cubans (44.5 per cent), followed by India (44.5 percent) and Cuba (41.4 percent), showed the largest proportion of potential space explorers.

Malaysia and India also had the largest number of "Robinson Crusoe" types. Confronted: "Would you be willing to live on a desert island?", 52.75 percent of Malaysians and 70.80 percent of Indian youth questioned replied "Yes", as against 44.8 percent in France and 37.6 percent in Cuba. (Canadians were not asked this question, and Japanese replies were discarded as being since the translation transformed "desert island" into "desert" — which, of course, only 15 percent expressed a willingness to live there).

Despite their "Crusoe-ism", however, Malaysian youth preferred group activity (56 percent in favor) to individual action (only 1.48 percent.) They were overwhelmingly in favor of unions by 73.1 percent on the "individualistic" French, 72.5 percent of the Indians, 71.2 percent of the Cubans, but by only 50 percent of the Japanese youth, however, agreed with the statement that group activity — or cooperative action — was the only way to influence the evolution of mankind.

The Japanese and the French also agreed that it is not unnecessary to tear the old world down in order to build a better one. The Japanese, with the highest number who considered war "revolting" (73.4 percent); Malaysia-Canada and Cuba, with only 42.4 percent, followed by India (27.4 percent) and Cuba with only 8.5 percent. However, in Cuba another choice, "Is war inevitable?" was answered affirmative by 47.5 percent. Canada and Japan expressed no opinion in the matter.

Youth's taste for stability or change is reflected in the answers to the question: "Would you have chosen to live in a different time?" or "Would you live now? or in modern times?" Young people in Cuba (80.7 percent) Malaysia, France and Canada all preferred the present. Only in Japan was the past (77 percent) view shared by a mere 10 percent in Canada, 15 percent in Cuba, 5 percent in Cuba and Malaysia. The future appealed to 17 percent in Canada, 15 percent in Malaysia and 12 percent in France. The Cubans, strangely enough, considered the past most attractive than the past, but the vast majority expressed faith in progress.

Few of the young people questioned showed any religious fervor, especially in Cuba, where practically all wanted to have families. Japan had the largest proportion of potential bachelors: only three-quarters of the Japanese stated that they wanted to marry, as compared to at least nine-tenths elsewhere.

Yet many respects the young Japanese appeared to be "family-minded". They showed great respect for their elders and, along with two-thirds of French youth, rejected the claim that children can be brought up just as well outside the family, "in special institutions, by educational experts". On this point Japan differed from the two other Asian countries, where two-thirds took the opposite view.

What do these young people wish for their own children? For qualities and education" rated "happiness and emotional satisfaction" lagging far behind (14 percent). The same question asked in another way in India, showed that the main wishes were social success, intellectual qualities and education, physical qualities and health. In the West, concern with the moral qualities of future generations was expressed mainly in France and Canada.

• • •

As to the essential virtues, France listed in order of preference: a) frankness, b) honesty, c) courage; Canada: a) kindness, b) self-discipline, c) courage; Cuba: a) justice, b) honesty, c) frankness; India: a) honesty, b) self-discipline, c) kindness; Japan: a) courage, b) honesty, c) justice; and Malaysia: a) kindness, b) courage, and c) discipline.

• • •

On esthetic values, the Cubans showed a relative indifference to the importance of beauty in life, — only 37.5 percent considered it essential, as against 86 percent in Japan, 79 percent in Malaysia, 72 percent in India and 62.7 percent in France. On the whole, the love of beauty was most clearly stated in the East.

Strangely enough, artists did not rank high anywhere in replies to the question rating "heroes, saints, men of science or learning, and artists". They came third in Japan, fourth in India, Malaysia and France, fifth in Cuba, and seventh in Canada — where statesmen and military leaders were placed third and fourth. This was equally true for writers, rejected both in Cuba and Canada, next to a lesser degree in India and Japan. Yet, 96.8 percent of youth in Malaysia, 95.8 percent in France and 82.7 percent in Japan said they liked reading, and so writers must have some useful role to play.

Music seemed to have universal prestige, but opinions as to its purpose differed. The French and Japanese considered it primarily as a means of communication (65.9 percent and 60 percent); the Indian set it as "a source of pleasure" (51.6 percent), then as a way of "giving vent to emotions" (41.9 per cent), a choice shared by 79 per cent of young Malaysians, as against 44.6 percent in Canada, 40.6 percent in Cuba and only 18 percent in Japan.

As to entertainment, the Eastern countries showed a marked preference for the cinema over the theatre — unlike Europe and especially, Cuba. Japan was the only country to rate sports events higher than films.

• • •

How do these young people regard the universe and its relation to human reason? "The order reflected in nature," said 60 percent in Japan, but only about one-tenth in France and Cuba. Cuba however, joined Malaysia in stating that "there is a reason for everything that exists (60 percent), while in Canada and India, this belief was shared by 55 percent and in France and Japan by 72.4 percent. It is amusing to note that, on this point, countries went in pairs, each consisting of an Asian and Western nation.

The question: "Do you think that we are sometimes subject to human, economic, supernatural or occult influences that are unknown to us?" — received extremely varied answers. The Cubans ascribed the greatest importance to human influences (48.5 percent) and economic influences (37.7 percent), which, incidentally, are the most generally recognized. But 61 percent of Indian youth and 51 percent in France believed in the existence of supernatural influences, with corresponding figures of 53 percent and 24 percent for occult influences, while 50 percent of the young Japanese felt that they were subjected to unknown influences.

This question led to another: "Do you believe that Reason is the only road leading to truth?" Once again, France and Japan showed the greatest confidence — quarter of the young people questioned in these countries felt that reason alone could lead to truth, whereas in India and Malaysia at least half favored reason.

What proportion of the young people in the five countries (Cuba provided no particulars) holds the belief that death is the final end to existence? Three-quarters of the young Canadians felt that death was not the final end, and almost 60 percent in Malaysia, India and France also the years' same view. Young Japanese were divided on this question into three large groups: 31 percent of non-believers, 45 percent of-believers and 23 percent with no opinion.

The survey, however — obviously incomplete since only a fraction of the questions and answers have been quoted here — "the lines of separation between East and West are less fixed than formerly and tend to disappear completely when young people express their innermost hopes and fears".

Strictly Personal
Must Become Mature Soon As Possible

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A half dozen years ago, on his 70th birthday, the late T. S. Eliot remarked in an interview: "I am just beginning to grow up, to get maturity. In the last few years, everything I'd done up to 60 or so has seemed very childish."

He recognized, as few of us do about ourselves, that the emotional rate of growth bears little relation to one's age or even to one's intellectual capacities. Some personalities bloom early, some bloom late, and some never bloom at all, but pass from adolescence into senility.

I have known farm girls of 18 who were already more mature than Eliot thinks he was at 60 — who knew their identity, their responsibility, and their limitations; who knew in short, what it is to be grown up, in the way in which one accepts oneself and handles other people.

This ability is much rarer than we think, and is partly a matter of inborn constitution and partly a matter of early environment. Both together are needed to bring about the full flowering of the personality at the proper age.

Nor is it a matter of consciously "knowing oneself." Many a genius has known himself thoroughly, but "knowing" is very different from "doing" — and when a levee is threatening to break. It's better to have the heroic repairer present when it does.

The most dangerous people in the world are those who are half-grown; they are thrown into the world, who fit smugly into their skins and grow all of a piece, like the mature grain.

The numerous twice-born are those, like Housman, who describe themself as "a stranger, and afraid, in a world I never made." It is necessary for such to shed their skins like a snake, in later years, and become born again, after many mistakes and suffering.

Some of the most rewarding people in the world are the twice-born; but millions never succeed in shedding the first skin, merely spending the years in adding layers of defense to it.

Modern man is particularly vulnerable to this "crisis of identity." Psychoanalysts have noted, for instance, that the type of patient has been changing over the past several decades: they no longer see the hysteric, the illness Freud began working with, but a different kind. It is not a person with a particular symptom or complaint, but the "lost personality" who cannot relate to himself or to others, creatively or lovingly. These are, somehow, psychically "displaced persons."

The pressures of modern times have made it more imperative than ever that we become mature as soon as possible, and yet these same pressures have made it harder to do so. This is the contemporary "bind."

Shortage of hard coal and inability to maintain delivery schedules which is causing a considerable amount of hardship in Toronto, is also being reflected in Belleville, according to local fuel dealers, who this morning reported a definite scarcity of anthracite fuel in the city.

At present there seems to be plenty of coke and soft coal available but in almost every instance customers object to taking any more of this grade of fuel than is required by wartime emergency regulations.

That delivery schedules are being disrupted owing to lack of experienced deliverymen is indicated by the fact that in some instances dealers are reporting that they are two weeks behind in deliveries.

To Your Good Health
Hernia Is a Weak Place Or Gap in Abdominal Wall

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss hernia. At what stage can it be called critical. Is surgery the only recourse? — S. B.

Dear Doctor: I am 80 and have had a hernia in the groin for 15 years. Though I wear a truss, lately there has been some pressure accompanied by considerable pain, which I have been able to control by immediate rest and massage.

At my age I would prefer not to have an operation. Do you think that wild oats (Avena fatua) (the present one is slightly stack) I can expect safety? Following your advice, I have been a period of painful bilious-ness. Is there a connection? — P.

A hernia (or rupture) is a weak place, fault or gap in the abdominal wall. Others can be ruptures elsewhere, of course, but this location is usually indicated when we speak of a hernias.)

Hernia is far more common in men. Read up on anatomy if you care about that.

Anyway, a strangulated consequence is discomfort. The more serious, dangerous consequence is the risk that a loop of the intestine may force its way through the gap and be caught there, unable to return to its proper position. This is called a strangulated hernia. Blood is shut off to the trapped loop, pain is very great, and immediate surgery is necessary to prevent gangrene. This is, truly, a desperate emergency.

A truss is a spring-steel gadget which presses a pad over the weak spot, and is a temporary expedient like sands a gas, when a levee is threatening to break. It's better to have the hernia repaired permanently by the first good opportunity. Meaning surgery.

There are some so-called "injection methods" which are supposed to strengthen the weak place by building up scar tissue.

I don't think they will work except in small hernias, and even then I am afraid they are usually temporary. Surgery, at later surgery is needed, so why not do it first instead of second? It's cheaper in the long run, and safer. So I consistently refuse "surgery" methods.

There comes an age (R.P.'s letter above is an example) when a decision is necessary — whether to have an operation or get along with a truss. This is

City Pays Final Tribute To Memory of Sir Winston

Belleville paid its last respects to the memory of Winston Churchill Saturday at the city armory.

Compared to the town's population it was only a handful that came down to pay him tribute.

As a cross-section of the community it was sufficient.

The service was brief. There was all solemnity. There was little ceremony.

The ceremonial tribute to his gigantic achievements already had passed into history as a great occasion in his own beloved capital city, where he rallied the people to stand alone.

Yet, not quite alone.

For it was in such small towns and such dusty armories where Saturday's service was held, that some tiny segment of his immortality had been guaranteed.

It was in such towns that men warmed to his pulsing challenge in the hours of mortal peril.

It was in such towns that men armed to give fatal truth to his warning that the enemies of the Old Lion should beware: its cubs were assembling to its aid.

It was from such towns that scattered bands of men were despatched for the mighty hosts he promised conquered people were arming on their behalf.

It was from the living fibre of such towns that the final pattern of Christendom's greatest victory was woven in significant measure.

And now in such places his immortality already was touching men. They were conscious of that and perhaps felt some awe at the association. The times proved there would never again be such contact with such 25 years. Rio Algoma rose ⅛ to 14⅜.

McIntyre Porcupine gained ¼ to a high of 71 in golds.

On index, industrials fell .02 to 114.24 and western oils .27 to 100.58. Golds rose .80 to 163.24, base metals .70 to their high of 81.46 and the Toronto Stock Exchange index .05 to 163.35. Volume at 11 a.m. was 527,000 shares compared with 872,000 shares traded at the same time Friday.

BELLEVILLE ARMOURIES held small, solemn crowd for Churchill memorial service Saturday. On platform conducting service were Rev. G. B. Woodcock, Ven. Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, T. E. Schwab, Sons of Jacob congregation and Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan.

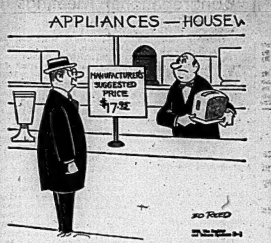
Two Miners Die Crushed Under Fall of Rock



GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — Two miners who were replacing roof supports during a regular weekend work shutdown at Dominion Coal Company's No. 26 colliery were crushed beneath a tremendous fall of rock and coal more than two miles from the pithead early Saturday. Both bodies were recovered later in the day.

Killed were Joseph Oliver, 41, of nearby Reserve Mines, and Malcolm White, 27, of Glace Bay. Both were married with two children each. They were part of a 275-man maintenance force in the mine.

Volunteer rescue workers congregated at the mine and about 50 of them, working through cramped quarters in relays, used pneumatic drills to dig through 28-square-feet of rubble to the place where the two were caught.

If your family is too big for the beetle...

And too shy for the bus...

You've just given yourself the best reasons for looking into the Volkswagen 1500.

Some families outgrow our beetle. Nature.

And some people will never get used to the idea of being seen in our Station Bus. Human nature.

So it was second nature for us to bring out the Volkswagen 1500.

We made the 1500 to seat five people. Or an almost infinite number of small, dirty faces.

And to get everyone where they want to go at a clip that's almost undignified for us to mention.

(Our TS engine zips from a standing start to 50 mph in 12 seconds.)

But we didn't get carried away completely.

We got a good grip on ourselves. And left the 1500's engine in the rear over the drive wheels.

And we cool it with air instead of that well known wet stuff. And you still don't have to buy anti-freeze because we still don't have any radiator.

So don't let a beetle or a bus owner say you're not driving a VW when you pull up in a 1500.

You might have a little more family.

And you might have a little less bravado.

But you've got as much Volkswagen.

CHRIST CHURCH VESTRY MEETING

The centennial vestry meeting of Christ Church (Anglican) on Coleman Street was held on Monday evening in the main auditorium. One of the largest crowds in the history of the parish was in attendance, with double the number from last year.

The meeting opened with a hymn followed by prayers by the rector when members who had passed on were remembered, as well as Sir Winston Churchill, with a period of silence followed by prayers for the church.

Greetings were received and returned from the parishes of St. Thomas and St. Margaret's. Copies of the rector's report were given to all members. Canon Wright's report was headed, "Hats off to the past, coats off to the future," calling up-on the parish in its centennial year to expect great things from God, and attempt great things for God. There were 53 funerals, 29 marriages, 89 baptisms, and 95 candidates presented for confirmation during the year. There were 221 Sunday services and 151 week day services.

Mr. Beverly Quinney and Mr. Goldworth Livingston gave the wardens' report, showing a total income in the parish of $35,000 during the past year, an increase of some hundreds of dollars over last year.

REPORTS GIVEN

Reports were received from the Parish Guild, Sunday school, Men's Club, Junior Auxiliary, Little Helpers, Girls' Auxiliary, Contact Club, A.Y.P.A., St. George's Guild, Young Adults, Foxboro W.A. Choir, Afternoon W.A., Evening W.A., Chi Rho Fellowship, St. George's Sunday School and Altar Guild.

The budget presented for 1965 totalled some $63,000. The parish decided to double the amount that was raised last year for world missions, and Lenten cards are to be sent to the whole parish this year. The church extension debt of some $5,000 was accepted as a charge on the 1965 budget.

NEW OFFICERS

New officers for the year include Beverly Quinney, rector's warden, and Tom Carruthers as people's warden. Lay representatives to Synod were: L. G. Lennox, G. D. Livingston, C. D. Fuzzen. Those still having part of their term to serve are: Fred Evans, Graham Beeby, Fred Ebbler, Fred Latter, Harry Bates, Richard Beare, Ernest Palmer, James Wright, Stuart Bull, Ted Warwick, O. Thornton, Mrs. F. A. Beeby, Mrs. P. W. Harris, Mrs. R. H. Godden, Mrs. P. Burton, Mrs. H. Ashton, Mrs. A. Swain and Mrs. Welch.

Appointments to the property committee were: Herb Ford, Edmund Sherry, Robert Owen, Thom Purdy and a Guild representative to be appointed.

The memorial fund committee is composed of Mrs. R. B. Roulet, D. S. McLean, Edgar Lewis, Fred Beeby. Auditors are John Lewars, Reg Wainwright. The rector and wardens are ex-official members of all committees.

The rector asked for an increase during the centennial year in stewardship of time, talents and possessions, and said that the work of the parish and its influence on the outside world will depend in no small degree upon the faithful discharge of duty as members of the church. Canon Wright thanked the Curate, the Rev. Jack Smith, for his help during the period of adjustment; also Mr. Quinney and Mr. Livingston for their excellent work in the financial field; Mrs. C. D. Fuzzen for her help as secretary; Mr. Wilters and his choir men and boys, and Mr. Bylsma for looking after church property.

All the leaders of committees and organizations in the parish were thanked for a job well done.

Mr. Livingston, retiring warden was presented with a pen and pencil set in appreciation of his services.

Eggs Featured Once a Week

By MARY MOORE

A cracking good time is being had by all. Can you call it work when you drop a whole egg in the shell into your blender, add a short list of ingredients (the ingredients, not the list), turn on the power and turn out a Be banana milk shake?

I gave Pete and Margaret an electric blender. At once he set it up, and said he was going to try blending a whole egg in the shell because one of his colleagues claimed that he made an egg nog for his underweight wife every night, starting that way. So to make what is known as "The Shake," into the glass goblet went a washed whole egg, a ripe banana, 1 cup milk, a heaping spoon of sugar, dash of vanilla, and about a quarter brick of vanilla ice cream. On went the power full speed ahead for about 1 minute. Then came the fun part. Had the egg shell been taken beyond recognition? Not quite. As Pete poured just ½ medium glasses of the rich foamy stuff the egg shell sediment remain settled in the bottom of the goblet. It was wonderful — fattening and rich and left us all with little white moustaches.

Have fun while you make egg nogs and milk shades for your underweight or just plain hungry ones. Eggs are so low in price now that you can have a ball. If you have been scrimping on dishes that call for eggs, make them now for eggs have not been so low in price for years.

To help to make the best of this egg bounty I plan to feature eggs once per week right up to and including Easter. With the money you save you can buy your new Easter hat.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Beef Stew with Dumplings; Broccoli; Spinach and Lettuce Salad with French Dressing; Orange Sherbet; Icebox Cookies; Coffee.

CHOCOLATE MILK SHAKE (for electric mixer or blender — serves 2 — see variation):

1 egg, ¾ pint chocolate ice cream (see below), shake of salt, 1 cup milk, 1 ice cube (if in blender).

Beat in electric mixer or blender until blended and a glossy collar of foam has formed at top. Variation: If you do not have chocolate ice cream on hand and do have vanilla ice cream, use it instead and add half of a small plain chocolate bar (room temperature) or 1 teaspoon each cocoa and sugar.

PINEAPPLE EGG NOG (electric mixer or blender — my favorite):

1 egg, 1 cup chilled canned unsweetened pineapple juice, 1½ teaspoons sugar, shake of salt, 1 ice cube (omit if made in electric mixer).

Combine ingredients and buzz 1 minute in blender, or beat in mixer until foamy.

Ann Landers

Wife Solves Problems By Belting Hubby in Teeth

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am fed up right to here with your stand that there is no justification for striking a mate, regardless of provocation.

ANN LANDERS

You, of all people, Ann Landers, should realize that human beings are not made of stone. Mortal man has his weaknesses. When a person is pushed to the brink he can lose control and behave in a way that is not quite saintly.

My husband, for example, has made a science of needling me. When I reach the limit of my endurance I simply crack him one in the teeth. After that he lays off for two or three weeks and everything is lovely.

My physician will tell you that bottled tension can lead to physical illness. I have learned to deal with my problem in a manner that is effective for me. So why don't you stay out of it? — ONE BLOW BETTY.

• • •

DEAR ONE — I didn't write to you, Doll. You wrote to me. If you feel you are handling the problem by belting your husband in the teeth — and if he stands for it — it's all right with me.

All experts agree that anger should be worked out of the system. The manner in which people rid themselves of anger is what distinguishes them from the lower animals.

I would suggest that you buy some cheap dishes to throw against the basement walls. Or, when you feel the tension building, scrub a floor or wash a wall or beat a rug. Civilized people vent their hostilities on things, not on other people.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am an 18-year-old freshman at a fine college in Ohio. I've always been able to cope with whatever came along but this problem has me bored.

The pressure on coeds to drink with the fellows is getting me down. For several years the students here waged a battle to drink if they wanted to. Now we are involved in another battle — to refrain from drinking if we don't want to.

Last week I spoke in behalf of the "Dry." The next morning five fellows came up to me and said, "Listen, Frosh, button your lip if you want to be considered part of the tradition around here."

Everything else on campus is great. What shall I do? — P.A.M.

• • •

DEAR PAM — Any girl who believes she has to take the cork out of the bottle to be popular needs an extra cork — for that hole in her head.

A fellow who wants to load a girl with liquor is bad news to begin with. Stick to your principles. You don't need to be the star of the debating team to win your point. The minute you say "no" you've won it.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I come from a family of civic-minded women. My mother and my grandmother were pillars of society in this community. I feel an obligation to do as they did. Furthermore I enjoy it. My mother has been my mentor and my guide.

This is particularly hectic year for me. Everything seems to have hit at once. I am on five boards and I hold four important offices. Last week I had to be away from home six evenings.

Friday when I returned from a meeting (at 10:45 p.m.) I found a sitter with the children. My husband had left a note saying a college buddy had come to town and he wanted to show him a good time. It was 2:30 a.m. before he came home — smelling like a distillery.

Any comment? — CONCERNED.

• • •

DEAR CONCERNED — Since your mother is your "mentor and guide" she should have told you that like fires, husbands often go out when left unattended.

MATERNITY ERROR

SHREWSBURY, England (CP)—Bert James, 56, broke his arm and embarrassed a government department. The pensions ministry approved his request for sickness payment but put him down for a maternity benefit by mistake. The ministry later apologized.

'Living Skirt' Is Feature Of Castillo Collection

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

PARIS (AP)—Antonio Castillo's spring collection featured the living skirt in its premiere here Saturday.

The skirt thrived on the vitality and beauty of Vivienne and a bevy of other long-stemmed mannikins. They demonstrated how umbrella pleats and softly-rolled apron fronts flare out to make the costumes come alive.

Apron panels were lined so that they softly rolled at the edges, often with pockets at the tops, forming long, double-barreled kangaroo pouches. Equally alive was a half-and-half skirt, dark brown in back with an off-white front buttoning onto the sides. The jacket was typically brief and short.

Over all, Castillo presented a refined collection of short-jacketed costumes with tiny, molded waistlines, often in fabrics that shimmered, little and bold the sculptured line of the dress. Jackets dipped, sometimes gathered into fullness at the backs.

Although Castillo is superstitious about greens, he risked it to the extent of a moss green hat and scarf, and a giant sash in a white dress. Still, he probably knew he had a lot of style ideas that would bring him good luck anyway. Among them were:

—Dresses cut into fullness at the back to form their own coats, a sure way for a woman to buy a complete ensemble whether she has that in mind at the beginning or not.

—Spirals that wind round and round as tunic skirts, or as several - layered skirt and cape styles.

—Big-brimmed hats with spilling ribbons.

—Little puffed sleeves that flow into capelets in back.

—Barrel necklines on black or navy dresses, fronted with white organdy inner collars.

—More big - brimmed hats made from caning, exactly the color of the seats on the gold chairs under the audience.

—Below-the-knee-length pants for the country, buttoned at the side with a wide belt.

—Fringed wrap - on cowboy chaps worn over country pants.

Still other new hat ideas included a Dutch lace cap, organdy turbans with tiny visors, and leather bowl-shaped hats with a V-cut over the forehead.

Susanna's Family Fare

BE MY LOVE

Dear Susanna: I attended the most adorable bridal shower last week that one could imagine.

Instead of each one buying individual gifts, we all contributed so much towards the whole affair and the co-hostesses took care of the rest.

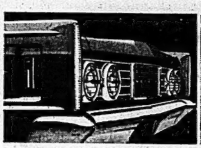
The entire party was built around the theme of her gifts. Breakfast for two. They started out with a darling little dressy type alarm clock, two electric toothbrushes, and continued with a colorful place setting for two. You can let your imagination carry on from there if you like the idea, and of course you could vary the theme, to dinner for two, just as easily.

When we first entered the room the gifts were beautifully displayed in their wrappings on a card table against the wall. A gorgeously decorated parasol was propped up in the middle of the parcels, and an extension light bulb had been run up around the stem and fastened underneath at the top. It was called a shower umbrella lamp and it illuminated the presents perfectly. For days after the party everyone talked about how much fun it was. — Helen Margeson

Shower's over, barometer's rising, and nothing but rainbows and clear skies ahead for the bride and bridegroom! — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: Guests at our house never fail to congratulate me on my delicious coffee, and I'm sure that keeping the working parts of my percolator scrupulously clean is one of the answers to my consistent success.

Most of the coffee pot is easy to get at but the long thin centre piece where the parting goes on is another matter. I attack this stem with several pipe cleaners twisted together — first from one end, then the other.



There's certainly no stale coffee residue clinging to the sides when I'm finished. — Just sign me "Coffee Bug."

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Sonny Liston could, and still can, if in shape, rocket a right-hand punch, that is the human equivalent of one of those crane-swung balls that demolish buildings.

The ex-champion's five-knuckle destroyer proved its power, on two occasions at least, when it thudded against the somewhat brittle mandibles of one Floyd Patterson.

It failed in its anaesthetic duty against the much-overworked jaw of one Cassius Clay, smug-and-dance star of-the comedies, because Mahamid Ali pranced out of range.

Ingmar Johansson, pride of Sweden's Gotenberg, boasted a sleep-producing right, termed by the Smorgasbord Mob and American experts the "Arm of Thor."

Thor was a mythical god of war who batted fourth in the weekly-naming batting order. Thursday was called after him. He followed the Mickey Mantle of the gods' lineup a character named Wodin from whom we got Wednesday. Correct me if I'm wrong, students.

Ingy's Thor got in his deadly work against Mr. Patterson in their first tete-a-tete... Pat went flat and Gotenberg, the home of the first printer, and lovely blonde "flickas," ran out of canapes and Swedish punch before dawning.

The second clash was different. With Ing's beautiful girl friend lowering ringside during training, Thor had gone to waist too many times. It failed to penetrate the peek-a-boo knight-visored defence of Patterson.

Floyd, who according to our blonde crew-cut vice-president, cannot "hit with any authority," must have been the launch between rounds for endlessly with a flurry of hard punches he "Pop-eyed" Ingy and Thor into sweet oblivion.

George Chuvalo, the Canadian muscleman, goes into the ring tonight at Madison Square Garden, depending on the same right-hand weapon that carried Liston and Johansson up the paths of glory to the world heavyweight title.

The publicity trumpets blaring from the Patterson camp—and out of the mouths of ex-world champions—announce that Canada's hope is in excellent condition, the best yet, and although the betting underdog, will put Patterson bye-bye.

Others think otherwise. A top boxing authority, in this corner's book is Nat Fleischer, well known editor in Ring Magazine, the bible of the leather-pushing fraternity. He picks Patterson "if he has not lost his cleverness."

The famous Cus D'Amato, controversial ex-manager of Patterson, despite the differences between him and his former fighter, still has faith in him.

Pre-fight ballyhoo has it that Chuvalo's right will be the one that will finish the job. It has echoed and re-echoed from the minarets and has not fallen on deaf ears in the Patterson camp. If by some chance it is the deciding factor it cannot be said that Floyd was not warned.

Our blonde V.P. says that Patterson has never seen Chuvalo fight. Why should he bother to attend minor squabbles? And he was probably too busy cutting coupons to watch the Chuvalo-Jones brawl, which after all is the only bout of any importance in the Chuvalo record book.

Patterson is going to win because he is determined to regain some of the lost pride and prestige lost in his fights with Liston. He has nothing against Chuvalo. The Canadian is just another fighter standing in his way to his goal.

This is Chuvalo's biggest fight. The pressure will be on. He has never fought before a Madison Square Garden capacity crowd, nor felt the impact of the reaction of thousands of partial and impartial fans.

So I'm going all-out for Patterson. And if my crystal ball is in familiar form, I'll be gobbling large dishes of crow tomorrow morning served up by a willing, grinning "I-told-you-so" Garry Alexander.

Two From Boston * * * * * * * * Mohns for Hull

Leafs Win Pair As Hawks, Habs Split

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It has been a one-sided harvest so far, but Chicago Black Hawks may yet benefit by their much-criticized trade with Boston Bruins.

The Hawks dealt off penalty-killer Reg Fleming and the left winger on their most productive line, Ab McDonald, last June to acquire Boston's defenceman - forward, Doug Mohns.

Boston appeared to get the best of the trade in the first half of the National Hockey League schedule. Fleming played like a champ, Stan Mikita and Kenny Wharram missed ex-linemate McDonald and Mohns missed 21 games with injuries.

But a healthy Mohns—playing left wing with Mikita and Wharram—has injected new life into the Hawks the last two weeks. With Bobby Hull in a slump, it couldn't come at a better time.

Mohns scored twice Sunday night and helped set up a goal by Wharram as the Hawks blanked league-leading Montreal Canadiens 3-0 and moved within two points of the frontrunners. The Mikita line now has 10 goals in six games.

SWEEP WEEKEND SERIES

The Canadiens won a 5-1 Saturday night over New York Rangers, while Detroit Red Wings dropped the Hawks 3-1. Toronto Maple Leafs swept a weekend series against the Bruins, winning 6-1 at Toronto and 4-2 at Boston Sunday night.

The Wings, however, stayed within one point of the third-place Leafs with a 4-1 triumph at New York Sunday night. Detroit, in addition, has three games in hand over Toronto.

Warram's 13th of the season, scored in the first period, stood up as the winner as Denis Dejordy posted his third shutout.

Mohns added a goal in the second and his seventh this season in the third period. A crowd of 21,000 watched the Hawks outshoot Montreal 30-22.

Although their lead was cut to two points, the Canadiens have played two fewer games than Chicago.

Detroit bottled up the Hawks and scored once in every period Saturday night. Ted Lindsay put the Wings up 1-0 in the first, Alex Delvecchio added the

The Big Seven

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stan Mikita continued his hot pace this weekend to inch closer to Bobby Hull in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Hull was held to one assist and remained on top with 64 points, but Mikita picked up two goals to move within eight points of Hull with a 12-10-22 record.

Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings added a pair of assists to hold third place at 46 points while Phil Esposito, Chicago and Gordie Howe, Detroit, climbed past Claude Provost of Montreal Canadiens into a fourth-place tie.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	PTS.
Hull, Chicago	37	27	64
Mikita, Chicago	37	40	56
Ullman, Detroit	27	19	46
Esposito, Chicago	17	24	41
Howe, Detroit	17	24	41
Provost, Montreal	17	23	40
Goyette, New York	20	19	39

winner in the second and Gordie Howe put the puck in an empty net near the finish. The Hawks were seeking an equalizer after Phil Esposito cut the deficit early in the final period.

On Sunday night, the Wings exploded for four second-period goals to wipe out a 1-0 New York lead and coast home to victory through the scoreless third period.

Vic Hadfield was the only Ranger to beat Roger Crozier, scoring just 21 seconds after the opening faceoff.

The Wings counted four times in the middle frame, twice on power plays. Delvecchio and Howe sandwiched goals between Ron Murphy's 12th and 13th markers of the season.

It was a costly weekend for the last-place Bruins. Besides dropping two games and falling 24 points behind the playoff contenders, goalie Ed Johnston was sidelined for six weeks with a broken right hand.

SLATED FOR REST

Johnston was hurt in Toronto Saturday night in a game he wasn't supposed to play in. Jack Norris was called up from Los Angeles Blades of the Western League to replace Johnston, but his pads were delayed and he couldn't play until Sunday.

Toronto's George Armstrong and Boston's Orland Kurtenbach traded goals early in the first but Frank Mahovlich gave Toronto a permanent lead. Bob Pulford, Andy Bathgate, Dickie Moore and Ed Shack added singles.

The return of Armstrong and Bathgate to action gave Toronto a starting lineup of regulars for the first time in weeks. The Bruins, however, almost stole Sunday's game.

Down 2-0 after goals by Shack and Red Kelly had given Toronto the jump, the Bruins suddenly spurted midway through the third when Johnny Bucyk and Fleming scored within three minutes.

But Dave Keon pulled it out of the fire, deflecting Tim Horton's blueline drive past Norris with 1:45 left in the game. Pulford scored in the dying seconds into an empty net.

Louis Fancies Chuvalo, But Admits 'Ifs'

Joe Louis, former world heavyweight champion and one of the greats of all time in boxing history, here gives his analysis of the Floyd Patterson - George Chuvalo 12 - round heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden tonight. Louis has visited both camps, talked to both fighters, and has watched both work.

Written for The AP
By JOE LOUIS
Former Heavyweight Champ

NEW YORK (CP) — I have fought a lot of fights and written about just as many. I have been right and I have been wrong, both in and out of the ring.

Most fights are more or less easy to judge but I'm having trouble with the Floyd Patterson - George Chuvalo fight that takes place in Madison Square Garden Monday night.

I've gone on record as picking the Canadian champion to stop Patterson in eight rounds. I'm not changing any prediction. However, I've got to say that this is a fight with a lot of "ifs."

I picked Chuvalo because he is stronger than Patterson and can punch with either hand. I've seen him and talked with him and he's in fine shape physically and mentally.

That mentally is awful important to a fighter, particularly to one like Chuvalo. There have been fights he should have won easily but he just couldn't get going. That's in the mind. He has been moody. But he tells me that's all over with. He's got new management in which he's got a lot of confidence and he's got no troubles outside of Patterson. If that's the case, Chuvalo will win.

They've called Chuvalo another Rocky Marciano. The only way I make them the same is in roughness. Chuvalo may be better than Marciano. He may be the harder puncher. He is not the wild swinger that Rocky was and he doesn't take as many punches. Against Doug Jones, whom he knocked out, Chuvalo was ahead on points on two of the three official cards. That means he can box a little, too.

Now let's take Patterson. He is a proud man. He has a style that's entirely his own. He calls it the "peek-a-boo." He has a great weapon in his left hand and his lunging jab is one of the best. He has speed with those hands and that makes him feel he can control a fight against anyone. He tried it twice with Sonny Liston and got flattened in one round both times.

Patterson has said he will not fight a "sitting away" fight. He says he will carry the fight to Chuvalo because he feels that he is faster, better and more experienced.

Certainly, he doesn't know how to back up. If he chooses to fight Chuvalo, he'll be fighting Chuvalo's fight. That's exactly what Chuvalo is hoping for. And this will be great for the Canadian fan, if not Patterson.

This is a real good heavyweight fighter from any angle you look, particularly at the word "ifs." It has a boxer-puncher against a strong, powerful puncher. It has a two - time former world heavyweight champion against a Canadian champion. It has excitement and drama built around contrasting styles and different personalities.

If Chuvalo fights his fight and doesn't rush it, he should win it by overpowering the lighter opponent. Patterson just can't take the chance of trading punches with him. And if Patterson moves in as he plans, he's going to get hit. Whether or not he can bounce off the floor with all that punishing I question. Chuvalo has the punch to keep you down.

And Patterson, fighting for his dignity as well as another chance at the heavyweight title may foul us all.

East. Ont. Baseball Association

Want Better Minor Officials

The Eastern Ontario Baseball Association at its annual meeting Saturday night in Ottawa measures to improve the calibre of its minor leagues officiating.

Nearly forty delegates unanimously approved a motion that the executive conduct an umpires' clinic to enable the association to obtain competent officials.

The motion stemmed from complaints of delegates from at least six areas of association territory.

Speaking from the floor the delegates told the body that a number of umpires officiating in the minor leagues were not qualified men. Several managers and coaches lodged complaints.

However, officiating from the junior to senior divisions had proven satisfactory. There had been no dissenting voices from these circles.

The gist of the complaints was that the officials concerned were not sufficiently versed in rules. Some showed ignorance of even some of the basic regulations of the sport.

Through the clinic's operation applicants for cards will be screened by the executive. Those not qualifying will not be accepted.

President Jack Carson, elected for his second term, said that his executive will call in George Bain, third vice of the Ontario Baseball Association to assist with the clinic.

Mr. Bain, he said, is a statistical expert of the OBA, who has made an intense study of the rules — and knows them down to his finger tips.

The proposed clinic, it is felt, will be welcomed and used heartedly by Umpires Associations of the district.

HAVE NO SAY-SO

"The Umpires Associations have no choice" said Mr. Carson." If they do not like the idea they must forward their objections to the association executive. And their objections will have to fully explain the ruling body before any action is taken."

The meeting also concurred in a motion to eliminate the juvenile rule and extend the mid-get and junior series from two to three years.

It went on record to serve in curb major "A" centres like Hamilton which enter two teams, to drop from major "A" to "A" in order to get weaker competition. Both motions may get a dim view by the OBA which must approve them.

The Associations new constitution was read and explained to delegates who gave it unanimous approval.

As was noted, Jack Carson was returned to presidential office for his second term. Dick Ellis of this city was elected vice president in absentia.

Other officials are Jim Gilmer, Port Hope, second vice; Bill Rawlinson, Peterborough, third vice with Speca Annis also of Peterborough back again in the secretarial position.

Directors chosen named are; Zone One (Oshawa) Art Parry of that city; Zone Two (central) John Ryan, Cobourg and Zone Three (eastern) Harold Griffin of Cannifton.

Delegates from Belleville included Ron Lupinette, Rene Ashton, Gord Barnette, Don Eves and Vic Allen.

A special guest was OBA president Jim Waldie of Milton who said he was very pleased with the 1964 operation of the EOBA and helped interpret various rules and articles of the constitution.

if you fail to keep your automobile liability insurance in force and you are responsible for an automobile accident resulting in a claim?

You do!

Here are the reasons why you should always carry automobile liability insurance:

1. If your automobile insurance lapses, you become liable to a fine of up to $500 unless you immediately renew your insurance or pay a $20 uninsured motor vehicle fee at a motor vehicle licence agency office.
2. Payment of the $20 fee gives no protection whatever against a subsequent judgment against you. Some judgments may be in excess of $25,000—a serious blow to the future of any young man and to his family as well.
3. If there is a claim against you as an uninsured motor vehicle owner or you are liable, the claim will be paid by the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund, but you must repay the fund. You will not be allowed to own or operate a motor vehicle until you make arrangements to repay the fund.

When you apply for your 1965 Ontario licence plates be sure you have an automobile liability insurance policy in force and avoid payment of the extra $20 fee. Be a safe, responsible driver and protect your future.

Favor Patterson 7-5 Over Chuvalo

Both Seek Knockouts

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

NEW YORK (CP)—A sellout crowd of more than 19,000, the first at Madison Square Garden in nearly two years, is expected to see Canadian heavyweight boxing champion George Chuvalo climb into the ring tonight for his crucial bout with Floyd Patterson.

The 12-round bout is scheduled to begin shortly after 10 p.m.

If Chuvalo, who has fared few top-notch opponents since turning pro in 1956, beats Patterson he will be in line for a shot at the world title—said by some to be borne by Cassius Clay, said by others to be vacant.

Patterson is ranked second among heavyweight contenders by the World Boxing Association and by Ring Magazine, widely regarded as the most authoritative journal on boxing. Chuvalo is ranked third by the WBA and fifth by Ring.

The betting crowd has made Patterson the favorite, 7 to 5, partly because of the 27-year-old Canadian champion's reputation as a clumsy brawler.

The Chuvalo camp maintains that this reputation is no longer deserved. Since Ted McWhorter became his trainer, Chuvalo has been punching more effectively. He has won his last four fights by knockouts.

Lending particular interest to the bout are two facts that may have a connection tonight. The hard-hitting Chuvalo has never been knocked down. Patterson, on the other hand, has a rather delicate chin for a boxer and has perhaps been in horizontal position more often than any other champion in history.

The 30-year-old Patterson is, at six feet, an inch shorter than Chuvalo and, at 195 pounds, 14 pounds lighter. His main asset is speed and, if he has plenty of it tonight, he could end Chuvalo's title hopes with a quick left-and-right combination as he once ended the short reign of Sweden's Ingemar Johansson.

The WBA recently withdrew its recognition of Cassius Clay as champion because it was opposed to his scheduled rematch with Liston, from whom he had taken the title. Just about everybody else in boxing still speaks of Clay as champion, however, and there is talk here about a match between Clay and the Chuvalo-Patterson winner, especially if it is Chuvalo.

The WBA has nothing to do with the Chuvalo-Patterson fight but it has stated that it will sanction a bout for the "title" between the winner and the survivor of a scrap between Ernie Terrell and Eddie Machen, who meet March 5 in Chicago.

The, Madison Square Garden Corporation is promoting the Chuvalo-Patterson fight and, its spokesman say, would be extremely interested in having the winner meet Clay.

SEE $160,000 GATE

Tickets for the Chuvalo-Patterson fight were sold briskly here all last week and the gate is expected to reach at least $160,000.

Ticket prices ranged up to $30 from $3 and ticket-scalping, not so common here nowadays as it was in more glamorous periods of boxing history, is taking place. It is reported that as much as $40 is being demanded for top seats.

The fight will be seen on subscription television in Toronto and on closed-circuit television in 54 cities across Canada and the United States.

Patterson is to get 32 per cent of all revenues from the fight, Chuvalo 20 per cent.

Patterson goes into the fight with a record of 41 victories and four defeats in his 45 professional bouts. Chuvalo's record is 29 victories, eight defeats and two draws.

HAS 31 KAYOS

Patterson, who turned pro in 1952 after winning an Olympic gold medal at Helsinki in the middleweight division, has scored 31 of his 41 victories by knockouts.

Chuvalo has 23 knockouts to his credit. Of 16 fights that have gone the limit, he has lost half.

Patterson is game but he has a weak jaw," said Chuvalo. "I'm going right after him. I'm going to get him somewhere between the first and 12th round. Then I'm after the title."

"I know he'll be coming," said Patterson. "So will I. I can punch better when I go forward. On styles, this is going to be a good fight. I hope to win. If I get the chance, I'll be going for the knockout."

Inside right John Radford gave Arsenal the lead two minutes from half time. Eighteen minutes from the end, centre forward Derek Dougan levelled for Peterborough.

Pandemonium reigned when McNamee sent Peterborough into the lead with only three minutes left.

Riteways Win Tournament 'B' Division

Belleville Riteways won only one game at the first annual Gananoque novice hockey tournament on Saturday — but it was the right one.

Riteways captured the "B" division, or consolation, championship with a 6-0 triumph over Brockville.

Trenton, the eventual tournament champions over runner-up Napanee, put Belleville in the "B" grouping with a 5-0 victory in the tournament's first round.

A misunderstanding in Toronto saw that city represented by the Bruin Peewees all-star club, rather than a novice team. Toronto was thus disqualified from winning any championship and all the peewee clubs' games were exhibitions.

Toronto blanked the Belleville Riteways 6-0 but since the game meant nothing, Riteways qualified for the "B" finals.

Danny Lapensée sparked Moe Hunter's Riteways to their victory by scoring three goals. Other goal-getters were Smith, Goegan and Smrke. One assist each went to Dales, Coughlan, Goegan, Eves, Smrke and Smith.

Trenton got single goals from McAlpine, Clay, S. Whitney, G. Glover and LeBlanc while beating Belleville. McAlpine, Armstrong, McCay and Ferguson had assists.

Stuart paced the Toronto peewees' victory with two goals and the others went to Olgiel, MacGregor, Hamilton and Hawkshaw.

Riteways received the Gananoque Community Centre Trophy for their titular victory.

Trenton Minors Win Weekenders

TRENTON (Special) — The Lions Midgets and Legion Juveniles added a couple more victories to their record in the usual Sunday night doubleheader here yesterday.

Gananoque midgets bowed to Trenton Lions' midget 9-6 and Trenton Legion juveniles downed the Wellington Junior "D" team by a 6-2 count.

In the midget tilt, Trenton led 1-0 and 6-2 by periods, while outshooting Gananoque by a slim 31-30 margin.

Dan Creighton, John McDonald and Jim Bigwood scored goals in pairs to lead the winner's attack. Jim Steenburg, McCormick and Terry Cox added the others.

J. Adair starred for Gananoque with three markers. Allan Walker fired two and Barry Dickson got one.

Wellington outshot the Legion Juveniles 29-23 and held a brief 1-0 lead before falling behind. It was 3-1 after one period and 6-2 before a scoreless final chapter.

There were no double scorers in the game. The Trenton marksmen were Ken Reynolds, Jeff Ferguson, Chuck Howard, Jim Bonn, Harry Turner and Larry Poachman.

Bob Lawrence and Don McNeil hit the net for Welling ton.

The Gas House Hockey League

Marysville and Joyce Realty scored wins yesterday to even their best-of-five Gas House Hockey League semi-finals at one game apiece.

Joyce downed the Komets 10-2 and Marysville shaded Mulroney's Sunoco 5-4.

Wayne Pascoe paced the Marysville victory with three goals and one assist. Ray Summers had a goal and two helpers and Carm Milligan completed the team's scoring with one of each.

Jerry Brennan was best for Sunoco with a goal and two assists. Ben Hurley got a goal and assist, Hugh Petrie and Claude Carr a goal each and Pete Enright one helper.

Jack Garvin and Jim Sheridan paced the Joyce triumph, scoring two goals and helping on another. Leo Holland also fired two goals, Rod Turner got a goal and two assists, Tom Woodley and Jim Horwood one of each and Don Raycroft the other goal.

Komet goals, both unassisted, went to Lee McBrien and Bob Wannamaker.

Third games in both series will be played next Sunday night.

Win Three Of Four Heats

Four-Sledders Win World Title

CANADIAN SLED WINS CHAMPIONSHIP AT S. MORITZ — The Canadian 4-man bobsled takes a turn during one of the heats while winning the world's championship at St. Moritz, Switzerland. The Canadian crew includes: Victory Emery of Montreal, steering; Peter Kirby of Montreal, Gerald Presley of Arnprior and Michael Young of Port Credit. (AP Wirephoto)

ST. MORITZ (CP)—Canadian victory wheels resounded across the snow-covered slopes in this Swiss winter resort Sunday as Vic Emery of Montreal and his crew retained the world four-man bobsled title.

Emery, a 32-year-old Montreal engineer, and his brakeman, Peter Kirby of St. Jovite, Que., members of the team which won the Olympic title at Innsbruck, Austria, last year, had two young newcomers on their maple-leaf emblazoned sled as they rocketed down the mile-long track in one minute, 19.17 seconds and 1:20.09 to sew up the world title.

The Canadian foursome's aggregate for its four runs—two of them Saturday — was five minutes and 17.78 seconds, two seconds better than the time of the second-place Italian sled piloted by Nevio de Zordo.

Accompanying Emery and the 23-year-old Kirby on the dash down the steeply-banked, curve-filled run were Mike Young, 22, of Port Credit, Ont., and Terry Presley, 23, Arnprior, Ont.

Young, a University of Western Ontario business administration student, took up sledding in 1963, Presley in 1962 at the Royal Military College, Kingston.

WIN THREE HEATS

The Canadians won Saturday's two heats, and the first one Sunday. They were narrowly beaten by an American and two German sleds in the final heat, in which they started last in the 15-sled field representing nine countries.

De Zordo took second place by a margin of only a hundredth of a second on the aggregate over a United States entry guided by Fred Fortune of Lake Placid, N.Y., a graduate of restaurant owner.

Canada's No. 2 team, which placed 11th, hoisted the victorious Emery foursome aloft and paraded proudly before the television and news cameras.

First to congratulate Emery on his victory was Canada's team doctor, Dr. John Emery of Toronto. The doctor was a member of the Olympic gold medal eight but gave up racing during training here after some bad spills. Emery said he would return to Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, to defend his title next year.

The second Canada sled was piloted by Lamont Gordon of Montreal, also a member of the 1964 Olympic eight. Riding with him were Paul Levesque and Purvis MacDougall, Montreal, and Rev. D'Arcy Coulson of Ottawa.

Third Triumph In Three Days

Brilliant Win for Crothers

By BOB GREEN

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Crothers, running out of Toronto's East York Track Club, came from last place to a sparkling victory in the 600-yard run in the Boston Amateur Athletic Games Saturday night, finishing one-tenth of a second short of the indoor record at 1:09.2.

It was the third triumph in as many days for the 24-year-old pharmacist and his sixth without loss this indoor season.

Earlier, Cortland Gary of the U.S. Naval Academy pulled a major upset by beating a veteran field in 5.5 seconds in the 45-yard high hurdles.

"It was a little thin, three nights in a row," said Crothers, who won the 600 in Toronto Friday night and the half-mile in New York Thursday.

"It'd be nice to get some rest, some sleep. It's been getting to bed at one or two o'clock, then up at eight to catch a plane.

"I didn't realize I had run that fast, although I knew the first two laps were fast. I really didn't care how fast I ran—I was just running to win."

Crothers, who now has won five cup races in eight days, let Tommy Farrell of New York, a U.S. Olympian, set the fast pace for two laps, bolted from last in the field of four with one lap to go, caught Farrell with 200 yards to go and won by about four yards.

Farrell was timed in 1:09.8.

Crothers' time first was announced matching the world record and the Boston Garden crowd of 10,743 let out a roar. It turned to a groan moments later when Yale coach Bob Giegengack reminded the announcer that Wendell Mottley had cut one-tenth of a second off the old record, listed in the program, in the Heptagonal Games last year.

John Davies of New Zealand, bronze medalist in the 1,500 metres at Tokyo, romped to an excellent 4:03 flat victory in the mile, only his second start indoors. It was a meet record. Jim Grelle of Concord, Mass., won the mile in Toronto, was second, some six yards back, and Billy Mills of the U.S. Marines, winner of the Olympic 10,000 metres, was third.

New Zealand's Bill Baillie, running in borrowed shoes, just held off the closing rush of George Young of Phoenix and won the two - mile run in 8:50.2, edging Young by about a yard. It was Baillie's second distance victory in two nights, having won the three - mile in Toronto.

A Morgan State University team won the mile relay in 3:20.2. The Toronto East York team was fourth.

Oshawa Whips Wings

Flyers Tie Marlies 4-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ron Buchanan didn't get much opportunity to keep his point-a-game streak alive Sunday but he took full advantage of the small chances available.

Buchanan, who plays for Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, got an assist on his team's only goal as last-place Hamilton Red Wings walloped Oshawa 8-1.

The star centre for the Generals, Tommy Farrell of New York, set one point in each of his team's last 23 games.

In other Junior A action Sunday, the first - place Niagara Falls Flyers played to a 4-4 draw with the second - place Toronto Marlboros, Peterborough Petes eked out a 4-3 win over St. Catharines Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens defeated Kitchener Rangers 6-2.

Hamilton built up a 5-0 lead in the first period, added three more in the second and then settled back to try unsuccessfully to give goalie Peter Fritsch his first shutout of the season.

Real Lemieux scored the first two goals for Hamilton, including the winner at 4:41 of the first period. Peter Loveless also scored twice and Jim Peters, Bart Crashley, Nick Libett and Don Giesebrecht added the others.

Bill Little scored the only Oshawa goal in the third period.

Sonny Liston Acquitted

DENVER (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Sonny Liston was acquitted of a drunken driving charge Saturday night by a Denver County Court jury.

The six-member jury deliberated for 90 minutes before delivering the verdict to Judge John F. Sanchez.

Liston, who smiled as the jurors filed past him on their way out of the courtroom, said he was surprised by the decision. He said he intended to celebrate his acquittal with "a good night's sleep."

Liston, who admitted during the trial he had been "uncooperative" with arresting officers Christmas Day, said his treatment by police would have "made a preacher belligerent."

The fighter told the court he lost his temper when police told him he was being arrested for drunken driving.

"I wasn't driving," Liston said. "I was arrested because they knew I was Sonny Liston."

FILM VIEWED

A sound film and two newsreels introduced by the prosecution showed the fighter to be belligerent and, police said, intoxicated.

Judge Sanchez turned down a defence move to admit the testimony of Dr. Lawrence Kier, a Denver General Hospital toxicologist.

Dr. Kier said outside the courtroom there was nothing in Liston's speech or behavior in the films that was not normal.

On the witness stand Saturday, Liston said he had had only one beer before he and a companion drove in search of a place to eat.

It was at a drive-in restaurant here that three patrolmen first noticed Liston in the fighter's yellow Cadillac.

The officers testified that Liston was at the wheel when the car was driven erratically into the restaurant parking lot.

DENVER (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Sonny Liston will begin training today for a come-back fight with reigning title holder Cassius Clay.

Sam Margolis, vice - president of InterContinental Fight Promotions Inc., made the announcement after Liston was acquitted of a drunken driving charge Saturday night.

Margolis said the bout is tentatively planned about May 1 in Boston.

Liston will begin road work here immediately, Margolis said, and will go to White Cliffs at Plymouth, Mass., about March 10 to complete his training for the Clay rematch.

Belleville took a 1-0 lead in the first period on a goal by Paul Ford. Ron Post and Bill Gregory got assists.

Each club scored once in the second to leave the "Travellers" with a 2-1 lead entering the third. Doug Hickey fired the Belleville marker, aided by Ford and Paul Ruttan. Alf Whitfield scored for Napanee on a solo effort.

In the third, Doug Teary tied in for Napanee, Jack Smith triggered the winner and John Burtch added the insurance. Edgar Garrison and Whitfield picked up assists.

There were four minor penalties assessed to each club.

Aces Whip Clippers, Barons Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Terry Gray got more than half as many goals in an American Hockey League game Sunday night as he scored in 42 regular National Hockey League games with Boston Bruins during the 1961-62 season.

The 26-year-old Montreal native scored five times as Quebec Aces walloped Baltimore Clippers 10-3.

He had managed only eight goals with the Bruins, and that apparently wasn't enough. Boston left him unprotected in the annual NHL player - draft that spring and Montreal Canadiens picked him up.

He turned out to be a good investment for the Aces, scoring 50 goals during the last two seasons with the Canadiens' top farm club.

In the AHL Saturday, Cleveland Barons defeated Rochester Americans 4-1, Hershey Bears edged Buffalo Bisons 4-3, Pittsburgh Hornets shut out Providence Reds 4-0, and Springfield Indians defeated Baltimore 5-3.

Sunday, Buffalo edged Springfield 5-4 in overtime, Cleveland defeated Providence 3-1, and Rochester defeated Pittsburgh 4-3.

Danny Thomas Busy as Ever Following TV Retirement

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The squire of Chasen Valley, otherwise known as Danny Thomas, came to town to pursue his trade of telling jokes, thus being able to retain his position as the squire of Cherry Valley.

Danny is able to see more of his acreage near Beaumont, Calif., but not as much as he expected when he quit the weekly television show last year.

He announced then that because of constant strain, plus a callous on his vocal cord that required daily medication, he was ending the series after its 11th season.

As everyone expected, he did not retire to his ranch. He is as busy as ever.

What happened?

"People found out I had time," he explained. "They found things for me to do."

STILL WORKING

He ticked off some of his assignments: Night club dates in Las Vegas, Lake Tahoe, Miami and his five specials for NBC this season, the next on Feb. 16, plus his television filming enterprises—Dick Van Dyke, Andy Griffith, Gomer Pyle and Bill Dana shows, and Tycoon.

"But I do get some time at the ranch," Danny reported, "and believe me when I say it is like dying and going to heaven."

I asked Danny about the place.

"You mean you haven't been to Amos's Folly?" said the comic, whose real name is Amos Jacobs. "You haven't lived! Why, I figure every blade of grass cost me $90—and I've got 244 acres!"

Danny still doesn't see as much of the place as he would like.

"But after next season old Dan is really going to put the brakes on. I'd like to make a movie a year and otherwise spread myself thin."

Then, he added with a sigh, he intends to devote himself to full supervision of Amos's folly.

Churchill Funeral Coverage One of TV's Finest Hours

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Complete, well-rounded coverage of the state funeral of Sir Winston Churchill in London by CBS and NBC on Saturday was the outstanding event of the television weekend and probably will be remembered among the medium's finest hours.

The two competing networks used a communications satellite, chartered planes, helicopters, tons of electronic equipment, cable and radio to speed the pictures and story to viewers on this side of the ocean.

The American broadcasters who handled the commentary were well prepared and did competent jobs. The inspired moments, however, came when one or the other networks relied on the comments of the marvelously fluent staff of the BBC.

For the People, CBS' new dramatic series seen Sunday night for the first time, proved to be realistically conceived, extremely well acted and promises to be a stimulating as its parent series, Mr. Novak.

We were introduced to the workings of a new district attorney's office. William Shatner stars as a young, sophisticated assistant district attorney.

It will be interesting to see whether a handsome, intense but happily - married hero will make the audience grade. Television heroes are traditionally bachelors and widowers, except in situation comedies.

ABC showed the first of four color specials called The American Sportsman about hunting and fishing Sunday. There were some scenes of tuna fishing—for tagging and research, not eating—followed by flies at an American bird shoot and lion hunt.

It was probably an interesting hour for people who find shooting birds and animals a sport, but it was certainly not for the squeamish or tender-hearted.

Recommended tonight:

News Program, ABC, 6:45-7 EST — Peter Jennings takes over Ron Cochran's spot on the early news program; The Lucy Show, CBS, 9-9:30 — with Ann Sothern in the first of four appearances; The Mystery of Stonehenge, 10-11 — documentary about a new theory of the ancient British stone ring.

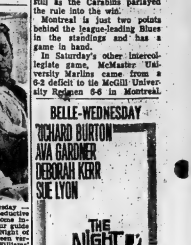
MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's new red maple leaf flag has been raised beside Quebec's provincial blue-and-white fleur-de-lis atop Sir George Williams University's new building, under construction here.

Vancouver Tightens Place Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stop the Monteith brothers and you stop the University of Toronto Blues.



University of Montreal Carabins put this rule to the test Saturday and it worked for a 6-1 win over the Blues. It was the first loss in 11 games for Toronto in the Ontario - Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association Hockey League.

Jocelyn Cote and Jean-Louis Mongrain checked Steve and Hank Monteith, leading scorers in the league, to a standstill as the Carabins parlayed the rule into the win.

Montreal is just two points behind the league-leading Blues in the standings and has a game in hand.

In Saturday's other intercollegiate game, McMaster University Marlins came from a 6-2 deficit to tie McGill University Redmen 6-6 in Montreal.

the staff had tripled since the trustees took full control of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) last March, it actually increased to 27 now.

3. Property. In 1962 we bought a staff decrease. The majority of staff members were either on the SIU side of the government or on leave of absence from former jobs and had been hired on the SIU understanding that the work was temporary.

DENIES SUBSIDIZING

2. There had never at any time been discussions about taking over the longshoremen. Such a step was "completely illogical."

4. The trusteeship would oppose, rather than seek, any legislation giving them the right to change the constitutions of the five unions.

It was revealed last week that Mr. Millard split with his fellow trustees on the 1963 when they voted to abolish the post of SIU administrator which he had held up to that time. The decision, coming after the trustees had made the trustees jointly responsible for SIU affairs.

"Mr. Millard seemed determined to run the SIU all by himself," the source said. "He didn't want any interference."

There were complaints that Mr. Millard's eventual aim was to give the SIU complete domination of the maritime union field, the same goal that was sought by Hal Banks, thrown by the trustees last March as SIU president.

MORNING'S REPLY

Judge Lippe, who has refused to take part in the public debate between Mr. Charles and Mr. Millard, is reported to be preparing a private letter to the CLC opposing Mr. Millard's stand for a private trusteeship.

The split within the trusteeship will get a full airing within a few weeks, however, when a Commons committee meets to study the trustees' report and question the three men about it. Mr. Justice Dryer, even though he has resigned, has agreed to appear before the committee, along with Judge Lippe and Mr. Millard.

Meanwhile, the split has made it difficult for Mr. MacEachen to find a new trustee and a new chairman. The minister is anxious to appoint a replacement before Parliament meets Feb. 16 but it is reported that some of the men he has been talking to about it are reluctant to get into the feud with Mr. Millard.

One suggestion has been that the government might remove Mr. Millard from the trusteeship to end the rift. But persons close to the situation say that idea has been rejected, for the time being at least.

So far there have been no public expressions of support for Mr. Millard's stand. Privately, however, most of those involved disagree with him. The CLC will decide the issue at an executive council meeting March 8.

Two World Marks Smashed
Records Go at Winnipeg Meet

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two world records and two Canadian marks were established Saturday as 200 athletes contested the laurels at the indoor track and field International Meet of Champions.

A Canadian record fell when Eleanor Montgomery of Cleveland won the high jump with a leap of five feet, seven inches. It was just inch better than the old record held by Diane Gerace of Trail, B.C.

In addition to winning the event, Miss Montgomery was named outstanding athlete of the meet.

Chi Cheng, 20-year-old Olympic competitor from Nationalist China, swept over the 60-yard low hurdles in 7.7 seconds to chop eight-tenths off the world record set by Willye White of Toronto in 1932 and equalled by Rose Malanchuk of Port Arthur in 1960.

Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver established the other world record in the women's 300 metres which was run only twice in history. She covered the distance in 40.6 seconds, a tenth of a second better than the mark established by Abbie Hoffman of Toronto in 1963.

TIE IN DASH

Mrs. Piotrowski and Willye White of Chicago, both 1964 Olympic competitors, were timed at 40.6 seconds in the women's 60-yard dash. Mrs. Cheng finished third in the event.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver, bronze medal winner in the 1964 Olympic competitors, was timed at 6.2 seconds in the Canadian record he holds with four others. He had a second-place finish in won the women's shot put with a throw of 39 feet, three inches. She had a 40-foot throw over Marlene Kurt of Edmonton.

Norman John of Willmar, Minn., established a world record in the 60-yard high hurdles with a time of 7.3 seconds.

Dave Steen of Vancouver edged Olympic bronze medal winner Gyde Arrhenius of Winnipeg by half an inch in the meet's shot put with a throw of 49 feet, 9¾ inches—his best in six tries.

Miss Hoffman won the women's 880-yard run with a time of two minutes, 14 seconds to defeat Mrs. Nagy Zabo of Hungary by 1.5 seconds.

A last-lap spurt by John Camden of Emporia State Teachers College in Kansas won for him the men's two-mile race over pace-setter Chris Williamson of the University of New Brunswick.

Jim Irons of Toronto out-ran Bill Crothers of the University of Tennessee with a time of 4:11.7 in the mile.

The doctors took a firmer stand on the question of setting their fees than in their previous policy. In 1960 they conceded they might have to accept a negotiation process. Now, they insist on setting their own. However, the spokesmen indicated no trouble is expected over this point in any government - run scheme.

One reason for this stand, Dr. Kelly said, was that it

Canada's Hangman Favors Retention of Death Penalty

The official Canadian executioner said this week he favors retaining the death penalty in Canada.

The man who uses the alias of John Ellis said he has put 18 persons to death in about 12 years. He described himself as "just an instrument of justice" in a recorded interview with Betty Kennedy of the CFRB staff.

Speaking with a slight European accent, he said he would have the death penalty retained "for the simple reason that there are so many people that are unemployed that just don't want to work. These born bums can go and shoot anybody in the street after the death penalty is abolished so they can live a life with three meals a day in the penitentiary."

Following is a transcript, in part, of the interview:

K: Where does the name John Ellis come from?

E: Centuries ago a man by the name of John Ellis was actually the executioner at that time and from that time the name John Ellis has been used for this particular occupation.

QUALIFICATIONS

K: In this particular kind of occupation what are the qualifications, and how does one obtain that special job?

E: There is a certain amount of anatomy that has to be known in order to do this job correctly. You see, you must study anatomy close for more than two years. Also in obtaining the position you should know or have seen executions carried out by the one who is experienced at it.

K: When you say you must have seen executions, there would be very few people who would have seen any kind of executions in Canada, but they have gone through wartime or something of this calibre. Are you suggesting that this kind of background or experience would be helpful?

E: Yes, I think certainly by being acquainted with some nature in the society. It's not unlike a surgeon.

K: Is there any kind of training that you have had?

E: No.

K: Why did you decide to take this job?

SAW AN

E: First of all I saw this ad in the paper, from a late sheriff. For the simple reason: Being that I had seen different executions and being that I had the qualifications and training, also the fact that I think in this particular occupation that I was helping humanity to a certain, I was quite willing to go ahead with this if my qualifications were accepted by the government.

K: How long, what period of time, have you been John Ellis?

E: Well it is quite a bit over 10 years.

K: How many executions would you have carried out?

E: Up to now it would probably be 18.

K: Do you ever follow trials? Does your interest date back into what's happening in the courts, that people are likely to come up for sentence, or is it all completely professional for you as a matter of choice and a matter of preference?

E: It is impersonal to me as to trials because under my belief of trials and Magna Carta this particular person has had a fair trial and he has been sentenced accordingly and that this would be carried out with no personal feeling whatsoever.

* * *

WIFE NOT TOLD

K: I wonder whether you are married and have a family and if your wife and family are aware of your occupation? Does your wife know your identity is concealed. I don't know your identity apart from John Ellis which is the general name.

E: There is no one who knows but who I see, even my wife. Primarily because I belong to too many functions and organizations which take me out of town quite regularly and that is how I manage to keep my job a secret.

K: I'm assuming from what you say Mr. Ellis, that you also have another occupation then?

E: Yes,

K: In your profession is there special equipment a paraphernalia that is necessary to the work and if so, do you provide this or is it already available at the site of any execution?

PROVIDES EQUIPMENT

E: No I provide the equipment which is used entirely.

K: Because of the anonymity sion, and I can well understand the need for anonymity, connected with your profession what is the procedure, in other words, there are so few people who know you—know your occupation. What is the routine when your services are required? Does only one person contact you?

E: There are two persons who could contact me and they are naturally sworn to secrecy.

K: What is the procedure when a sentence is carried out? Do you meet the person in a sentencing room? Do you actually see that person prior to the time of hanging, or do you not see him up to the time of execution and then they see you?

E: No. They don't see me for this particular reason: if the executioner happens to be cancelled right at the last moment they could not describe me to anyone and if they are sentenced to a life sentence, they can't describe me to other prisoners as he may get out after a short term.

K: The way you say that makes me think that you would feel that there would ever be reprisals if someone did see you. Has he thought ever crossed your mind?

CARRIES GUN

E: The thought has not only crossed my mind, but I have been attacked at one particular time by a member—not members of the family—but by members of a childhood gang of the person who was going to be executed at that particular place. I have permission to carry a gun specifically for protection of this type.

K: How long does it take for you to get your job done when they die in this way? Is it in your mind, an instantaneous death?

E: Definitely. As soon as a man is helping the end of his rope, as the term may be, he is dead.

K: Can I assume from the fact that your occupation is what it is that you certainly approve capital punishment?

E: Yes, I would. For the simple reason that there are so many people that are unemployed that just don't want to work. I contend that if a person is given a trial of capital punishment is abolished all he has to do is shoot someone in the street, he is sentenced for life with three meals per day in a warm room, and back to bed, and that is more than what a bum wants.

K: Mr. Ellis would your describe yourself as a religious man?

E: Yes, definitely, I attend church quite regular.

Drew Canada's Memorial Fund Representative

LONDON (CP)—Field Marshal Earl Alexander, former governor - general of Canada, will announce later today details of a special appeal to be launched throughout the Commonwealth to provide funds to commemorate the work of Sir Winston Churchill.

Alexander, one of Churchill's great wartime military leaders, will be head of the fund to provide Commonwealth scholarships in Churchill's memory.

George Drew, former Canadian high commissioner in London, will be Canada's representative on this project. The public will be asked for contributions to which Commonwealth governments will add with large donations from public treasuries.

It is expected that the scholarships will be provided in many fields of endeavour.

Queen's Uncle In Car Mishap, Duchess Hurt

LONDON (AP) — The Duke of Gloucester was driving his Rolls-Royce when it missed a curve and plunged off the road Saturday, the head of his household said Sunday.

Maj. Simon Bland told reporters the 64-year-old duke, an uncle of the Queen, is usually driven to official functions by his chauffeur and then drives himself home. He was returning with the duchess from Sir Winston Churchill's funeral when the accident occurred.

The duke's chauffeur suffered a broken nose in the accident. His valet had a broken arm. The duke was released from hospital Saturday night after treatment for minor injuries. The duchess, 63, was still hospitalized with a broken left arm, slight concussion and lacerations. The hospital said her condition was satisfactory.

THIEVES GET $30,000

CHICAGO (AP) — When thieves broke into the home of movie and television producer Sidney C. Golt, police said, they took an estimated $30,000 in jewels, cameras and other valuables. Also missing was a 200-pound safe containing valuable papers—including his burglary insurance policy.

CAPTURES CLAIMED

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China claimed Sunday that between July, 1964, and January, 1965, she killed or captured 126 Nationalist Chinese "armed agents" who had planned to carry out "harassing activities" after landing on mainland China. She said they came from Formosa by seven groups in eight vessels, which were captured or sunk.

Thames Docks Cranes Salute Funeral Launch

LONDON (AP) — As the launch bearing Sir Winston Churchill's body slid along the grey Thames River Saturday, a line of cranes on the riverside lowered their gaunt booms in salute.

It was the one gesture a day of minutely calculated pomp that was not on the schedule—and it caused another catch in the hearts of mourners watching the old hero's last journey upriver.

From the wharf fronts of the murky Pool of London dock area, blitzed by Nazi bombers in the Second World War, the bowing cranes were the dockers' farewell to a man who often visited them after a bombing raid.

Conservatives Plan Showdown Over Leadership

Executive Council To Meet Saturday

OTTAWA (CP)—Dalton Camp president of the Progressive Conservative party, conferred today with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker about this week-end's meeting of the party's national executive over the leadership issue.

The party president, who flew in from Toronto late Monday night, arrived at Mr. Diefenbaker's office on Parliament Hill at 11:57 a.m.

Mr. Camp declined to tell reporters what he would say to Mr. Diefenbaker except to say he wanted to clear up "some misunderstandings" about the selection of the date for the national executive meeting here.

He referred particularly to one report which said he picked Saturday at the request of dissident Quebec Leader Leon Balcer.

"That's not so," Mr. Camp said.

The 120 - member executive had been polled as to whether they wanted to meet before or after the Feb. 15 resumption of Parliament. They had favored a meeting beforehand and he had chosen this Saturday himself without consulting anyone. WON'T GUESS

Mr. Camp turned aside questions about the agenda for the weekend meeting and added that he wouldn't guess whether the executive will call an annual meeting of the party's national association or a leadership convention, if either.

He said the executive will have to decide what action is in the best interests of the association and he expects the meeting will be "friendly, as all of our meetings are."

Mr. Camp's trip resulted in the opposition leader cancelling a planned press conference.

Mr. Diefenbaker, facing the third test of his party leadership in two years, returned Monday night from London where he attended the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill.

The executive meeting was called at the request of the 10-member Quebec section headed by Leader, Leon Balcer, is demanding a leadership convention.

The calling of the executive meeting brings to a head the bid by Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership in two years, and could produce a face-to-face confrontation between the opposition leader and Mr. Balcer. Both are executive members.

Last week the opposition leader launched his counter-offensive by calling a two-day meeting, for Feb. 11 and 12, of the parliamentary caucus in the House of Commons committee room.

On his return from overseas Monday night, Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters that as a member of the national executive "I will naturally express my views" at the Saturday meeting.

He said this meeting is no way affects his plans for the later caucus meeting of Conservative MPs.

The Conservative chieftain gave a noncommittal reply when a reporter said the calling of the national executive meeting was being interpreted by some persons as a victory by Mr. Balcer over him.

Ethiopia Welcomes Queen

By SHARE GUEBENLIAN

ADDIS ABABA (Reuters)—Thousands of cheering Ethiopians lined the route today as Queen Elizabeth drove to a wreath - laying ceremony at the monument commemorating Ethiopia's liberation from the Italians in 1941.

The Queen, accompanied by Prince Philip, wore a peacock blue silk suit and a green and blue hat.

During the four-minute ceremony at the monument the royal couple stood with heads bowed as a military band played the Ethiopian and British national anthems.

After the ceremony the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh visited Trinity Cathedral. They were preceded up the central aisle by two rows of barefoot novice nuns wearing pink robes, their heads covered by flowing green scarves.

PAY TRIBUTE ON TOMB

The Queen and the duke later walked down the 18 marble steps leading to the cathedral vault, where they placed a wreath on the tomb of Empress Menen, the empress, wife of Emperor Haile Selassie, died in February, 1963.

Today's program for the royal visitors included a visit to a school, where the Queen accepted a painting by a 15-year-old boy depicting the British Royal Family.

The Queen and the duke also visited the Princess Tsehai Hospital where Ethiopian nurses are trained. They later went to the Haile Selassie University.

The royal party later visited Africa Hall, which houses the headquarters of the United Nations Economic Commission for Africa.

On being introduced to the duke, one member of the party said he was from Canada.

There was loud laughter when the duke remarked: "Now I understand neo-imperialism."

The heavy round of engagements today followed the royal couple's arrival in Addis Ababa Monday for an eight-day state visit in return for a visit to Britain by the Ethiopian emperor in October, 1954.

The emperor, who was British's guest during the Italian occupation of the country, was at the airport to greet the Queen when she arrived from London.

Resplendent in navy blue uniform with gold braid and hat plumed with lion's mane, he boarded the jetliner with the British ambassador.

When the Queen stepped out in a pink and white dress and hat and a canary yellow coat, there was a gasp of admiration from the crowd.

Two Ethiopian girls handed her a huge bouquet. The emperor introduced members of the imperial family. A guard of honor saluted.

On the Queen's drive into the city thousands of cheering people lined the road five deep on both sides for five miles.

A-War Certain Unless Chinese Threat Is Met

Tells Why He Keeps Bombers East of Suez

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson says world nuclear war is inevitable if the Western Allies don't protect non-nuclear nations against the threat of China's atomic bomb.

The British Labor party leader's comments came on the eve of today's debate in the House of Commons on a censure motion introduced by the Opposition Conservatives.

Answering questions Monday night on a television program marking his first 100 days in office, Wilson explained why he had decided to keep British bombers east of the Suez Canal when his election platform pledged Britain would abandon independent nuclear power.

"This country's strength is going to depend on our world role and not being corailed in Europe," he said.

"We now have the situation of the Chinese nuclear weapon.

"We have non-nuclear countries, including India, who want some safeguards against that, otherwise we are going to find India, Pakistan and all countries in Asia, and perhaps Indonesia before long, and the Middle East, becoming nuclear powers.

WOULD BE 'INEVITABLE'

"Once this happens, world nuclear war is inevitable," Wilson declared.

Assembly Delays Showdown

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The long debate on United Nations peace - keeping debts reached a turning point Monday as the General Assembly again put off a showdown.

The assembly recessed for a week, but diplomats said they expect an indefinite adjournment to follow after several "house-keeping" problems have been settled.

The new delay, following American and British insistence that the issue be brought to a head, raised doubts about whether the assembly would ever agi..to remove the vote of the Soviet Union and 12 other debtor countries.

It also appeared to rule out any chance that the assembly, already four months behind schedule, would be able to hold a normal session.

Any adjournment until late spring or summer would probably mean that many problems would be put over to assembly's 20th session in the autumn.

ENVY ALL BLACK

But some Western diplomats said the picture was not all black. They conceded that a high price had been paid to avoid a showdown, but felt it was a price that had to be paid.

They said both the United States and Russia had pulled back from the brink of confrontation and thus tacitly admitted that they did not want one. They hoped that the pull-back would give new impetus to negotiations.

Informants also said there was general agreement that the negotiations now will be broadened to include the search of the peace - keeping problem, now the root of the back debts.

They indicated that talks on the back-debts had failed because of the Soviet Union, while agreeing to make a voluntary payment, was not prepared to put up enough money to bring her "over the hump of Article 19."

This is the charter article which removes the assembly vote of a country whose debts exceed two years' assessments.

WON'T MAKE PAYMENT

The Soviet Union has also insisted that it will make no payment until the assembly puts aside all thought of enforcing Article 19. The United States has promised to invoke the article the first time as assembly vote arises.

The Soviet Union and France insist that the assessments in question are illegal because they were voted by the assembly instead of the Security Council.

The decision to put off a showdown was announced by Secretary-General U Thant as a consensus, to which no one objected.

Student Service Wanted

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members of the Ontario legislature proposed separate legislation Monday that would provide additional seasonal employment for college students and prevent job discrimination in the over-40 age bracket.

Robert Nixon (L—Brant) suggested to the legislature that for about $1,000,000, the provincial government could create an Ontario student service to help find jobs for 1,000 post-secondary school students.

He said that as a start the government could employ college students on a seasonal basis as assistant teachers, hospital assistants and as welfare assistants in area where work is heavy and staff short-handed.

He also suggested hydro, highways, public works and research as other areas where students could be employed at salaries guaranteeing them an education and, at the same time, providing future government staff.

ASKS CODE CHANGE

Norman Davison (NDP — Hamilton West) said the Ontario Human Rights Code should forbid what he termed discrimination in employment because of age.

Mr. Davison said in a statement proposing an amendment to the code, that more and more men and women are excluded from the labor market because they have passed 40. He cited age limits in classified want ads as evidence of discrimination.

Mr. Davidson, in a statement proposing an amendment to the code that would abolish discrimination in employment because of age, said that more and more men and women are excluded from the labor market because they have passed 40. The mayor of this community reciprocated by replying his municipality would fly it with pride.

The ceremony was made significant by the fact that the Royal Canadian Legion voiced the strongest organized support of the Red Ensign.

It was believed only the second time in recent weeks that a Legion branch had made such a gesture in Canada.

For the occasion, Deseronto Branch 280 of the Legion selected World War I veteran William Miller to make the formal presentation to Mayor Gerald Lott at the start of last night's regular town council meeting.

But the keynote for the occasion was left to Edward Gordanier, second vice-president of the branch, and a veteran of the Korean War.

He noted that the presentation was a result of a motion adopted by the branch and hoped that council would have the new flag flown over the town hall at the specified date — February 15.

"We of the Legion have been in favor of the Red Ensign as Canada's flag," he said. "It is the emblem of the Canadian Legion.

"However we wish to make it clear to all that our loyalty is to Canada. We have fought for Canada. As members of the Royal Legion we are pledged to uphold the elected government of Canada and show respect for Canada's flag. We are proud to do so."

He said it was a sincere hope that the flag will fly over "this great country of ours" worthy of the honor due to it.

"We pray that wherever those colors are struck— at home, on the sea, or in foreign countries— they may be a symbol of the loyalty and love we hold for our country and our own."

The flag was borne in on a silver salver by William Miller, after the group was formally invited inside the

Legion Head Urges Respect For New Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — The Dominion president of the Royal Canadian Legion says Legion members should "accept and respect" the new red and white maple leaf flag of Canada, though they may continue to fly the Canadian Red Ensign over Legion halls and headquarters.

Fred O'Brodi, in a signed editorial in The Legionary, national magazine of the Royal Canadian Legion, says the veterans' body spearheaded the fight to retain the ensign as Canada's national flag, but parliament decided otherwise and the Queen has approved the new flag.

"In a few short weeks . . . the Canadian Red Ensign will be hauled down and the new flag hoisted on Dominion government buildings and installations everywhere.

"It will be a day of poignant sadness for many loyal Canadians who sincerely love the ensign. But as loyal and law-abiding Canadians they will accept and respect the new emblem which their parliament and sovereign have proclaimed as the national flag of Canada."

Propose Changes In Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ontario government, which has already announced its intention of entering the Canada Pension Plan, has proposed a series of changes Monday to correct "serious shortcomings."

"It's not a question of whether we join or not," said L. E. Coward, chairman of the Ontario pensions committee, "but whether we heartily endorse it."

The plan, as proposed, has some wide gaps, said the Ontario brief to the parliamentary committee on the plan, and the suggested changes were designed to close them. The provincial government said it was not prepared to accept the argument that the basic principles of the plan are unchangeable.

It was suggested that $25 be paid from the plan's fund to all persons receiving the $75-a-month old-age security benefit, and that a minimum monthly payment of $25 be established under the plan itself.

SEEKS EXTENSION

The proposed 10-year transitional period for the plan should be extended to 20 years, and contributions should be levied from the first dollar of earnings instead of from $600 to $5,000.

The Ontario brief, which was made public some time ago in addition to also said there didn't appear to be enough consideration given to the financial and economic implications of the plan and its alternatives.

John Munro (L — Hamilton East), parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, said it would have been helpful if Ontario had advanced its suggestions earlier, since they involve "a very notable change."

Mr. Coward said that while the $25 figures had not been advanced before, Ontario has "repeatedly pointed out the gaps in coverage and has re-

Toronto Actuary Says Pension Plan Will Cause Trouble In Future

OTTAWA (CP)—W. R. Joyce, a Toronto actuary who is chairman of the social security committee of the Canadian Association of Actuaries, blasted the proposed Canada Pension Plan today with a warning that it could cause trouble in the years ahead.

It is "folly" to introduce a plan which inherently contains the seeds of discontent, he said in a brief to the joint parliamentary committee studying the Canada Pension Plan.

"The public is quick to sense injustice and will not tolerate obvious subsidies, unmerited either by social need or, by personal contribution."

He said reaction to the proposed pension plan has already been responsible for increasing old-age security benefits by $1 a month, for the proposed indexing of those benefits with the cost of living, and making the benefits available at 65 at a reduced amount.

"These have been forced because they are so obviously reasonable in comparison with the less reasonable subsidized benefits being proposed under the Canada Pension Plan."

Mr. Joyce's brief said the benefit structure of the plan is poorly designed to meet the social needs in Canada. It provides benefits in reverse relationship to the social needs.

"The beneficiaries under the CPP are today's high wage earners. The persons who need assistance most are those aged whose working years were in the low-wage era. . . .

"It is inconceivable that any responsible government should introduce the Canada Pension Plan without first obtaining factual information on the actual incomes by age-group for various regions of the country. . . .

"I urge the committee to recommend that this important information be produced and studied before the government should proceed with so costly, complex and irrevocable a measure as the Canada Pension Plan. . . ."

He said the plan has no built-in brake on future increases in benefits, because the costs are easily concealed in its complex structure. "The existence of large reserves in government hands also seems to encourage demands for their dispersal in immediate benefits, no matter how essential those funds are to meet future liabilities. The disastrous tampering with the unemployment insurance fund is a prime example."

"In my opinion, the only logical way to avoid creating insupportable political pressures is to eliminate the inconsistencies and injustices in the Canada Pension Plan." He said it is unreasonable to subsidize a pension plan, beyond the old-age security program. If all subsidies were removed from the plan it could not "conceal massive transfer payments and . . . hide its tax-collecting machinery behind a false "contributory" facade."

Conservatives Plan Showdown Over Leadership

Executive Council To Meet Saturday

OTTAWA (CP)—Dalton Camp president of the Progressive Conservative party, conferred today with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker about this weekend's meeting of the party's national executive over the leadership issue.

The party president, who flew in from Toronto late Monday night, arrived at Mr. Diefenbaker's office on Parliament Hill at 11:37 a.m.

Mr. Camp declined to tell reporters what he would say to Mr. Diefenbaker except to say he wanted to clear up "some misunderstandings" about the selection of the date for the national executive meeting here.

He referred particularly to one report which said he picked Saturday at the request of dissident Quebec Leader Leon Balcer.

"That's not so," Mr. Camp said.

The 120 - member executive had been polled as to whether they wanted to meet before or after the Feb. 16 resumption of Parliament. They had favored the earlier date beforehand but had chosen this Saturday himself without consulting anyone.

WON'T GUESS

Mr. Camp turned aside questions about the agenda for the weekend meeting and added that he wouldn't guess whether the executive will call an annual meeting or a special meeting of a national association or a leadership convention, if either.

He said the executive will have to decide what action is in the best interests of the association and he expects the meeting will be "friendly, as all of our meetings are."

Mr. Camp's trip resulted in the opposition leader cancelling a planned press conference.

Mr. Diefenbaker, facing the third test of his party leadership in two years, returned Monday night from London where he attended the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill.

The executive meeting was called at the request of the 10 member Quebec caucus with leader, Leon Balcer, is demanding a leadership convention.

The calling of the executive meeting touched off a two-day meeting, for Feb. 11 and 12, of the national executive "if which he enjoys majority support.

On his return from overseas Monday night, Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters that as a member of the national executive "I will naturally express my views" at the Saturday meeting.

He said this meeting in no way affects the plans for the later meeting of Conservative MPs.

New Flag Will Be Raised at Two Ceremonies

There will be two flag raising ceremonies in the city on February 15th.

During the late afternoon of the 15th, the new Canadian Maple Leaf flag will be officially raised over Belleville's city hall, while later in the evening the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will hold a flag raising ceremony at the Belleville Armouries.

Yesterday Mayor Jack Ellis said the flag raising ceremony at city hall would be held just prior to the regular council session which starts at 4:30 in the afternoon.

Lt.-Col. K. D. H. Willcocks commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment has announced that at 8:00 o'clock on Feb. 15th the Regiment will lower the Red Ensign and up the new Maple Leaf flag at the Armouries.

271 FRONT ST. 968-6773

Belleville city council yesterday went along with a motion for the appointment of a special committee to initiate preliminary discussions with the CPR with the view of having the railway discontinue rail service on Front Street in the westerly limits of the city.

The motion was brought in by Alderman Jack Ellis who said the railway right of way could be used for highway purposes to greatly alleviate traffic problems in the south end of the city.

The alderman claimed that traffic conditions in the city had greatly changed since the city's traffic survey was made a few years ago. The survey report recommended a new bridge across the Moira River at Firemac's Park and also an overhead crossing over the C P R from the top of Devil's Elbow on West Dundas Street.

Ald. Ellis said if the railway tracks were removed from Front Street to the west end of the city, the right of way could be used for street development to touch with the crossing on the Bay Bridge Road would be thus eliminated.

He says that this could not be accomplished in a day or so, but we should not take a negative attitude," he said.

Mayor Jack Ellis said that a year or more ago he had been in touch with the railway regarding an idea similar to that of Alderman Ellis, but had been turned down.

He said, however, he was prepared to name a committee and have another try.

Belleville had a big building month in January with permits totalling $911,000 being issued a city hall by building inspector Grant Stickle.

Topping the month's building list was the permit for the addition to Nicholson, Catholic College with a value of $400,000.

The other big item on the permit list was that for boiler house and connecting tunnel for the new Belleville General Hospital extensions, costing $365,000.

Also during the month there were four permits for new dwellings at $51,000; three permits for commercial alterations at $27,000, two industrial permits, one to Wilson Concrete for a roof on casting beys at $63,000 and a small boiler house addition at Bakelite.

Yesterday city council authorized execution of a deed for property on Adams Street to the industrial park area of Hillcrest.

Council Approves Increasing Seating Capacity of New Auditorium of High School

Belleville city council yesterday gave approval to the idea of increasing seating capacity in the city of the auditorium in the proposed new high school in Belleville from 1,200 seats and providing other member municipalities of the Bay of Quinte High School District with the use of same.

But the re-action of the rural municipalities is still a question and a mixed reception is almost a certainty.

The proposal is to increase the size of the school auditorium from 900 to 1200 seats and thus provide greater accommodation for the holding of concerts, stage performances and other public meetings.

Belleville Collegiate now has the largest auditorium in the city and last year was filled to capacity on all occasions.

Mayor Jack Ellis told council that while the 15 capacity auditorium was the last word, did not seem like a great many, he felt that if there was a larger and more modern auditorium it would find greater use by the performing arts and for other purposes.

$58,000 ADDITIONAL COST

Total cost of the new school with an auditorium seating 900 persons is estimated at $1,234,191.

With an auditorium seating 1200 persons, the estimated cost would be an additional $50,000.

Belleville's share would be 54.19 percent of the cost of the school with the remainder shared by the county municipalities of Thurlow, Frankford, Sidney, Thurlow, Tyendinaga and Ameliasburg. Each would be responsible for a grant on the increased auditorium size.

The Bay of Quinte High School Board has already voted to proceed with the 900 seat auditorium and has applied to the architect to provide plans according-ly.

However, if the member municipalities wished the larger auditorium a final decision was made by Wednesday of this week, plans could still be changed for the auditorium.

LAST OPPORTUNITY

Mayor Ellis said all other member municipalities were informed last night that no respected the school auditorium question would be on their agenda.

Moving Memorial Service Held for Sir Winston At St. Thomas' Church

Never did the many Regimental Colors hung in St. Thomas' Church, brave symbols of other fighting men of other days, look down on a more impressive service than that on Sunday last when a moving tribute was paid to the world's outstanding leader and England's greatest commoner, the Right Honorable Sir Winston Churchill.

From the singing of the Processional hymn "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven" to the Recessional "O God Our Help in Ages Past"—which was the same one used at the funeral service in St. Paul's Cathedral—the whole pathos of the service was one of thanksgiving for this man's great service to mankind and not one than of dismal mourning. Maybe a few tears came to our eyes as the Bugler, Gary Bassett, sounded the "Last Post" and "Reveille" but we were proud to be the world's outstanding leader and England's greatest commoner, the Right Honorable Sir Winston Churchill.

From the singing of the Processional hymn "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven" to the Recessional "O God Our Help in Ages Past"—which was the same one used at the funeral service in St. Paul's Cathedral—the whole pathos of the service was one of thanksgiving for this man's great service to mankind and not one than of dismal mourning. Maybe a few tears came to our eyes as the Bugler, Gary Bassett, sounded the "Last Post" and "Reveille" but we were proud to be the world's outstanding leader and England's greatest commoner, the Right Honorable Sir Winston Churchill.

As a representative of our loyal Canadian militia — the very heart of our defenders in two wars—the Lesson from the Book of Ecclesiasticus in the Apocrypha, was read by a member of the parish, Lieut.-Colonel K. D. H. Willcocks, Commanding Officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

The rector of the parish, Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, told the congregation that nothing had so fully entered into the lives and hearts of all Canadians, and in fact of the whole free world, than the simple, impressive funeral in St. Paul's Cathedral at which Her Majesty the Queen gave place to a commoner and took her place in the nave of the Cathedral with the 3,000 members of the congregation. He pointed out that there was no need for a eulogy in the simple, religious service because the greatness of this man was shown by the countless thousands who paid tribute to him.

The congregation was reminded of the courage, determination and ability of this great man and especially of his belief in a Divine Creator, with the rector using, among the many references he had made to the guidance of Almighty God, the statement he made in 1942, that "I sometimes have a feeling—in fact I have it very strongly—a feeling of being guided. I have a strong feeling that we have a Guardian because we serve a great cause, and that we shall have that Guardian so long as we serve that cause faithfully."

The Archdeacon made quotations from Wordsworth and from "Pilgrim's Progress" but possibly the following words of Milton printed in the Parish Bulletin for that service could be his greatest tribute:

Nothing is here for tears, nothing to wail
Nothing but well and fair,
And what may quiet us in death so noble.
Let us fetch him hence and solemnly attend
With silent obsequy and funeral train
Home to his Father's House.
There will we build him a monument
With all his trophies hung, and acts unrolled.
Thither shall all the valient youth resort
And from his memory inflame their breasts
To matchless valor and adventure high.

'Heart Month' Appeal Planned For This Week

February is Heart Month across the Dominion with Sunday, February 14th designated as Heart Sunday.

The National campaign objective this year has been set at $1,455,000 of which Ontario's share is $636,000.

Chairman of the Belleville campaign of the Canadian Heart Fund, N.C. Laughlen has announced that Kayettes, from the three local high schools will be canvassing several homes in the city on February 4th and 5th, campaigning for the fund.

Diseases of the heart and circulation, which your Heart Fund dollars help to fight, are responsible for more than 72,000 deaths in Canada each year. That is more than the combined total, resulting from all other diseases and causes of death.

All too often the terms 'heart attack', 'stroke' or 'heart disease' are applied to family members between the ages of 45 and 65.

There is only one practical way to fight heart disease and that is by supporting your Heart Foundation's program of research, education and information. You can do this by contributing Heart Fund dollars.

Over 100 keyette members will be canvassing homes in the vicinity of the school which they attend. No definite sum has been set, the local chapter is just going to hope for the best.

Arena Will Get Ice Sweeper

Automation has caught up with the "rink rats" at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

No longer are they the end of each hockey period, will the sweepers swarm out with brooms and shovels to scrape the ice. It will all be done with machinery.

Yesterday city council gave approval for the purchase of a new combination ice sweeper and flooding machine, together with a new tractor to haul the equipment.

The new combination sweeper and flooding machine will be supplied by the Bloomberg Brooder Company at a cost of $1,553, and the tractor by Truck and Farm Supply at a cost of $2472.

SAME OLD ROUTE

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (CP)—An efficiency study recommended that this Staffordshire town's 14 street cleaners could do one-third fewer work in the same time by following new routes. The cleaners agreed—provided they received a third more pay. The council held out for an increase of one quarter so the men still follow their old routes.

George Brown Again Named To Council

Once again city council has a replacement member.

And once again the new member is Alderman George Brown.

Back in December 1963 Mr. Brown stood eighth in the aldermanic election race, just missing out a place on council.

Then during 1964 Alderman Ross C. Bailey resigned to become county sheriff and Mr. Brown took his place on council filling out the balance of Alderman Bailey's two-year term.

Running for re-election last December, Mr. Brown again finished eighth and was out of council.

Then Alderman William Jarvah was transferred to Hamilton by Northern Electric and resigned his seat on council late in January.

Again as the next in line, Mr. Brown was named to fill the council vacancy and last night took the seat vacated by Ald. Jarvah.

Propose.

peatedly said that something should be done about them."

If the federal government decided the $25 figures should be $30 or $30, or that the transitional period be limited or the pension might affect higher education.

Under the plan, contributions must start at age 18.

In that case, the teachers' organizations in the Atlantic region said, "it would appear that the Canada Pension Plan is designed to offer security to school drop outs and to those who enter the labor force immediately on graduation from secondary school, and to penalize teachers and others who continue their education." Similar suggestions were made by the Ontario Teachers' Federation and by the joint brief of the teachers' organizations in the western region.

All three briefs were concerned with the possible complications for local school board in the collection of pension contributions. They recommended that provincial government make employer's contributions on behalf of school boards.

The Atlantic and Ontario briefs suggested that pensions, on a regional basis, be made available to those who retire before 65. The Ontario brief said that there should be clear provision for the inclusion in the plan of teachers in religious orders.

The Canadian Construction Association asked for a provision in the proposed pension plan that would allow employees and employers an opportunity to "opt out" providing they already had a better scheme in operation.

The association's brief said a contracting - out arrangement would probably eliminate many of the integration problems facing private plans.

The association also asked that employers be given refunds on the over-payment of contributions made on behalf of employees. Under the proposed plan, employees are refunded contributions, while employers are not.

Prime Minister Announces New Immigration Policy

Will Flood Mart With Coin Sets

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Invoking the old law of the jungle, Finance Minister Gordon Monday put a damper on speculation in Canadian coins by virtually flooding the market.

He announced the Royal Canadian Mint will churn out special sets of uncirculated 1965 coins until all demand has been met, even if production has to run into 1966. It was decided earlier to limit production this year to 2,000,000 sets.

When new coin presses are installed and special factory space is rented, the mint will again invite orders for the collectors' sets. It was swamped with orders for 4,000,000 in the first days of January and had to return 4,000,000 to the would-be buyers.

Mr. Gordon said it would be impossible to give priority to Canadian buyers and difficult to ration distribution of the coin sets.

A spot check of the orders now at hand at the mint indicated the buyers are 60 per cent foreign, the same as in the past years, but there is no way of knowing how many Canadians are sending them as agents for foreigners.

The sets consist of one specially struck uncirculated coin of each denomination—1, 5, 10, 25, and 50 cents, and $1. Their face value is $1.94 and they are sold by the mint at $4.

MARKET VALUE HIGH

The speculative market has been high since Jan. 1. It is more usually in the $10 and $12 range for previous years' sets.

Selling the $1.94 coins at $4, the government makes a profit of "more than $1," Mr. Gordon said. The difference pays for the cost of the special pressing, polishing, and handling of "unscheduled coins."

Mr. Gordon said a lot of people who expected to make a big speculative profit on trading in the 1965 coin sets will be disappointed by his announcement.

But the government should not be contributing to a wild speculative boom.

The finance minister said policy on distribution of coin sets in 1966 and subsequent years will be announced later. He indicated in reply to a question at a press conference, however, that it is likely the mint will again meet all orders.

It has received orders for 6,000,000 sets at the beginning of January and has turned back all orders received before Jan. 1, and the 4,000,000 in excess of the 2,000,000 it could originally handle.

Traffic League Holds Meeting

BROCKVILLE — Various phases of traffic and transportation were discussed last week when members of the Golden Mile Association of Canadian Industrial Traffic League held their January meeting at the Grenadier Inn in Brockville.

Speedy traffic handling, suitable parking, transportation and custom clearance problems were amongst the many subjects discussed at the meeting.

Poor weather conditions reduced attendance of representatives of industries in Brockville, Smith Falls, Prescott, Cardinal, Gananoque, Kingston and Belleville.

Unable to attend the meeting, G. S. White of Hershey Chocolate Company in Smiths Falls, sent his reports on hearings he had attended in Ottawa on behalf of the Ontario Highway Transport Board, on the Public Commercial Vehicle Act.

A draft for a transportation policy for Canada was also discussed at the meeting presided over by M. Kitchen, who urged all industrialists interested in traffic and transportation to send representatives to the monthly meetings.

Plan Agreement For New Dam In Murray Twp.

TRENTON — Trenton council last night authorized Mayor James MacDonald and clerk comptroller O. W. Larry to approve an agreement between the town and the township council of Murray regarding the proposed dam to be built beside the new development road in the township. The agreement must also meet with the approval of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission and, to be eligible for grants, the approval of certain departments of the Ontario government.

By the terms of the agreement, the PUC must acquire land for the dam; pay all costs for the construction of the dam and assume control, responsibility and maintenance of the dam.

In return for permission to build the dam and a water storage pond back of the dam, the PUC must guarantee to supply the township with "up to 10,000 gallons of water a day", for "school purposes", looking forward to the day when a central township school may be built in the area. The township council has asked that the PUC supply the water from the present town mains.

Town solicitor Roderick Campbell last night objected to some issues in the agreement which put the onus on the PUC to acquire the land . . . or at least has the money available to do so . . . by March 1. He said March 31 was a more realistic deadline.

Mr. Campbell also questioned the phrase of the agreement by which Trenton Township County engineer George Totten would be, in effect, "judge and jury", over any money disputes arising between the PUC and the township. He said he didn't think Mr. Totten would care to be placed in the position of sole arbitrator.

These two points will be considered before any final signing of the agreement takes place.

Plan Action Against Zoning Violators

TRENTON — Trenton council last night approved the report of the Public Works' Committee, where action is to be taken by Trenton Council.

The committee had recommended that town engineer Eric Aldersey (who is also zoning administrator), compile a list of persons who are contravening the zoning by-law and take whatever action is necessary to correct these violations in cooperation with the town solicitor, Roderick Campbell.

Also recommended was the payment of $300 to H. J. McFarland for the 1964 road grader; that $16,000 be included in the 1965 budget estimate for the 50-foot extension on the public works' building on Ontario Street; that council notify its willingness to use its "inhibitor" in salt for ice control, and that the Department of Highways recommended that committees adopt this procedure during the undersides of vehicles from corrosion. As the projected price of the inhibitor is $1 a ton, council only signified its interest in the matter, in the hopes the department would come up with something cheaper.

TRENTON — Councillor Edward Todd, chairman of protection is persons and property, will be asked to submit by Pat Control Officer, Hilda Jones, to Trenton council last night. Mrs. Jones said that during the month of January, 12 dogs and three cats were destroyed; one dog and one cat claimed.

Only one per cent of the dogs picked up during the month were tagged, said Mrs. Jones. Most trouble with strays comes from the St. Mary's School and Byron St. area.

WHO OWNS STREET?

TRENTON — Trenton council will ask the land titles office to put up three lights on an extension of Alfred Street, if it can find ownership of the street is town-owned. The street allowance is 50 feet wide, but there is some question about whether the town only owns 22 of these feet. Two home owners on the Alfred Street extension had written to council requesting a little more light on the subject.

Cardinals Soon Will Discard Scarlet Cloaks

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church will soon discard their traditional scarlet silk cloaks in a move seen prompted by progressive elements in the church, it was revealed today.

Vatican sources said Pope Paul will order cardinals to announce their famous capes and cassocks when he creates the 27 new cardinals Feb. 22, among them Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec.

Progressive churchmen have recently urged the removal of the scarlet cape and splendor surrounding high - ranking Catholic prelates.

R. J. RUTHERFORD

Chief Inspector Named Chief Of Police Dept.

R. J. Rutherford, acting chief inspector and head of the Trenton Police Department since last July, has been appointed acting police chief by the Trenton Police Commission.

Acting Chief Rutherford took over the department when the former police chief, F. J. Taylor, resigned last July 3 to take up duties with the Attorney General's Department.

A native of Winnipeg, Acting Chief Rutherford came to the local department from the RCAF Service Police in 1945.

Appointments Made to Various Boards

TRENTON — Trenton council met last night to make a number of appointments to the various town boards and handle other items of town business.

Appointed to the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization was Councillor Edward Todd with Councillor C. V. Graham and Edward Todd; to the Trenton Board of Parks Management, Norman Armstrong and Hugh O'Neill; to the Traffic Committee, Councillor Graham, Mayor Simcoe Lawrence; Rolf, Frank Fillon, T. S. Ketchenon; to the Recreation Committee, Councillor Todd, Lorne Williams, George Greer, Robert Sager, Donald Kilgour, Harold Long and Douglas Whitley from the school board; to the Trenton Suburban Planning Board, Daniel Senik and Dr. W. A. L. McDonald; to the Property Committee, L. Worrall, F. J. Axis, Frank Fillon, James Coad and Councillor Todd; to the library board, James Cox.

Council voted to spend approximately $140 to enable the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves in its forthcoming fight to keep the Bell Telephone rates structure lower than that proposed by the Bell company, which "thinks about" spending $176.40 to buy a full-page advertisement in an upcoming industrial edition of the local newspaper, the Trentonian.

Fire Chief Wants New Hall To House All Equipment

TRENTON — Fire losses in Trenton in 1964 stood at $25,300, according to the report submitted to the town council last night by Fire Chief Cecil Ellis. This is the lowest in the seven years Chief Ellis has headed the department. Losses in 1963 were $70,000. In 1962, $300,000. The worst year on record was 1959 when losses stood at $800,000.

There were no major fires last year and no fatalities.

The department answered 353 calls during the year.

Chief Ellis made a number of recommendations. One was that the old fire hall be "scrapped" and a new, centrally located hall built. A hall which would house all the fire equipment and serve both sides of the river. Another recommendation was that the force be increased to the point where there men would be on duty on every shift. As it stands now, with the chief, eight regular men, and 18 volunteers, the chief and two men are on hand during the day . . . two men are on the night shift. Should the chief and the two men on duty leave for a fire, there is an interim when the hall is empty, with no regular man gets to the hall from his home.

Chief Ellis also recommended that Inspector Robert Haker be recognized as assistant fire inspector and Frank Coleman as an instructor, since both men had recently completed a course at the Ontario Fire College.

Radio equipment is needed for truck No. 1, said the fire chief, as the driver of this truck must go to a phone to relay information at the fire during and truck No. One needs four new tired. The original tires, 15 years old, are now dry rotted.

Chief Ellis also outlined the department's fire prevention program in detail as well as details of emergency calls and training periods and suggested that more be collected from township councils for fire fighting in outlying areas be given a fund to buy additional equipment.

Two Made Members Of Industrial Body

TRENTON — Wilfred Wilkinson, a chartered accountant, and George Kempf, vice-president and general manager of Brie Textiles Products of Canada Ltd., were last night appointed by Trenton council to the Trenton industrial and economic development committee of council. Chairman of the committee is Councillor Paul Tripp.

Mr. Wilkinson is the separate school appointee to the Trenton Board of Education and Mr. Kempf has served as president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce for a number of years.

council chamber by Mayor Lott and council.

The escort bore ahead of it the gold-embroidered Red Ensign, emblematic of the Legion.

In the party were two Mohawk Indians, branch president Earl Brant and executive officer Melville Hill, flimediate past chief of the Tyendinaga Reserve.

Chief Hill read the resolution earlier approved by the branch that it purchase two of the new flags—a motion originally made by Dr. D.C. McVicker and Edward Gordanier. One was to be presented to the town.

Mayor Lott then stepped down from the mayoralty chair and accepted the flag. He requested that Dr. McVicker, also town councillor, add him unfurl it.

As the flag fell open the veteran, William Miller, snapped to salute.

The controversial background of the flag's origin was touched on by Mayor Lott as he accepted the new banner.

The Royal Canadian Legion is to be commended for its acceptance of this new flag in view of the controversy over the flag issue," he said.

"We accept this flag in the same spirit as it was presented and we will fly it with pride."

Montreal Favored?

Ralph Cowan, the Liberal member for York-Humber, apparently likes contentious subjects.

He entered such a discussion when he joined the Progressive Conservatives in a fight against the adoption of a Maple Leaf flag.

Now Mr. Cowan is back in the headlines again, this time with the assertion that Lake Ontario is being drained to keep up the level of the Montreal harbor.

There does not appear to be much in common between the flag design and lake levels, but somebody is sure to point out that Mr. Cowan's two appearances in the limelight have one thing in common—on both occasions he was opposing what Quebec wanted.

It is impossible for the outsider to say whether this, consciously or unconsciously, was his motivation.

But it is possible to consider his argument regarding Lake Ontario water levels.

He argues that water leaves Lake Ontario in two ways, by evaporation and through the Iroquois dam control gates at the west end of the St. Lawrence. (There is a third way; much water is drawn off to serve the needs of residents along the Lake Ontario shore, but since this water except for the portion that evaporates, must find its way back to Lake Ontario, his argument is basically sound.)

Since more water passes over Niagara Falls than is lost by evaporation, it follows that the rest is being allowed to flow down the river, he contends.

Obviously, he is correct.

Mr. Cowan says that a Canadian-U.S. agreement on the control of lake levels specifies that priority will be given to "domestic use" over the needs for navigation and power generation.

It, therefore, appears proven that Lake Ontario water levels could be maintained at a higher level, closer to normal, and that this action would be in accord with an international agreement.

But what Mr. Cowan does not appear to have considered is the precedent which would be established by such action.

Controls do not exist on the flow of water from others of the Great Lakes, only on Lake Ontario. But the provision of such control mechanisms is being advocated, particularly at the point of outflow from Lake Huron.

Are the residents of the territory surrounding each of the Great Lakes to have the right to demand that the lakes be maintained at normal levels, before water is allowed to flow down to the lakes below?

The reasoning that the first lake in the chain has top priority on the water and can hold it as long as it finds it expedient, with other lakes enjoying like privileges, in order, is not sound. Lake Ontario residents have a right to demand that water is not shunted down the St. Lawrence at a rate faster than normal, but Ottawa authorities say the lake would be at a lower level if the control dams which form a part of the seaway and the St. Lawrence power project had never been built. The 1934 water levels were around present figures.

Beer-Drinking Contest

A student of Ryerson Polytechnical Institute was killed in a car accident a week ago. He is said to have represented his fraternity in a beer-drinking contest with another fraternity.

David Sutherland, director of student affairs at Ryerson, said: "This incident brings home the problem of student drinking and fraternities in a tragic and shocking way."

Aw, come now, Mr. Sutherland.

The student was 26, and a journalism student at that, with probably some record of association with the members of his chosen craft. That he drank beer is hardly shocking—or surprising.

What is shocking is that any educational institute at or near the university level should have students who think the consumption of beer, or other alcoholic beverages, is a fitting occupation to be turned into a contest, on the same level with eating goldfish or crowding into a telephone booth.

If that is what Mr. Sutherland is shocked at, then we apologize. But is he prepared to advocate the obvious remedy— a short course for Ryerson students in the civilized consumption and the proper appreciation of wines, beers and spirits?

Unfaithfulness in the keeping of an appointment is an act of clear dishonesty. You may as well borrow a person's money as his time.— Horace Mann.

Ottawa Offbeat
French-Canadian Press Embarrassed by Events

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — With the Quebec political representation in Parliament, things are fast getting to the point where even the French-Canadian newspapermen are embarrassed.

And up to now, they haven't embarrassed easily.

In fact, ever since Prime Minister Pearson's Government came to uncertain minority power with more than one-third of its MPs — 47 of 129 — from Quebec, the French-Canadian politicians and political correspondents alike have in the National Capitals have been loud in their ultimatums as to what English Canada "must do or else."

The "or else" usually is taken for granted as meaning that the other nine provinces roll over and play doormat while Quebec walks all over them, or, if they don't, then Quebec walks out.

You don't hear that kind of talk so much these days.

In fact, representatives of Quebec here in Parliament Hill, the politicians as well as the press, have little to say and are saying it quietly.

To fully realize what has happened, look at it this way:

TRIPLE TROUBLE

1. Confederation, and so, Canada itself, is in trouble, you hear it said, because of Quebec's "quiet revolution" and continuing increasing French-Canadian demands on the rest of the nation for special "state apart" treatment.

2. The Conservatives are in trouble, with a revolt in the ranks against the party leadership, sparked and led by Quebec MP Leon Balcer and his nine followers in the Commons.

3. The Liberals are in trouble because of rumors, charges and investigations into the conduct and judgment of four of the nine Cabinet Ministers from Quebec.

Chances are now that the Conservatives are straighten out their troubles. Leon Balcer, discovering not only that he can't dictate as to the leadership, but that he hasn't got the go-all-the-way support of more than three of his nine MPs, has now supposed Quebec following, may find it a lonely life — at last, in the past, both Conservative and Liberal rebels alike — sitting as an Independent.

It could be much lonelier for him when the Conservatives, in the party's convention and sufficient time, get around, in orderly fashion, to selecting a new leader.

For while politicians correctly feel free to criticize their leadership, the creed of politics is not all that elastic as to condone open rebellion and questionable loyalty publicly manifested.

It was significant that the revolt that is damaging the party range should be largely confined initially and fanned into flame there by the Quebec Conservatives.

HOW MANY MORE?

But while the troubles the Conservatives may think they are having with their Quebec wing are considered peripheral to the agony of grief being caused the Liberals by their French-Canadian members.

These are so many and multiplying that they can be catalogued:

1. Hanky panky with deportations involving allegations of fees and bribes by Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay's immigration Department.

2. Involvement, according to the Dorion Commission evidence of Prime Minister Pearson's friend Guy Rouleau, Montreal MP, and of Citizenship Minister Tremblay's and Public Minister Guy Favreau's former Executive assistants, in the strange case of Lucien Rivard.

3. The no-down-payment furniture deals of Stein Secretary Maurice A. Lamontagne, but they kept it in "The Club," and nobody knew much about it — now, all of a sudden, "The Club" has become too big and disorganized, with not everybody belonging, and those deals aren't handled with the same old smooth efficiency, so everybody is getting to know about it."

Nothing Can Be Hid From Children

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

All parents know, or should know; that you can't hide anything from a child; a child hears everything, sees everything, and knows everything. It is only as we get older that we lose this power of receptivity.

One of the things that happens, I think, is that we gradually build up a psychological "environment" for ourselves, and learn to live within it. Whatever does not fit within this framework, we reject — simply by turning it out, by closing our eyes to it, or refusing to understand it.

The child is still seeking a significant environment for itself, and is open to any nonsignificance and any gestures the parents are not even aware of — to say nothing of the deeper emotions they mistakenly think are concealed. are grasped by the child as valuable clues to the world. He is like a wary explorer in a strange terrain: each bush, each birdcall, may contain a danger or a promise or a hint of meaning.

The behavioral sciences have as yet devoted very little research to these powerful antennae that children possess; nor to the important question of what happens to us psychologically as we get older and suffer the loss of this sensitivity.

One striking instance of this remarkable apparatus of children is described in "Silent Language." What we popularly call a "Photographic memory" is actually a highly developed ability among children than among adults. It occurs in something under 10 percent of the adult population, but in as high as 90 percent of children under the age of 12.

As long as 40 years ago, G. W. Allport published findings of this phenomenon in the British Journal of Psychology. At Cambridge, he tested 60 children, all 11 years of age, by presenting a picture on a gray mat for a half-minute, then taking it away and leaving only the mat. More than half the children could still "see" the picture, and described it in astounding detail.

They knew the number of buttons on the jacket of a man in the picture, the length and directions of the lines of shading in a stretch of road, and the number of whiskers on a cat's lip. The German word, "Gartenlaube," written above the door of an inn, was spelled out by children, even though the word was new and meaningless to them!

Recent neurological research indicates that nothing is forgotten by the mind; memories are buried or repressed, but are still there, and retrievable by electrical stimulation, like pressing the right button on a computer. It is painful to remember some of these early images; but it may turn out to be much more painful to "forget."

To Your Good Health
Children Are Inclined To Be Imaginative

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I hope you can help me. My son is almost five years old and for the last two weeks after I put him to bed he insists that he sees a cat on the radiator. I have frequently reassured him, but to no avail.

He hasn't been scared by anything lately, so what could be causing it, and what can I do? He has always had to have his closet door closed or he won't go to sleep. But the cat is new. — E. M.

Children are the strangest people, aren't they?

The best way I know to handle them is be to (1) logical (2) imaginative; (3) kind.

Now, Mrs. E. M., I don't quite know from your letter whether to decide that your five-year-old is truly imaginative, or whether you are, or whether you both are.

But-I'll tell you this: Children have an uncanny ability to sense when their elders, especially their parents, are ripe to get all stirred up over some nonsensical notion or other.

If I had a five - year - old and he couldn't go to sleep unless his closet door was shut, I'd just tell him that it is up to him to shut the door. If he cared enough to keep the closet door shut, fine. If he didn't that would be up to him.

Small-fry are frighteningly logical. Give them a good, solid answer, and it shuts 'em up. (Until they think of something else to fuss about, of course.)

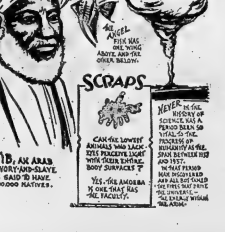
As to the cat on the radiator, I'd ask the child, while the lights are still on, "Is a cat there?" If not, I'd make some play about the whole business. When the boy was in bed I'd say "Okay, wave goodnight to the cat, now," and let it go at that.

At the ripe old age of five, the boy would realize that you were just going along with his imaginative fancy.

If I even suspected that you had a true problem, I'd tell you to consult a child psychiatrist. But with only the closet door and the cat on the radiator, I can only assume that you are getting all wrought up over the sorts of things that virtually all children try on their parents, to see if they can get away with it.

I'm not opposed to or suspicious of psychiatry. Anything but! But I'm opposed to making "psychiatric problems" out of the nonsense that most children enjoy.

Calm down, Mom.



Dear Dr. Molner: My niece takes her baby to a pediatrician who prescribes phenobarbital as a matter of course. He explains to mothers that they will not know they have a baby at home. I am concerned that the baby might become addicted. Is this possible? — J. D.

I hope you have been misinformed. I cannot see any possible excuse for giving babies such a drug routinely. Yes, indeed, there is a very real risk of addiction, quite aside from other dangers involved in keeping a baby constantly under sedation. The whole idea makes me thoroughly upset.

Dear Dr. Molner: In recent months I have noticed large lumps forming in each breast. I am a male so breast cancer is ruled out. I believe they may be some type of cyst. What causes them and how can they be cured? — D. M.

Being a male does not rule out breast cancer. It occurs in men, although not rarely. Any multiple lumps, however, would tend to indicate cysts. What causes them? Plugging of small glands, which then swell. Cure is removal of the entire cyst, not just draining it.

Are People Tougher Now?

Ottawa Journal

Mothers of 1965 can hardly know what the mothers of 1945 endured because it was the fashion then for small boys to wear trenchcoats with leather patches on the knees.

The small boys counted the day ill spent when they did not return with one or both the leather patches flying free. And mothers, far into the night, would stitch the unyielding leather to tattered cloth.

What small boys wear now are long pants and to be sight without long pants is to be out of step and to be out of step with the gang at eight is agony.

To mothers of 1965 a cloth patch on a cloth knee offered no challenge whatever.

Val Werlen of Winnipeg Tribune asked a nine-year-old what he thought was proper winter wear and was told:

"Ski jacket, cotton pants, ski boots, short underwear, maybe a head band—and that's all."

That's all, of course, if mother will let him away with it. Old-fashioned mother probably will insist he needs more, especially in Winnipeg, but it is noticeable that the terrors of the Canadian winter are being defied by modern youngsters.

Where are the leather helmets of yesteryear, the long woolly scarves, the stout leather windbreakers? Where are the parkas and long underwear? When did anyone last see a boy with puttees wound around his legs?

It is astonishing to an older generation what boys can endure with unconcern. Snowballs whooping down the ski trails as if it were California.

A similar disregard of the weather is evident elsewhere. Visitors to Africa have been surprised to find that while men have discarded topees and sun-suits, the stout-day sun with heads uncovered. There was a day in Africa when every white man wore a "wholers belt" of flannel which was supposed to save him from fearsome diseases.

Flannel has gone out in Africa. Are we growing tough-er?

Elixir of Life

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Perhaps this information should be withheld in Nova Scotia: the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has concluded that people like to live longer in prairies.

Standing in July in the humidity of Toronto, one can understand it. Picnicking in the rain in British Columbia, one can feel, too, that pneumonia and assorted rheumatisms must limit longevity. But in Nova Scotia — surely the exhilarating qualities of the salt-laden air constitute the very elixir of life.

Singer Denies Pant Splitting Was a Stunt

LONDON (Reuters) — Two performances scheduled for Monday night by American pop singer P. J. Proby, whose pants split on stage again Sunday night, have been cancelled by his British promoters.

The curtain was lowered on Proby Sunday when his pants came apart at the seams during a performance in Luton, north of London.

Proby's pants popped Saturday night and the night before that during performances in South London.

He denied it was a stunt.

"Are you out of your mind? This incident could easily kill my career."

Proby's manager said a chain of movie theatres has decided to bar the performer and that various theatre owners were considering a similar move.

He suggested Proby appear Monday night in coveralls and stand still onstage.

However, Proby suggested that henceforth his costumes be made of plastic.

500 Workers Off Job at G. E. Plant

PETERBOROUGH (AP) — About 500 workers in the machine shop and structural steel division of the Canadian General Electric Company Limited here walked off the job Monday to protest the installation of a motion picture camera in the machine shop.

Company officials said the camera was placed in the shop to make a time - and - motion study. A spokesman for Local 525 of the United Electrical Workers (UE) claimed it was meant to spy on the men.

Union members walked off their jobs in 1963 for a similar reason. They won their point on that occasion.

A strike originally scheduled for Monday by the local had been called off after a meeting Sunday. Negotiations for pay systems with the company are going on.

Two Committed for Trial After Woman Tells of Chase

A plucky young Belleville housewife yesterday told of surprising two unknown men who entered her apartment and chasing them hot-foot down a city street and across a school playground.

After her testimony, as part of the evidence against Frederick William Layton, 27, and Donald Elmer McDonald, 28, both of Toronto, both men were ordered to stand trial before a judge.

The decision was handed down by Magistrate Phillip Baker after a preliminary hearing yesterday in which the men were charged with unlawful entry with intent.

Key witness at the hearing was Mrs. Ramona Shirley Parmalee, resident in an apartment block at 170 William St.

The incident leading to the charges against both men began, said Mrs. Parmalee, when she heard noises outside her first-floor apartment door. While listening in her living room the door opened noiselessly and two men entered. They entered with heads down and closed the door.

POINTS OUT MAN

"I panicked when they shut the door, then I screamed, 'I've got you now'," said the young housewife.

She pointed to Layton as one of the men—and the only one she could definitely describe later to police.

"He was the first one," she testified. "He said 'let's get the hell out of here'."

She said she screamed both men down William Street toward East Dundas St. The chase led across Queen Alexandra School ground where one of the men fell.

At that point, two hydro workers, attracted by her cries joined in the chase and she returned to her apartment and called police.

Mrs. Parmalee said she later identified Layton from a series of photographs shown to her by detectives.

Both accused were represented by Toronto lawyers.

Hospital Will Receive $11,500 From Will

Subject to the necessary releases being granted by city and county councils, the Belleville General Hospital is to benefit to the extent of $11,500 from the will of a local resident who died about 1917.

The legacy is from the estate of James Gordon, who willed that 50 per cent of the residue of his estate should go to the hospital on the death of the last surviving beneficiary.

The amount of the legacy is $11,500 less legal administration fees.

City council yesterday authorized the mayor and clerk to sign the necessary release, while county council will be asked to sign a similar form.

Plant History Outlined to Rotary Club

The history of the Mead Johnson of Canada Limited was outlined to Belleville Rotarians on Monday by Rotarian K. Warmold, General Accountant Manager of the company, in a classification talk.

Mr. Warmold told members of the founding of the company back in 1895 coming to Belleville in 1935. The speaker said that baby cereal was put into production in 1938, and now over four million pounds are produced annually.

During 1963 he announced extension was added to the building located on east Dundas St. and early in '64 laboratory technicians began working on a birth control pill which the company hopes to put on the market within the near future.

Mr. Warmold told Rotarians that the company spends over five million dollars per year on research.

Three new members were introduced at Monday's meeting in the person of Stan Kvarda, Hugh John Kennedy and A. Ross Booth.

President S. Reston announced with regret that he had received a resignation from Rotarian William Simpson who is being transferred by the Northern Electric Company to Montreal.

Self-Service Laundry Store to Open In Belleville

Laundry days will soon be changed from work-days to fun days for our town's housewives, says Mac. Mac this week announced final plans for the opening of a Westinghouse Laundromat equipped self-service laundry store. The sparkling new store will be located at 414C Dundas St. (W.), Belleville.

A Grand Opening will be held February 3. As a special introduction to the new store, Mac is offering every family a bonus of Free Wash and Dry.

The store will feature 11 coin-operated Laundromat washers and 5 fluff-dryers, making it convenient and economical to do the entire family's weekly wash in less than an hour.

Mac says he selected Laundromat washers because of their proven ability. The machines are front-loading, for extra convenience. Tilted - tumbler action guarantees a cleaner wash because sediment cannot filter through the wash load as often happens with top-loading, agitator-type machines. Water is always rain-soft, too, and kept at a constant, thermostatically controlled temperature.

Best of all, says Mac, is the fact that the ladies can really relax while the machines do all the work. Laundromats around the nation are getting to look more and more like social centres, the way folks meet there and chat. . . . Attractive surroundings make company . . . it's the neighborly, fun way to do the family wash.

Strong Family Ties Mean Less Juvenile Delinquents

By LESLIE MILLIN

VICTORIA (CP)—Helen Torres is a tiny woman prepared to tackle an enormous problem.

Miss Torres, a petite Filipino, has started her job here as a social worker at the Sevenoaks home for emotionally disturbed children.

By working here, she can observe something she says she doesn't get the chance to see at home—juvenile delinquency.

"It does not present a serious problem in the Philippines," she says.

"This is probably because of the strong family structure there. The parents even look after the children after they are married."

Miss Torres is 31 and has been a social worker in the United States and the Philippines for eight years.

She has a Master of Social Work degree from Wayne State University in Detroit.

Her new job involves working with Sevenoaks emotionally disturbed children and their families.

PREPARED FOR FAMILIES

Sevenoaks treats about 20 children, and has the problem of adjusting its "graduates" to their families or foster-families so they can begin a productive life.

Making sure the graduates stay graduated is Miss Torres' job.

In her own country, social services are increasing all the time, says Miss Torres.

The United Nations International Children's Fund (UNICEF) has concentrated its efforts on the Philippines during the last five years.

"The government has become more conscious of juvenile delinquance and foster-care plans, but there is a serious shortage of social workers," she says.

Miss Torres was a supervising social worker for the Red Cross in the Philippines for six years, and a lecturer at the University of Manila for two years while she worked with UNICEF.

After two years in Victoria, she will decide whether to go back to university for a degree in social work or return to the Philippines to work with children.

Paris Unfolds Umbrellas

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — Umbrellas designed especially for the smartest evening occasions are a feature of Parisian fashion trends. They are inspired by the movie My Fair Lady.

The French Umbrella Federation has set out to prove that this utilitarian accessory is no longer the cinderella of a well co-ordinated wardrobe. The newest umbrellas are as formal as a man's white tie, and as festive as a carnival costume.

Covered with waterproof satin or brocade, and lined with pleated chiffon or Beauvais embroidery, they have long stately handles made of rare woods, chiselled metal, tortoise shell, fur, or jewels.

One evening model comes up with a slender shaft of black ebony, topped with a silver head twined with ivy leaves worked in relief. Other copies of antique handles are solidly paved with multi-coloured jewels, or studded with pearls and rhinestones.

FINDS IT SHOCKING

Pierre Cardin, one of the most avant-garde of the Paris top dress designers, insists it is shocking to see "just any old umbrella" carried with formal clothes.

"When a woman is going to the opera or a ball, she would not dream of wearing sports shoes with her evening gown. She carries a fragile satin or jewelled handbag, and wears long white kid gloves."

Why then, argues Cardin, do women consider that one umbrella is suitable for every occasion?

The wrong umbrella is a false note in the harmony of the costume, he says.

The handles of Cardin's new umbrellas stress the beauty of natural woods, polished to the lustre of marble.

Happy Occasion for Hospital Children

Everyone seems to be enjoying the occasion in Belleville General Hospital's paediatric ward — and with good reason. It was the result of a happy thought — presentation of a vital croupette by local members of Gamma Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority which purchased it with the funds from a puppet show held last fall. Presentation was received by assistant hospital administrator Charles Plumber (right) from Margo Hall with nurse Gloria Whittle and paediatric patient five-year-old Elizabeth Grant, Foxboro, who share the event.

Collective Bargaining Methods Studied by Registered Nurses

Members of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, Bay of Quinte Chapter, held their recent monthly meeting in Education Hall. Mrs. Shirley Ackerman, chairman of the Provincial Interim Committee on Collective Bargaining, was the guest speaker. Mrs. Ackerman said that this committee, which held its first meeting last October, is composed of 30 representatives from all districts of Ontario, and from all types of nursing. Representation is proportionate to population density, with 18 of the members being general staff nurses and 12 holding supervisory positions.

At its first meeting, the committee reviewed the feasible approaches to collective bargaining with Mr. L. B. Sharpe, the RNAO's newly appointed Employment Relations Director. Members of this interim committee have since spent many, many hours reading and studying about collective bargaining methods. Further meetings held in December and January were for the purpose of deciding the methods which RNAO should adopt to maximize the benefits of the profession for all RNAO members. Outside specialists in the field of labor-management relations participated in these meetings.

TERMS OF REFERENCE

Mrs. Ackerman explained that the terms of reference of this Interim Committee are: 1) To promote more effective use of existing procedures related to the RNAO personnel relations program. 2) To advise on the program and to publicize situations in which substandard conditions of work persist. 3) To assist in developing for the members a program of education in the best practical methods of collective bargaining. In conjunction with this committee, there is a working party drafting special legislation in accordance with those resolutions accepted by membership at the annual convention in April 1964. In February printed outlines will be available to all members.

The Bay of Quinte Chapter is planning a workshop to discuss and thoroughly understand this legislation. It was moved by Mrs. H. Machin and seconded by Miss Kay Abbott that the members of Bay of Quinte Chapter send letters to their member of parliament requesting their support when the Board of Directors present this special legislation to government.

Of the 46,000 Registered Nurses in Ontario, 27,316 are members of the RNAO. Mrs. Ackerman said that this association is the professional organization of registered nurses in Ontario. Nurses are its members and their wishes are implemented through their association. Indifference and impatience of the members could destroy everything which the association has gained for nurses over the last 40 years. It was decided to hold the February meeting at Trenton Memorial Hospital on Wednesday, the 17th. At this meeting Miss Marion Comme, president of District No. 6 will present and interpret the proposed changes in the structure of the RNAO.

Shawl Theme Is Everywhere In Paris Spring Collection

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

PARIS (AP)—Egypt's pyramids, Australia's kangaroos, Scotland's tartans, Oklahoma's sunrays and grazinonberry shawls from everywhere were the international influences in the spring collection that Guy Laroche introduced today.

The parade started with an Egyptian pyramid as the shape for knee-length shifts, one in white leather with orange shorts underneath. Tropical cotton shifts fluttered with ruffles at the hems.

From the kangaroo, designer Laroche borrowed the pooch—interpreted as a flat - stitched pocket opened at the sides to keep the hands warm. These were sewn onto the front of suits, dresses, and even cocktail dresses.

COATS OF TARTAN

The tartan sparked slim, pleated coats over daytime dresses as well as rustling taffeta jackets and coats over chiffon cocktail dresses.

The Oklahoma tune Surrey with the Fringe was on the lips of some in the audience as models flounced in and out of the showroom in short, jacketed suits and coats as well as sleeveless skimmer dresses, hems fluttering with fringe.

The shawl theme was everywhere. Sometimes it was a shawl pure and simple, triangular shaped and fringed, tied to backs or fronts of pastel linens and wools for days, crepes and chiffons for night. But very often the shawl was stitched into the dress as a giant yoke that fell into folds at the neckline as a cowl.

With rare exceptions, mannequins in formal wear were covered to their chins, with a sliver of bareness in back. In Laroche's collection, leg revelation was the thing.

COZY TOES

DEAR Susanna: I have heard of children's comfy - machine-washable slippers that can be made in minutes from a pair of washcloths — one cloth for each slipper. I would love to learn how. — Wendy Heath

These really are sweet a and useful, and even adults with dainty size feet can wear them if extra large washcloths are used.

Stitch an inch deep hem lengthwise along each side of the cloth for a cuff. Fold the material in half lengthwise with the cuffs on the inside. Close one end with a straight seam from top to bottom (this will be the heel). Starting about a quarter of an inch in from the other end at the bottom, stitch another seam on an angle toward the centre of the slipper so that you end up about two inches from the front end at the top.

Cut off the bulky part and turn the material right side out. Thread some ¼ inch elastic around the top of the slipper underneath the cuff and fasten at the desired tightness — this just keeps the slipper from sliding off.

If these instructions seem a little convoluted, I'll gladly send along a diagram of the finished shoe that you'll have a much clearer idea of what we're aiming at . . . and since you're writing anyway, how about including that extra special hint of yours!

These slippers ca: also easily be made by hand and are a darling, item for a member of the family who is laid up to work on. They can even be kept on in bed — a perfect cure for chronic cases of cold toes!—SUSANNA

TOGETHERNESS

Dear Susanna: My wife handed me a pair of tumblers that had become tightly wedged, saying that it would take someone a lot stronger than she was to get them separated. I simply told her to stop fighting nature with brute strength and demonstrated the obvious solution.

I filled the top tumbler with cold water and stood the bottom one in warm water. The inner container contracted and the outer one expanded. Of course, they separated easily. — "Scientific Sam."

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

Successful Living

Cheated—Wife Ready To Leave With Children

DEAR DORIS — My husband doesn't know what it means to have to get up and give me a hand, even to pour himself a cup of coffee right after I was home from hospital from having our third child.

DORIS CLARK

He has cheated on me several times. He has a very immoral mind and if I tell him in a nice way he says: "Look here, girl, I work eight hours a day and dress the kids and feed all of you, so I figure that's all my duty is as a husband and father. Just because I married you doesn't mean I have to drag you wherever I go."

In order to end an argument I always have to say I'm sorry. I'm getting to the place where I'm just so absolutely starved for love and affection that I'll take my three children and go. — CONFUSED.

* * *

DEAR CONFUSED — I'm sorry. Love and affection went out the window long ago.

Your lord and master knows he has a slave, so he treats you like one. But if rudeness, cheating, ignoring you, being immoral, doesn't make you break your chains and head for greener pastures, what can I do?

He'd get the shock of his life if you left.

DEAR DORIS—I am a 14-year-old boy. The kids in my class are older than me and they all laugh and have fun together. I sit shy and when it comes to talk with some of them I turn all

This worries me so "I don't associate too much with them. They think I am queer because of this. I have to win their friendship because I still have six months of school with them. I cannot go on this way. — DISCOURAGED.

* * *

DEAR DISCOURAGED — The smart ones often find themselves with older types and feeling like fish out of water. There's a great big gulf between Tentative Fourteen and Sociable Sixteen. As the months pass you'll begin getting into the swim.

Make one friend. Help one blundering Oldster with his algebra. And don't let the red signal stop you from driving ahead socially.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — We usually have a party where the guests bring a bottle with them when they arrive. I would like to know if they should go to the bar (rumpus room) with their package or am I supposed to accept it at the door and afterward go along with it? — HOSTESS.

* * *

DEAR HOSTESS — You relieve them of the parcel at the door. It's yours to deal with as you see fit.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — What should I do with my old Christmas cards? — TWELFTH NIGHT.

* * *

DEAR TWELFTH — I'm sending my sheet of addresses. Some go to missionaries, some to limbless ex-servicemen who remove the ink signatures and re-sell the cards. Some go to far-off schools.

When wrapped and tied as per instructions these bundles go very cheaply as printed matter.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Is it proper to wear a hat at luncheon in a fashionable country club in honor of the marriage of my daughter? — MARITIME MOTHER.

* * *

DEAR MOTHER—Yes. People are becoming less formal about hats, but it is actually not correct to go to a formal function without a hat until after five p.m.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — About pierced ears: My Mother has had them all her life but for three years she has not been wearing earrings. The holes haven't grown in yet.

I am 15 and got my ears pierced two years ago. I find I like pierced ears much better because you can wear nicer earrings and you don't have the worry of loss. It does not hurt to get them pierced; they freeze your ears first. — ONE WITH PIERCED EARS.

* * *

DEAR PIERCED — I hadn't thought of the "worry of loss" bit. Certainly there are some ear lobes which encourage the snap-ons to slip off!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Due to illness and an operation my daughter gave up majorette lessons over a year ago. She is now 16 and in good health. For a hobby she is thinking of getting a group of 12-year-old girls to teach. I have consulted her principal at high school and he has given permission for them to perform with the school band.

There is a book on majorette routines published, and if you could send her the name and where to get it, it would be greatly appreciated. Her doctor wants her to take an interest in something; and she is quite keen on this idea: — GRATEFUL.

* * *

DEAR GRATEFUL — It's a fine hobby. Such things can give a girl a heightened interest in living which results in improved school work, social attitudes and general health.

I am sending you the names of pamphlets and a book on the art of baton twirling.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My husband and I have become strangers. I cannot get him to converse with me, and there is no show of affection whatever. Yet at social gatherings his cup runneth over with charm and attentiveness to other females whom he finds attractive. It is only then that I get a fleeting glimpse of the man I married.

I seem to be treated like an unpaid employee. After 18 years and four children I still have a girlish figure and keep myself attractive. He says he loves me, but actions speak louder than words. — SHATTERED HEART.

* * *

DEAR SHATTERED — Full marks for the girlish figure and face. Now how about the youthful zest for living that belongs in the mind and heart behind them? And who stopped talking first?

The mother of four is prone to focus so hard on family-fare that she shuts her husband out, and unwittingly. Resume those interests you two used to share; laugh sometimes together over your offspring. Give him a build-up without waiting for one yourself. Maybe you are both waiting for the other's loving gesture. Something has to restart the motor.

Pastel Striped Evening Gown Wins Ready-to-Wear Award

MONTREAL — A cool, pastel-stripe evening gown for summer, designed by Ruth Dukas of Toronto, has been voted the outstanding fashion produced by Canada's ready-to-wear industry for the spring and summer season, it was announced today.

The gown, seen in the National Collection show in Montreal January 22, was selected by fashion writers from across Canada for the top Unico Label in Fashion Award.

Middleton Hope & Co., which supervised the balloting, also announced on behalf of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, sponsors of the bi-annual show and awards, that the Ruth Dukas creation a gown of printed linen in pink, white and yellow, also took honors as the best cocktail or evening wear.

Montreal and Winnipeg designers won the four other Unico Label Fashion Awards for entries in the National Collection show, the only comprehensive ready-to-wear preview seen in Canada.

The top winner was one of a number of formal gowns seen in the national collection's closing scene. Fashion co-ordinator Jennifer Lindsay defined them as "Evening Lights." The sophisticated Dukas gown in subtle rainbow colors outlined by rope beading appeared with matching stole.

Golden Curried Scallops Dish

By MARY MOORE

Without planning it a preview Valentine party dinner was assembled and enjoyed by four of us.

It was four o'clock and four below zero when we answered a knock at the door. It was a neighbor returning a dish. We pulled him in out him by the fire, gave him a hot cup of tea and invited him to dinner — made up of the food I had been experimenting on all day.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Pineapple Juice; Chicken Liver Omelette; Creamed Cauliflower; Buttered Spinach with Sliced Mushrooms; Burnt Sugar Layer Cake with Butter Pecan Icing; Tea.

The Valentine Heart Cake, recipe for which I will give you here on February 11th, was on the dining-room table waiting for tastes. Red tomato aspics were chilling in the refrigerator. Scallops were thawing in readiness for Golden Curried Scallops (see below). I had ingredients measured for Cream of Tomato Soup. We had red candles and napkins leftover from a post-Christmas dinner.

To my surprise when they were all assembled in proper sequence I had prepared a Valentine meal.

Tomorrow I will give you recipes utilizing economical canned tomatoes and juice — the tomato aspic and cream of tomato soup mentioned above and my favorite tomato casserole.

The high-liner scallops from Lunenburg that I am featuring today cost me 46c for a 12-oz. package, quick frozen.

GOLDEN CURRIED SCALLOPS (serves 4):

12 oz. (or 1 lb.) quick frozen scallops, thawed, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1/3 cup fine dry bread-crumbs, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ to 1 teaspoon curry powder, 4 thin slices lemon.

Cut thawed scallops into bite-size pieces. Sprinkle with the salt and coat with breadcrumbs. Butter individual baking "shells" or casseroles or a shallow baking dish and put in scallops. Melt butter gently, remove from heat and stir in lemon juice and curry. Mix well and pour evenly over scallops. Top with lemon slices. Bake in very hot oven of 450 deg. F. for 15 minutes. Delicious served as a separate course after Cream of Tomato Soup and before Tomato Aspic Salad (see tomorrow).

Congregational Meetings

VICTORIA AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH

The completion of ninety years as a Baptist congregation in Belleville was a unique feature of the annual business meeting of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church held recently.

As in other years a good representation of the congregation gathered in the Sunday School auditorium where the evening meal had been prepared by the women of the Dorcas Association. Visitors and new members were extended a warm welcome by the pastor, Rev. Gordon Woodcock, and at the conclusion of supper a short musical program was presented by a girls' quintet — Barbara Orr, Sharon Hales, Elizabeth Woodcock, Judy Burn and Sharon Beeching; Paul Scott with his trumpet and soloist Dianne Woolley accompanied by William Connor at the piano.

90 YEARS OLD

Mr. Woodcock began the business meeting with an account of the early church as found in the New Testament and asked Mr. A. Fredericks as the oldest member of the congregation to make the opening prayer. Mr. Fredericks was accorded a place of honor at this meeting, also having attained ninety years of age as Victoria Avenue Baptist Church enters upon the last decade before achieving a full one hundred years in the City of Belleville.

Reports from the organizations within the church were read and discussed, indicating active year in all departments. Also this year past, in addition to leading the congregation and fulfilling his duties here in Belleville, the minister was Moderator of the Trent Valley Association, which office made many demands upon his time.

Mr. Robert Turner, after twelve years' faithful and efficient service as church treasurer, retires from this position. A motion was put forward by Mr. A. Orr expressing the church's appreciation of the work of both Mr. and Mrs. Turner in this respect.

NEW OFFICERS

The report of the nominating committee was presented. There were many changes among the officers of the church and the new slate for 1965 was unanimously adopted as follows:

Deacons: J. Blackburn, G. Parker, M. Lush, A. Gazley, E. A. Orr, T. Stovell, G. Grenke, H. Robson, M. Woolley, H. Hall, B. Girling, W. Sobie; Deaconesses: Mrs. M. Lush, Mrs. R. Orr, Mrs. E. Price, Mr. A. Wynne, Mrs. N. Grenke, Mrs. R. Gazley, Mr. A. Wallbridge, Mrs. J. Fox; clerk: Mrs. G. Daughtry; assistant clerk: Miss E. Nurse; treasurer: Mr. R. Orr; financial secretary: Mr. B. Girling; assistant financial secretary: Mrs. J. Harvey; envelope secretary: Mr. and Mrs. M. Dowbyhuz, Mr. and Mrs. A. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wannamaker, Mr. and Mrs. R. McPherson; corresponding secretaries: Mrs. H. Thompson, Miss Mary Cook, Mrs. A. Wells; finance committee: Mr. E. A. Orr, Mr. F. Hitchon, Mr. G. Blackwell; house committee: Mr. and Mrs. A. Women's Institutes

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

The January meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. S. M. Nicolson. Due to stormy weather the attendance was down to 17 members. President Mrs. O. Chisholm opened the meeting and Mrs. Ted Evans was pianist.

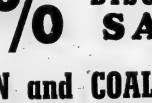
Mrs. Barton Hinchcliffe reported thank you letters from Mrs. W. Hurst for a donation to the mental hospital at Cobourg; from the Salvation Army for a donation of candy and canned goods; and from the C.N.I.B. for a donation of $28.

Leaders for the 4-H Girls' Club work were chosen: lower 4th Mrs. H. Knight, Mrs. E. Demorest, assistant; upper 4th, Mrs. Don Shorey, Mrs. Alva Fisher, assistant; 5th line, Mrs. H. Phillips, Mrs. Leshaw, assistant.

A letter from Miss Munroe, home economist, announced a meeting to be held in Stirling February 2-3 for the sewing club. The Institute decided to give each 4-H club girl a silver spoon again this year. A cook book, "Let's Cook It Right," from the department of agriculture was handed out. Mrs. H. Phillips reported from the C.A.C. bulletin on electric light bulbs.

DISTRICT PRESIDENT

The president introduced and welcomed the District president, Mrs. Gerald Herrington of Hastings West, who is making her official visit to Wallbridge Women's Institute. Her topic was based on Institute work in various ways, such as the centennial projects.



The projects include restitution of the Adelaide Hoodless Home; the Canadian Mosaic, a collection of ten books from each province; make Canada lovelier; clean up campaigns; safe living projects, preservation of wild flowers.

The Associated Countrywomen of the World are holding their conference in Ireland this year. This is a most hospitable country to visit. The people are interested in farming, and own their own farms of from 100 to 300 years. The women help with the farm work and are noted for their humor and wit. Those attending are assured of a hearty welcome at the conference.

The speaker referred to Ethel Chapman's editorial on "How Can We Study Family Life?" A standard of measuring could be a home that is morally wholesome; mentally stimulating; socially responsible; spiritually inspiring; founded on mutual affection and respect.

Mrs. Herrington asked for 100 percent reports to be sent in to the district. Mrs. Chisholm thanked the speaker for her inspiring address and presented her with a gift in appreciation.

Service Work Should Be Meaningful

TORONTO (CP)—Too much volunteer work is waste effort, says Dr. Benjamin Schlesinger, associate professor of social work at the University of Toronto.

"When we do give service, it must be service which has a meaning," he told the Women's Canadian Organization for Rehabilitation through Training. "Stuffing envelopes is not volunteering."

Dr. Schlesinger says too many women give less time than they could and do volunteer work for the wrong reasons.

"Volunteers fool themselves into thinking they are doing good, but really they're just running around from welfare agency to welfare agency trying to obtain status.

"There's the public relations volunteer—the one who volunteers and sees that her name is in the paper every week. And the hob-skip-and-jump volunteer, who runs so fast she works for no one and who, when you ask about her family, replies 'I haven't seen them in years.'"

He says volunteers should join no more than two organizations and devote as much time as they could to them.

Today's volunteer, he says, needs pride in her organization and knowledge of it. She should have belief in what she is doing.

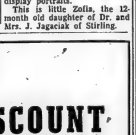
Friends Honor Young Couple At Shower

2ND OF SIDNEY — Friends, relatives and neighbors gathered at Harder's School last Wednesday evening to honor Miss Barbara Sandercock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sandercock, 2nd Sidney area on the occasion of her marriage to Mr. Eddie Hagan of Sault Ste. Marie, which was performed in Johnstown United Church on Saturday.

During the early portion of the evening cards were enjoyed previous to the arrival of the young couple. The honored guests were given seats of honor at the bride's table which was appropriately decorated with pink and white streamers and wedding bells.

Miss Brenda Yateman read the address which was written in the form of a poem and a lovely array of gifts was presented to them by Mrs. Donald Sandercock and Mrs. Stanley Holland.

The happy couple expressed sincere appreciation to everyone for their kindness.



A buffet-style lunch was served and the lucky plate prize was won by Sharon Jeffrey and the lucky cup by Wayne St. Hilaire.

Mrs. Don Sandercock and Mrs. Holland were responsible for this delightful event.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

SUBDIVISION 5 TRENT VALLEY AREA

STIRLING — Mrs. Grant McLaren, Provincial Board Director of the Women's Institute, called a meeting of the officers of the four districts in Subdivision 5 of the Trent Valley Area Institutes on Saturday at the Quinte W.I. Hall. The districts represented were three in Hastings, East, North and West and Prince Edward.

The deliberations were based on the recent Provincial Board meeting in Toronto when the president Mrs. Leonard Trivers outlined the year's work. There are 1,406 senior branch Institutes in Ontario with a total membership of 35,524 and 36 junior branches with 490 members. One junior branch folded up in 1964. There are 2,545 life members in the organization.

The Provincial International Scholarship fund still needs approximately $20,000 to complete the objective and a few years ago. The fund is now placed on the fee sheet for this year only and each branch is asked to make a voluntary contribution before April 30th, 1965, when the fund will be closed and arrangements will be made for the administration of this scholarship. Unfortunately many branches have not sent in their donations and the fund has not progressed during the past few years. Last year 189 branches contributed $2,286. The president made a special appeal to all branches to consider this fund between now and April.

OTHER CONTRIBUTIONS

The Adelaide Hoodless Fund of the F.W.I.C. received 1,702 donations of $3,446. to September 30th of last year. The F.W.I.C. Foundation Fund received 1,697 contributions of $1,382. The U.N.E.S.C.O. Coupon Plan sponsored by the F.W.I.C. for work in the North West Territories was supported by 54 branches who donated $4,912. The A.C.W.W. Pennies for Friendship Fund received $4,254. from 235 branches and districts.

The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada deeply appreciated all of this support. However, in comparing the FWIC gifts with those of Ontario, Mrs. Trivers urged the Provincial Board directors to stress to the branches the urgency of supporting the Provincial International Scholarship Fund.

SAFETY PROJECT

The year's safety project is to be centred around the theme "Safety With People," or a study in human relations. The safety committee will prepare an outline for the branches, which will be distributed at a later date. Two special booklets are available — "Driver Safety" from the Department of Transport and "Safety for Senior Citizens" from the Department of Welfare.

The officers' conference to be held in May at the OAC in Guelph is primarily for Branch Tweedsmuir history curators. In the following order the branch may delegate—a public relations officer, the president, or at least choice the secretary-treasurer, to attend this conference. Each branch can send only one officer and the conference pooling fee is $30.

26 SCHOLARSHIPS

There are 26 county, district and area scholarships in the Province of Ontario. Prince Edward County presented its first scholarship on January 23, 1963, to Miss Donna Spencer, Belleville R.R. 1. She will receive $100 towards her education in training for a nurse at a Toronto hospital. At the fall board meeting Manitoulin Island presented their fund of $2,000 for administration by FWIO.

This committee held two meetings and made 16 basic recommendation, all of which were accepted by the board. They must meet with the solicitor's approval; also the Ontario Minister of Agriculture before they are instituted into the constitution.

CHARTER MEMBERS

A special resolution was brought in re charter members. This has been a questionable subject in the various branches as throughout the years and the new ruling is that charter members are only those women who pay their fee on the inaugural date and shall thus be called charter. Those paying their fee of $1 previous to the end of the first year's activities shall be called first year members.

The Triennial conference to be held in Dublin, Ireland from September 14 to 24th, 1965 sponsored by the Associated Country Women of the World has as its theme "Working Together." The Canadian delegation will not exceed 130 members. Ontario has a maximum quota of eight ladies. F.W.I.O. will pay the president's expenses and it is estimated that a minimum of $700 will be needed to cover the trip for each member attending.

DESIGN CHOSEN

A design has been chosen for a Junior Institute badge and it will be put into production as soon as possible. The board has set aside $150 to be used in the Ontario section of the International Peace Garden. A table, bench and palm will be purchased with this endeavor to be the centennial project.

The board was alarmed at the large totals shown under miscellaneous in the public relations reports. The fault appears to arise at branch and district levels where the public relations officers are failing to itemize their donations. It is their responsibility to do this and it is also their duty to work in conjunction with the branch secretary-treasurer in order to submit an accurate report. The area P.R.O. reports sent to Mrs. Austin Zoeller, Provincial officer last year showed a total of $19,464 given by the branches to other organizations and much of this was never itemized. It was felt that the branches should be loyal to their own Institute organization and give their donations to their own work first.

MISCELLANEOUS REPORTS

The other miscellaneous reports included donations to Women's Institute projects $3,920; to community educational projects, $5,200; to Institute educational projects, $2,045; to community health projects, $6,438; and to other community projects $17,678.

These figures show that many public relations officers were most negligent in sending in their reports. In 1963, branches, districts and areas will be sent three blank forms for their donation reports and it is hoped that the results will be much better this fall.

As Mrs. Trivers stressed, each member of the Women's Institute should stand on guard for her organization and all that it stands for.

Ann Landers

Other Members of Family Should Help Support Mom

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our mother is 81 years old. There are five children in the family. Four of us are married and have families of our own. Our middle sister never married. She has an excellent position and makes a beautiful salary. Sister has always been close to mother and lived in mother's house.

Five years ago mother broke her hip and couldn't take the stairs, so she sold her home. Sister and mother moved into an apartment. Five years ago sister began to criticize us bitterly because we have not contributed to mother's support. She says she cannot work forever and now she must begin to put something away for the future. (She is only 53).

ANN LANDERS

Ann, all of us have children to think about. Sister has only herself. Is it our fault that she chose the single life? None of us are rich and college these days costs a fortune. We all have children to put through.

We can't change our standard of living just because sister has suddenly decided to abandon her responsibility. Please say we are right. We need your help. — UP AGAINST IT.

* * *

DEAR UP — Where did you get the idea that your mother is your sister's responsibility? Who raised the rest of you? Your sister has carried the load without complaining all these years. So that means she should die in harness?

You four ingrates should now share all the expenses of your mother's keep and relieve your sister from here on in. She's done her part — and then some.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This may sound like a dumb question, but I need an answer.

When a fellow dances with a very lovely and refined young lady for the first time how close should he hold her? I like a certain girl a lot but I don't want her to think I am bold. On the other hand, it's no fun dancing three feet apart either.

Can you give me some help? — WISHING TO KNOW.

* * *

DEAR WISHING — Hold her close enough so you'll know she's a girl, but not so close that you have trouble remembering she's a lady.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I agree with "Straight Arrow" who said the standard American greeting, "How are you?" is a superficial collection of words which should be eliminated from the language.

Our pastor who feels as I do about this decided to do something about it. He had cards printed. When someone encounters him in passing and asks "How are you?" he hands them the following printed message:

Do not ask me how I am, so I will tell you. My appendix is in and my tonsils are out. My epiglottis is working nicely and my sinuses are clear. My spleen is O.K., my feet are free of bunions and my heart is beating with regular rhythm. My soul is saved by Jesus Christ and I am His property. If you wish further information please let me know. And will you also let me know what you plan to do with this information?"

Clever, eh? — A FRIEND.

* * *

DEAR FRIEND — Not very. As a matter of fact I think it's pretty revolting.

I suggest your pastor save his little cards until someone asks him specifically about his appendix, his tonsils, his sinusoh and his bunions. Until then, "Fine, thank you" should do nicely.

* * *

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to help them harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

M. Truman Learns to Strut Parade-Style

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A surprised Margaret Truman found herself taking a lesson in parade - style fancy strutting when she returned to television Monday in a half-hour special events show.

Miss Truman, daughter of former president Harry S. Truman, and wife of New York Times executive Clifford Daniel, started Monday her first daily television series—an afternoon show broadcast live by a local Philadelphia station.

Miss Truman's televised strutting lesson was prompted by the guest appearance of the South Philadelphia String Band, headed by Band CaPtain James Donaghy and dressed in mummers parade finery.

Miss Truman admitted later that her look of surprise was genuine when Hart suggested that Donaghy teach her his fancy strut.

But she made a sporting try at it, to a tune called Bring Home the Bacon.

At Teotihuacan, "city of the gods", where sun-worshippers filled the soil more than 2,000 years ago, they will see a dramatic pageant, "Parade of Agriculture". During a visit to Chapingo Agricultural College, they will witness demonstrations of the new MF equipment.

Buyers Say Saint-Laurent 'Playing It Safe' in Styling

PARIS (AP) — Yves Saint - Laurent might have received better reviews on the clothes which he banned from his opening Monday, than he did from the buyers.

"Restrained and lovely," said a few.

"Disppointing," "111 - advised," "playing it safe," were the less flattering comments of many more buyers leaving the show.

Last August, Saint - Laurent introduced the demi - longueur length—a hemline for dressy occasions which goes to the mid-calf. Much of the fashion press said the collection was grandmotherly and hard for the eye to adjust to.

Paradoxically, Saint - Laurent's press - paused demi - longueur skirt was picked up by American designers and hailed by the U.S. press.

Buyers had expected him to continue the trend this season. Thus they were surprised and disappointed to find that Saint-Laurent hemlines were just about the same as the others.

PARIS (Reuters) — A spontaneous burst of applause from a filled - to - capacity salon greeted British designer Capt. Edward Molyneux at his comeback showing here Monday.

Since closing his salon for health reasons in 1950, Molyneux now 70, has bypassed the entire decade of loose, unfitted sack and chemise fashions.

His dresses and suits are simply fitted to show off a well - defined bosom, neatly - belted waistline and rounded hips.

His silhouette is willow slim, except for a few side - skirted ball gowns.

Dresses have no sleeves. Navy blue street dresses have a narrow white cuff outlining the bare armhole, matched to trim stand-up white collars.

Ensembles and bright printed costumes have loose kimono coats.

Missing Hubby s Letter Read In Open Court

HAMILTON (CP) — A note addressed to County Court Judge John S. Latchford was found early today on the driver's seat of a car abandoned near the Burlington Canal. The car was registered in the name of William Edwards, who failed to appear for a court fraud hearing Monday.

Residents of a nearby home said they had noticed the car parked on a canal access road last Sunday night.

A topcoat and a scarf were found along with the note by detectives called this morning to examine the vehicle.

Police said the note would be delivered unopened to Judge Latchford. A bench warrant was issued for Edwards' arrest Monday after he failed to appear in court.

His wife Muriel, 47, sobbed openly in the courtroom as an earlier letter from her missing husband was read aloud.

The couple is charged jointly with fraud and the case was to enter its second day Monday. The case was adjourned until the bench warrant for Edwards' arrest could be executed.

Mr. Freeman said that by reducing the work week, the available work could be shared among larger portions of the work force to offset automation.

Allan Eagleson (PC—Toronto Lakeshore) urged changes in Ontario's Child Welfare Act to allow Children's Aid Societies to place children in adoptive homes "without regard to any sectarian or denominational consideration."

The act now states children of one faith must be placed with adoptive families of the same faith, although the courts are allowed to designate the religion of children being placed in foster homes.

A bill giving the registrar of used car dealers the power to censor used car advertising which the registrar considers to be false or misleading was given its second reading.

Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury) suggested during discussion which preceded the second reading, that the bill be extended to include soap, breakfast foods, motion pictures and toothpaste advertising.

Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree said advertisements have been placed in newspapers to assess interest in track and field.

Advertisements invited track and field organizations to seek aid from the Ontario Athletic Commission.

Leo Troy (L — Nipissing) asked whether the Ontario Athletic Commission was to assume the role of promoter of track and field in the province. Mr. Rowntree replied that he would have more to say on the subject once the results of the ads were viewed.

Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfrid Spooner said municipalities that install French and English traffic signs if they wish but his department prefers that they pass enabling bylaws first.

Premier Robarts said arrangements are being made to place Canada's new flag in Ontario schools.

Replying to Robert Nixon (L—Brant), Mr. Robarts said his government now is corresponding with the federal government concerning the use of the red maple leaf flag in Ontario.

Sportsminded Take to Hills As Plenty of Snow Provides Excellent Top for Skiers

The Quinte district outdoor sportsminded are taking to the hills!

Sunday close to 400 skiers were on the slopes at the Oak Hills Ski club midway between Frankford and Stirling.

And at the same time numbers of tobogganing groups as well as snowboners, were having fun on other slopes in the Oak Hills.

But the mecca for the majority of the district's skiing fans was the Oak Hill Ski Club opened this year by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McGaughey of Belleville.

Two ski tows were in operation Sunday — one for the beginners and the other for the experienced skiers — and there were long line-ups for both throughout the entire afternoon.

OUTSIDERS ON HILLS

The club has been operating only a few weeks, but already the Oak Hills name has spread far and Sunday skiers were present from as far as Toronto and Ottawa.

For many of the district residents it's a case of bringing the kids for an afternoon's fun and then remaining to ski themselves. This is evidenced by the demand for rental skis at ski club house.

Mrs. McGaughey estimated that of Sunday's crowd possibly better than half were club members with the balance joining in the fun at Oak Hills for the first time.

Skiing instruction is available for those who feel they need it with Doug Ketcheson of Wallbridge as chief instructor.

Ideal snow conditions together with perfect winter weather brought out possibly the largest crowd of the season on Sunday. The tows operated Saturday and Sunday and also Wednesday afternoon.

CAN CHOOSE RUNS

Depending on individual ability, skiers can choose any one of five different slopes and ski runs.

Between runs skiers may enjoy a cup of coffee and other snacks at the nearby clubhouse built at the base of the hill and facing one of the steepest slopes.

Two tows are operating this year but so popular has the area become that a third is planned for another year.

Adding to Sunday's attraction was a ski race with many of the better skiers of the district competing.

OLD SCHOOL PLAQUE — Century old school plaque found under flooring by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stewart of Foxboro when they renovated their house. Plaque is from old school apparently torn down about the turn of the century.

Oddest Things Turn Up In Remodelling Buildings

You find the oddest things when tearing down or renovating old buildings.

Like 80-year-old newspapers and century old school plaques.

Currently a century old former doctor's office at Foxboro is going under the wrecker's hammer and age yellowed newspapers and other articles of interest are turning up between partitions and under floors.

The present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stewart, are razing the old building to make way for a garage or carport. The building, one of the oldest remaining in the village, was used as an office by the late Dr. Everett Ward until his death in 1925, and before that by Dr. Dan Faulkner.

There also is a belief that long before the turn of the century, the building may have been in use as a general store.

NO RECORD ON STONE

Five years ago when Mr. and Mrs. Stewart remodelled the old house in which live they they found a 105-year-old marble plaque beneath the floor.

The plaque was from a former school house at Fox-boro, presumably torn down about the turn of the century. When the first section of the present school was built, According to the old plaque the school "S.S. No. 12" was built back in 1854.

There was no record, on the stone of the school board organization, but the builder, when the first section of the school was built, wanted his name to be remembered. He was "T. Faulkner Builder."

Hospital Union At London Takes Strike Vote

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A strike vote will be taken Thursday night by union employees at Victoria Hospital following union charges of violations of the present contract.

Negotiations for a new contract have been under way for two months.

Local 220 of the London and District Building Service Workers Union (CLC) has applied for the services of a conciliation officer.

Violations allegedly committed by the hospital include: The hospital "allowed some employees to revoke their union dues;" has not submitted a list of members names from whom union dues have been deducted; has "willingly and knowingly" allowed employees to revoke their union dues authorizations; and has "aided and abetted" employees in violating the contract by having the letters typed in the offices of the hospital.

The hospital has offered a three - per - cent - wage increase, which has been rejected by the union. The union is asking for 20 cents an hour across the board and 60 cents an hour for skilled workers in a one-year contract. Present rates vary according to jobs.

House Warned A Power Could Make Hydro Obsolete

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Newfoundland legislature was warned today that its nuclear power could make hydro-electric stations obsolete in its future, knocking the props from under the controversial Hamilton Falls power project in Labrador.

On the West Coast, however, the future held a less ominous outlook. A Liberal member of the British Columbia legislature extolled a deal which could result in free boat trips to Hawaii during the summer.

The two legislatures were in session Monday along with the Ontario house, Quebec, fourth provincial legislature to have already started a new session, doing not sit Mondays.

Conservative Opposition Leader James J. Greene in Newfoundland said a large American company has made an offer to supply nuclear power to Consolidated Edison of New York, to be one of the largest customers for Hamilton Falls power.

If the Hamilton Falls project is not begun soon, he warned, nuclear power would become cheap enough to compete with hydro - electric stations and make Hamilton Falls obsolete.

Gordon Gibson, Liberal member of the B.C. legislature, said a group of Hawaiian investors is willing to give the government between 20,000 and 30,000 acres of free land in exchange for the timber licences to support a 1,000-ton-a-day pulp mill in the province.

He suggested that during the winter the government's new ferry to Prince Rupert be employed to take B.C. residents for free vacations.

Man is no longer an animal" and like migratory birds he should be sent to the south during the winter, Mr. Gibson said.

In other business, Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby) predicted the Social Credit government of Premier Bennett would take over the B.C. Telephone company. He had received information from "a source close to the premier and the government" to this effect.

Member Not Happy With TV Announcer

TORONTO (CP) — Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) said in the legislature Monday the CBC 11 p.m. television news suffers from authentically because its announcer also does toothpaste commercials on TV.

"I'm one of those who have looked with some disfavor at Earl Cameron selling toothpaste on the CBC," Mr. Sopha commented.

He said Mr. Cameron was required to "tell lies" about the particular brand of toothpaste, and this "detracts from the authenticity of the 11 o'clock news."

Norfolk County Singled Out By Member

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Nixon (L—Brant) told the legislature Monday that Norfolk County stands out as the sore thumb of Ontario's areas of economic deprivation.

The county's economy is based on tobacco and the tobacco industry is in the throes of a serious recession, he said in the throne speech debate.

Mr. Nixon suggested this single pocket of poverty in an area of plenty—the "Golden Horseshoe" region—should be singled out by the federal and provincial government for economic aid.

Mr. Nixon also criticized the provincial government for failing to provide assistance to Farmers Allied Meat Enterprises Co-operative Limited.

The Brant County farmer identified himself as a stockholder in the co-operative to avoid what he said might be construed as a conflict of interest. The co-op faces the loss of a $1,500,000 investment in a meat-processing plant.

Mr. Nixon asked Agriculture Minister William Stewart to make a full investigation of the co-op's affairs, saying the minister would be doing a favor for the agricultural community.

The future of the organization, to which the government had refused financial support, was in the hands of Mr. Stewart, the federal member said.

The meat-packing co-operative bought a plant in Burlington, Ont., last year with a $1,500,000 down payment but was unable to make the second payment of $1,000,000 and the plant reverted to its former owners. The co-op now is in the process of an internal re-organization, and officers have expressed the hope that the purchase of the plant can be completed.

London Youth Commended By Magistrate

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 19-year-old London youth was commended in magistrate's court Monday for his actions in an early-morning accident which resulted in James Gladstone Mulder of Sarnia being charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

The youth, Derek Whitmore, told the court he and a friend had followed a car, stopped it and he took over the wheel and drove the driver back to the accident scene.

"I want to compliment this young man on his actions and his testimony," said Magistrate Donald B. Menzies. "A lot more mature people wouldn't have done the same."

Ridler pleaded not guilty to the charge. Bail was set at $500 and the case adjourned to Thursday.

BECOMES ADVISER

LONDON (AP)—Patrick Gordon Walker, who resigned as foreign secretary after losing in a byelection bid for a seat in the House of Commons, was named an adviser Monday to a group promoting an easy-to-read alphabet. The Initial Teaching Alphabet Foundation advocates a 44-character alphabet.

U.S. Govt. Gives Priority To Ways to Curb Outward Flow of Gold, Dollars

By AECH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States government is giving priority to ways to curb a heavy flow of gold and dollars abroad.

President Johnson is expected to use a variety of weapons for the job. The dollar drain—another cycle in the American balance-of- payments problems—worsened sharply during the last three months of 1964.

One factor was an upsurge in Canadian borrowing, although it had been anticipated. U.S. legislation imposing a tax on American holdings of foreign stocks and bonds gives Canada a partial exemption.

The U.S. remedies being charted could have serious, although perhaps short-term, repercusions for Canada and the rest of the Western world's economy, in which the U.S. dollar remains the kingpin.

American tourists, responsible now for an annual deficit of about $1,500,000,000, may be forced to spend more.

It may be harder to borrow U.S. dollars.

Supports of American development capital for business subsidiary operations may be reduced.

The U.S. is pushing an export program, expanding competition behind the Iron Curtain and elsewhere. More economic and military aid may be tied to purchases of American goods.

But absolutely no consideration is being given to devaluation of the American dollar, it is stressed.

Canada has been conscious of a balance-of-payments problem for much longer than the U.S. The origins of the problems in each country differ sharply.

Canada annually buys much more from the U.S. than she sells. Another factor is Canada's heavy annual bill for money to develop her economy and to cover her own dollar gap.

The U.S. situation is more broadly based. In one sense, there is a substantial element of long-term gain in the heavy U.S. flow of foreign investment but U.S. officials are concerned about its extent. It may have touched $2,500,000,000 in 1964.

The over-all U.S. international deficit for the year is estimated near $3,000,000,000.

One immediate step being pushed rapidly through Congress will free $5,000,000,000 worth of gold—one-third of the U.S. supply—for meeting demands of any foreign holders of American dollars who want to cash them in as France did recently. This would strengthen confidence in the dollar.

President Johnson also is expected to seek renewal at the end of this year for the special tax on American holdings of foreign stocks and bonds. This was imposed last year, with Canada, after pleading a special case, being exempted on new issues.

The surge of Canadian borrowings had been expected but if it continued—and figures are not yet available to show if it has—there could be at least a stern warning it. Canada.

Johnson also can impose a similar tax on bank loans to foreign countries. Officials say they don't know yet whether that would hit Canada but it would affect Japan and some European countries.

There is some talk of limiting the duty - free allowance for American tourists to $100. This would hit Canada, which has its own tourist deficit to worry about and leans heavily on U.S. travellers for the bulk of its tourism income.

Other remedies which have a heavy investment stake in Canada may be asked to slow down foreign investment.

Foreign economic and military aid since 1961 has been tied to buy-American conditions to some extent, so that about $1,000,000,000 has been saved annually. But no such conditions apply to another $2,500,000,000 Soms area, such as the costly anti - Communist campaign in South Viet Nam, make savings virtually impossible.

U. S. Navy Denies Report Of Ships Sunk

TOKYO (CP-AP)—The U.S. Navy has denied that North Vietnamese army units sank three U.S. warships under the U.S. and South Vietnamese command which Radio Hanoi has attributed to North Vietnamese territory Monday.

A Radio Hanoi broadcast, monitored here, said three ships shelled a commune before one of them was sunk and two others fled south.

The broadcast said an urgent message was sent to M. A. Bakman, Indian chairman of the International Control Commission in Hanoi, protesting the incident. Canada and Poland are also represented on the commission.

The navy said in Washington "no U.S. ship has been sunk, damaged or fired upon." The statement did not mention any South Vietnamese vessel.

Dr. Martin Luther King Stays in Jail To Dramatize Negroes Right-to-Vote Fight

By REX THOMAS

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. remained in jail to dramatize his civil rights struggle today while his followers got ready for new demonstrations to protest his arrest.

Most of the 250 Negroes and half a dozen white civil rights volunteers jailed with King during a massive right to vote march Monday went free on bonds of $200 each.

A member of King's staff said Negroes would renew their demonstrations in Selma today to "protest the arrest of the Nobel Peace-Prize Winner."

The spokesman, Rev. Hosea Williams of Atlanta, said simultaneous marches were being organized in the neighboring counties of Perry and Marengo and possibly also in Lowndes.

Those rural south Alabama counties already are marked for voter registration campaigns later this year after the three-week drive in Selma.

MOVEMENT STARTED

The Selma voting movement has already begun in Perry County, birth place of King's wife, Coretta. An estimated 300 Negroes lined up to seek registration as voters Monday while others penetrated the racial barrier at eating places in the county seat of Marion, 30 miles west of Selma. There were no arrests and no disorders.

While King spent the night in jail, Williams and other civil rights leaders kept the campaign going at another level in almost nightly series of mass meetings.

Sheriff's deputies took 474 teen-agers, mostly high school students absent from class, into custody while they were picketing the courthouse Monday. Many of them complied with a request from juvenile court Judge Bernard Reynolds and filled out blanks giving their names, addresses and school so they could be released.

However an undetermined number held out until late Monday night before signing the blanks and gained release. All were told to be in juvenile court today with their parents.

LOCKED UP AGAIN

King, who along with the other N e g r o marchers was charged with parading without a permit, almost escaped arrest because Selma's Public Safety Director Wilson Baker said King "wanted to go to jail." Baker told the civil rights leader at one point that he and his close friend, Rev. Ralph Abernathy, could leave but then reconsidered and ordered them back into the line with the other Negroes.

Baker said it would not have been fair to put the others in jail and let King, and Abernathy go free.

King and Abernathy had a chance to post bond of $200 following their arraignment late Monday before City Judge Edpar P. Russell.

But the Negro minister who won the Nobel Peace Prize last year chose to remain in custody and Abernathy went back to jail with him.

Govt. Hopes to Reach Agreement With Opposition On Controversial Rail Rill

OTTAWA (CP)—The government hopes to make some progress on its controversial railway legislation during the parliamentary session that resumes Feb. 16.

If an agreement can be reached with the opposition parties, the bill will be sent quickly to the railway committee, which will begin hearing the views of interested groups.

Informants stress there is no thought of having the bill approved in the present session. The idea is merely to get some of the committee work done and thus save time in the next session when the bill is reintroduced.

The plan being pushed by the government is to have a cabinet minister initiate a motion that the subject matter of the bill be referred to committee without second reading. This, in effect, kills the bill's chances of passing and, if moved by an opposition member would constitute a motion of non-confidence. But it would not involve confidence in the government if the motion came from the cabinet bench.

NEEDS AGREEMENT

It would take a prior agreement among the parties to get approval for such an unusual—perhaps unprecedented — motion. This agreement now is being sought in behind-the-scenes negotiations.

The railway bill, based on the three-year-old report of the MacPherson royal commission, was introduced by Transport Minister Pickersgill last September. It received routine first reading but was then shunted aside by the pressure of other business.

Under its provisions, the railways would be allowed to strip away a mass of money-losing lines and services and be freed of all but the most elementary rate control. To ease the impact of the abandonments, a sliding subsidy starting at nearly $100,000,000 a year would compensate the railways for money-losing operations. The subsidy would drop as these were peeled away.

In effect, the bill proposes a drastic overhaul of railway regulations that would allow the railways to operate as ordinary businesses in a sink-or-swim competitive battle with other forms of transport.

The bill proposed by the Liberal government implements most of the major recommendations of the royal commission report and is almost identical to one drawn up by the former Conservative government, which fell before the legislation was presented to Parliament.

There is vigorous opposition to some parts of the bill from Western interests, trucking, railway unions and other groups. It is expected that weeks of committee hearings will be required to hear all their arguments.

Three Charged With Disposing Of Stolen Cars

TORONTO (CP)—Three Toronto men have been charged in connection with a ring that disposed of stolen cars in Latin America.

Metropolitan Toronto police arrested Charles Kosmoky, 21, Jack Angelo Koidis, 22, and his brother Peter, 21, and charged them jointly with possession of a stolen car.

Police said cars valued at about $6,000 each have been stolen here and arrangements made to sell them in British Honduras and Peru.

Kosmoky and Jack Koidis also were charged with possession of a car stolen at Toronto International Airport and found in Honduras.

Thomas G. Walsh, 20, Richard F. Milne, 18, and Peter D. Clarke, 24, all of Toronto were among seven others arrested last week at Houston, Tex., in connection with a similar ring operating through the United States from Canada to Central America.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The anti-Bobby Hull guerrillas who have been sniping from the jungles are getting bolder—and coming out into the open.

The blonde Chicago star is in a goal-getting slump, something that was not entirely unexpected after a meteoric goals-getting effort in the first half of the NHL schedule.

At the moment Bobby has twenty-three games in which to score fourteen goals (he has 37) to break the record of 50 which he shares with Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, two former Canadiens.

He has not scored a goal in his last five games which is right far the skill of these who, for some reason or another, do not like him and boast he will not set a new scoring mark.

After his dynamic scoring effort in the first 35 games, the order went out from the other NHL "mobs" to cramp, crimp and smother the Hawks' blonde bomber.

Opposing defencemen, and back-checking forwards when they catch him—five covered Hull like dew covers Dixie. Special "policemen" have been assigned to this duty alone.

Bobby admits that going through the last five games without a goal is bothersome, "but I'm not going to let it get me down."

"All I intend to do is keep plugging, and some of these days I'll break through again."

Hawks' coach Billy Reay goes along with Bobby. "He'll snap out of it one of these nights," he says.

"He's been great all season," added Reay, "and every bit as good in the last five games as when he was doing all that scoring. Actually, Bobby wears the other team out just looking for him."

The burghers of Point Anne, the American-dubbed "bushland of Northern Ontario," have not lost faith in their native son.

The greater majority of the Ox Pointers, I'm told, will bet the company's last bag of cement (with permission, of course) that Hull will come through and go for to new records' glory.

And unless you're looking for a punch in the kisser, don't wander through the streets of the quiet bay-bordered village and say that Nurse Robert is washed up—or his scoring effort to date is a flash in the pan.

Oh, they too are a mite worried about Bobby's failure to score in the last five times out—and they're going to do something to assure him that their faith in him is just as strong as ever.

A packed Maple Leaf Gardens will bear witness to that next Saturday night during the clash between their beloved Leafs and the Black Hawks.

I'm informed that some twenty-five sturdy Point Anners will march on Toronto and the Gardens come Saturday and prove in a tangible way that they're behind young Robert 100 per cent.

Sometime during the game they will present, before the eyes of some 14,000 fans, a large document bearing the signatures of 250 loyal Ox Pointers and the best wishes of the left-at-home fans.

The signature-bearing document, I'm told, will be presented to Hull over the boards between periods. And Bobby can do nothing better to show his appreciation than to poke at least one puck behind whoever is guarding the twine for the Maple Leafs.

In the Dressing Rooms

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

NEW YORK (CP)—"I believe ere would step in and tell us to break it up."

I can win back the heavyweight championship," an exuberant Floyd Patterson told reporters Monday night after he won a unanimous 12 - round decision over George Chuvalo of Toronto.

"I showed them I could take a punch . . . I think I deserve a shot at Cassius Clay."

On the other side of Madison Square Garden, Chuvalo said in his dressing room Patterson was not much of a puncher.

"His blows to the jaw were just fair," said Chuvalo, the Canadian champion. "I was surprised at this. He punches fast and I figured he might punch harder."

In defeat, Chuvalo was more defiant than downcast. He was anxious to fight Patterson again and was quite sure he could knock him out.

He said referee Zach Clayton "just wouldn't let me fight my fight."

Chuvalo said his strategy was to pound Patterson on the body for five or six rounds and force him to drop his guard. It didn't work.

"I couldn't get inside. The referee wouldn't let me.

". . . Everytime I'd get set to throw a hook inside, the ref-

Patterson survived Chuvalo's bruising body pounding to win a unanimous 12-round decision over the Canadian heavyweight champion at Madison Square Garden Monday night. But Floyd had to come from behind to do it.

Experts agreed that it was the best heavyweight bout they had seen in New York in years, and it had all the trappings and excitement of the championship match.

Seeking to erase the memory of two humiliating defeats by Sonny Liston, Patterson was able to handle Chuvalo's crude body blows and win with his superior combinations and a sturdy left because he found the Canadian's head an easy mark.

CLAY IMPRESSED

The 30-year-old former champion even impressed Cassius Clay, the current titleholder, unless Clay was kidding when he climbed into the ring at the end of the exciting bout and shouted "You've got the fight, Floyd, you've earned it."

Chuvalo, too, emerged from the hectic battle with some glory—perhaps as much as a loser could hope to get.

He proved that he deserves a place in the sun among the top heavyweights, and no doubt he will get more work under the Garden promotion.

He is a brawler who loves to mix it up, and he did with Patterson. The crowd loved it.

Patterson pulled out a few sharp left-and-right combinations and was particularly effective with long left hooks to the head. But there were no knockdowns and Chuvalo said afterward he wasn't "hurt at any time."

Chuvalo told reporters in his dressing room he was surprised at how light a puncher Patterson was.

Patterson, for his part, said hitting the rugged Chuvalo was "like trying to fell an oak tree."

Chuvalo and his manager, Irving Ungerman, lost no time in clamoring for a rematch with Patterson.

GIVEN OVATIONS

As far as the sellout crowd of 18,000 at Madison Square garden was concerned, Chuvalo could come back here for a rematch anytime. The crowd gave the fighters tremendous ovations after the eighth and 10th rounds, which saw fast, bruising exchanges at close range, and cheered lustily at the end.

The cheers were particularly sweet music to Patterson, who considered New York fans antagonistic towards him and who had not fought here since he knocked out Ingemar Johansson on June 20, 1960, to become the first man to regain the heavyweight crown.

Chuvalo was extremely aggressive, tried continuously to carry the fight to Patterson, only to run into punishing head blows.

But the 27-year-old Canadian, who weighed 208 to Patterson's 197¼, seemed on his way to an upset win after the first seven rounds.

Then Chuvalo seemed to run out of steam under Patterson's steady snipping and cleverness. That made the big difference and gave Floyd the points he needed to win.

Patterson won the 11th and 12th rounds by wide margins. These were the rounds he needed.

The Canadian Press scorecard showed Patterson the winner, also rounds to five with one seven (10th). The associated Press picked Patterson the winner nine rounds to two with one even.

Referee Zach Clayton had it six rounds for Patterson, five for Chuvalo and one even. Judge Tony Castellano voted for Patterson seven rounds to five and judge Joe Armstrong saw it Patterson eight rounds to four.

The bitter fight kept the huge crowd roaring constantly. The eighth and 10th rounds were classics that could rank with the best as Patterson and then Chuvalo let loose with tremendous flurries.

Chuvalo had a red mark under his right eye as early as the third round and a slight cut around the left eye in the ninth. He bled from the nose in the second.

Floyd must have absorbed 10% or more of Chuvalo's thumping wallops to the ribs and midsection, however, and that the Canadian would finally topple Floyd before the 12th, but Floyd held grimly and refused to fall.

The finish he was walloping the bleeding Canadian at will.

A ringside poll gave Patterson the edge, 18 to 2, with one writer calling it a draw.

The crowd paid $186,423 for the first Garden sellout since the Clay-Doug Jones fight in 1961. The closed-circuit television and other ancillary rights probably added another $300,000 to the promotional pot. Patterson will collect about $125,000 and Chuvalo about $60,000.

Patterson's record now is 43 wins and four losses, Chuvalo's stands at 29 victories, nine losses and two draws.

SATISFYING MIN

"It wasn't a title fight, but it was one of my most satisfying victories," said Patterson.

"I'm out to win and please. If I didn't I would have quit."

At a meeting Clay, Patterson first will have to await the outcome of the champion's return bout with Sonny Liston in Boston sometime in May.

Clay's manager, Angelo Dundee, said Liston comes first.

"Clay will fight Patterson out first he has to fulfil his contract to give Liston a chance to regain the title," said Dundee.

"If I can beat Clay and then Liston, I'll call it a career," Patterson said.

It was a bad night for the Chuvalo camp all round. A pair of Chuvalo's sparring partners were beaten in the preliminaries and when it came time to play the Canadian national anthem, the Garden organist barely struggled through God Save the Queen.

There also was a bomb hoax three hours before the fight.

Howe Starting To Move
Mikita Whittling Hull's Lead

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks has slowly been narrowing the lead of teammate Bobby Hull in the National Hockey League scoring race in recent weeks.

Hull had taken a 14-point lead when he was sailing along at a goal-a-game clip less than four weeks ago but Mikita has whittled the lead to eight points in NHL official statistics released today.

Hull has not scored in his last five games and has only 23 games left in which to score the 14 goals needed to set an NHL season record of 51. He will have to pick up 32 points in all to break the record of 96 in the individual scoring parade.

He has scored 37 goals and picked up 27 assists.

Mikita picked up three assists in Hull's absence Tuesday four games last week to give him 56 points made up of 16 goals and 40 assists—both top assists. Mikita is also leading in the penalty parade with 132 minutes.

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings had a productive week, scoring twice and adding two assists to move into a fourth-place tie with Chicago's Phil Esposito who scored once and assisted once. Both have 41 points.

Claude Provost of Montreal Canadiens, held scoreless, slipped to sixth from fourth place with 40 points.

TOOK TWO OF THREE

The Canadiens remain on top of the league, maintaining their two-point lead by winning two of their three games in the last week. Chicago is three points back with 55 points after winning two of its three games.

Toronto Maple Leafs remain a point ahead of Detroit with 51 points, both teams having won both of their scheduled games.

New York lost two of its three games and fell 11 points behind Detroit for the last playoff spot, two less than a week ago.

Boston lost its four games, three in convincing fashion, to show why Bruins are in the cellar with 29 points, 24 short of a playoff position.

The goallending race is close. Those with enough games to qualify for the title are Montreal leads with 106 goals against in 45 games. However, Toronto's goalies have a better goals-against average, letting in 161 goals in 47 games. If you look at it yet another way, Denis DeJordy of Chicago has the personal goals-against average among goaltenders who have played 20 games or more. Detroit's Roger Crozier leads in shutouts with four.

Red Wings remain the most penalized club in the league with 704 minutes, 19 more than Toronto.

Campbell Speaks on Expansion

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Hockey League's board of governors' meeting here today had an interested onlooker from Los Angeles but if NHL president Clarence Campbell is right, he will remain on the outside looking in.

"Los Angeles has been bidding for a National League franchise at every opportunity," Campbell said Monday, "but I don't think it can come right now."

Campbell compared the league to a grocer with no more merchandise to sell.

"Our problem is inordinate prosperity," he said. "I believe expansion can only be justified by economics and that is why I have to be linked with a major television contract."

Other subjects likely to come up at today's meeting included a proposal by Chicago Black Hawks' owner James Norris that each team be required to dress a spare goalie and have him on the bench for each game during the Stanley Cup playoffs in April.

The league also was expected to discuss revisions of the player development system with de-emphasis of NHL sponsorship of junior hockey clubs.

LOW WATER WILL STAY

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP)—R. H. Smith, an engineer with the federal department of transport, said Monday that low water level conditions in Montreal harbor "will be with us for another season at least." Speaking at the annual joint conference of the Dominion Marine Association and the Lake Carriers Association, Mr. Smith said that in some areas of the Great Lakes waterway the situation could possibly be more serious than in previous years.

Chelsea Chasing Sweep

LONDON (Reuters)— Chelsea, the southwest London club, is chasing a unique English soccer triple sweep—the Football Association Cup, the first-division championship and the Football League Cup.

Chelsea made the fifth round of the FA Cup Saturday by knocking out the defending champion, neighboring West Ham United, by the only goal of the match.

This win boosted Chelsea's already high morale, and it looks likely to move to the top of the division next weekend when it returns to league soccer.

TRAILS BY ONE

Chelsea is one point behind Leeds United. The Yorkshire club has a cup-tie replay at Everton tonight as a preliminary to its next meeting in league match away against sixth-place Nottingham Forest, so it may concede both points.

In the League cup competition, Chelsea looks all set to reach the final. It already has won the first leg of its semi-final against Aston Villa, 3-2 at Villa Park, so can face the return leg in London Feb. 10 with confidence.

Fifth Stockport County, which shared the giant-killing cup feats with Peterborough Saturday by holding cup favorite Liverpool to a 1-1 draw, could fill the Anfield Park ground many times over for Wednesday's replay. But police have placed a limit of 34,500 on the crowd for the match.

Stockport County, bottom of the fourth division, was a 2,000-to-one outsider in the betting before its gallant exploits last seekend. Liverpool, reigning first division champion, was six-to-one joint favorite, with Manchester United, which meets Stoke City in a replay at Manchester Wednesday.

'Lip' Switches; Liston Picked Floyd

Experts' Faces Red

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP)—"It's easy to see Floyd Patterson is the winner," shouted Cassius Clay, heavyweight champion turned commentator, at the final bell. "I bet on the wrong man. Floyd should have a crack at my title."

Clay did the sideslight commentary on the Patterson-George Chuvalo fight in New York on the closed television circuit seen here among other sites.

Seconds later Clay was on the ring apron, pummelling Patterson—the man he had called the Rabbit and jeered in pre-fight training.

"You'll have a shot at my title, you've earned it," Clay, who prefers the name Muhammad Ali, bellowed.

CASSIUS CLAY

"It was a beautiful fight," Clay kept repeating in his post-mortem. He also continually reminded his audience that the clever Patterson moves in staying away from Chuvalo's powerful punches "was exactly the way I fought Sonny Liston. He must have been studying the films."

PICKED CHUVALO

Just before the fight began Clay said: "I pick Chuvalo in five rounds or less because Floyd has a rather glass jaw."

By the end of the first round, Cassius changed his tune.

"I've changed my mind," the champ said. "I'm a man who lives to tell the truth. Patterson is determined. If he keeps this up he's a real threat to my crown. Patterson should win."

After the fifth round, Clay said: "I must confess I'm really surprised. I figured it would be over by now with Chuvalo winning.

"Patterson is not starting to tire as he usually does."

"If Floyd keeps on the way he is I'm sure he'll be a qualified challenger for my crown after I finish the unfinished business with Sonny Liston," Clay said after the seventh round.

Later in his remarks, Clay offered:

"This fight is a great help to boxing. It didn't end in one round. Floyd would beat Liston fighting like this."

DENVER (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Sonny Liston, who picked Floyd Patterson to knock out George Chuvalo in five rounds, said his favorite "didn't follow up when he had the chance."

Liston, among 2,000 fans watching the closed-circuit television at the Denver Auditorium theatre, said: "Floyd would throw a punch and then back off."

Sporting a cowboy hat and cowboy boots, Liston sat in the balcony surrounded by many Denver friends who booed every time commentator Cassius Clay, the heavyweight champion who dethroned Liston, made any remarks uncomplimentary to Liston.

Liston said in response to a question he did not want to comment on Clay's interpretive reporting of the bout.

In advance of the fight, Liston told a reporter he expected Patterson to "knock out Chuvalo in five rounds without any trouble."

Liston also said: "I wouldn't have any trouble with either of these fighters."

Liston knocked out Patterson in one round in 1962 and again in 1963.

Dad Felt Chuvalo Won Fight

TORONTO (CP)—At least one person who watched the George Chuvalo-Floyd Patterson fight on closed circuit television with 12,943 others in Maple Leaf Gardens Monday night felt the Canadian champion shouldn't have lost.

"It was very close," said Stefan Chuvalo, father of the 27-year-old Toronto boxer. "I don't think George lost. It should have been a draw."

He said he did not go to New York because his son didn't want him there.

Horse Wins Hurdle Race At 560-1

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP)—A horse named Kilcreggan won a two-mile hurdle race at betting odds of 560 to 1 Monday. But not many bettors collected.

Those were the odds paid in the pari-mutuel betting after Kilcreggan won the Annesley hurdle event by five lengths. The bookies had him at 50 to 1.

Solbina, the 5-to-2 favorite in the race, finished second.

The winning owner, Lady Durham, got $671 prize money.

Moira Girls Split With Napanee

By JACKIE THOMPSON

Moira and Napanee split COSSA girls' basketball victories at Napanee last night when Moira seniors downed the homesters 47-9 and Napanee juniors came back to grab honors with a 25-18 win.

In the senior game, Moira took an early lead and Napanee was never able to catch up. At half time it was 23-2 and with one quarter to go, 36-4. The Napanee girls had difficulty in breaking through Moira's guard line and close checking by the Moira forwards kept the ball in the Napanee zone most of the game.

D. Schoder led the winners with 20 points and L. Neill hooped 13. J. Thompson got eight and J. McConnell six.

J. Paul collected five points in defeat. K. Crandlemire three and S. Wright one.

The junior game was of a similar pattern but with Napanee having the upper hand. The securing shooting of Leslie Dunning, a former Moira student, paced Napanee's winning attack. Napanee led 25-11 at three-quarter time.

L. Dunning got 26 points for Napanee, J. Molfa 13, L. Tee six, V. Denison five and J. Poole one.

P. Steele was tops for the Moira juniors with nine points. D. Platt had four, S. Hall and W. Wood two apiece and D. Hanson one.

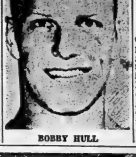
Manager Blasts NHL



'Hull Being Fouled Out'—Ivan

CHICAGO (AP) — Tommy Ivan, Chicago Black Hawk manager, blasted National Hockey League officials Monday and said scoring star Bobby Hull "is being fouled out" of his chance to set a single-season goal-scoring record.

Hull has failed to score in five successive games after ramming in 37 goals in his first 42. He has 23 games remaining and needs 14 goals to snap the NHL season mark of 50 which Hull shares with Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, retired Montreal Canadien stars.

"It's not that Bobby isn't playing well enough right now to break the record, but he's just not being allowed to play his game," said Ivan. "Two weeks ago, I'd have said he couldn't miss . . . No wi can only hope.

"The referees don't call a quarter of the penalties they should against players trying to check Bobby. He is hooked and held and tripped more than any other player in the league. And because he's as great as he is, the refs seem to ignore what guys do to him—and they do plenty."

BOBBY HULL

Ivan thinks the entire league may feel the impact unless steps are taken to improve treatment of Hull.

"It's too much of a gentleman to use some of the tactics a guy like Richard or Gordie Howe use when they were being treated the same way. They really could deal out punishment.

"I don't think Bobby should resort to that. But something certainly has to be done."

ELECTED PRESIDENT

KINGSTON (CP)—James McCowan of Kingston was elected president of the Cataraqui Region Conservation Authority at the authority's inaugural meeting Monday night. John G. Broome of Brockville was elected vice-president. The region extends from 25 miles west of Kingston to Brockville and fills the last major gap in southern Ontario not covered under a conservation region.

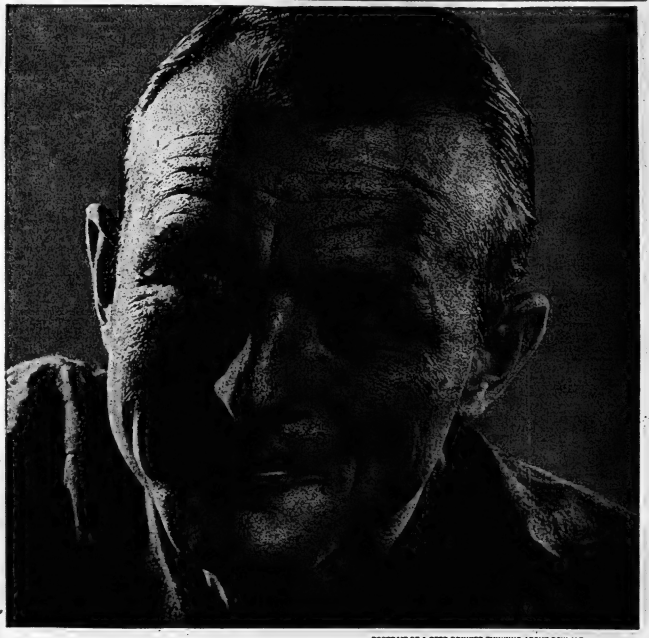
Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Spearing penalties aren't too numerous in hockey. One of the most vicious things you can do in hockey is thrust the stick forward like a bayonet at the midsection or chest of an oncoming player.

A few times I've had welts on my chest, four to eight inches long, from just such prodding. However, such spearing antics are rare, I'm happy to report.

When it comes to spearing, Jack Stewart one of Detroit's outstanding defencemen a few years back, now a harness racing official had a very effective spearing technique that was harmless, as far as the player was concerned.



If he was caught a little behind the play, he would spear his opponent in behind the glove. As soon as the opponent got the puck on the blade, he'd give the player's hand or glove a little shove. The player would lose control of the puck.

If they were going in a corner at the time, and Stewart followed up with a body check, nine times out of ten he would come up with the puck.

One of the best common types of spearing is to jab a player in the calf of the leg, or the back of the knee with the blade of the stick.

I've actually carried scars on occasion from such pointed spearing tactics. However, the spearing is just as effective when done with the flat of the blade.

When a player is going down the ice at full speed, if an opponent can reach out with his stick and get the blade to the outstretched leg, just break his stride momentarily, it will give him a better opportunity to overtake and check him. Naturally, this is more obvious and one of the most frequently called of spearing penalties.

Isolated Camera On Disputed Plays

Television Private Eye to Shadow Umps

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball umpires may have to be just a bit more cautious this season.

Television's latest innovation, the probing isolated camera which focuses on one particular area, will be nosing in on all facets of the game this season, according to the latest procedures adopted Monday at a joint session of the two major leagues.

Commissioner Ford Frick, emphasizing that "it was definitely agreed that there would be no pressure by the network," nevertheless said television cameras will have the widest latitude.

"There will be no stopping of play for commercials," said Frick, "and we're not going to be moving the umpires around to suit the cameras, and things like that."

But, he added there will be no objection in the isolated camera pinpointing a play involving a disputed call by an umpire and then offering television viewers a replay.

BECOMES POPULAR

The isolated camera has proved popular in television pro football games. The camera is operated so that it focuses, close up, on one phase of the action and can be played back immediately.

The role of television was discussed at the major league club owners with Tom Moore, president of the American Broadcasting Co., which will be using a Saturday Game of the Week this season in a package deal that will bring the 18 participating clubs $300,000 each.

The American League appointed a committee to clarify the controversial ruling which covers conflict of interests.

The acquisition of New York Yankees by the Columbia Broadcasting System last November, prompted the American League investigation.

It was learned last several American League owners among them Arthur Allyn of Chicago White Sox and Joseph Iglehart of Baltimore Orioles, have substantial interests in CBS. Iglehart recently resigned as a CBS board member.

The conflict of interests role, according to an American League president Joe Cronin, hasn't been reviewed "since 1927 when the St. Louis Cardinals traded Rogers Hornsby to New York Giants. Complications arose when it was discovered Hornsby owned stock in the Cardinals.

Guy Tops Quebec Bonspiel

QUEBEC (CP)—The swish of brooms and the clash of rocks will echo through the day again today as curlers move into the second day of the Quebec International Bonspiel.

In Monday's competitions the 420 competing curlers battled to stay in contention for the main events.

The rinks were divided into two sections with the first shooting for the Chateau Frontenac Trophy and the second the Francois Jobin Gold Cup.

A defeat in the opening draw sent the defeated rink into a third section for the Dow Brewery Golden Bowl. A loss in the third section will mean the rink involved will be put in another class lower down the ladder.

Only the rinks that reach the quarter-finals in the first three sections are eligible to enter in the playoff for the international championship and the Governor-General's Trophy.

Attention has focused on Jimmy Guy of Winnipeg, Ont., who won both his games in the Francois Jobin event.

TV Difficulties
Western Fans "Robbed"

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Technical television difficulties left boxing fans in five Western Canadian centres as disappointed as George Chuvalo, who lost a 12-round decision to former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson Monday night.

The more than 16,000 fans, who paid as much as $8 to see the action live from Madison Square Garden on closed circuit television, saw only the final two rounds.

Transmission difficulties from Seattle, which fed outlets in Vancouver, Victoria, Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg, left fans watching a blank screen through the first 10 rounds. They'll get refunds.

But about 24,000 fans in Ontario and Quebec got a bright, clear picture as Patterson outpointed the 27-year-old Canadian heavyweight champion in a free-swinging duel.

Under the contract terms Patterson was to get 30% per cent and Chuvalo 20 per cent of all closed-circuit television receipts. There was a total of 54 closed-circuit TV outlets in the United States and 11 in Canada, including a home pay-TV system in the Toronto suburb of Etobicoke.

NO ESTIMATE

There was no estimate of attendance from the coliseum at Quebec City which holds 4,000. But the estimated attendance at the five central-Canada centres, Toronto, London, Ont., Ottawa, and Montreal was 41,100.

The estimated total seats in Canada, including the subscription TV, was 64,500 but promoters had said they would be happy with the sale of 35,000 to 40,000.

The largest crowd turned out at Toronto, filling Maple Leaf Gardens to its capacity of 12,300. Tickets were sold for $3, $4 and $5 and total receipts were $50,000.

About 3,700 turned out at London, Ont., where prices ranged from $3 to $4. Total receipts were estimated at $5,535.

There was an estimated crowd of 2,000 on hand at the Montreal Forum where tickets sold from $2.50 to $6 and $20,000 was realized.

Another 5,000 paid from $3 to $4 at Ottawa, where total receipts were $15,000.

There were approximately 4,000 fans at Winnipeg where ticket prices ranged from $1.50 to $3.50, and another 4,000 at Vancouver where tickets sold for $4, $5, and $6.

The smallest crowd turned out at Victoria where about 900 fans paid $4, $5 and $6.

There were about 4,500 persons at Edmonton and 3,500 at Calgary where tickets sold as high as $4. But most of the fans at Edmonton walked out before transmission was resumed in the 10th round.

Officials at outlets in the five western centres affected by the blackout said fans would be given refunds. Losses would be covered by insurance, the officials said.

Ole New York

Looked Like 'Roarin' 20's

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing popped up out of its coffin and became a live and kicking ghost Monday night.

It looked like the golden twenties when a sellout crowd of 18,100 swarmed into the old fight arena on 8th Avenue for the 12-round bout between former world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and Canada's George Chuvalo.

"I haven't seen anything like this in years," said a gateman as spectators pushed and shoved their way through the turnstiles.

Outside in the arcade, hawkers sold slick photographs of the contestants for $1 each.

The peanut vendors did a thriving business a block away.

Loudspeakers blared: "No tickets available . . . All sold out . . . No tickets available."

Slightly-seedy men in grey hats and smoking black cigars moved through the lobby. Often they stopped and whispered in each other's ear, made hurried notes and moved to the telephones.

There were long queues in front of all the pay-telephone booths.

The front rows were crammed with striking women with fancy coiffeurs and jewels glistening under the bright flood lights. Such old standbys as Jim Farley, Gene Tunney, Toots Shor and Ralph Bunche were at ringside. The air was heavy with smoke and electric tension.

BASIC TRAINING

Today's newspaperboys—tomorrow's leaders. Statistically, that's how it stacks up.

In view of this, your newspaperboy is on the first chapter of what will probably be a success story. Not that he's destined for the Hall of Fame—but he might be. For example, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Herbert Hoover, Eddie Rickenbacker, Thomas Edison, Joe DiMaggio, Walt Disney, and Bob Hope all started as newspaperboys.

Newspaper route experience help mold those special character ingredients so necessary for success in any field: self discipline, punctuality, getting along with people, responsibility. And all the hundred and one other character-makers that are built into the management of a newspaper route.

The newspaperboy is skillfully guided by men trained and experienced to bring out his talents. This combination could well be the most important training in his life. In the long range picture, the money he earns on his route almost seems like a fringe benefit.

Although only one boy in ten ever gets a crack at a newspaper route, our Circulation Department people are always glad to talk it over with youngsters and parents. If you have a son or know a boy who might profit from newspaperboy experience, we'll be happy to hear from you.

'The Mystery of Stonehenge' Fascinating But Too Long

By CYNTHEA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—There is one television problem that probably will remain unsolved as long as program lengths are rigidly controlled.

It was demonstrated Monday night in a fascinating real-life detective story on CBS called The Mystery of Stonehenge.

Stonehenge, about 90 miles outside London, is a large circle of enormous stones, some fallen, which most people believe are the ruins of a pre-Christian Druid cult.

Now, a young Boston astronomer, using a computer, says Stonehenge was a Bronze Age temple, an observatory and primitive computer. Other students of the ancient ruin are not so sure.

All of this research and theory is explained and demonstrated on the television program. The trouble came when they had too much time to fill.

On the other hand, Monday night's Lucy Show on CBS could have been extended beyond its half hour. The star, Lucille Ball, has joined her zaniest comedienne of superb ability, Ann Sothern. Together these ocal pros romped through a hilarious drunk scene.

Earlier in the evening, ABC launched Peter Jennings, a young Canadian newscaster as its dinner-time newscaster. It is a spot where the tough competition is NBC's Huntley and Brinkley and CBS' Walter Cronkite. Jennings will have to himself well enough with a routine and workmanlike summary of news and pictures.

Recommended tonight: Mr. Novak, NBC 7:30-8:30 EST—with Burgess Meredith, new co-star. Ending this first appearance; Concert in Pantomime, CBS, 8:30-9:30 — Red Skelton and Marcel Marceau in a special performance, with Maurice Chevalier introducing them.

Apple Kings Cored by Napanee

TRENTON (Special) — Napanee Legion, sparked by the high-scoring efforts of Jim Stinson, whipped the Trenton Apple Kings 11-3 in Napanee last night.

Napanee, tall-enders most of the year, closed the gap on Trenton in the OHA Eastern Junior League standing with last night's win. Trenton has 13 points and Napanee 11.

Apple Kings make their next appearance Brighton here (Wednesday) night against the Belleville "B"s. Game time 8.30 p.m.

Napanee led 4-3 after one period and 8-3 before adding five wigwag to play in the final twenty minutes.

Trenton outshot the winners 46-38 on 30 shots by Bob Davey for the winners and Trenton's Ken Panko, spent busy nights.

Twelve minor penalties were split right down the middle, half of them coming in the first heat and half in the third.

Stinson had a fine night, scoring-wise with five Napanee goals. He scored three of them in a thirteen minute span midway through the first period to establish a lead which the Legion boys never relinquished.

Earl Smith contributed two Napanee markers and one assist went to Rick Gerow, Bob Gall, Wemp, and Denny Mullins.

Apple Kings goals were scored by Ross Quigley, Les Genereaux and Dave Dalton-Stinson. Dewey stopped everything else Trenton fired his way.

The losers were minus the services of three regular players, Jack and Rick O'Donnell, and Dale Lewis.

Braves Swap O'Dell For Ed. Bailey

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee Braves announced Monday they had acquired veteran left-handed pitcher Billy O'Dell in a straight player swap with San Francisco Giants in return for catcher Ed Bailey.

O'Dell, who has been in the majors since 1954, the last five with San Francisco, will be 31 this month. He had an 8-7 record for the Giants in 36 games last season, primarily as a relief pitcher.

Bailey, 34, has been a major-leaguer since 1953. He had a .262 batting average with the Braves in 85 games last season. He came to Milwaukee only a year ago.

Flyers Pull Away From Lightfoots

RCAF Flyers lengthened their lead at the top of the Bay of Quinte men's basketball league standing last night by turning back the Belleville Lightfoots 46-38.

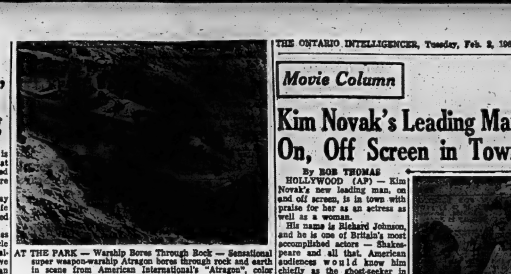
Lightfoots walked into the air station with an opportunity to tie the Flyers for first place with a victory, turned in their worst effort in some time, and came away four points behind the leaders.

The next league action has Cement Kiwanis at Trenton Wilsons on Wednesday night.

The Flyers were ahead most of the way last night and held a 30-25 margin at half time. Lightfoots did lead very early in the game but came back to tie the score once early in the second half but all in all were unable to find the range with any degree of consistency.

The game was a rough one but few penalties were called and many obvious infractions were overlooked by the officials. The winners got 14-for-18 from the foul line and the losers 14-for-38.

Mac McNicol was top point man for RCAF. He hit for 14 points. Jim Stinson was next in line with 12 and Wilf Borden followed with 10.



Don Smith led the Lightfoots, hooping 18 points, but Brian McBride was the only other double-figure performer, got 13. Two of the team's high scorers, Lee Houston and Bill Letchford, were held to eight points apiece.

Belleville Lightfoots (50) — J. Clapp, B. Langabeer, I Houchin 8, B. Smith 2, D. Smith 18, B. McBride 13, F. McNicol 2, G. Duggan, B. Letchford 8.

RCAF Flyers (62) — Blades 6, F. Walker, M. McNicol 14, E. Clarke 8, Rainboth 4, B. Nelson 8, Reid, Johnson, J. Theriault 12, W. Borden 10, Wydzik.

Canadians at Sadler's Wells

Their Debut Is Over Now They Learn Repertoire

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—Four Canadian singers, recruited in the first annual Sir Ernest MacMillan Wells to import Canadian talent, have put all the glitter of a debut at the renowned Opera House behind them and settled down to the work-a-day job of learning a variety of new roles.

They were selected from 182 singers who auditioned for Tom Hammond, personal assistant to Director Norman Tucker, during a five-week tour from Quebec City to Victoria, B.C.

First to arrive was Jean Bonhomme, a tenor law student who later switched to singing, and won two major success scholarships to the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto, an unprecedented feat.

He came here after a season with Opera de Montreal, where he sang Don Basilio in The Marriage of Figaro, and the first Sadler's role was that of Uldino in Attila, a rarely-performed opera by Verdi. He is rehearsing for the role of John Styx in Orpheus in the Underworld and Archbishop Pinkerton in Madam Butterfly.

CBC TALENT WINNERS

The other Canadians, all sopranos, are Heather Thomson of Vancouver and Talen Pugen and Louise Lebrun, of Montreal.

Bonhomme and Miss Thomson, who won the CBC talent festival of 1961 and the San Francisco opera auditions last year, have been signed to one-year contracts, with options for another year if they wish it. The other two have been signed only for specific engagements in the current Sadler's season, which ends in June.

Hammond, who visited Canada last July and was highlighted with the results of Sadler's first attempt to sign Canadians, said:

"If I had only got one good singer, it would have been worth while," he said in an interview in his tiny, cluttered office in the Opera House, set on the spot where a holy well once existed.

"The four, and later an outdoor theatre featuring everything from dancing dogs and freaks to boxing matches, attracted a lot of rather unsavory characters until the Sadler family built a respectable one there, the successor of which was to become one of the world's foremost theatres for performing arts.

The present Sadler's actually has two companies, complete with orchestra and ballet corps, which take turns performing here and on tour, mainly throughout Britain. All operas—even the Italian, Russian, German and French operas—are performed only in English.

SEVEN CANADIANS

There already are several Canadians at Sadler's Wells, notably singers Victor Godfrey and Shirley Chapman, of Vancouver, and Conductor Mario Bernardi, who has become wide acclaim for his conducting of the Sadler's Wells recording of Mozart and Gretel, the first complete opera recorded by the company.

Bernardi, 35-year-old native of Kirkland Lake, Ont., received his early training in Italy and has worked widely in Canada before coming here fn 1963 on a Canada Council grant.

Miss Thomson's first role here was that of Micaela in a revival of Carmen, while Miss Pugen, who has just seen on several Concert Hour television programs is to be heard as Mlle. Arvidson in Verdi's A Masked Ball.

Miss Lebrun, who sang Frasquita in Carmen at the new Palace des Arts in Montreal last December, made her debut here as the daw fairy in Hansel and Gretel.

Gandhi Inspired Star To Change Way of Life

LONDON (AP)—When Richard Attenborough got to page 41 of the book about Mahatma Gandhi, his own life took a change.

After 22 years as a movie actor, he decided to become a director. His first assignment: Directing a $5,000,000 movie based on Louis Fischer's biography of the Indian leader, published in 1951.

"It was when I read page 41 of the book that my decision was made," says Attenborough.

"Fischer describes how Gandhi and a friend, strolling in the streets of Durban (South Africa), saw some Africans giving way on the sidewalk to two whites. 'I am amazed that men should be honored that others are humiliated,' Fischer quoted the Mahatma as saying, if I remember rightly.

"This was the turning point in Gandhi's life according to Fischer. It was also decisive in making up my mind to direct the film."

The life of Gandhi will be told by a man who is somewhat his opposite. Attenborough is 41, short and chubby and full of life. But there is a hard glint in his eyes which betrays a determination to see the job well done.

"It will mean staying away from the stage and other side of the camera for nearly two years," he said. "I turned down three Hollywood offers and I can assure you they were very enticing."

Shooting will start in October, probably in India.

Attenborough said visits to India were a revelation to him.

"We (the British) have done some fine things and some disastrous ones in India," he said, "but in India I found that despite what we have done or have not done, there is a tremendous feeling of friendliness towards the English."

Attenborough said the Indian government has approved the script, and government employees are pledged to co-operate.

The movie will cover Gandhi's life from the age of 18 to his death.

Kim Novak's Leading Man, On, Off Screen in Town

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kim Novak's new leading man, on and off screen, is in town with praise for her as an actress as well as a woman.

His name is Richard Johnson, and he is one of Britain's most accomplished actors — Shakespeare and all that. American audiences would know him chiefly as the ghost-seeker in The Haunting, a splendid but neglected film of last year.

Johnson, a rangy, six-foot, three-inch, dark-haired man of 37 years, is likely to become better known in 1965. He will appear in Operation Crossbow with Sophia Loren and George Peppard and in The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders with Miss Novak.

The actor was in Hollywood to pay his respects to Paramount and MGM, with whom he has contracts.

"It is a good idea to drop in and see the people who own you," he said in an understatement. Otherwise they are inclined to forget you are alive."

SHE'S UNDERESTIMATED

About Kim:

"I think she has long been underestimated as an actress," he said. "She really is remarkably talented. I hope that people will realize that in Moll Flanders.

"Perhaps not. It's possible that she will achieve recognition as a creative person only through marriage. She is terribly good at that, too."

Prior to Kim, Johnson was linked romantically with Geraldine Chaplin, dancing daughter of the great comedian.

"It's a fascinating presence on the screen, and I think she will have a great future," the actor said. "I doubt if she wants to undergo the rigorous routine of the ballet life, which is inhuman, however. Since she knows she isn't another Pavlova, I hope she will accept that she should do excellently in films."

Disaster Plan For Nat. League

NEW YORK (AP)—The National League adopted a $2,500,000 insurance program for the protection of baseball clubs which might lose a large number of players by accidental death or disability.

The program, adopted at a mid-winter meeting here, will cover any club which loses seven or more players and provide for replacements supplied by the other clubs in the league.

It will be financed by $2,500,000 insurance policy, the cost of which will be prorated among the 10 National League clubs.

In the event of such a disaster, each of the other nine league clubs will present a list of 15 players from which the affected club may select enough men to replace those lost through death or disablement. No more than two players may be selected from each list—a maximum of 18.

The purchase price set for the players selected was $100,000 each, to be paid from the proceeds of the insurance.

Thus, if a club should lose more than 10 men in a common disaster, it would receive 18 replacements from major league rosters for $1,800,000 and the remaining amount of insurance money, at $100,000 a man, would be available to the club to seek replacements elsewhere.

The American League has had a similar disaster plan since 1954 with $75,000 to be paid for each player lost.

WELLINGTON

2 Brood Sows, 10 Young Pigs Die in Fire

WELLINGTON (Special) — Two brood sows and ten young pigs died in a blazing pen one mile northeast of this village early Sunday.

Fire razed the pen and animals on the farm of Fred Courneyea on the Gilead road shortly after 5.30 a.m.

The village fire department under Chief Jack Jarvis and Robert Walmsley. If council pays the bill at the 20 cents per 100 cubic feet rate asked by the commission, the bill for last year's users alone, would be about $2,000.

Jack Ogilvy, raced to the scene but the building was beyond salvage when they got there.

A phone call from a neighbor telling them the pig-pen was ablaze awakened Mr. and Mrs. Courneyea.

The pen was located near the barn but lack of water confined the flames to the burning building.

Cause of the fire is unknown. An electric bulb supplied heat for the building.

The Courneyea farm was owned by the Bryant family for a number of years.

Liquor Vote Approved by Town Council

PICTON (Staff) — Town council, Monday night, passed a by-law to hold a plebiscite for liquor and dining lounges. All members of the council were present and the recorded vote was 6 to 3. Those voting against the by-law were councillors Andrew Jarvis, Mrs. Bessie Ward, and Robert Walmsley. Date set for election April 26.

A motion was also placed to have a by-law prepared to appoint Angus LeHeup as town foreman at a salary of $5,000 per annum. Council also authorized a letter to Department of Highways at Port Hope approving the use of inhibitors mixed with salt and sand for use on roads and streets. The use of inhibitors in the mixture would increase the cost by $3 per ton. Action was taken in a suggestion by the Chamber of Commerce that a letter be written to the Postmaster General's Department in Ottawa with regard to mail delivery service in the town of Picton. There is no delivery of mail at this time and citizens are required to pick up their mail at the Post Office. Council also accepted the parking commission's proposal that a parking area be made at the rear of the armouries.

Council also discussed the matter of a water bill from the Public Utilities Commission for the use of water by the water pollution control centre. The matter was deferred while a committee was appointed by the mayor to further investigate

60 Marching Mothers Obtain Fund Objective

PICTON — Over 60 marching mothers campaigned the town of Picton last night in the height of a blizzard, to obtain funds for the March of Dimes campaign.

This year's objective had been set at $650 but went over the top by $50. Returns from the Picton Army Camp have not been received as yet. It is expected the total amount collected will reach the $800 mark when this money is turned in.

Chief marching mother, Mrs. Carl Reid, was very pleased with the returns as the canvassers trudged through the streets for nearly three hours in the bad weather. Treasurer of this year's campaign was Jack Murphy, manager of the Bank of Montreal in Picton and John Colden was general chairman.

With February also being Heart month, canvassers at the Army Camp also collected for the Heart Foundation Fund.

Your Car

Brakes Most Important Safety Factor

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

If you gave no thought to the brakes when your car was winterized, you could have overlooked the most important safety factor. Driving over slick roads or those spotted with ice patches is hazardous at any time — but with poor braking you're taking your life into your hands.

If brakes tend to pull toward one side, are overly sensitive to pedal pressure, drag at one wheel or seem to lock slightly at times, the chance of skidding out of control is greatly multiplied.

So, you can't afford to wait for warning symptoms. Make sure the brakes are perfect before you face road conditions which can prove they are not. Have an expert check for such things as: unequal or improper adjustment — loose, greasy or worn linings — clogged or leaking hydraulic lines — insufficient or excessive pedal play — swollen rubber parts — loose anchor bolts — weak or binding shoe return springs — defective master or wheel cylinders.

G. H. asks: "If, as I suspect, water is leaking into my engine oil, does this mean there is a crack somewhere in the engine block?" Either that or the head gasket is damaged (if you're lucky).

From W. H.: "My '62 engine burns too much oil and the garage mechanic blames it on leaky piston rings. After just 13,000 miles, could the rings have worn so much?"

Piston ring leakage can also be due to gum and sludge deposits which cause sticking.

B. J. writes: "What would be the cause of unusual grease leakage around the rear wheels?"

Blown grease seals are commonly at fault and often caused by too much lubricant in the differential.

L. L. asks: "Despite numerous adjustments, tune-ups and replacement of spark plugs and points, my engine still stalls frequently. What could my service station be overlooking?"

Loose carburetor or intake manifold mountings can stall the engine by permitting excessive air to leak in and upset carburetion.

Would Protect Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A $10,000,000 program designed to beautify and preserve the American Falls, constantly threatened by rock falls that could turn the cataract into a rapids, is urged by the Niagara Falls Gazette.

The project probably lies within the concept of President Johnson's program for beautifying America, the Gazette says editorially.

Our Man in Italy Breaks Tradition

ROME (CP) — For the first time, Canada is being represented in Italy by an ambassador whose mother tongue is not French and who is not a Roman Catholic.

The ambassador is Gordon Gale Crean, 50, a lawyer born and educated in Toronto, who feels his appointment to Rome six months ago was no accident.

"I would rather believe that Ottawa wants to break an excessively rigid tradition of national representation in which our diplomacy was threatening to become hidebound," he said in an interview.

"This would explain, for example, the recent appointment of Lionel Chevrier as our first French-speaking Catholic high commissioner to London."

But just as Chevrier is perfectly bilingual, so Crean speaks impeccable French, a language he learned in Toronto when his parents entrusted him to a French-speaking tutor when he was eight.

Among his other qualifications for the post is his knowledge of Italy gained while serving with the British Army's intelligence corps during the Second World War.

This came about as a result of a quirk of fate that later led him into a diplomatic career.

STUDIED AT OXFORD

After earning his law degree at the University of Toronto, he went to Oxford University for postgraduate studies and found himself in London at the outbreak of war.

"Since there were no Canadian units in England in September, 1939, I offered my services to the British."

He enlisted as a private in 1940 and was commissioned in the intelligence corps a year later.

"They sent me everywhere— Norway, North Africa, Italy, Austria.

"I might say that in these years I served sort of an apprenticeship in diplomacy.

"On returning to Canada in 1945, I was accepted in the department of external affairs in Ottawa and in 1950 I was named first secretary at the Canadian embassy in Belgrade. I returned there in 1961 and stayed until 1963 as ambassador."

Mr. Crean said Canada is confident of developing stronger ties with Italy and its other partners in the Atlantic Alliance.

In the economic field, Canadian exports to Italy — raw materials, food and even industrial products — were on the increase.

There is plenty of cultural exchange as well, the ambassador said. Canada is participating in annual series of Italian expositions and festivals. Italy has announced it will be among the exhibitors at the 1967 Montreal world's fair.

Also, negotiations were in progress on joint Canadian-Italian film production. An agreement would allow Canadian and Italian producers to collaborate on feature-length films and documentaries.

CANADIAN AMBASSADOR TO ITALY — Gordon Gale Crean, 50, is the current Canadian ambassador to Italy. A Toronto-born lawyer who is a career diplomat, his appointment six months ago meant that for the first time Canada is being represented in Italy by an ambassador whose mother tongue is not French and who is not a Roman Catholic.

Donald Gordon Likely to Remain CNR President

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Don't look for Donald Gordon to step down this year as president of Canadian National Railways, despite his statement of 16 months ago indicating a possible retirement early in 1965.

Informed sources here say there is no question about Mr. Gordon holding onto the $75,000 - a - year post for as long as he wants it. And apparently he wants it, at least until some specific objectives have been achieved.

The big, straight - talking railway boss was reappointed by Prime Minister Pearson in October, 1963.

Sources close to the situation say that relations between Mr. Gordon and the government are excellent, so much so that there hasn't even been any discussion of a possible retirement.

MAY COME UP

The matter might come up at a meeting between Mr. Pearson and Mr. Gordon scheduled for late this week. But it's likely to be little more than a reassurance by the railway president that he will stay on the job until certain major projects have been completed.

Chief among these is the recapitalization of the CNR's financial structure to relieve it of a gigantic debt burden that has led to frustrating series of annual deficits.

Another project is the implementation of the new railway legislation, expected to pass Parliament in the next session. This would end the long freeze on railway rates, allow the railways to strip away a vast array of money - losing services and put them on their own financial feet, eventually free of federal subsidies.

Mr. Gordon, who was 63 last month, has just about completed his revamping of the CNR's management setup, a task that began when he took over the presidency in 1950.

Maritimes Potato Farmers Are in Money

HALIFAX (CP) — Potatoes are being shipped westward from the Maritimes as fast as they can be loaded on freight cars and farmers on this account are receiving the best prices in years.

Shippers say the reason is a shortage of potatoes caused by dry weather and frost in the West and mid-Western United States and parts of Ontario.

One New Brunswick shipper said his firm expected to double its shipments. Alberta's general manager of J. R. Punner shippers of Hartland, N.B., said farmers were receiving for a 165-pound barrel, three times more than a year ago and the best price since 1952.

Quality of the crop was reported high there and in the Maritimes. Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick reported a shortage of reefer cars for shipments.

Director Louis Burge of the Prince Edward Island Potato Marketing board, said the $3 per bag being paid farmers was "the highest in years."

Acreage planted and passing inspection Prince Edward Island this year was 28,833—down slightly due to temperature variations in the spring which killed some plants.

In Nova Scotia, where the potato industry is the smallest among the three provinces, acreage was down slightly from the 6,800 planted the previous year, an agriculture department spokesman said.

Endorse French As Language In Ontario

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposal to make French an official language in Ontario has been endorsed by the Canadian Union of Students, Ontario region.

The proposal, prepared by Queen's University students, was accepted without opposition at a weekend meeting, although delegates of Ottawa's Eastern Ontario Institute of Technology abstained.

The 50 delegates, representing students of 14 Ontario universities and institutes of technology, also resolved that training in French should be made available at all levels of education to those who want it. The resolutions would be submitted in a brief to all political parties in the province by March 15, it was decided.

The Fierce Pride of the Ukraine

By JOHN BEST

KIEV (CP)—For land long part of a powerful and far-flung empire, the Ukraine preserves a remarkable degree of national identity.

It guards its individuality jealously, even parades it.

It's as though the Ukrainian, having been taught by history that independence is not to be theirs, have learned to accept their political fate but make up for it with an iron determination not to surrender their cultural sovereignty.

They take a fierce pride simply in being Ukrainian. "The Ukrainian people" is a phrase you hear infinitely more often than "the Soviet people."

Somehow, in conversation with outsiders, they manage to convey the notion that among the peoples of the U.S.S.R. they are in a class by themselves as far as cultural heritage is concerned.

NOTICE IN KIEV

Such unintended snobbishness is particularly noticeable in Kiev, the capital, a majestic city of 1,300,000 bestriding the commercially important Dnieper River.

Its origins go back more than 1,000 years. In the 10th to 12th centuries Kiev was the capital of a vast country called Kievan Rus, which embraced present-day Ukraine, Byelorussia and much of Russia itself.

It was the earliest seat of Christianity in what now is the U.S.S.R., and has magnificent religious shrines to show for it, including the breathtaking St. Sophia Cathedral, begun in 1037, and the Kievo-Pechersk monastery, founded about the same time near caves in which over the years mummified bodies of Orthodox monks have been found.

Under the Communists, these religious edifices have been turned into museums.

Awareness of a proud past is probably the principal ingredient in Kievans' lofty regard for their city and their homeland.

The Ukraine, with 44,000,000 people second most populous of the 15 constituent republics of the Soviet Union, has been tied to Russia almost continuously since 1654 when the two peoples were reunited following a long period of separation.

The Brest-Litovsk treaty of 1918, under which Bolshevik Russia bowed out of the war against Germany, provided that the Ukraine should be independent; German troops occupied Kiev for a time but they were withdrawn following Germany's collapse in November of that year.

In the Russian civil war Kiev was occupied for a time by the anti-Bolsheviks and still later, in 1920, it was occupied by Polish forces during the Soviet-Polish war. From that time, however, except for the Second World War German occupation, Soviet control has been maintained.

Assimilation of the population is not nearly as far advanced as in the case of some smaller Soviet republics. Eighty per cent of the population is Ukrainian. By contrast, in the stamp-size Baltic republic of Latvia, upwards of 30 per cent of the population today is made up of Russians from the Russian federated republic.

Of 36,000 schools in the Ukraine 30,000 are Ukrainian—they teach the Ukrainian language from the first grade, and Russian only from the third grade.

The Ukraine is noted for its artistry in song and dance. Poised and sophisticated in such matters, the people take a bohum attitude to the dictates of Soviet cultural commissars.

During a trip through the Ukraine I stopped at three different intourist hotels, in Lvov, Kiev and Kharkov. In each, the favorite dance at supper dances —a popular form of entertainment in the U.S.S.R.—was the twist. It was performed often and with gay abandon.

In Moscow, I have heard of couples actually being stopped from doing the twist on hotel dance floors.

The name Khrushchev is not a naughty word in the Ukraine, as it has become elsewhere in the Soviet Union. I asked a young intourist guide here how Kiev people responded to the electrifying news last Oct. 16 that Premier Khrushchev, a Ukrainian by birth, had been removed as top man in the Soviet government.

"We are still waiting for explanations," she replied without hesitation. "We read in the press that he was getting old and weak. But many people doubt that these were the real reasons for his dismissal."

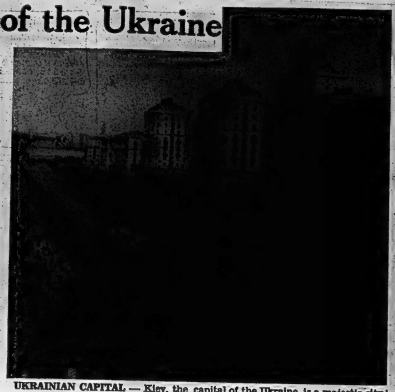
A few minutes later the same guide was telling about a monument to Gen. N. F. Vatutin standing in one of Kiev's numerous, tree-lined parks. She noted that he commanded the first Ukrainian front that liberated Kiev from the Nazis Nov. 6, 1943. And she added, pointedly, that Nikita Khrushchev was a member of the Ukrainian military council at the time.

The fact that the girl had not changed her recitation on Khrushchev nearly two months after his overthrow suggested that Ukrainians are not so anxious to hustle their famous son into oblivion.

HAVE LITTLE TRAFFIC

The cities of Ukraine are busy and rather prosperous-looking, though a motorist coming from the West is struck by the small number of motor vehicles—and the fact that most of them are state-owned trucks.

The countryside, by contrast, is not at all prosperous-looking. The passing motorist finds himself constantly bothered by a nagging question: How can such rich black-earth agricultural land yield so much primitiveness and backwardness among the people who farm it?



Though some villages are trim and well-groomed, the majority betray a living standard far below what ought to be possible.

One is forced to conclude that present-day Russia is still paying for the sins of Stalin who ruthlessly collectivized the Ukraine peasants; the long-remembering peasant pays back by being less progressive and less productive than he might.

One thing a Canadian finds on visiting here is almost automatic empathy between himself and Ukrainians. Such warm communication results from ties created by the thousands of Ukrainians who have emigrated to Canada. A growing trickle of these emigrants come back each year to visit their ancestral homeland.

My Kiev guide told me she receives the Ukrainian Canadian, published in Winnipeg, and also a Winnipeg-published Ukrainian ethnic newspaper, courtesy of some tourists who came here last summer.

"The Ukrainian they speak in Canada is a different language," she remarked, amusedly. "It's actually a mixture of two languages, with English roots and Ukrainian suffixes. "But we (guides) can read it because we know English."

UKRAINIAN CAPITAL — Kiev, the capital of the Ukraine, is a majestic city of 1,300,000 on the Dnieper River. Ukrainians feel that among the peoples of the U.S.S.R. they are in a class by themselves when it comes to cultural heritage. Much of this snobbishness is seen in Kiev. The city's origins go back more than 1,000 years to when it was the capital of a vast country which embraced present-day Ukraine, Byelorussia and much of Russia itself. This tree-lined avenue is Kreshchatik, Kiev's main street. (CP Photo)

NOW A MUSEUM — The earliest seat of Christianity in what now is the U.S.S.R. was Kiev, capital of the Ukraine. This is one of the religious shrines, the St. Sophia Cathedral, begun in 1037. Its breathtaking beauty makes it one of the major attractions of the Ukraine. The Communists have turned it into a museum. (CP Photo)

Street Fighting Breaks Out In Laotian Capital

Britain Rejects Soviet Bid for Parley on Laos

VIENTIANE (Reuters) — Fighting broke out among rival military groups in the streets in Vientiane today while the neutralist government of Premier Souvanna Phouma accused Deputy Premier Phoumi Nosavan of masterminding a military mutiny in an attempt to grab power in Laos.

(In London it was announced Britain has in effect rejected a Russian move to reconvene the 1962 Geneva conference on Laotian neutrality today).

Soldiers exchanged shots within yards of the United States Embassy.

The U.S. Embassy dispensary and marine house, located at the far end of town, were hit by mortars but there were no casualties.

Street fighting broke out shortly after artillery of Gen. Kouprasith Abhay, the Vientiane governor who is heading the forces of the high command, opened fire upon troops believed brought up by Gen. Khan Khong, rebellious commander of the second military district.

Fur minutes after a minute has been holding a section of the city around the government radio station and the sports stadium with 200 men.

Boulieut also had 300 troops holding part of the airport, two miles north of the city.

Both Gen. Khamn Khong and Col. Boulieut are known to be close allies of Phoumi.

Strife between Communist, neutralist and rightist factions has plagued the tiny but strategic Southeast Asia kingdom since it became independent in 1949.

The fighting came just two days after the country's latest of a coup by a group of young army officers headed by Syccsinh Nosavan. At that time, Souvanna Phouma had issued a statement calling the entire incident a misunderstanding.

POPULATION PANICS

The population, remembering how the Communists overran it December, 1961, battle began to evacuate the city in panic even before the fighting broke out. Moments after the sound of the first artillery fire rumbled through the city, civilians were seen on the streets.

In Bangkok, a Thai foreign ministry spokesman said fighting in Vientiane had been told to evacuate. He said the situation in the Laotian capital was confusing.

That officials said thousands of Laotian refugees were streaming across the Mekong River border into Thailand.

Pension Plan Is Criticized

TORONTO (CP)—The Canada Pension Plan will punish the poor and pay the rich, Ken Bryden (NDP — Toronto Woodbine) told the Ontario legislature Tuesday.

He said income tax write-offs will allow a man earning $15,000 or $20,000 a year to pay less in premium than a man with an annual salary of $5,000.

Both men pay $79.20 a year in premiums, but the percentage savings on deductible income are greater for the higher income bracket. He estimated a man earning $15,000 would pay a net premium of $47.52 while a $5,000-a-year man would pay $62.57 net.

"It is certainly not reasonable or proper that a public pension plan be used . . . to effect a transfer from the relatively poor to the rich."

Albert Walker (PC—Oshawa) said the Workmen's Compensation Act should provide full payment until an injured employee is able to return to his regular job.

EMPLOYERS UNWILLING

He said workers dismissed from hospitals as "fit for light work" often find employers unwilling to accept anything less than the job day's work the employee could do before he was disabled.

Arthur Reaume (L — Essex North) predicted rank-and-file New Democratic Party members will join Liberals in the next provincial election to rid Ontario of its "autocratic" Conservative government.

He attacked the Conservatives for making no mention of the throne speech of possible relaxation of Ontario's liquor laws. Beer and wine with meals should be allowed on Sundays, he said.

Reg Gisborn (NDP — Wentworth East) introduced a bill to increase the mandatory vacation — with pay — period to two weeks from one after a year's employment.

Transport Minister Irvin Haskett, answering a question from Stan Obodiac (L — Algoma - Manitoulin), said the government is considering a proposal that will enforce all vehicles to halt whenever a school bus stops to let off children.

Leo Trow (L — Nipissing) said he might read to the legislature excerpts from Fanny Hill, recently declared not obscene by the Ontario Court of Appeal, to "let the jury of the house" decide whether the 18th-century novel is good literature.

Labor Govt. Is Sustained

LONDON (Reuters)—The Labor government was determined today to forge ahead with its policies after easily winning a vote of confidence on the conduct of Britain's affairs during its first 100 days in power.

The government defeated an opposition motion of censure in the House of Commons by a vote of 306 to 289—a majority of 17.

The vie came after a rowdy debate in which the deputy speaker had to intervene time and again to call for order.

Labor's narrow edge of three votes in the House was boosted by five vacant seats in "safe" Conservative districts and by the abstention of the nine-man Liberal party.

The Conservatives tried to bring down the government with a censure motion that said Prime Minister Wilson's first 100 days in office were filled with "hasty and ill-considered" decisions.

DIGGED TO QUIT

There was an uproar on the Labor side of the House when opposition Chief Sir Alec Douglas-Home called on the government to quit, charging the Labor had broken "a litre of pledges."

Douglas-Home declared: "The honeymoon is over. If the government had a shred of political integrity they ought to resign."

But this was only the peak in pandemonium on the Conservative side when the last government speaker, Economics Minister George Brown, accused the Tories of doing their best to sabotage government efforts to restore the country's economy.

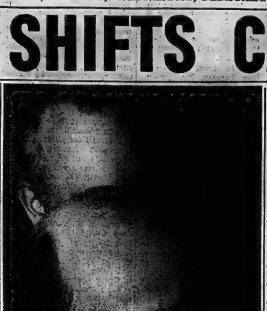
Brown's one minute Brown and Douglas - Home stood glaring at each other across the table during the sports stadium with 200 men.

Other interjects from Conservative legislators held up Brown's speech for about three minutes.

At one point the chairman told the squawking politicians "the House should be mindful of its reputation."

DEPLORE TORY RECORD

The government majority ade was 17 again when the House voted for a Labor motion deploring the previous regime's "irresponsibility" and pledging remedial measures to strengthen the economy.



The bitter debate was the first major attack by the Conservatives on the new administration. Labor gained power by a narrow majority in the October general election.

Wilson hit back at Douglas-Home and his charges of inaction in demanding an early general election when he had no intention or real hope of getting one.

Douglas - Home's supporters were the table and civilians were seen on the streets.

In Bangkok, a Thai foreign ministry spokesman said fighting in Vientiane had been told to evacuate. He said the situation in the Laotian capital was confusing.

That officials said thousands of Laotian refugees were streaming across the Mekong River border into Thailand.

CAMP TALKS TO REPORTERS — Dalton E. Camp, president of the Conservative party, talks to reporters in Ottawa Tuesday after a five-hour meeting with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. Troops Patrolling Bermuda After Strikers Fight Police

HAMILTON, Bermuda (Reuters)—Local forces and mounted police were on patrol today in this British island resort after a bloody clash with 200 strikers in which 17 policemen were injured.

Police finally used tear gas to disperse the strikers demanding recognition of their union.

A mass meeting of union members was called for late today.

Bars were closed after the violence in which the strikers attacked 40 policemen, most of them from Britain.

One officer, a Briton, suffered a fractured skull. Eight other policemen still were in the hospital.

Governor Lord Martonmere issued a statement saying steps were taken to preserve order and protect life and property.

Local forces patrolled the streets with walkie talkies.

The attack took place outside the headquarters of the Bermuda Electric Light Company where striking members of the Bermuda Industrial Union were picketing.

The union called a two - day token strike Monday of bus drivers, garbage collectors and construction workers to back their demand for recognition by the electric light company.

About 160 longshoremen in another union began a three-day sympathy strike Tuesday.

In the magistrate's court Tuesday night, six persons were surfeited charged with besetting the company's premises in excess of normal picketing, loitering, assaulting the police or resisting arrest. One man was charged with possessing marijuana.

All except the last were released on bail for a later hearing.

France Shopping in Canada For Huge Uranium Tonnage

OTTAWA (CP) — France is shopping in Canada for huge quantities of uranium for its nuclear power program and is staking claims in this country in the hope of developing its own Canadian - based uranium mines.

Informed government sources said the French Atomic Energy Commission would be its recipient of the bulk of 100,000,000 pounds of uranium oxide which Denison Mines Limited expects to sell to European customers in the next 25 years.

French plans an extensive nuclear power program over the next five years.

Stephen B. Roman, president of Denison, said in Toronto Friday the company is "well advanced" in negotiations for such a sale. The price would exceed $4.38 a pound, which would be more than $438,000,000 over the 25 years.

After a contract has been signed, Denison must apply to the Atomic Energy Control Board for a permit to ship the uranium. One duty of this board is to ensure the metal is used only for peaceful purposes. Denison has not yet applied for a permit.

It was also learned here that France has had talks with Rio Algom Mines Limited, another Canadian uranium producer. However, sources said these "have not been as fruitful as those between Denison and the French."

Mr. Gilchrist said the possibility of a sale of 100,000,000 pounds, or 50,000 tons, of uranium by Denison poses a "serious problem" for the federal government, the amount represents 25 per cent of proven low - cost Canadian uranium reserves.

He said this points up the need for Canadian mining companies to seek new sources of low-cost uranium.

He has said before that unless new reserves are found and developed within the next few years, there could be a definite world shortage of cheap uranium as a fuel for nuclear power plants by the early judge today to order the Dallas

Wilson Cancels US Visit

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson has decided to cancel his trip next month to Ottawa, Washington and New York, it was learned today.

An informant said the cancellation results from a number of developments including the continuing United Nations battle over financing UN operations.

Wilson had planned to address the UN General Assembly and also open a second round of talks with both President Johnson at Washington and Prime Minister Pearson at Ottawa.

However, Wilson's second visit to Washington was to review developments on Britain's proposed Atlantic nuclear force following Wilson's discussions at Nassau with President Kennedy. Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, Wilson's trip to Bonn was postponed because of Sir Winston Churchill's illness and death and a full British-German discussion on the nuclear issue is not yet taken place.

Therefore, there is some feeling in official quarters here that there may not be much point in a second Wilson visit to Washington at this time.

Picton Area Paralyzed By Storm

PICTON (Staff)—Once again "Little Spain" is feeling the brunt of winter. A man-sized blizzard has left Picton and most of the county paralyzed. Officials at Picton's new Winter Station recorded a 10-inch snowfall between 4.00 a.m. and 9.45 a.m. today, Wednesday.

At 11.30 a.m. it was still snowing heavily and snowfall passed the one-foot mark. Temperatures during the night and early morning were mild, making driving nearly impossible. Most of the sidestreets are still a mass of snow filling in again as soon as plowed.

Six of the 17 high school buses serving the county failed to arrive at Picton collegiate this morning, with others running behind schedule or from the Wellington area.

FOLLOW BOND'S WAY

CHINGFORD, England (CP) — Essex magistrate John Thurman ordered a man charged with dangerous driving to take a tip from the Ian Fleming character, James Bond. A police witness had reported the man was driving with his arm round a girl. Said Thurman: "Even James Bond stops his car before he does his courting."

Negroes Plan Court Action In Struggle for Right to Vote

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—Negroes planning "freedom, freedom," marches today to protest the arrest of 165 Negroes Tuesday, most of them teen-aged students who stayed out of school to join the growing protest. It brought to almost 1,300 the number taken into custody this week and raised the total to 1,600 since the campaign started 16 days ago.

Negro lawyers said meanwhile they would ask a federal

County board of registrars to open their doors for voting in session longer each day to give prospective Negro voters more time to apply for registration.

The lawyers said they also would petition U.S. District Judge Daniel Thomas in Mobile for an injunction to prohibit city police from arresting Negroes participating in rightto-vote marches.

Thomas already has issued a similar restraining order against Sheriff James Clark and his deputies.

State law requires the registrars to meet on the first and third Mondays in each month, but provides additional times if needed, with the approval of state authorities who pay the cost.

To meet the demands, the board in Selma kept its doors open for 12 days last month, and only in the last six days after the civil rights campaign began did any substantial number of Negroes apply.

The board is scheduled to meet only two days this month.

The demonstrations Tuesday, emphasizing once more the struggle for voting rights and at the same time protesting the arrest of King, brought the arrest of 111 adult Negroes and 394 teen-aged students.

Sheriff's deputies arrested the adults on contempt - of - court charges as they stood in line outside the courthouse. A demonstration once again their demands for longer registration periods even though the board was not in session.

The contempt charges grew out of the fact that a state judge was presiding over a session of his court on the second floor of the building and complained that the demonstration was disturbing the orderly process of his court.

MP's Will Gather One Day Before Executive Meets

President Dalton Camp And Chief Talk 5 Hours

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has summoned his parliamentary followers to a special meeting Friday—on the eve of a national party executive session which is expected to develop into a challenge to his leadership of the Progressive Conservative party.

The call to the meeting went out to members of Parliament shortly before a five-hour conference Tuesday between Mr. Diefenbaker and Dalton Camp, national party president, at which the executive meeting Saturday was discussed.

Conservative MPs had originally been called to meet on Feb. 11-12 to determine Opposition strategy for the parliamentary session resuming Feb. 16.

But after that caucus date was set, Mr. Camp selected next Saturday for a special meeting of the national executive to discuss the demands of Quebec MPs for a leadership convention.

The Feb. 11-12 caucus will be held as scheduled. But MPs were notified of an additional meeting this Friday, apparently as a bid by Mr. Diefenbaker to go to the national executive meeting armed with a vote of confidence from the parliamentary wing of the party.

Telephone calls and telegrams went out during the day to the 95 other Conservative MPs from the office of the party whip, Eric Fisher, member for Grey-Bruce.

The Diefenbaker-Camp conference produced no immediate solution to the leadership question and the quarrel with the party's Quebec members.

NO DISCUSSION

Mr. Camp told reporters following a five-hour session that there had been no discussion of any "reprochement" between Mr. Diefenbaker and Quebec leader Leon Balcer.

The party president has summoned the 137-member national executive to a meeting here Saturday after polling attitudes on the Quebec caucus' demand for a meeting to consider a leadership convention.

He said Mr. Balcer's call for a convention must be discussed but said "that neither implies acceptance nor rejection of Mr. Balcer's demand.

"We are meeting to discuss some of the problems in our party," he said. "I would rather have our problems than the Grits' problems. I think we will resolve them a lot faster than they are."

Mr. Camp took full responsibility for setting the executive

Free Trade Suggested In Report

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—An impressive roster of Canadian business, labor, agricultural and academic leaders have signed a non-government report suggesting a plan for a Canada-U.S. free trade area.

But they emphasized it is only a hypothetical suggestion, advanced for the purpose of sparking discussion.

And one of them—David Kirk, executive secretary of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture —says free trade "in the pure sense" cannot be achieved as it affects agriculture.

The plan was advanced in a draft report prepared by economists working for the Canadian - American committee, jointly sponsored by the U.S. National Planning Association and the Private Planning Association of Canada.

SEES TARIFF END

It envisages gradually reducing U.S. tariffs against Canada, starting in two years, and cutting Canadian tariffs against American imports progressively to zero in 10 years. Some special treatment by subsidy and exemption would be given agricultural and some other products but these too would eventually be eliminated.

The result would be a Canada-U.S. free trade area in which each country would have free access to the other's market, but retain independent control over its import duties on goods coming from overseas.

Canada would retain its economic wealth guarantees, and the U.S. would continue its special arrangement with Puerto Rico, the Philippines and the Virgin Islands.

U.S. industry would gain the advantage of roughly a 10 per cent increase in its duty-free market, with little internal adjustment. But the result would be much more marked on Canadian industry.

Canadian industry would have to adjust to meeting American competition in the vast U.S. market. This probably would have to be done by gearing up new plants to greatly increased production of a much narrower range of specialized products.

Among the Canadians signing

"Queen Will Make Her First Trip To Ethiopian Countryside Today"

ADDIS ABABA (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth will make her first trip to the Ethiopian countryside today when she visits cotton plantations at Tendaho, about 125 miles northeast of Addis Ababa.

The Queen will fly to Tendaho, where she will be joined by Emperor Haile Selassie travelling aboard a separate aircraft. The British monarch, who arrived in Addis Ababa Monday accompanied by Prince Philip is paying an eight-day state visit to Ethiopia, Africa's oldest Christian country.

She was due to return to Addis Ababa later to present the emperor with a chestnut stallion flown from Britain during the weekend.

The stallion, named Robespierre, counts the 1949 English Derby winner Nimbus among his ancestors.

Tonight the Queen will give a state banquet in the emperor's honor at the British Embassy.

At a British Embassy garden party, where she met some 2,000 guests Tuesday, a man in a beaded white cap tried unsuccessfully to get the Queen to accept a letter.

Once he waved it within two feet of her, but as both occasions British officials stopped him and said petitions should be sent through normal channels.

The man, identified as Gabre Selasie, said he is from British Guiana. His companions said he came to Ethiopia three months ago and was recently ordained a deacon in Addis Ababa.

Quinte High School Board Votes to Keep New School Auditorium at Original Size

H. S. Students Have Holiday On Friday

Students in the public secondary schools of the Bay of Quinte district will enjoy a holiday on Friday of this week while their teachers attend a conference to discuss teaching techniques and curriculum improvement. District 23 of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation will hold its annual Professional Development Day program at Trenton High School on Friday. With all teachers attending this conference there will be no classes at Belleville Collegiate, Moira Secondary School, and Quinte Secondary School on that date.

Water Shortage Problem Eased By Early Rains

Late fall and early winter rains to some extent served to relieve the water shortage problem which last fall forced many farmers in the Bay of Quinte district to haul water for stock requirements.

At least water is being hauled from the city pump house at Belleville.

"Not too many farmers have been hauling water during the past month," stated a pump house official today. "Appeared by the rains around Christmas time served to fill the country wells."

Other farmers were stated to have either dug or drilled wells and were successful in getting water.

Currently about 15 conveyances of all descriptions are hauling water from the local pump house. This included trucks with 1,000 gallon tanks and farmers' own rigs capable of hauling only two or three hundred gallons.

Mr. Stinson was the first president of the Lindsay Kiwanis Club which was founded forty-three years ago. He served as president two years. He was his drive that sparked the erection of the Kiwanis Arena.

TORONTO (CP) — A French - Canadian sword in the Royal Ontario Museum and Leo Troy, Liberal member for Nipissing, thinks it should be returned to Quebec.

Kiwanians Given Inside Look at Aircraft Plant

Kiwanians yesterday were given an inside look at the De-Havilland Aircraft works in Downsview at the club's regular weekly meeting.

Members were taken back to 1928 to the site of the first De-Havilland Aircraft building by DeHavilland's Manager of the Customer Relations Department, E. Phiffer.

Mr. Phiffer explained that the first DeHavilland of Canada plant was built on the site of now Highway 401, just south of Eglinton Street, where the aircraft were bonded and the ads in parts and assembled at the Canadian plant.

Business expanded and the premises became too small. The company was then moved to the Downsview site in 1929. The speaker explained that during the war the company employed over 7,000 people.

The speaker stated that the plant now occupies 2,885,000 square feet with a work force of over 7,000 with about 772 engineers and technicians.

When the company first began it had employed about people, by 1947, 5770 people, by 1952, 3,700 people and 1964, 7,200 people.

Mr. Phiffer showed slides of the various aircraft made at the Toronto plant including the Otter, Buffalo, Caribou, Chipmunk and the Beaver.

The speaker explained that the Beaver was the most common of all aircraft and has been used for many purposes around the world.

Mr. Phiffer stated that in 1963 Canadian aviation exported 401 million dollars worth of goods and about 70 million dollars outside the country in 1964.

Top Aide To Eichmann Given 5 Years

FRANKFURT (AP)—A West German war-crimes court today sentenced Adolf Eichmann's top aide, Hermann Krumey, to five years at hard labor for complicity in the murder of at least 300,000 Hungarian Jews.

His co-defendant, Otto Hunsche, was found not guilty of the same charges.

After an often stormy trial that lasted more than nine months, Krumey was found guilty of participating in the 1944 deportation of 437,000 Hungarian Jews to the Auschwitz concentration camp where the majority of them were gassed. He was acquitted of a supplementary charge of extortion.

Krumey, 60, former S S (Nazi elite corps) lieutenant - colonel and Eichmann's deputy, once offered to trade the Western allies 1,000,000 Hungarian Jews in return for 10,000 trucks. His offer was rejected.

RE - ELECTED PRESIDENT of United Appeal last night was Gerald Cunningham (left) seen here with secretary A. S. Lewis and executive manager A. L. Gnaedinger (rear).

United Appeal Report Shows Interesting Figures

Wealthy citizens disappointed the Belleville United Appeal in 1964.

Either there are fewer of them around or they have less to donate to community endeavors.

At least such is in the indication in the Appeal's annual report presented last night.

Such a campaign usually makes a special appeal to the rich of a community and their donations are buried under a prosaic title.

In this case it was "Special Names," a category quietly mentioned toward the end of the report.

Weeded out from the other financial sections, it showed:

The United Appeal in Belleville had hoped to raise $10,000 in this category. It settled exactly "$4,155. This compared with $4,848 in 1962 and $4,422 in 1963.

Contraction is seen in the statistic which revealed 72 such persons contributed in 1963 and only 40 in 1964.

Reference, however, was made to this in one of the parts of campaign chairman T. R. Fell's report.

"It was felt," he said, "that ideally, a broad community-based Appeal should be able to count on that small group of individuals who, by virtue of their long-established private business relationships, enjoy a favorable position of wealth in the community.

"It is well known that in other communities, similar groups of individuals have ensured the success of financial programs," Mr. Fell added pointedly.

MUST REACH WAGE EARNERS

"It may well be that we were over-zealous in assigning a target in this sector of $10,000, since only $4,155 was obtained."

However, while the 1964 fund raising crash program crashed its flames as far as the wealthy were concerned, it paid off among industrial workers and organized labor.

Mr. Fell's report also included the following interesting statistics:

Among CNR donors, where only $280 was raised in 1963, some $4,800 was pledged in 1964.

This spectacular breakthrough was almost matched by Wilson Concrete Products, who pledged $2,500, compared to $632 a year earlier.

Stewart Warner was up from $11 to $1,458.

"The figures," said Mr. Fell's report, "were indicative of the high degree of co-operation and support within each of the organizations."

Some 14 of the city's largest employers were specifically concentrated on by the Appeal The result was an increase of 54 per cent over 1963 for a total of nearly $27,000.

However, outside this major bracket as estimated 5,000-6,000 people are employed in other commercial ventures. Only 808 of them subscribed this year.

"If appeals are to be successful in the future," said Mr. Fell's report, "some method must be found to reach this large body of wage earners to increase their participation."

Debtors' Wives Said Badgered

TORONTO (CP)—Wing Commander H. B. Shannon, head of the Royal Canadian Air Force Benevolent Fund, Tuesday proposed legislation to protect debtors' wives from "intimidation practices used by some firms to collect husbands' debts.—

Women, he said, are not parties to their husbands' agreements, are often threatened with wage garnishees or other measures unless they pay the debts, Wing Cmdr. Shannon said.

He was one of four panellists discussing the problems of credit buying at a Toronto District Social Planning Council meeting.

Wing Cmdr. Shannon said he knew of one woman driven to illness by badgering from a company although she signed no credit agreement.

Social Agencies Dependent On United Appeal Funds Criticized for Disinterest

Belleville social agencies reliant on community donations, last night were criticized for ignoring the hand that feeds them.

Under fire were a number of the beneficiaries of the Belleville United Appeal which last year raised an unprecedented $85,000 for participating organizations.

The criticism came at the Appeal's annual meeting at city hall, from one of its veteran officers— secretary A. S. Lewis.

Such agencies repeatedly fail to give the Appeal credit as the source of their funds, he said. But their lack of interest was openly displayed by failure of agency officials to even attend organizational meetings of the fund-raising organization.

His point was unexpectedly emphasized when a roll call last night showed only six of 12 participating agencies present for the Appeal's major meeting of the year.

"A very revealing roll-call," dryly commented Gerald P. Cunningham, who spear-headed the 1964 fund campaign which pushed the Appeal from forgotten oblivion to a higher success plateau.

NOT SUFFICIENT SUPPORT

That success, noted Mr. Lewis in his critique of participant support, could not "in any large measure be attributed to the agencies themselves."

". . .The participating agencies as a whole have not given sufficient support to the Belleville United Appeal."

Publicity from such sources was insufficient and infrequent and in most cases "does not mention the fact that the money received for the services rendered is obtained from the Belleville United Appeal."

"This fact removes much continuity from the Appeal's community identification between campaigns," he said.

Attendance at organization meetings by agency representatives "left a lot to be desired," he added.

This despite the fact several of the truant agencies received large allocations from the general fund.

Of nine meetings held during the past year only the Children's Aid Society and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind had perfect attendance records.

Mr. Lewis then read off an attendance record of other organizations.

ATTENDANCE ROLL

The list was as follows— with percentages of allocations from the 1964 Appeal budget included: Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Association, (82.500) 6 meetings; Boy Scouts ($1,900); Catholic Women's League (2,200), St. John's Ambulance ($3,054), Multiple Sclerosis Society ($150), five meetings; Victorian Order of Nurses ($6,077), Navy League ($2,100), YMCA, ($14,995, three meetings; Red Cross ($11,900), two meetings.

"Belleville Minor Sports Association," added Mr. Lewis, "didn't even think it worthwhile to send a representative at least once during the whole year."

(The Appeal allocated $1,580 to the Association from its 1964 campaign).

Surveying the attendance statistics Mr. Lewis concluded that apparently organizations receiving the least amount of money had the best record.

Missing from the final roll call were the Minor Sports Association, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, the Children's Aid Society, the Navy League, the VON and Multiple Sclerosis Society.

OFFICERS NAMED

This also was the first year that the fund-raising program had been headed by a representative of Labor — a fact noted by Mr. Cunningham, president of the Belleville and District Labor Council.

However, as seemed to be the case in every report presented to the meeting, a slice of realistic criticism was added the kudos due a successful campaign.

Mr. Cunningham told the meeting while the Appeal raised more than ever, it did not meet its objective $108,000.

"We did not convince enough people to give more, and indeed did not convince some people to give at all," he reminded the organizers.

"It is still evident that a small percentage of our population is carrying the load, despite the obvious improvement this past year."

He was again elected president for the new Campaign dent. Other members of the executive include: T. R. Fell, vice president and J. D. O'Flynn, campaign chairman.

The Chairman, Directors and Contributors,
The Belleville United Appeal,
BELLEVILLE, Ontario.

217 Pinnacle Street,
BELLEVILLE, Ont.
January 25, 1965.

Gentlemen:

We have made an examination of the books of account and supporting records of (1) the 1963 Campaign for 1964 operations for the period May 1, 1963, to December 31, 1964, and (2) the 1964 Campaign for 1965 operations for the period April 1, 1964 to December 31, 1964, of the Belleville United Appeal. My examination included a general review of the accounting procedures and such tests of accounting records and other supporting evidence as I considered necessary in the circumstances.

During 1964, the Directors amended the method of allocating funds collected from the campaign so that donations designated for the specific agencies can be distributed directly to them and in addition these agencies would receive their share of the unallocated funds. It was also provided that no agency should receive a total sum in excess of its budgeted request less a proportionate share of the expenses incurred by the United Appeal Organization. Accordingly in Exhibit "B" relating to the 1964 Campaign, you will notice two columns opposite the various participating agencies, one headed Requested, which represents the total sum requested by the Agency from the United Appeal. The next column is headed Allocated and this represents the amount which it is estimated will be allocated to the respective agencies, in accordance with the allocation formula decided upon by the Directors of the United Appeal Organization, and based upon the information presently available. The estimated allocation will be adjusted when the 1965 year has been completed and the campaign expenses and collections finally determined.

In my opinion the foregoing Balance Sheet and related Statements of Revenue and Expenditure present fairly the financial position of the Belleville United Appeal for the above mentioned periods in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

I shall be glad to furnish you with such further information as you may require, relative to my examination or this report.

Yours very truly,
JOHN D. LEWARS, C.A.

Urges Recreational Area

Those people who, in November, spend their time dreaming of a white Christmas are, we suspect, now busily engaged in letting their minds dwell on the wonders of summer time, with sparkling waters laced with white-caps, cooling breezes caressing golden sands and a big lantern of a moon hung in a starlit sky.

It makes pleasant dreaming, if you have not the time and the cash to flee the succession of invasions by Arctic air masses, pushing snow before them and trailing more snow after them.

Now, however, Dr. Neil McArthur, Professor of Geography at the Royal Military College, Kingston, has put some purpose into this favorite winter-time occupation of yearning for summer's wonders. He has outlined a plan to make the north shore of the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario, from Cornwall to Presqu'ile, into a recreational region.

Many of the required facilities for holiday enjoyment are, of course, already in existence. What is needed to utilize these resources to the fullest extent, argues Dr. McArthur is, "a careful inventory and a thorough plan—prepared for the comprehensive whole—identifying and developing the various segments within so that the total of their contribution will eventually make for an optimal use of the entire region."

Dr. McArthur first outlined the potential of this area in a book published by McGraw-Hill in 1964, under the title 'Focus on Geographic Activity." The book was edited by Richard S. Thoman of Queen's University and Donald J. Patton of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

One of the developments which Dr. McArthur suggests is for the City of Kingston to promote its historic theme. "This is already done to some extent, but it is far short of the potential which this city, a place quite unique in Ontario, affords," he writes in the Kingston Whig-Standard, to whose publisher, Arthur L. Davies, we are indebted for clippings outlining Dr. McArthur's proposals.

"Probably many persons, particularly family tourist groups, arrange to visit both Fort Henry and Upper Canada Village on a single vacation sortie," Dr. McArthur asserts. "How much more their visits, and the region's tourist economy, could be expanded if they could continue westward along the historic Bath Road to Adolphustown, perhaps eventually cross by a bridge to Prince Edward County, and follow well defined tourist routes to Outlet or the Sand Banks, or on to Presqu'ile Provincial Park. Such an inland trellow such a path already, but its identity as a tourist route is lacking, and the amenities which a varied clientele require are only intermittently spaced along much of the way. Perhaps it is not too far-fetched to think of a well-defined recreational route along the entire margin of the lower lakes, and ultimately one that skirts the upper lakes as well."

The Kingston Whig-Standard's report of Prof. McArthur's proposal has kind words to say of the attractions in this region, the western section of the proposed recreational area. It refers to "the Bay of Quinte, one of the finest cruising and scenic areas to be found anywhere" and to "the great sand beaches and garden scenery of Prince Edward County."

The recreational area proposed by Prof. McArthur, while it would have its attractions for visitors from south of the border, ought to be of even greater interest to Ontario residents, for the history enshrined in its sites is that of their own nation. A playground like this will soon be urgently needed to provide relaxation for the people in our two fastest-growing cities, Toronto and Montreal. There can be little doubt that the area will be further developed, willy-nilly. It will probably cost no more, and will provide much greater benefits, if this development follows an overall plan, such as Prof. McArthur proposes.

Bragging or Complaining?

Erik Nellsen, the Progressive Conservative member for Yukon whose astute questions sparked the Dorion inquiry into the Lucien Rivard case, says that "no government has fallen so low and so fast as the present administration."

It is not plain whether Mr. Nellsen is bragging or complaining.

And there will be those who will wonder whether the government really fell or whether it was shoved.

There are 200 million poor in the world who would gladly take the vow of poverty if they could eat, dress and have a home like myself and many of those who profess the vow of poverty.—Bishop Fulton Sheen.

Toys Perpetuate Steam Era

New York Times

Wide-eyed and garrulous, the three boys watched through the department store window the train of freight and passenger cars hurtling down the track, chugging up hills, whistling round the bend, emerging from the papier-mache tunnels, crossing the plaster lake and halting before the toytown railroad station, where grade-crossing bells clanged and red lights blinked. The piston arms on the eight-wheel engines began to churn and the train was under way again, rolling smoothly around the figure-eight track in trip after exciting trip.

For the three boys and men whose memory of happy days will always be associated with the electric train, progress has taken its toll again; the iron horse has been stilled, replaced by the unromantic efficiency of the diesel locomotive.

• • •

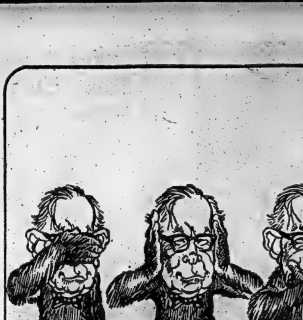
The sad news of the last run came one day shortly—or just a year ago on the Brooklyn bank of the East River. It told how No. 1977, a 44-year career in the yard of a terminal where it used to move freight cars from docks brought over from Manhatten terminals, shunting them onto tracks that carried them to the factories and plants on Long Island.

Begrimed, and clouded in her own puffs of smoke the last of her banked-down boiler fires, the old, black, 28-foot six-wheeler looked tired—especially alongside the bright blue 44-foot diesel electric locomotive that had taken its place.

Economics dictated the demise of old No. 1977. nobody makes replacement parts for steam locomotives any more, and it often costs diesels cost less to operate. It was the same decision that influenced the major railroads to abandon the old iron horse beginning in 1958, when the diesel first edged its way onto the nation's railroad tracks. In the intervening twenties there were about 65,000 steam locomotives, some with as many as twelve wheels, and many of them making. If not beating, the diesel's speed.

As long ago as 1905, the 999 ran at a top trial speed of 112.5 miles an hour up near Buffalo. A diesel's maximum today is about 110 miles an hour.

• • •



The first American - built steam locomotive to run on a regular schedule moved over the Baltimore and Ohio tracks in 1830, and railroad historians point to the Mohawk and Hudson as the first operator of a regular passenger service, beginning on July 7, 1832, between Albany and Schenectady.

The last steam engine operated by the New York Central was No. 1977. She finished her run in May 1957, and since then her counterparts have been nostalgic conversation pieces. Scores of few steam locomotives working in Vermont marble quarries and on narrow-gauge tracks in outdoor museums and along spurs in some Northern states, the iron horse is dead in the eastern half of the country.

Gone now is the thrill of watching a train steaming along a stretch of country track, sending up clouds of white and sounding a friendly whooo, whooo. Many men and perhaps a few boys have been wave of the engineer and his begrimed stoker, smiling easily and looking so friendly-important in there in the cab in their high-crowned denim caps and coveralls.pulling the whistlecord to say hello or to warn of their glad's approach to a crossing.

For many of the men who took at miniature replicas in, store windowsin the illusion will live on a boys and men lay tracks and trains on living room floors or on boards in attics and basements.

Out on the real runs the plaintive moan of the diesel horse has been stilled, and progress roars down the track behind the intruisive, impersonal diesel.

The previous year there were 40 calls answered and the loss from fire was $41,728.

Municipal Unit

Ottawa Citizen

It is squarely up to the province to see that counties, cities, towns and villages are organized in such a way that the best possible use is made out of the revenue collected from property owners. Action has already been taken to reduce the number of rural school boards throughout Ontario as a means of bringing about more efficient administration of school affairs. The Ontario government would be warranted in taking the next logical step, that of reducing the number of county and municipal units.

Liverpool Checks Crime

Ottawa Journal

Liverpool, England, is a tough, unbibited seaport city where the criminal element has rejoiced in the knowledge that the police force of 2,128 is 543 below establishment.

In the past month, with no increase in police, there has been a drastic reduction in crime. Robberies and other crimes dropped from 225 in a week to 124. Thefts from cars, a common form of crime in a large city, dropped from 95 to 27.

These good results have followed an experiment conducted by Assistant Chief Constable Robert Palmer, acting Chief Constable. He decided plainclothes' men could be better employed walking around the streets suppressing street belting. He formed "commando squads" charged with the duty of suppressing all forms of minor crime and policemen-watching was an important factor in these squads.

The "commandos" walk about the city streets as middle-class couples out shopping. The man always carries the shopping bag and policemen and officers hustle about in bowlers and business suits and, late at night, policemen and police women pose as courting couples.

Closed television circuits permit the police to watch points where crime is probable, and intra red illumination may soon allow the public eye to scan the darkest corners of the city. The traditional beat system has been abolished and highly-mobile patrols of officers, all carrying transistor radios, move about the city on unpredictable routes.

Mr. Palmer reports that many "little fish" are caught by these methods and these with the criminal records lead to the big men in the gangs.

The extraordinary fact is that Mr. Palmer is out of the running for permanent appointment as chief constable. The British Home Office regulations provide that no new chief constable may be appointed who has not served in another force with a rank above inspector for at least two years. Mr. Palmer has not had outside experience but Liverpool authorities think he knows so much about his city that he should be made chief constable anyway. The crime statistics argue for him eloquently.

Coffee Will Not Damage Kidneys—Stop Worrying

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can the daily drinking of too much coffee create a kidney ailment? — Mrs. A. R.

I thought I answered this question a little while ago, but maybe I didn't make it clear. (And this won't be the first time that somebody has gone back to the doctor and said: "I thought I understood what you said, but now I'm not sure.")

Anyway, coffee will not damage the kidneys. Coffee may, in some amounts and for some people, have other unwanted effects, but it won't harm kidneys.

Coffee will, however, act as a diuretic, meaning that it speeds up the removal of fluid from the body; the kidneys act oftener.

Naturalist, the caffien, which is a stimulant, can cause sleeplessness, or rapid beart beat, or a sensation of nervousness inside if you get more of it than conforms to your physical or nervous system. There are perfectly good reasons for not consuming more caffien than you can handle.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Send me "Ten Ways to Stop Bed Wetting." I enclose the required 25 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope. And please comment on the enclosed advertisement for a device to stop bed-wetting. — J. T. B.

As you will read in my booklet, some of the patent devices work very well — but I know of no guarantee that they will be successful in any specific case. My recommendation is first to try the suggestions in the booklet, with special emphasis on making certain that no physical defect or infection is causing the problem.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I take medicine for high blood pressure. But I have so much dizziness, and I have had a couple of falls. I am 70. What can I do about this dizziness? — Mrs. G. C.

Some of the medications for reducing blood pressure can cause dizziness, especially if the pressure is reduced too much.

Many older people actually need a pressure higher than "normal" to meet their physiological needs, and to be comfortable. Hence a regulation of your daily dosage may correct the annoyance of these dizzy spells. There may also be other causes for your dizziness. You should mention this symptom to your doctor.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: For the last few weeks I have been awakened around three o'clock in the morning with a bad case of indigestion and heartburn.

I try to avoid rich foods and sweets. I eat dinner before six o'clock and go to bed at a reasonable time. I have a small hernia but it has never bothered me.

What foods could I eat and what time should I eat dinner to avoid this? — Mrs. J. C. W.

This discomfort in the wee hours of the morning could be several things, among them a peptic ulcer acting up (when the stomach is empty or nearly so), or a hiatal hernia, which can give almost identical symptoms, but may occur more often when you are lying down.

Before trying anything further in the way of diet, you should have X-rays of the stomach and gall bladder to find out just what is causing your distress.

Letter to the Editor

Expresses Thanks For Mail Publicity

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Another Christmas season has passed and, from a postal standpoint, we feel it was a success. The conditions handling of the record volumes of mail, well within the periods prescribed, bore this out.

One factor which I feel contributed greatly to this success and deserves special recognition was the excellent co-operation and coverage extended by a number of news media during the peak mailing period. Granted, mail volumes of such magnitude may be a newsworthy item in themselves; but for organizations, such as yours, to provide a coverage beyond what normally would be expected, is certainly commendable and appreciated. By spreading the word of early mailing and by encouraging correct addressing and bundling of mail, you have rendered a service of inestimable value to our postal operation.

Conceivably, the public may not fully understand or appreciate the value to them of your public service announcements, but I can assure you that we in the Department are fully aware of the benefits derived and this means of conveying our appreciation and thanks.

W. H. Wilson,
Deputy Postmaster General, Ottawa.

Dogs Often Act Like Their Masters

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It's been quite a while since I've commented on dogs and people. In the meantime, I've received a number of letters, confirming and extending some of my earlier observations on the subject.

People buy the kinds of dogs they feel are needed to complement their own personalities. What is not as well known, perhaps, is that dogs gradually begin to act like their masters, or mistresses.

I was amused to note, not long ago, that the British Veterinary Association membership meeting in Bristol, was advised to give dog owners a cup of tea or an aspirin tablet, so they would not "pass on their own anxiety to the animals."

Sometimes people make their dogs nervous; fearful people make their dogs fearful; truculent people make their dogs truculent. The animal picks up the prevailing characteristic of its owner, and reflects back its attitude toward people and toward other dogs.

Some women, for instance, walking little Pekes or Pomeranians, will hastily pick them up and hug them protectively when their breasts when my largish Dalmatian comes bounding up for a friendly sniff. Their professed reason is fear that my dog will bite their pet.

Actually, in most cases, it is the small, over-protected dogs that are the most vicious and belligerent: they yap and snap and snarl, while my good-natured puppy simply keeps on wagging his tail, and wondering what the fuss is all about.

A dog that is not allowed to play with other dogs becomes lonely and anti-social, just like a child who is not permitted to roller-skate with the other kids on the block. And the owner's fear of injury soon becomes transmitted to the dog, with a disastrous loss of self - confidence.

Between persons, the wrong (and dangerous) kind of love is often cunningly concealed; but it can be seen much more openly between a person and his dog. The illicit gratification obtained from a creature one can dominate and pamper at the same time shows at its ugliest in the mistress-and-tiny-dog relationship.

A dog that snarls or snaps at other dogs, without provocation, is already a ruined creature, of little use to himself of anyone else. The dog that acts as a mangy people continue to keep such dogs, and indulge them, indicates that the animal is acting out for them some psychological need that is not fully expressed in human contacts. A cup of tea or an aspirin won't help the kind of neurosis such owners transmit to the pathetic victims they erroneously call "pets."

Accused Son Afraid of Dark Says Mother

COBOURG (CP)—The mother of a 16-year-old boy being tried for capital murder told the court Tuesday that her son had strange ideas about death and was frightened of the dark.

John Freeman is charged with the Oct. 24 shooting of Mildred Crocker, 56, a ward of the Ontario mental hospital school here and housemaid at the Freeman home.

Mrs. Alexander Freeman said her son was fear of the dark would not allow him to go upstairs alone and that, as a small boy, the youth kept toy guns beside his bed to protect himself from vampires.

Mrs. Freeman said she returned to the house about 5 p.m. on the day of the shooting, after being away about 10 hours, and saw Miss Crocker lying on her bed with a throw rug over her.

Miss Crocker, who hospital officials said had a mental age of about eight or nine years, was shot three times in the head.

Alexander Freeman, the youth's father, said he and his wife decided to change to send his son to a psychiatrist but the only psychiatrist in Cobourg, about 40 miles east of Oshawa, moved out of town the day they made the decision.

The trial continues.

Immigration Higher in 1964

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada received 112,606 immigrants last year, biggest annual total since 124,851 arrived in 1958, the immigration department announced Tuesday.

The figure was up 19,455 from 1963 but still well down from the post-war peak of 282,164 set in 1957.

Immigration Minister Tremblay said that 59 per cent of immigrants who entered the labor force were in the more skilled categories.

Newcomers from Britain made up the largest group again in 1964 at 29,276, compared with 24,603 the previous year.

Second-best immigrant source was Italy, at 19,297 and third the United States, 12,565. In 1963 Italy provided 14,427 immigrants to Canada and the U.S. 11,736.

See No Chance Of Indonesia A-Bomb Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say they see no possibility of Indonesia producing an atomic bomb in the near future.

But there is little doubt that with the proper kind of help Indonesia eventually will be able to detonate a rudimentary atomic device.

The director of Indonesia's army atomic energy agency, Soetono, said in Jakarta Tuesday that about 200 scientists are working to make the Asian country's first atom bomb. He promised a "surprise" at the Armed Forces Day celebration in October.

At the state department, officials said they had no information to indicate Indonesia has the capacity to make an atom bomb or is engaged in serious atomic weapons research.

Other government sources said there is no evidence Indonesia is at a point where she can fabricate an atomic device for testing soon.

Indonesia has an atomic reactor built with U.S. help. Another reactor is being built with Soviet aid.

Case Enlarged For One Week

TRENTON — Because one of two men charged with conspiracy to defraud didn't show up in Trenton court yesterday, the case was enlarged until next week as Crown Attorney John A. Pringle said it was "rather difficult to proceed with a conspiracy charge with only one alleged conspirator present."

Dale Robert Spencer, charged with the offence in connection with car insurance, was in court. Sandy Lorne McCurdy, also charged, phoned in from Whitby to say his car had broken down.

Parking Lot Is 'Highway' Under HTA

TRENTON — Can the municipal parking lot be considered a "highway," under the terms of the Highway Act?

Yes it can, decided Magistrate T.Y. Wills and Crown Attorney John A. Pringle in Trenton court yesterday.

The parking lot was in the same category as the government dock, ruled the magistrate.

The question arose out of a charge against John M. Bourdage of having his car in the lot with its licence plates not plainly visible.

Bourdage pleaded not guilty to the charge and the case was enlarged until Feb. 9.

In court yesterday the parental question of defendants not reading the red- lettered notice at the top of their summons, arose. The special notice tells the recipient of the summons to notify the court of his intention to enter a plea of not guilty prior to court day. . . or be prepared to pay witness costs for Crown witnesses.

Blitz Chairman Well Satisfied With Donations

TRENTON — In the face of Monday night's smarting snow storm, 300 marching mothers in Trenton, Glen Miller, Carrying Place, RCAF South Station and Middleton Park trudged out and collected upwards of $2,500 for the March of Dimes.

Blitz chairman, E. M. Parker Jr. and Chief Marching Mother, Doris Webb were jubilant, Tarred by a car holding over $500. more than that accounted for and money still coming in they feel the marching mothers did an outstanding job.

HIT BY CAR

Ten-year-old Mark Dallaire of 14 Richards Street escaped injury yesterday when he was struck by a car backing out of a driveway on Byron Street around 12.45 p.m.

Driver of the backing car, Harold Frederick Burke of 105 Byron Street, told police he failed to see the youngster and young Mark said he didn't see the car.

Accused Fined $100 for Hitting Perfect Stranger

TRENTON — Magistrate T. Y. Wills fined a local man, George Philip Dawe, $100 in Trenton court yesterday, in hopes, the magistrate said, of "adding his memory."

Solicitor James Henry Clarke of Cobourg, appearing for Dawe said his client had a "very hazy memory" concerning an incident on the night of Dec. 31, when he struck a perfect stranger, Gordon Shaw, in the Hillton Restaurant parking lot. Shaw yesterday told the court he stepped from his car to be greeted by Dawe with "Hello Mac", and that was the last he remembered. Shaw said, until he "came to."

Shaw suffered a broken tooth and a $30 pair of slacks was ruined.

Dawe was ordered to pay witness costs of $35 plus $3 court costs and $10 for the slacks.

Crown Attorney John A. Pringle termed the affair, "the height of stupidity," and said that this "hit and run of a person" should be discouraged.

The magistrate, the crown attorney and several officers of the court evinced great interest in the name of Shaw's dentist, following the court session. Shaw told the court his dentist had ground down his broken tooth "for nothing."

Blast Kills 21 Miners

LENS, France (AP)—A violent pre-dawn explosion ripped through a huge coal mine near this city Tuesday, killing 21 men.

The victims were part of a small off - hours maintenance and security crew. A few hours later about 1,300 miners would have been at work in the mine.

The explosion brought down timbers and caused slides at the 2,300-foot level.

The cause of the blast of fire-fighting was a mystery. Officials said equipment in the mine detected the presence of the gas but not in proportions considered dangerous.

meeting date for this Saturday—five days before the party's parliamentary caucus is to meet.

He said a small majority of the executive agreed to Mr. Balcer's demand for a meeting before Parliament resumes Feb. 16, while a great majority wanted the leadership question discussed at an unspecified date.

Mr. Balcer has told Mr. Camp in a letter that the Quebec caucus feels "the Conservative party can no longer carry on as a great national party under its present leadership and the policies which that leadership have engendered."

The opposition leader's attitude towards Quebec has tended to isolate Quebec members from the main body of the party, Mr. Balcer said.

After the Quebec group issued their request for an executive meeting, several English-speaking members said the party must reach an accommodation with Quebec.

It is understood that Mr. Camp briefed the opposition leader on this issue and informed him of the strength of feeling within the party.

Mr. Diefenbaker had no comment on his meeting with Mr. Camp.

Before and after the session with the president, he called in Conservative MP's for discussions. Working in shirt sleeves, he was on the telephone or in consultation most of the day.

He and Mr. Camp talked throughout the luncheon hour. Soft - boiled eggs and cheese sandwiches were delivered to the opposition leader's office.

It was in the caucus, where he enjoys majority support, that the opposition leader planned to counter the threat of his leadership, sources said.

Free Trade

the report's covering statement were Robert M. Fowler, Canadian co-chairman of the committee, CNE President Donald Gordon, and CLC President Claude Jodoin.

"It is both certain and desirable that some degree of intervention by government in the free market through agricultural price and marketing policies shall exist," Mr. Kirk said.

"Free trade in the pure sense cannot be achieved agriculturally.

"The moral is that the closest possible approximation to agricultural free trade objectives may be best achieved by recognizing that some special rules, principles and agreements will have to be worked out on a commodity basis as required. This is not merely a transitional problem."

George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers of America, was the only Canadian among four members of the 65-member committee who did not sign the covering statement.

But the American co-chairman of the committee — Harold W. Sweatt, honorary chairman of the board of Honeywell, Incorporated — said in a covering note he thinks the U.S. should move much faster than Canada in the free trade area plan.

The report suggested the U.S. make five annual 20 per cent cuts in tariffs against Canada, while Canada make 10 annual 10 per cent cuts.

"The necessity of giving Canada (a longer period) is well known, being based on the small size of the typical Canadian plant which needs to be protected while building itself up to serve the much larger market to be opened by free trade," Mr. Sweatt said.

Auxiliary to Medical Society Elects Officers for Year

The annual meeting of the W.A. to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society was held recently at the home of Mrs. John Stock with Mrs. A. Rota presiding.

Plans for the forth-coming fashion show, "Fantasy in Fashion," to be held on March 3rd, were discussed by convenor, Mrs. J. Nelles.

Following this the annual reports were presented by the various officers. Mrs. Rota thanked the group for their interest and co-operation during the past year, and then called upon Mrs. B. Cronk to act as chairman.

Mrs. Cronk graciously thanked Mrs. Rota on behalf of the Medical Wives for her leadership, and expressed the hope that 1965 will be prosperous. She asked Mrs. J. Nelles, as chairman of the nominating committee, to present the slate of officers for 1965. It read as follows: honorary president - Mrs. S. Berry; president - Mrs. A. Rota; vice-president - Mrs. J. Empson; treasurer - Mrs. A. E. Miles; recording secretary - Mrs. G. Pearce; corresponding secretary - Mrs. N. Reid; press secretary - Mrs. J. Hartt.

Minor Hockey WA Discusses Objectives

A lively discussion highlighted the meeting of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association Women's Auxiliary held last evening at the Memorial Arena.

The president Mrs. G. Stickle conducted the meeting and welcomed all present especially those attending for the first time. The main topic of discussion was the purpose of the auxiliary and it was decided that its main objective would be raising funds to assist any committee or organization in the building of an arena or hockey playing centre for minor hockey as well as looking after the general welfare of the players.

A fund raising committee was appointed with Mrs. A. D. Janisch as convener with other members Mrs. A. D. Aitkinson, Mrs. M. Wiley and Mrs. D. Clarke. A number of fund raising projects were discussed with varied suggestions being offered including a bake sale, a rummage sale and perhaps a skate sale early next fall.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR TOURNAMENT

Arrangements were made for serving refreshments at the novice tournament to be held in Belleville on February 13 with eight teams competing including the Belleville Riteways novice team. Mrs. W. L. Hayes was appointed to head a committee in preparation for this event and will be assisted by Mrs. M. Hunter, Mrs. M. Meyer and Mrs. R. A. Lupenske and the executive of the auxiliary. Also at this event will be a sale of home made candy arranged by the fund raising committee.

It is hoped at a later date that plans can be arranged to have a social get-together for all players at the end of the hockey season.

The secretary-treasurer Mrs. T. Jury was directed to forward a letter of thanks and appreciation to members of Branch 99 Royal Canadian Legion for the use of the hall on opening day of minor h.. y week.

Membership cards were sold with still quite a number on hand for those who have not already obtained them.

ST. MARGARET'S EVENING GUILD

Members were interested to learn that 70 per cent of the home visits were to give nursing care and supervision to people over 65 years of age.

Mrs. J. Ritchie thanked Miss Connor for her interesting talk. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Erie and her group.

WEDDINGS

PIRRIE — COVERT

CAMPBELLFORD — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Campbellford was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, January 30, 1965, when Flora Covert, Toronto, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Covert of Campbellford and the late Mr. Samuel Covert was united in marriage to Norman George Pirrie, son of Mrs. Charles Pirrie, Toronto and the late Mr. Charles Pirrie. Rev. R. A. Toombs, minister of the church officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was dressed in a beige brocade sheath with mink trimmed matching jacket, matching hat with a corsage of red roses. Her attendant was a cousin, Mrs. John C. Young of Waterdown, Ontario, who wore a beige sheath dress with jacket, beige and brown floral hat and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. John C. Young of Waterdown was groomsman.

A reception following the ceremony was held at Lillian's Restaurant where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a charcoal grey beaglline dress with matching jacket, matching accessories and a corsage of red roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother wearing a taupe shantung and lace dress with matching jacket, matching accessories, pink hat and a corsage of yellow roses.

For the wedding trip the bride chose a two-piece red and black crepe dress, black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The young couple will reside in Toronto.

COLEMAN — RICHARDS

Frankford United Church was the setting for a lovely candlelight service on Friday evening, January 29th, when Lois Eileen Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Richards, R.R. 2 Frankford, was united in marriage to Robert Andrew Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Coleman of Belleville.

Rev. Charles Judd was the officiating clergyman, and the wedding music was played at the organ by Mrs. Walter Morrow of Frankford.

The guest pews were designated with nosegays of pink roses and lily-of-the-valley encircled with net, and a white basket at the front of the church held a bouquet of flowers.

Given in marriage by her father the bride entered the church wearing a cocktail length dress of white chiffon over taffeta with high round neckline, full sheer sleeves, cuffed and buttoned at the wrist, and buttoned bodice. The full skirt was gathered at the waist. Her shoulder length veil was flecked with rhinestones and pearls, and she carried a white Bible with red Sweetheart roses and streamers caught with rosebuds.

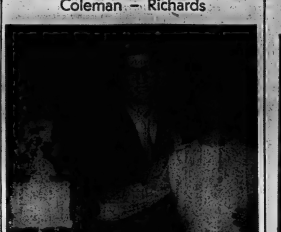
Miss Arlene Dodds, Frankford, R.R. 2, was maid of honor wearing an emerald green dress of peau de soie. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white mums.

Mr. Bill Powell of Belleville was groomsman, and the ushers were Gary Coleman, brother of the bridegroom, and Carl Richards, brother of the bride.

At the reception in Rose Lowery Hall, Frankford, the table was decorated with pink and white streamers, and was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom in an archway. The ladies of the church who catered were assisted by friends of the bride, Linda Lockhart, Linda Richards, and Dorothy Barlow.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a navy suit with beige accessories and a corsage of roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a charcoal grey suit with white accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

For a wedding trip to points east the bride wore a dress of turquoise jersey with white accessories, and corsage of red Sweetheart roses.



Out of town guests attended the wedding from Belleville, Picton, Oshawa, Trenton, Stirling and Wooler.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman will reside in Belleville.

Previous to her marriage the bride was honored with three showers, two miscellaneous, and a cup and saucer shower. She was entertained at a dinner given by the office staff of International Hardware where she was presented with an electric frypan. There was also a presentation of an electric tea kettle by her co-workers.

The bridegroom was the recipient of an electric clock and mixer from the office staff, and a gift of money from his co-workers at The Ontario Intelligencer.

Susanna's Family Fare

TOP CROP

Dear Susanna:- I'm not writing just because we had a bumper crop of turnips this year, but I wonder how many of your readers realize what an ideal vegetable this yellow fellow is.

Not only do turnips make delicious eating, but they cost only a few cents a serving, are relatively low in calories and add a good amount of valuable vitamin C to family meals. — Mrs. Elwood McGee.

Thank you for drawing this to our attention. You couldn't be more right. Say, no wonder the nip-eating Pappy Yokum has so much get-up-and-go!

NOTE: Our food experts also say that two turnips the same size, the heavier turnip is the better buy. Light weight ones are inclined to be woody or pithy and sometimes strong flavored. — SUSANNA

WASHING TIPS

Dear Susanna: You may have heard the following hints many times, but they are so very good I think they are worth repeating:

To remove perspiration stains from a washable garment, make a solution of vinegar and warm water an. a drop of detergent — do not use soap.

As well as using hair shampoo to pre-treat the neck and wrists of shirts and blouses, you should also try it the next time you are washing a sweater or cardigan with turn back collar and cuffs.

Apply a little shampoo to the soiled area, let it stand for a few minutes, rub or squeeze gently depending on the material, and launder in the usual way. — Ellen Gardner

Ann Landers

Nothing Wrong With Covering Up Bald Head

DEAR ANN LANDERS — How can I save my 48-year-old brother from making a darn fool out of himself?

Artie never married. He has been like a second father to our children. They love to have him around, and so do we. He is witty, generous and a great human being. The problem is this: Artie has been bald for as long as I can remember. Well, last night he came over and ate almost fell dead. Artie took off his hat and proudly displayed a head of golden curls.

ANN LANDERS

The hairpiece looks surprisingly genuine, but it's just not our Artie. I'm afraid he'll be the laughing stock of the town if he insists on wearing that thing.

Is this second childhood or what? He said he feels like a college kid again. We need an outsider to advise us. Should we tell him to put the hairpiece in mothballs? — D.C.

DEAR D.C. — It's Artie's head, and if he wants to put a rug on it, why should it bother you? It's how he feels that counts, and apparently he feels pretty good.

A baldy who suddenly shows up with golden curls had better have a lively sense of humor and if Artie has one he'll do just fine.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We in this newspaper office understand and accept all but one of the Ten Commandments for separated parents.

How can a parent avoid exposing the children to a member of the opposite sex with whom he may have become emotionally involved?

Take this hypothetical situation: Here is a legally divorced mother, living with her children. Does she accept no dates? Or, if she accepts dates, does she make arrangements to meet her male friends in the corner bar because she is afraid of exposing her children to them?

If she succeeds in keeping all male friends hidden from her children, what happens when she decides to marry? Does she suddenly bring the man home one night and say, "Here is your new stepfather"? Be reasonable, Ann, please. — NO NAME.

DEAR NO NAME — There is a vast difference between being separated and divorced. A divorced person, of course, is free to enjoy a social life which includes dates, if he (or she) wants them.

A separated person, however, is in quite a different position. He (or she) is still married, and married people should not become "emotionally involved" with members of the opposite sex. If such an involvement does occur it is best if the children are not aware of it.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 17-year-old girl who has a mother problem. She doesn't think any of the boys I like are good enough for me. This one is too short and that one lives in the wrong part of town.

For the fourth time in two months mother has arranged a date for me with the son or the nephew of customers who do business at the investment house where she works. Honestly, Ann, these fellows are jerky and I can't stand them.

I've told her how I feel but she says I'm too young to know my own mind. What burns me up is that she doesn't even ask me first. She makes the date and I have to go, even if it means breaking a date I've already accepted. Is this right or wrong?—LIKE FOR SALE.

DEAR LIKE — A pushy mother often spoils the chances of a very nice guy by cramming him down a daughter's throat.

I hope your Mom sees this and realizes she is being unfair — to you and to the fellows she's trying to promote. You're deciding that they are creeps even before you see them — and no one can win against such odds.

• • •

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WEDDING BELLES

Her wedding day is a most important day in a girl's life, and an important date for the parents too. So it is sometimes hard for parents to understand why a newspaper does not want a picture of this great event, after it has taken place two, three or four weeks ago.

They sometimes think the newspaper has laid down arbitrary rules for its own satisfaction.

As a matter of record this paper is more lenient in asking that weddings be sent in within a week, than other daily papers in this area, who will not publish a wedding over three days old. Toronto dailies, of course make a charge for printing a wedding account, and many dailies have cut the length of a wedding down to a simple outline of who the participants were.

The person who has never worked in a newspaper office has no idea how many people, societies and organizations are looking for space in the newspaper. Included in this number are the professional public relations officers who send in releases by the hundreds for everything from soup to soup and all the other letters in the alphabet that might be found in the soup. It is the editors' job to sift this mass of news out, and decide which will have most interest for the reader.

A newspaper must have news, and a daily paper like The Ontario Intelligencer wants local news, so this department is glad to accept reports of women's organizations, weddings, showers, teas, and everything pertaining to women's interests.

However, a wedding that is over two weeks old is not news, and has interest only for the people involved. Most wedding formalities have become pretty stereotyped, and when this happens to any kind of news, the impact is gone and it becomes commonplace. We are not referring here to the religious ceremony itself which should be conducted in a spirit of reverance, but to the trappings which are added.

At the same time we realize that to the participants the newspaper accounts are important because most of these find their way into family scrapbooks, for future generations.

This paper has continued to publish weddings in considerable detail. All we ask is: 1. That prospective brides get the wedding forms from the business office of The Ontario Intelligencer. 2. Fill out the forms and return them BEFORE the ceremony. 3. If pictures are to be used, ask the photographer to send them to the newspaper within a few days after the wedding.

Before setting up this policy, we contacted local photographers who agreed to send in the picture of the wedding within a few days. About a year ago a reminder to the brides was published on the woman's page and has been printed intermittently since.

Newspaper people are really not hard-hearted, but they have deadlines to meet, and must ask for co-operation in getting reports in promptly.

BELATED KNOWLEDGE

It was always my understanding that half sizes in women's clothes were for women who were heavy above the waist, rather than below. A sales girl in a local store told me this is not so, but is just the opposite, and half sizes are for women who have large hip measurements but small bust measurements. So there you are ladies. Probably most of you knew this before, but for those who did not, and this includes me, it may help in picking the correct size next time you need a dress.

Treasured Flavor In Canned Tomatoes

By MARY MOORE

In August and September Canadian grown ripe tomatoes are one of my favorite foods. Their flavor is unsurpassable. Glad as I am that we can buy fresh hothouse and imported tomatoes all winter, the flavor and the cost are disappointing.

But the treasured Canadian tomato flavor is captured and held in our canned tomatoes. Furthermore their vitamin content is well-nigh indestructible so I recommend that you use them to the limit in your winter meals. While doing so you will be saving some of your precious food dollars.

Mother's Helper

EVEN the fondest of grandmothers or aunts doesn't like having her upholstered furniture or lush carpeting stained by that special baby. Preserve your baby's welcome by taking along a "drop cloth" to spread on couch or chair or floor before you put your little drooler down. No exceptions, please.

Bringing Up Baby

WRITE COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GLERUM, MOTHER OF 5

I suppose almost every mother worries about thumb-sucking at one time or another.

But most experts agree that if not overdone, it's perfectly normal, rarely harmful. Things that may cut down excessive thumbsucking:

If a young baby sucks his thumb busily, it could be that he needs more time at breast or bottle.

Toothers who suck their thumbs to soothe tender gums will get biting satisfaction from Gerber Teething Biscuits.

Toddlers can often be distracted from thumbsucking with 2-way games or do-something toys.

Babyhood basic. All-age babies benefit from specially prepared cereals for the special food values they supply. Gerber Baby Cereals have added iron . . . plus important B-vitamins—thiamine (B1), riboflavin (B2) and niacin. Gerber Cereals are also prepared with your baby's eating pleasure in mind. Flavours are pleasantly mild, the way babies prefer them . . . the texture extra-nice to the tongue. And they stir to smooth perfection in seconds . . . stay that way right down to the last satisfying spoonful.

Regulating ideas. When your baby is ready to go on a 3-meals-a-day schedule, you'll find a change of menu or a bit of attention will help him wait out a half hour or so to meet his new schedule. Babies are adaptable and will usually settle for attention if the wait isn't too long.

Growing ideas. Your baby gains more in height and weight the first year than the next two put together. That's why it's important to see that he gets plenty of protein foods . . . the great promoters of growth. Gerber Strained and Junior Meats are an excellent source of protein, extra-low in fat, easy to be to digest. Made from selected, government-inspected cuts, they're packed in sparkling, clear-shouldered jars for easy spooning and convenient refrigeration of unused portions of the food. Mme. Mao Tse-Tung Rarely Makes Public Appearance

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Mme. Mao Tse-tung, former Chinese movie star whose husband is regarded by many Chinese as the father of modern China, rarely makes public appearances these days.

The attractive wife of Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung has faded into the background in recent years after a career as a motion picture star in Shanghai and as a Communist party worker.

Little is heard nowadays in Peking about Mme. Mao, fourth wife of the Chinese leader, and her infrequent public appearances were recently attributed to ill health.

This is in contrast to the appearances of the wives of Liu Shao-chi, the Chinese head of state, and Premier Chou En-lai, who often are seen accompanying their husbands at public functions.

However, Mme. Mao's name figured on the list of deputies at a last session of the Chinese parliament, the National People's Congress.

REPORTED ILL

The Maos live in an old one-storey house in the former imperial city in Peking and the party chairman himself has been reported as being in failing health.

Recent photographs have shown he has lost weight. He still smokes heavily and occasionally drinks a little rice wine. He sometimes ventures out to the opera or to an official function but these trips are rare.

Nonetheless, the 71-year-old poet, historian, classical scholar and author of works on guerilla warfare towers above any other individual in international communism now that Nikita Khrushchev, his arch-rival, has been replaced as Soviet premier.

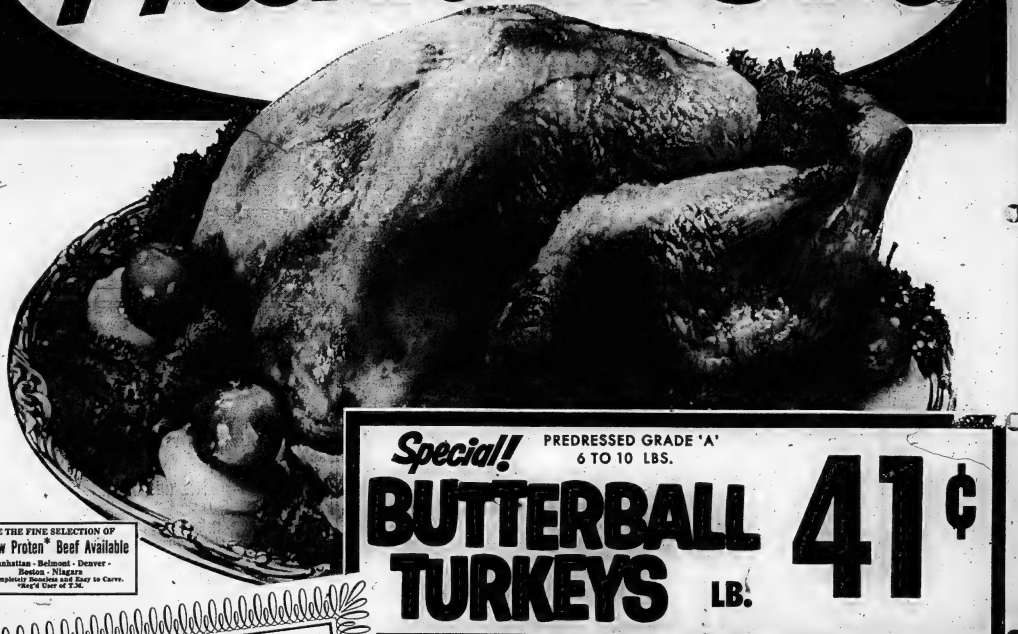
Although it now is more than 15 years since the proclamation of Mao's people's republic, China still is weak but she is united as she never has been before.

HELPED HUSBAND

Mme. Mao, who won fame in Chinese motion pictures as Lan Ping, can claim credit at least to part of the Communist success in China.

A Communist herself since 1933, she moved to the Chinese city of Yenan in 1937 to carry out party work and to work in the Lu Shun Art Academy.

It was in Yenan, a major centre in Communist-controlled China at that time, that Mao Tse-tung's love for the theatre brought them together. They were married in 1939 and a year later a daughter was born.



During eight years in Yenan, Mme. Mao's home was a modest building with a brick floor and white-washed walls. The family's official car was a half-ton truck.

Mme. Mao had little opportunity for indulging her feminine love for the more beautiful things but she did manage a rare trip to Chungking, the capital of Nationalist Chinese government at the time.

UNAWARE OF BENEFITS

MONTREAL (CP) — Women, the greatest beneficiaries of life insurance, are relatively unaware of it, says Mrs. Rita Phillips, who has sold more than $1,000,000 worth of it during the last year. Many wives say they have no fears "because my husband has life insurance" only to find that he has barely enough to cover funeral expenses, she says.

QSS Lively Hive

Abuzz With Show Biz

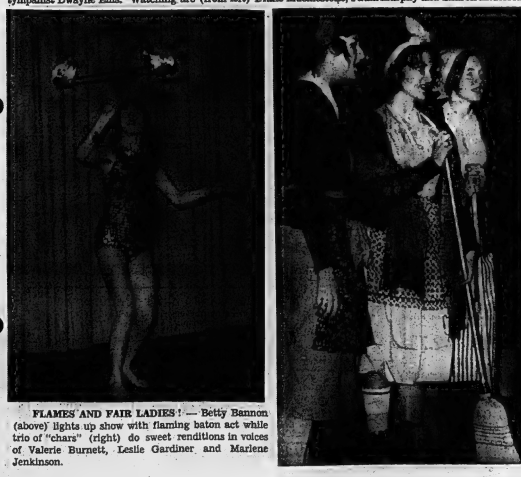
They're making the scene with music at Quinte Secondary School these days.

Also with song, dance, patter and polished gymnastics.

All of which signifies that once more it's time to get the school's annual stage show on the road.

This year the big co-operative effort is a variety revue with close to 30 different acts.

Linking presentations on stage is one of the school's finer collective accomplishments—the band directed by Doug Asselstine. Himself one of the Quinte district's most promising young talents, he has honed the orchestra to a fine sense of rhythm and timing.



Yesterday, when these photographs were taken, last-minute touches were being put to the show which runs Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Two Actuaries Heap Criticism On Pension Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Toronto actuaries poured heaps of criticism on the proposed Canada Pension Plan Tuesday, and one of them said the plan was given unanimous approval in the Commons because of "an unintentional form of blackmail."

Edward Ruse, an insurance company actuary who came to Ottawa as a private citizen, pulled out all stops in blasting the proposed pension scheme. ". . . The Canada Pension Plan is dangerous, complex, expensive and monstrous. I confidently but regretfully predict you and I—and even its strongest advocates — will live to deeply regret it."

"I should now bluntly state that, in my sincere, unselfish and considered opinion, Miss (Health Minister Judy) LaMarsh's team of 16 experts with over 300 years' service has conceived a Frankenstein. . . ."

"I am frightened of it," he said.

SAID POORLY DESIGNED

Mr. Ruse's brief followed a presentation by W. R. Joyce, another Toronto actuary, who also said the proposed plan is poorly designed to meet the social needs of Canada. Both briefs said the persons needing help the most were the most neglected under the plan.

Mr. Ruse said relatively few people in Canada understood the program and "it is a matter of grave concern to me that the vast majority of Canadians have been more misled than educated by many of the official statements and explanations released to the press, the public — and during the Ontario election campaign — to audiences of Ontario voters."

In another brief, the International Association of Firefighters said most of their members were in a unique position under the proposed plan because they must retire at 60. This would mean that earnings would drop off sharply between 60 and 65 when they would normally be computed in the earnings - base for the proposed plan.

The association asked that for pension purposes, a firefighter's earnings should be counted only until he retires, and not to 65 as proposed under the plan.

300 Workers In G. E. Plant Back on Jobs

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — About 300 workers in the motor and generator section of Canadian General Electric Company Limited here began to go back to work Tuesday night following a dispute Monday that resulted in a walkout and subsequent suspension of the workers.

The men, members of Local 524 of the United Electrical Workers (Ind.), attended a membership meeting Tuesday afternoon. Part of the group was persuaded to return to work on the evening shift and the rest were to return today.

Federal Revenue Could Double if Goals Achieved

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal revenues will almost double and provincial income tax receipts from the federal treasury will double under existing tax rates if Canada achieves the goals set out by the Economic Council for 1970.

A study of federal revenues prepared for the Economic Council of Canada by D. J. Daly, a member of its staff, says that if Canadians had been working and producing up to the nation's potential in 1960, tax revenues would have balanced the budget and provided a 20-per-cent surplus.

The economic study makes no comment on what government expenditure needs may be by 1970, or what adjustments might be made by the government in tax rates and federal - provincial tax sharing arrangements in the meantime.

But it says that if no changes are made and Canada achieves the goal of not more than three per cent unemployment, a high level of economic growth, reasonable stability of prices, a variable balance of payments and an equitable distribution of rising incomes, this should be the result in 1970:

—Federal and provincial personal income taxes, which amounted to $2,487,000,000 in 1963, should amount to $5,350,000,000,

—All other taxes and revenues, which amounted to $3,052,000,000 in 1963, should amount to $8,440,000,000

—Total of all federal taxes and revenues, and provincial personal income taxes, which aggregated $7,154,000,000 in 1963, should amount to $13,690,000,000. To this latter figure there would be added $670,000,000 collected in the 11 per cent sales tax on construction materials and machinery not reflected in the 1963 figure.

—Provincial personal income taxes collected by the federal government and turned over to the provinces, or amounts allowed for those provinces which collect their own, would amount to $1,260,000,000 in 1970. The actual figure in 1963 was $283,000,000.

All of this would leave the federal treasury with a 1970 "potential" revenue income of $13,100,000,000. In 1963, the actual federal total was $7,154,000,000.

The study, one of several prepared by the economic council's staff and special consultants in conjunction with its first annual review, published last month, emphasized the 1970 figures are based on assumptions that may not necessarily prevail in the next five years.

Retarded Children's School Open House Held Tuesday

Last night was "open house" at the Belleville Association for Retarded Children's school on John St.

Throughout the evening scores of interested Belleville and district residents visited the school and saw at first hand what is being done to assist mentally handicapped children to help themselves.

On the first floor of the school there are three classrooms and a small, modernly equipped kitchen. In the classrooms, the students are given various chores to do.

While in the kitchen, students are taught proper methods of setting the table and how to prepare simple meals. They also wash dishes, wash and iron the tea towels they use and sweep the floor.

There are 28 pupils enrolled at the school, attending classes supervised by three teachers, school principal Mrs. Arthur Bradford, who teaches intermediates, Mrs. A. Durand who teaches nine pupils in the kindergarten class and Mrs. Clarence Gibson, who is in charge of the senior students.

There is also a class for young adults, although this phase of instruction is not under the direction of the Association for Retarded Children.

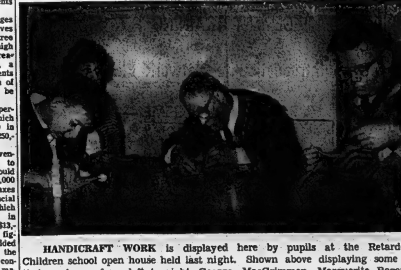
The school moved into its present location about five years ago. The building was purchased by the Belleville Lions Club. In addition to the three classrooms, there is a recreation room and an auditorium located on the second floor.

Current president of the Belleville Association is Dr. Charles Dondale.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of a dryer to the school. President of the Belleville Police Association, Constable Leo Kent, made the presentation to Dr. Dondale and Mrs. Gibson. Mrs. Gibson will supervise the use of the dryer by the students.

Refreshments were served in the recreation room, concluding the evening.

Prison Help Are Accused Of Neglect



KINGSTON (CP) — Prison personnel were accused of neglect in following doctor's orders by a coroner's jury Tuesday at an inquest into the Jan. 21 death of a prisoner at Kingston Penitentiary.

The five-man jury said "neglect of orders prescribed by a doctor" caused over-relaxation in Peter Votel, 34, who suffered when his lungs became congested with material from his own stomach.

It recommended that better supervision be given to the administration of drugs and to patients while under the influence of drugs. Votel was undergoing treatment in the psychiatric ward of the prison hospital.

Psychiatrist Dr. R. J. McCaldon testified at the inquest that he interviewed Votel after the man threatened to commit suicide Jan. 19 and prescribed a drug called Nozinan, a tranquilizer which also helps prevent nausea. The dosage was 25 milligrams four times a day.

Raymond Algate, a hospital officer in the psychiatric ward, testified that Votel was given a total of 125 milligrams in six hours.

Council Decides To Withhold Bill Payment

PICTON (Staff) — At this week's meeting of Town Council a bill amounting to $3,025 received by the town from the Public Utilities for water supplied to the water pollution control centre, (sewage plant), was presented. There had been no billing during the year and the amount created an unexpected financial burden. If paid by the usual discount date the bill is subject to a ten per cent discount.

Council decided to withhold payment pending the results of discussions with the Utilities. The mayor, H. J. McFarland, appointed Deputy Reeve Don Thompson, chairman; Councillors Robert Walmsley and Andrew Jarvis to act on this committee. Chairman of Finance D. Thompson said the town had not paid a water bill for the plant since it started operations 17 years ago.

Mayor McFarland said the alterations made last year were discussed, engineers had assured council that there would be no increase in costs of operation.

Councillor Andrew Jarvis presented a report from Ontario Water Resources Commission on operations of the plant. The report made special mention of the plant's water consumption and suggested two possibilities: effluent from the plant could be used as a source of water if a special pump and other equipment were installed. Also, it might be possible to lower the water pressure used in the plant's chlorinator which would reduce water usage.

Successful Living

Tries to Preserve Ashes of a Dead Romance

DEAR DORIS — My wife and I have been married for 20 years.

Unaware before I started going with this girl, I found out later that she was secretly in love with another nice Christian man a few years older. Her parents strongly objected and made her break up the engagement. This was a great shock to both of them.

DORIS CLARK

I married her two years later. I still love her, but there is something that acts as a damper on our happiness. She told me once that the other man was everything to her. My wife insists that she sleep alone in her room and I in my room, which in my opinion is not a normal relationship.

Now my question is, since I now know well that my wife and the other man, in their early twenties, were honest, intimate lovers, was it wrong of me to butt in and help in upsetting their secretly planned marriage? — GUILTY FEELINGS.

DEAR GUILTY — You are the butt of a grudge she still bears. The wrong was on the part of her parents (if indeed the man was worthy.)

She is trying to preserve the ashes of a dead romance. Every day that she spends mourning her dream boy is a day out of her real life lost to Successful Living.

She is enslaved by a previous devotion. You are an innocent victim.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Our daughter plans to have three or four attendants at her wedding, two of which are married. Is it correct to have two married girls in the bridal party? If so, how are they referred to when writing up the wedding for the newspaper? — MOTHER OF BRIDE.

DEAR MOTHER — Quite correct to have two. Perhaps one will be matron of honor. Any others would be referred to as "bridal attendants." A girl is not called a "bridesmaid" once she is married.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — How does one go about details when wishing to leave their body to a medical school at a university? Does the body need any preparation by an undertaker? — INQUIRER.

DEAR INQUIRER — Anatomy is a provincial matter; not only do the laws differ in different provinces; so does the supply of such material. One professor of anatomy writes:

"People who arrange to come eventually to this department are very important for our work; I think that most of them are motivated by a purely altruistic wish to continue to serve their fellow men after they themselves have passed on."

To find out whether demand exceeds supply where you are, and what to do about it, write to the professor of anatomy at your handiest university.

CONFIDENTIAL TO S. — Far better to give the other boys a break before your dreams — of a deserter — turn into a nightmare.

• • •

Confidential to MISERY — A. You are about ten pounds overweight. B. Slim down, pay some special attention to good grooming and practise meeting small talk while you and a pal learn some interesting dance steps in your own living room. Then start the ball rolling by having a little mixed party right there. Wouldn't Mom help?

Ottawa Teenagers Raise Funds for Civil Rights

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Two 17-year-old Ottawa girls have become so concerned about the hardships suffered by Negro and white civil rights workers in the southern United States that they have started a local organization to raise money for them.

The Ottawa Friends of the Students Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee was founded by Patricia Gilchrist and Anthea Stewart, two serious teenagers who believe Canadians should help American Negroes fight discrimination.

"While we can't go to states like Mississippi and work we can at least send money," says Patricia. "Civil rights workers in Jackson are going without food while trying to carry on educational programs."

Patricia is a petite, dark-haired girl who wears dark-rimmed classes. She and blonde Anthea, who makes most of the spectacles, explained they got the idea for a fund-raising committee from Diane Burrows of Toronto.

Miss Burrows, who spent last summer working in Mississippi, is touring Ontario and Quebec enlisting support for the Students Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, a civil rights group made up of Negro and white students.

POSTERS TORN DOWN

Although the Ottawa girls started their group quietly in late December, they have already run into some opposition from fellow students, their parents and teachers. Said Patricia:

"I nearly had to peel my mother off the ceiling after I told a newspaper reporter I wanted to go to Mississippi to work as soon as I'm old enough. (Workers must be at least 18).

"She sympathizes with the cause but thinks I'm too young to get so involved in it."

Some fellow students — "especially the boys" — think the group is a joke. Patricia and Anthea have been ridiculed many times, and have seen their posters torn down.

"A lot of the boys laugh and hiss at us when we speak, and some are downright nasty about it."

The youthful fund-raisers are often told they should forget about problems in the United States and concentrate on discrimination in Canada. To this they reply:

"Sure we have discrimination in Canada but it isn't nearly as far distant or as violent as it is in the United States People tell us that what happens to Negroes in Mississippi is none of our business. We say they're wrong. It is our business. When a Negro is mistreated in Mississippi, it says something about our whole society, our way of life."

MUST REACH ROOTS

They feel that a comprehensive attack on discrimination in the United States is essential before it can be wiped out elsewhere.

"After all, if you have a festering sore on your arm, you don't clear up all the little scratches first."

Along with opposition, the girls have met with sympathy and interest among teen-agers approached for donations. "We sold 50 buttons in two days just recently."

The buttons, which show a black and white hand clasped, sell for 50 cents. Proceeds go to the headquarters of SNCC in Jackson, Miss.

By late January the girls had collected more than $30. It was sent to Jackson immediately, after Miss Burrows told them the student workers there had only $4 left in their fund.

The Ottawa committee now has more than 50 members in five high schools. It plans to concentrate on fund - raising combined with an educational program to make others aware of the problems existing in the South.

Anthea, who is planning to be a social worker, says she doesn't expect all others to become involved as she is.

"I'd just like them to do some thinking about civil rights and form an opinion. Too many teen - agers refuse to take a stand about anything."

AID CIVIL RIGHTS WORKERS — Anthea Stewart (left) and Patricia Gilchrist, 17-year-old Ottawa high school students, have organized a group to aid American white and Negro civil rights workers. The group is affiliated with the United States Students' Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee (SNCC). The girls say too many teen-agers refuse to take a stand on controversial matters. (CP Photo)

SPORTS

Sport Slices . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Saturday, at the city armouries, is strictly for the birds, and racqueteers.

The Yeoman of the Guard over some in Marlboro country, called it Battledore and Shuttlecock.

Two great Englishmen played it while the war drums thundered and battle clouds hung low over the country.

Churchill swung his racquet while Hitler gathered his legions. Clive of India won his match with bloody-tribes hammering at the gates.

Officers of the British Army stationed in India brought it home and debuted it at the estate of Lord Badminton, from which the sport gets its name.

But that's history. And perhaps some sort of records' history will be made here Saturday night at the Central Ontario Badminton Association's "B" tournament.

The Belleville Garrison Club, second-to-none for tourney arrangement and hospitality in the district, is the host. The club's demon publicity man, Merv Potts, tells me everything is in order and one of the best tournaments of its class looms in the offing.

The tournament is a "three-doubles" affair with the ladies' and men's pairs getting under way at 10.30 a.m.; the mixed doubles in the afternoon with the finals and trophies awards slated for early evening.

Postmortems and social amenities are slated for the officers' mess after the victors have grabbed the spoils—and the rest wailing until next year.

Clubs from Picton, Napanee, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Peterborough and other centres will be represented.

Badminton, I'm told, is gaining in popularity in the city with several small clubs being formed in high schools involving teachers and others.

The Garrison Club realizes this and is anxious to extend the helping hand. But its main object, Mr. Potts says, is getting the junior element interested, particularly high school students.

I'm not intimating that the senior members of the club are reaching the hoary rocking-chair stage, but badminton, like any other sport must have a "feed-box" to survive.

I think, perhaps, Mr. Potts has this in mind apart from the club's desire to assist up-and-coming badmintoners in every way possible.

It is a good idea to "package" the sport in some way or another and the Garrison Club has taken a step in this direction by inviting the smaller clubs to become members or arrange competitions for them so as to bring badminton under "one roof," so to speak.

Furthermore, Mr. Potts points out, members of these clubs are eligible to play in district tournaments by paying certain fees as set down under CORA regulations.

I imagine it is too late to enter the upcoming competition, but it might be a good idea for young, and older, enthusiasts to watch these "B" players in competitive action. You're cordially invited.

The Garrison Club, I'm given to understand, is one of the oldest sports organizations in the city. Its records are not readily available but the history of Hastings infers the same, in some form or another, was played when Copala Myers, the city's founder, hobnobbed with the Indians when, like Moses, the village was hidden in the bullrushes.

"Smoke" Reynolds, the founding father of Wellington, used to bring a team of his braves overland to engage in bow-and-arrow soirees with Myer's Mohawks. It was all in fun and the Indian athletes substituted long feathers for arrows to keep the casualty lists at a minimum.

Since the British version of badminton was confined only to the "Who's Who" of Britain's society, it could very well be that the feather exchange of the early Indians laid the foundation of the sport heresabouts.

May Fight In May ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Floyd 'Ready For Clay'

Garden Officials Work On Rematch

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—The fight game, buried in potter's field when Sonny Liston quit in his corner at Miami Beach, has come back to life with the rebirth of Floyd Patterson and the belated discovery of George Chuvalo of Toronto.

As the health of boxing always is directly related to the status of the heavyweight champion, another look at the title situation is in order. It is just a little complicated.

Cassius Clay is the champion with two reservations:

1. His fame now is Muhammad Ali.

2. He isn't recognized by the World Boxing Association.

To fill the void, created by its own action in stripping Clay of the crown, the WBA is sanctioning a title bout between Ernie Terrell and Eddie Machen at Chicago, March 5. Of course, Machen was beaten by Patterson July 5 in a lopsided match in Sweden.

Clay, forced to postpone his rematch with Liston due to a hernia operation, is due in Boston Monday to be examined by the Massachusetts Commission doctors and officials.

Promoters of the Boston fight are talking about a date in late May, probably May 24.

Liston, recently acquitted of drunken driving charges in Denver, is getting ready for a chance to win back the title.

FIGHT WAS SELLOUT

Meanwhile, the hottest fighters are Patterson and Chuvalo, who battled 12 tough rounds Monday night at Madison Square Garden before a sellout crowd of 19,100. Patterson won the unanimous decision but, as he said himself, "Chuvalo gained as much in defeat as I did in victory."

Garden officials are working on a Patterson-Chuvalo rematch with a target date of March 30.

However, an early May date may be more realistic because Patterson reported he had fought with an injured left hand.

Patterson said his doctor informed him that the bone separation on the back of his left hand should be cleared up in a month. But he added: "I want to wait a week or so before I make any definite plans."

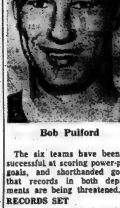
Chuvalo and his manager practically demanded a rematch in their post-battle comments. And Harry Markson, Madison Square Gardens boxing director, also is reported pushing hard.

With Patterson there always is the chance of another bout in Sweden where he fought twice in 1956. Patterson would like to fight five times a year, it possible.

"Had I fought Chuvalo three fights ago I probably would have been stopped," said Patterson Tuesday. "Two fights ago he would have stopped me. One fight ago it would have been a lot closer."

"I would like to fight Liston next," he said. "But I wouldn't even pay to see it. I think I am ready for Clay. If I should be successful, I think another bout between Liston and me would be accepted."

For Opposite Reasons



Henry, Pulford Power-Play Fuses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Camille Henry and Bobby Pulford have become two of the most dangerous men in the National Hockey League when a power-play situation exists, but for entirely opposite reasons.

Henry has been the trigger-man on New York Rangers' explosive power play, firing 13 of his 21 goals when the Blueshirts owned a man advantage. His success has given the Rangers the league lead in power-play goals with 28.

Pulford has been one of the most effective penalty - killers this season although his Toronto Maple Leafs have given up the second highest total of power-play goals. But as an individual, Pulford has scored four times while his own club was shorthanded.

Bob Pulford

The six teams have been so successful at scoring power-play goals, and shorthanded goals, that records in both departments are being threatened.

RECORDS SET

To date, 180 goals have been scored on power plays and 37 by penalty-killers. The record for power-play goals was set at 273 in 1958-59 and the milestone for shorthanded goals was established at 42 in the same season.

Five goals behind New York are Detroit Red Wings with 23 power-play goals, nine of them by all-time leader Gordie Howe. Following in order are the Maple Leafs with 22, Montreal Canadiens 21, Chicago Black Hawks 20 and Boston Bruins 17.

The Canadiens have the best penalty-killing squad and have only given up 21 goals when shorthanded. The Rangers are next best with 28, both Chicago and Detroit have 29, the Leafs have allowed 36 and the Bruins 37.

Pulford's four shorthanded goals have given him a total of 22 in his career, the highest number in NHL recorded history. Jerry Toppazzini, formerly of Boston, was the former leader with 19. . .

HENRY NEARS 250

Henry's entry into the power play has carried him to within two goals of joining the NHL's 250-goal club. Of his 248 goals, 115 have been recorded while the Rangers enjoyed a man-power advantage.

Howe's nine power goals this season have given him the all-time lead with 148. Retired Maurice Richard had 140, and Jean Beliveau has 126.

Third behind Henry and Howe this season is Bobby Hull, who has netted eight goals for Chicago's power play. Other team leaders are Red Kelly of Toronto with five, Murray Oliver of Boston with five and Ralph Backstrom and Claude Provost of Montreal, four each.

The Rangers power-play unit goes into action tonight when the Hawks visit New York in the only game scheduled. A Chicago victory would launch the Hawks into a first-place tie with idle Montreal, while the Blueshirts desperately need the win to keep alive any playoff aspirations.

Ontario Tops in Bonspiel

QUEBEC (CP) — Ontario led the field as 24 teams qualified for the playoffs for the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy, the highest honor in the annual Quebec International Bonspiel.

Eleven of the 48 Ontario rinks that entered the week-long event on Monday made it to the quarter- finals in their section, automatically qualifying for the playoff which starts today.

Another skip from Ontario, Jimmy Guy of Kenora, is the favorite to take the competition, but he is playing with three men from Winnipeg and the team was registered from Manitoba.

Of the 11 Ontario rinks seven have been undefeated in their four games to date.

The seven are: L. E. Hanman, North Bay; Jim Chappell, Toronto Cricket; J. Kemp, Hamilton - Glendale; Jack Clark, Oakville; Roy Hewitt, Orillia; Nels Findlay, Galt, and W. D. White, Oshawa.

The others, Bob Ash, Kirkslake Lake; B. Bohtaseur and Ernie Dennison, Burlington, and W. H. Slatcher, Weston, lost their first draws.

Marc Dufour Still Tops In Central Pro

DETROIT (CP) — Marc Dufour, St. Paul Rangers' two-way offensive star, continues to pace the Central Professional Hockey League scoring race.

The 22-year-old rightwinger has scored 28 goals and assisted on 31 for 59 points as Rangers hold down fourth place in the six-team circuit.

Tulsa Oilers' Mike Walton is second. The Toronto Maple Leafs rookie farmhand has triggered 29 goals and assisted on 26 for 53 points.

Norm Beaudin, shifty Memphis Wings winger, is third with 32 goals and 20 assists for 52 points.

Tulsa's Larry Johnston is the penalty - leader in the circuit with 195 minutes and Minneapolis' Cesare Maniago tops the goalies in shutouts with, three.

Jrs. Hope to Shake Slump In Brighton

The Belleville "B's", still looking to shake their slump, start a tough six-day schedule in Brighton tonight.

Winless in their last five starts, the "B's" have plunged from first place to third, seven points off the leaders' pace.

The team now plays three games in six days, all of them on the road. Coach Gordie Bell feels that the "more games the better" as far as his club is concerned. "We have not played well since that lengthy layoff around New Year's," he said at last Friday's game here. Injuries also have hurt the club.

Trenton Apple Kings supply the opposition for the "B's" in Brighton tonight. Game time is 8:30.

On Friday, Napanee Legion, recently waxing hot on the victory trail, will tackle the "B's" here in Belleville in a nine o'clock affair.

And on Monday next, the "B's" are off to Kingston for a battle with the ever-tough Frontenacs.

Bell hopes to have goalie Bob Moon in action sometime this week. Moon has been out several weeks with a broken hand.

Japanese Centre of Controversy

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick warned his Japanese counterpart Tuesday that a contract dispute over pitcher Masanori Murakami could lead to a cessation of all baseball agreements with the Japanese.

"I have all the documentation on the case," said Frick, "and it shows that the Giants purchased Murakami. Now the Japanese are apparently putting pressure on him to stay over there."

Murakami, who joined San Francisco Giants last season, became the centre of controversy when his former club, the Nankai Hawks, said Monday the pitcher had signed a three-year contract with the Japanese team.

Murakami previously had signed to pitch with the Giants for the 1965 season.

Key Figure In Habs' Drive

Backstrom Staging Comeback

MONTREAL (CP) — If the National Hockey League had a comeback - of - the - year award, chances are Ralph Backstrom would rate as a leading contender.

From last season's dispirited young man who wondered seriously "if my number was up," the Montreal Canadiens centre has rebounded to become a key figure in the Habs' drive for a second straight NHL title.

The 27 - year - old Kirkland Lake native, who hit a career low of only eight goals in 1963-64, already has scored 17 times this season to rank with Claude Provost as Montreal's top marksmen. With 19 assists for 36 points he ranks among the league's top 10 scorers and Canadiens coach Toe Blake concedes he has bypassed injury - hampered Jean Beliveau and Henri Richard as the team's most consistent centre.

All of which is a far cry from he came back in 1961-62 with a year ago when; as Blake puts it, "Ralph was so tight that the puck jumped a foot when it hit his stick," and both Backstrom and the Canadiens were wondering if they were about to part company.

Key to the abrupt about-face, both Backstrom and Blake agree, lies in one word: Confidence.

"That's the biggest thing," says Backstrom. "I think I worked just as hard last year, but I was so nervous I couldn't skate or handle the puck. This year with things going better, I've been playing the way I want to and not worrying about every move I make."

Backstrom, a five-10, 165-pounder with lightning speed, moved from a standout junior career in the Canadiens' farm system directly into the big time in 1958 and lived up to advance billing by winning the Calder Trophy as the NHL's outstanding rookie.

After two mediocre seasons, Cosentino assound, I figure we'll be just as strong at quarterback."

Zuger, however, said: "They are big shoes to fill."

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Hamilton Tiger - Cats won't miss quarterback Bernie Faloney, says a former teammate.

Garney Henley was firm and frank about it when asked if the Ticats would have a void now that Faloney is the property of Montreal Alouettes, also of the Eastern Football Conference.

"No, we won't, said Henley. "Don't get me wrong, Bernie is one of my best friends . . . but with Joe Zuger and Frank

LONDON (Reuters)—Results of English Football Association Cup fourth-round replays Tuesday night:

Everton 1 Leeds 2
Rotherham 0 Wolverhampton 3

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Hockey League, a tight little island in the sea of recent professional sports expansion, may be ready to take that first westward step toward the lucre of television dollars.

Owners of the six NHL clubs, huddling at their annual winter meeting Tuesday, scheduled an unprecedented special conclave next month to discuss plans for possible expansion. Los Angeles and San Francisco are among the cities known to be dickering for franchises in the league, which has been geographically intact for 23 years.

"This doesn't mean we will expand in the immediate future," NHL President Clarence Campbell stated. "We will establish a firm policy and then be ready with a plan when the time to expand does come."

The league has been seeking a national television contract that would alleviate any future growing pains but the networks apparently are demanding expansion as the price for a TV package.

Campbell said the date and site of the special meeting had not been set. He said expansion bids possibly would be accepted at the owners' summer meeting in Montreal June 7-10. Current NHL franchises are in Montreal, Toronto, Boston, New York, Detroit and Chicago.

CHANGE DRAFT

In other developments at Tuesday's meeting, the owners approved a change — aimed at helping low-placed clubs — in the player draft, required teams to have standby goaltenders dressed and on the bench during Stanley Cup playoff games, ruled out competition between NHL and amateur teams and set dates for the opening games of this year's playoffs and the 1965-66 season opener.

The sixth - pace team will be permitted two draft choices and the fifth-place team one, without having to drop a player from their 20-man protected lists.

The Stanley Cup semi-final series will begin on Thursday, April 1, with subsequent games on Saturdays or Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays through the best-of-seven final set.

The 1965-66 campaign will start Oct. 27 — two weeks later than before so as not to conflict with World Series baseball and professional football — and will wind up April 10.

WON'T BE RESPONSIBLE

Starting tonight, the home team no longer will be responsible for an emergency goalie. In effect, the visiting team will have to carry two goalies.

For the playoffs, each team will have to have two goalies dressed, although the spare won't have to wear his pads on the bench.

Talking a stand on NHL clubs playing against international teams, the league decided that such teams as the Russians and Czechs would have to declare them selves professional and as such ineligible for playing minor pro teams.

And if they prove themselves satisfactory, the league decided, they just might get a chance at the NHL.

TOP U.S. ATHLETE

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Schollander, 18, who won four gold medals in swimming events at the Tokyo Olympics, was named winner of the 1964 Sullivan Award Tuesday. The award is given annually to the outstanding U.S. athlete. Schollander, youngest athlete ever to win the honor, lives in Otwego Lake Ore.

Wanderers, Burnley Win Replays

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Two upstars from the lowes reaches of English soccer were knocked out by first division clubs Tuesday in replays of their fourth round matches in the Football Association Cup competition.

Reading, well down in the lower half of the third division, was beaten 1-0 at Burnley, while Rotherham United of the second division lost 3-0 at home to Wolverhampton Wanderers after surprisingly holding the Wolves to a draw on their own grounds last Saturday.

In a third replay between two first division sides, Leeds United won 3-1 at Everton.

Favors Him Over Clay

'The Best Patterson I Ever Saw'-Louis

By JOE LOUIS
Ex-Heavyweight Champion

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson regained his dignity at Madison Square Garden Monday night. He fooled us all, including me. He beat Canada's George Chuvalo and he did it easily by proving a smart fighter can change his style.

If he had used this style against Sonny Liston, those fights might have had different endings.

Patterson also proved something to himself. He didn't think that he could fight backing up and he didn't completely. He made the awkward, inexperienced Canadian fight his fight and chopped him to pieces with quick combinations.

There is no substitute in boxing for experience when everything else is fairly even. Patterson made Chuvalo come to him, tied him up, bobbed, weaved and rushed in to punch when he found the openings.

USED LEFT JAB WELL

Patterson's left jab was a terrific weapon, and he didn't make the mistake too often of lunging with it in the amateurish way he did with Liston and others. He didn't waste too many pinches, either.

This was the best Patterson I ever saw, including the night he knocked out Archie Moore to win the title in 1956. He was a mature, confident fighter and right now I'd have to give him serious consideration against a Liston and make him the favorite over Cassius Clay.

I don't sell that Chuvalo short. He's got strength, heart and ability. He's got a lot to learn and no doubt he might have learned a lot Monday night. He was overmatched, we know—but you can't hit what you can't reach.

I scored the fight 9-2 and one even for Patterson.

SET TERRIFIC PACE

This was the best heavyweight fight I've seen since Rocky Marciano and Archie Moore. They set a terrific pace, and I didn't think either one would last at the rate they were going. But they were two finely conditioned fighters, and it will be fights like this that will bring boxing back.

I picked Chuvalo, which makes me wrong again, but I have no regrets. I saw a great fight and a potentially great fighter born again.

Ed Powers Meets NHL Governors

NEW YORK (CP) — Eddie Powers, who quit as a National Hockey League referee two years ago over a disagreement with league president Clarence Campbell, met with NHL governors in session here Tuesday.

Neither Powers nor Campbell, who wasn't present when Powers appeared, would comment on what transpired.

Two years ago, Powers was publicly berated by coach Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens. Powers quit when, he says, Campbell failed to punish Blake more severely than with a $200 fine.

Powers sued Blake and the Canadiens, reaching an out-of-court settlement for an unannounced sum.

One of the conditions of the settlement was that Powers meet with league governors, which he did Tuesday.

Powers was quoted last week as saying he had no intention of trying to get his refereeing job back.

Champs for Three Years
Bobsled Win Conclusive

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians should be able to rule the bobsled world for at least three more years, Paul Levesque of Montreal, a member of the Canadian bobsledding team that competed last week in the world championships in Switzerland, said on arrival home Tuesday.

Levesque was No. 2 man on the second four - man bobsled that finished 10th in the championships.

He said Vic Emery of Montreal, pilot of the first Canadian team that won a decisive victory, is a superb driver and competitor who has "come into his own."

He said a mature driver can usually stay at his peak from three to four years.

Levesque and Michael Young, of Port Credit, Ont., were the only bobsledders who returned Tuesday. The others are coming on a sparse flights within the next week, starting with Emery and his brother John who are due to return today.

Levesque said Sunday's win proves the Olympic title was no fluke.

"Any time you do something for the first time, as we did in winning at the Olympics, everyone says there's an element of luck involved. Maybe that's so. But this time the win was so conclusive that there's no doubt at all we were the top four-man bob in the world."

Petes Shade Red Wings

Hawks Wallop Marlboros

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lacroix led Peterborough Petes to a 4-3 victory over Hamilton Red Wings Tuesday night with two goals and one assist, Hodge scored two goals and added an assist as St. Catharines Black Hawks walloped Toronto Marlboros 7-3.

By GORDIE HOWE

Constructive criticism never hurt anyone. Everybody gets a chance to stand up and talk at the local meeting house when the Red Wings hold at noon of the day of a game.

Many times manager Sid Abel will review the mistakes we made the last time we met this team.

Then if there are any line changes, he will tell us about them and we'll have the plans to play against opposing line combinations.

The home team has the advantage in this respect. The visiting manager has to name his lineup first. Once he sends a line combination on the ice, it is likely to be a minute before he can make any changes in it, except, of course in the case of injury.

Sometimes in our meetings somebody has a couple of pet plays he would like to work into a habit that a teammate thinks is detrimental to the team's play. We'll discuss the mention it without any hard feelings.

If somebody points out something I'm doing wrong, I'm very grateful, because a mistake on my part, not only is hurting me, but the club as well.

We all get our chances to speak up. It helps clear the air. Of course, many times there are signals regarding linesmates' play that you can work out among yourselves. But it doesn't hurt to discuss these things before all of your teammates. Sometimes somebody else has noticed something you've missed your attention.

When we're playing games away from home, doing a lot of traveling, the team meeting takes on another purpose.

If you're tired, there is a tendancy to hit the sack and stay there longer than usual, rather than getting up and eating a good breakfast like you should in the morning. Some players sleep around and get some fresh air in your lungs, so you don't get that real dopey feeling that comes from staying in the sack all day.

OSD Senior Girls Win, Juniors Lose

By B. LALONDE

Ontario School for the Deaf and Campbellford High School girls' teams divided victory honors in Quinte COSSA basketball here last night.

The OSD senior squad downed the opposition 29-20, while the junior girls dropped a 28-19 decision.

The senior girls' win is the second in as many starts.

They took an early lead—and never looked back—paced by by Janice Bancars who scored 17 points, the team had little difficulty in chalking up the win.

M. Munro and B. Bowen were second and third in the seniors' point scoring.

The junior game was a see-saw battle down to the last few minutes of play.

Two OSD girls fouled out and the fast Campbellford forwards scored five quick baskets to tuck the victory away.

The junior game produced quick action, snappy passing, and a combination of good floor work and team play.

Petes Star Retains Scoring Lead

Buffalo Takes Over Score Power

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The balance of power in the American Hockey League scoring race has shifted from Quebec to Buffalo.

The Aces, who monopolized the top places among the sharpshooters throughout the first half of the season, have fallen back steadily in recent weeks while the Bisons now boast the league's leaders in goals and assists and three of the four pace-setters in scoring points.

Art Stratton heads two departments with 86 points and 54 assists. Len Lunde, two points behind Stratton, is the goal scoring leader at 34. Eddie Litzenberger of Rochester Americans is third in points with 59, followed by a third Bison, Pat Hannigan, at 54.

Gerry Cheevers of Rochester leads the goaltenders with a 2.49 goals - against average and shares the shutout lead with Ed Chadwick of Buffalo at four.

Playing coach Fred Glover of Cleveland Barons, who plays his 1,000th AHL game tonight, is the penalty leader with 145 minutes.

254 Single Rolled By Grace Poste

Grace Poste came up with a sparkling effort in the Bowleros Mixed 10-Pin league this week.

She rolled a 254 single and added a 185 game on her way to a fine 578 triple. The marks were high for the night for both the men and women.

Grace Poste is secretary of the league and her 254 single, one of the best recorded in ten pins in the city, was well above her 142 average.

The single fell three pins short of Vivian Moreau's 256 mark scored last fall.

Famed India Journal Sees 100th Year

LUCKNOW, India (AP)—The Pioneer, a Lucknow newspaper with the distinction of having has Sir Winston Churchill and Rudyard Kipling on its staff, is marking its 100th birthday.

The Pioneer began publication Jan. 1, 1865. A three-line item that made its way to India in time for the May 10 edition said: "New York, April 15— Lincoln has been assassinated and died today. Assassination of Seward was also attempted, and he is not expected to live."

Kipling worked on The Pioneer as an assistant editor in 1888 and 1889. When he left to return to the west and eventual literary fame, the manager gave him this sendoff:

"Well, the best of luck, Kipling. But take my tip and try some other career. You'll never make much of a success with your pen."

Churchill while a 23-year-old junior officer in the British Army served as war correspondent for The Pioneer during a military expedition on the Northwest Frontier in 1897.

One of his dispatches from the campaign, reprinted during the centennial, showed him to be a colorful writer and a young man in a hurry. Some skirmishes, he wrote, are "as tiresome and dull as House of Commons' debates."

'Ringo' Sells Like Mad, Lorne Greene Just Glad

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How could a 43-year-old actor manage to produce a hit record in the teen-age jungle of today's pop music world?

Lorne Greene isn't questioning it; he's just banking the money and enjoying the whole thing.

The amazing success of the record Ringo is one of the many pleasant happenstances that have occurred to Greene in recent years.

"Don't ask me about Ringo because I can't figure it out," said the star of television's top-rated hour, Bonanza.

"All I know is that it has already sold over $90,000 copies and that's merely in this country. It's apparently going wild in Australia, too. There seems to be no doubt that it will sell over a million before it's through."

HAD NO EXPERIENCE

Like many television stars Richard Chamberlain (Dr. Kildare) The Vincent Edwards Album), Greene found himself recording hit numbers last year, even though his experience as a professional singer was nil.

Among the numbers for the album was one in which he told in his sonorous non-singing baritone about how he once saved the life of the notorious Johnny Ringo and later had to shoot him dead. The recitation enabled among other singing and talking numbers on the album until a Lubbock, Tex., disc jockey plucked it out for a go-around. The response was enormous.

A Dallas jockey heard about the fuss and gave Ringo a big play with identical results. RCA-Victor released the number as a single, and away it went. The fact that it got a big play on the air disproves the idea that records are sold by thinking it was about a Beatle.

GRABBED BY TEEN-AGERS

Greene now finds that when he appears among teen-agers they no longer touch him as before. They grab.

"On the whole I think it's a good thing that an older person can succeed in the pop music field," he said. "Maybe it will convince the teen-agers that their papa and mamas might have something after all."

For Greene, records are another element of his ever-expanding career, which he would like to push even further. As a result of Ringo he has received night club offers—he opens in Reno April 28. He is also preparing a five-times-a-week radio show and television productions.

"I'm also interested in playing in the entertainment world," said he.

The taste has been sweet already. Greene figures he has earned a million from the six years of bonanza and reasons: "Any star who lasts five years in a series should be able to come out of it a millionaire."

Greene was born in Ottawa. He was a well-known news and radio commentator in Toronto before leaving Canada for the Broadway stage.

SAYS QUEBEC LOST

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government said Tuesday the federal government took out of Quebec in revenues $277,000,000 more than what it spent in the province between 1960 and '63. A federal report last November said, the central administration had spent $200,000,000 in this province during 1961-62 than what was forthcoming from Quebecers in revenues for that period.

Swiss Hail Tourist Centennial

GENEVA (Reuters) — Swiss resorts are celebrating the 100th anniversary as winter vacation havens and are planning new outbursts of gaiety to mark the occasion.

There'll be torchlight processions, parades in the snow, and special winter sporting programs laid on as part of "the year of the Swiss."

The anniversary celebrates the progress of winter vacations from a first visit in 1864 to one of Switzerland's most important industries today.

It was just a century ago that hotelkeeper Johannes Badrutt invited a group of British tourists to stay the winter free of charge in the little-known village of St. Moritz to prove to them that the Swiss winter was as beautiful as the summer.

Today British tourists spend 700,000 nights in Switzerland each winter, and 3,000,000 all year—according to French and to German tourists. And they keep on coming even though it's no longer free.

Thousands of winter-sports enthusiasts of many nationalities throng the Swiss Alpine resorts from mid-December until March or April, to ski or just rest.

Davos now is the largest of the 130 Swiss winter resorts. It was only a year behind St. Moritz in the tourist industry. A German doctor was its first guest, in 1853. Davos in starting the winter.

Skelton, Marceau Delight In Hour of Pantomine

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Red Skelton provided CBS audiences with a special treat Tuesday night—an hour in which he and the great French pantomimist, Marcel Marceau, alternated with their silent solo specialties.

Generally, it was a brilliant 60 minutes, in spite of the fact that the announcer and Maurice Chevalier, in introducing the two stars, sofooded as if they were about to bring on an epic.

Even Skelton was impressed —he stayed in a tuxedo most of the time.

The "concert," as it was called, was starkly simple, with only some rudimentary props. Skelton and Marceau, in his distinctive costume and clown's white makeup, took turns with their bits.

Skelton was wildly funny in a solo sketch about a drunken surgeon. The most impressive moments came when Marceau did his pantomime about the mask — maker trying on his masks.

Perhaps the one mistake of the evening was teaming the broadly comic Skelton with his delight in slapstick with the delicate and subtle Marceau in a loose adaptation of the Pinchi Cacchio story. It was a weak navigator flying weather and coastal patrols on the west coast.

Discharged in 1945, he went to "work with an engineering firm at $140 a week.

But one night about a year later he picked up a magazine which contained a list of job classifications for returning servicemen. He went down the list, checking off each one, until his eyes rested on "writing."

He quit his job the next day and joined the staff of the Montreal weekly NDG Monitor for $25 a week. He left the weekly in 1947 to join a daily, the old Montreal Herald, for $37.50 a week as a municipal reporter.

WAR CHARTER MEMBER

Soon he was writing two widely-read columns, Outdoors with Morrow and Marketing boasting tips on how and what with Morrow—the latter advising to buy. These led to radio and later, television shows.

Currently he has a twice-monthly trans-Canada radio outdoor show and conducts an outdoor television "sports shop" for the CBC network 30 weeks a year.

He abandoned journalism in 1956 for public relations and now is with a chemicals firm.

Morrow was a director of the Montreal Anglers and Hunters incorporated for 14 years and vice-president for two years. He was one of the founding members of the Outdoor Writers of Canada formed in 1936.

He organized, coached and played on the first basketball, hockey and ski teams at Sir George Williams, A keen hunter, he has a treasured collection of 45 guns, ranging from the old flintlock muzzle-loaders to modern weapons. He likes to hunt with bow and arrow too, and is an accomplished skeet and trap shooter.

Morrow is constantly challenged by his belief that Canadians haven't done enough love of their land. He has put his belief in verse:

"Where is the IN I cannot hear?

"Where is the pride we claim?

"Where is the drive to make us great

"And set our hearts aflame?"

PEOPLE NOT NAMES

LONGTOWN, England (CP) Two schoolgirls have collected 1,000 signatures on a petition to prevent the closing of the only movie house in this Cumberland town. The management said the petition won't help matters unless people promise to come regularly.

Canada Outdoors

We Use Outdoors But Don't Protect It

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — "We've had too much outdoors too long for too few people," says Les Morrow, president of the Outdoor Writers of Canada.

"Canadians have been oriented to using and enjoying the outdoors but not to protecting it.

"Urban centres are sending more people out to sit by the side of a stream at their cottage or to boat on the lakes. These people get annoyed at hunters using the outdoors in a traditional way."

Leslie David Morrow, 46, has deeply rooted and deeply felt opinions about the Canadian wilds—fishing, hunting, camping or first-hand study of nature—and he can talk on the subject forever.

He acquired a love for the outdoors at an early age from his late father, David Morrow, a pioneer western farmer who settled in Tugaske, Sask. Dave Morrow parlayed an interest in farming and mining into "a bit of money" and went all over the West and Ontario like a gypsy. His wife and son followed him.

From age 11 to 16 he recalls he had 21 different mailing addresses, and now this moving about probably gave him a genuine love for his country.

Recently he wrote poetry, dwelling on the developing strains to Confederation.

"On Canada's map for thee, "Your coasts, your hills, your plains,

"Your mountains and your people sing

"So many different strains."

SWITCHED COURSES

The family's roaming ended in Perth, Ont., where the father settled permanently. Dave was 14. He went through high school there and came to Montreal in 1936 to the couple of his cousin, the late Ken Norris, then principal of Montreal's Sir George Williams University.

Les worked with grocery brokers and a paper company while attending Sir George Williams at night.

"I had a chequered career in college," he says.

He took one year of commerce, decided it wasn't his calling and took arts. Later he switched to science. But the College authorities ended abruptly when the Second World War broke out. He served variously through the war as a machine-gun instructor, federal munitions inspector and as RCAF navigator flying weather and coastal patrols on the west coast.

Discharged in 1945, he went to work with an engineering firm at $140 a week.

But one night about a year later he picked up a magazine which contained a list of job classifications for returning

Township To Build Municipal Hall

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP — At a meeting of Sidney Township council on Monday evening, at Wallbridge, it was decided to build a municipal hall and offices on lot 13, concession 4, Sidney township, as a centennial project approved the plan. So, a town hall was badly needed in the township.

Previously the councillors had visited Tweed to inspect the hall there and to study their ideas.

Sidney township Reeve Ernest Reilly, Deputy Reeve Jack Bush, councillors Horace Wright, Burrell Hamilton and Clarence Wilmot will hold a special meeting on Wednesday evening to discuss the hall plans for 1965, and on Saturday evening they will hold another special meeting to discuss tax arrears.

Byron Harder, township clerk, estimated the total vote in the last election was 28.52 per-cent.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Reverend A. Graham, protestant Chaplain at 6 R.D. Chapel, conducted an inspiring memorial service on Sunday morning. The chapel choir under the direction of Mrs. Adah Hall sang a special anthem. Group Captain C. R. Thompson delivered a stirring eulogy in honor of Sir Winston Churchill. The speaker summarized Churchill's career, writings and accomplishments, and noted that this outstanding individualist had established for himself an undoubted place in history. He spoke of his character, courage, magnificent speeches, humor, and particularity of his ability to inspire the whole nation. His death was most evident in time of war. Group Captain Thompson accepted the many kind words present in the congregation to read Churchill's book. They would be delighted with the rich tapestry of expression, lapsed into the noble tone of destiny exhibited by this great author. In conclusion reference was made to Churchill's motto — "In war - revolution: In victory - magnanimity; In defeat - defiance; In peace - good will."

COUPLES' CLUB

Twenty-two members of the Johnstown Couple's Couple's Club visited the Sons of Jacob Synagogue last week. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Harry, Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Harder, program convenors for the club, arranged to take the tour through the courtesy of Mr. Michael Levine. A rabbi from Montreal Levine was present to answer the many questions and explain the significance of the various articles in the synagogue. The group then had a business meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Harder, R.R. 5, Trenton. Lunch was served by Mrs. Percy Harder and Betty Harry. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Tripp, R.R. 5, on the 10th of February.

Council Argues Over Strength In Town's Police Dept.

CAMPBELLFORD — Councillor Dunk, reporting for Police Commission stated a letter of resignation was received from Constable Tomlison which was accepted with regret. Councillor Dunk asked for a motion to advertise for a replacement but Reeve Brown said he felt quite strongly that matters concerning administration of the police department should be the work of the police committee and that the committee after discussion should bring only recommendations to an open meeting of council. Councillor Sharp asked if council could delegate authority to a committee to act rather than bring in a recommendation to which the answer was a very definite negative.

Councillor Brown remarked a lot of ratepayers think Campbellford does not need another policeman that three policemen are sufficient for the town. —

COUNCIL RECIDE

Deputy Reeve Locke thought council should decide whether four men were needed, especially he thought not. Deputy Reeve Locke stated at the time four men were hired that Reeve Baird expressed an opinion that three was enough. As Chief Baird was present he was asked his present opinion and in reply said he would like to discuss the matter with the committee first.

Councillor Bennett asked Councillor Dunk if he had given any thought to the necessity of four men. Reeve Brown asked that the matter be referred to the Police Commission to report at the next meeting. Reeve Brown asked Chief Baird if Constable Tomlinson's equipment had been given in to which he received an affirmative reply.

Councillor Bennett asked Chief Baird why the school patrol was not functioning. Chief Baird said he felt the police had carried out all their obligations by conference with school principals, 26 pupils had been chosen, and supervision turned over to Constable Campbell. The Lions Club also are concerned in regard to providing equipment and entertainment for the patrol, the entertainment being the only compensation for standing on corners in rainy or cold weather.

Chief Baird had questioned Lion Club representatives in regard to this phase and received no satisfactory answer. The patrol has ceased to operate. Reeve Brown felt the safety patrol was most necessary and Council asked Police Commissioner Dunk to contact the Lion's Club and report at next meeting.

Deputy Reeve Locke, Finance Chairman, reported on the prepayment of taxes, plan, $11,000 had been collected, $568.50 had been discounted for prepayment leaving total collected to date of $11,276.50.

Councillor J. Torrance, Property Chairman, has not held a committee meeting and after hearing Reeve Brown's strong injunction that committees should discuss the work in committee said he had no report except in one instance that of the Campbellford Citizens' Band. Councillor Torrance reported the band seemed to have fallen apart. Instruments were scattered and that some members would like to see Instruments picked up and the band reorganized with a new election. In a stock taking of uniforms and instruments a year ago it was confirmed that thousands of dollars were tied up.

Councillor Torrance said he understood former band leader J. M. Benor was now conducting a band in Belleville. Councillor Torrence was empowered to conduct a research and bring back a report.

Councillor Sharp spoke briefly on snow removal and repairs to one sewer.

Councillor Bennett, Industrial Committee, presented a request from L.O.D.A. for the usual grant of seven cents per capita for Campbellford population of 3,673 which was accepted.

Reeve Brown, chairman of Fire, Water and Light, requested that $10. dues to Ontario Fire Chief be paid. Reeve Brown also asked that a letter which was forwarded to Campbellford Fire Department in 1964 be rescinded and letter placed on bulletin board in fire hall by Chief Cork be accepted.

The 1964 letter with restrictions regulating use of fire truck had not been accepted cordially by members of fire department and Reeve Brown wished to bring back to the department the same morale as had been held previously.

A boat bought new in 1964, only having been used three times, had been found unsatisfactory especially in recovering drowning victims so a flat bottomed boat which was requested originally replace the new boat and a 5½ H.P. motor be purchased. The new boat to be advertised and sold.

SPEED ESSENTIAL

As speed is essential in the saving of life Reeve Brown thought an outboard motor was essential equipment. Council voted unanimously in favor of selling new boat and buying a flat bottomed boat and motor.

Reeve Brown also brought to attention of council a matter of disagreement over use of certain parts of fire hall by Campbellford P.U.C. The part of the hall presently used by P.U.C. does not present to public a favorable appearance and the department feels the men here are deprived of use of this part of the building to which they are entitled. Reeve Brown said at the present time it is impossible for the department to establish any semblance of good housekeeping there and impossible to hold a meeting.

GASOLINE TAKEN

Councillor Sharp said due to equipment being there the building cannot be kept under lock and key and it was reported gasoline had been taken from tank, of fire trucks which could create serious hazard in case of fire.

The matter will be discussed by Reeve Brown and committee with members of P.U.C. at their next meeting.

Reeve Brown asked permission if necessary for Campbellford Fire Department to answer a fire call from the House of Happiness just over the boundary in Rawdon township. As the House of Happiness houses retarded children council members felt this was essential.

Reeve Brown also asked that flowers and congratulations be forwarded to the newly-opened medical clinic.

OPINION DIVIDED

Council was approached on the matter of selling the old steam engine owned by the Corporation. Opinion was divided and the matter was turnporation. Opinion was divided and the matter was turned over to the property committee.

Mayor Tanner asked that the town and Chamber of Commerce be hosts to an executive meeting of the Ontario Mayors and Reeves on February 18th. According to some ratepayers this appeared to be a precedent for any town and its value the publicity has been since questioned. Mayor Tanner said there would possibly be a banquet for from 50 to 75 people.

Clerk E. M. Ibey asked that two separate appraisals of land donated by Seymour Agricultural Society to the Campbellford Community Centre be made. The appraisals to be the value of the land as it now is, and this will be on file for future information if necessary.

Council Briefs

CAMPBELLFORD — A letter was read at Campbellford council inviting representation to the first International Conference on Regional Development. This was from the Economic and Development Department of the Government.

Presentation would be made by international experts on some methods to keep communities prosperous. Councillor Bennett gave his opinion that this was not for small communities and said there were better ways to spend local money.

A letter was read from the Canadian Legion requesting a Centennial train and caravan would be travelling over Ontario and Quebec in the interests of early community planning. Council named clerk E. M. Ibey as local chairman.

Clerk E.M. Ibey and Mayor Tanner had some time ago attended a Symposium in Toronto regarding low rental housing. Clerk Ibey said it was not a factual meeting pertinent information was not disclosed and felt that the purpose of the Symposium was to make known that the Provincial government had a sizeable amount of money to assist in many low rental housing project. If any Council were interested speakers would be sent. Campbellford Council asked for a representative to be present at the March meeting.

In reply to a request from a resident of Seymour Township to connect with sewer in Campbellford, town solicitor A. Metcalf outlined the necessary steps in regard to the responsibility of Seymour township, Campbellford Council and the report of an Engineer. Town engineer G. Totten was asked to include a profile of the profile with the profile of N. Front St. sewer which he now attended and also to include Marisot and Cromwell St. extension as well as extension to the proposed Community Centre.

Mrs. W. Jones having completed necessary details of insurance and permission from the Chief of Police was granted a taxi licence for 1965.

In further reference to purchase of new pumps through E.M.O. This was ordered last year as funds of E.M.O. were depleted and the expected 45% grant was not forthcoming. A new request has now been placed to become effective after April 1st, 1965 with Campbellford retaining previous priority and to become definite only if the E.M.O. grant is available.

Computers May Make for More Vital Classrooms

By ROB TRIMBEE

SASKATOON (CP) — Computers can put the challenge back into school work, says Dean A. D. Booth of the University of Saskatchewan's engineering faculty.

"They can help the teacher make the classroom a more vital place of learning for the student. The dull, repetitive methods now used are geared for slow learners and are having a dulling effect on other students."

Dr. Booth, an energetic supporter of computers, designed and built the second digital computer constructed in Europe while head of the department of numerical automation at Birkbeck College, University of London.

His candid comments on all areas of university life and its purpose and role in guiding community thought make him a sought-after speaker and lecturer.

A fellow of the Institute of Physics, a member of the British Institute of Radio Engineers, an honorary fellow of the Institute of Linguists, a member of the London and American Mathematical Societies and a fellow of the Royal Microscopical Society, Dr. Booth became head of engineering at Saskatchewan 18 months ago.

He has urged greater use of computers to eliminate "back breaking" problems involving mathematics, filing of data, development of new industrial and medical tools and in translating foreign texts.

HARNESS FULL ABILITY

"In the classroom, computers can be used to help provide students with the individual attention needed to keep each working at his maximum capacity without interfering with the progress of classmates," said Dr. Booth.

The classical concept now used by teachers "forces 60 per cent of the students to work at less than capacity and they suffer as a result."

"Many students are so far ahead of the pace established they become bored. The computer offers a valuable ally in solving this problem."

He suggested in an interview it would be relatively simple and economic to equip each desk with a computer. At the end of each lesson a special test, designed to measure the amount of information absorbed by the student, would be given. These would involve use of sensitized cards.

"The questions would be of the kind that involves underlining or marking the correct answer among a group of possible solutions to problems," said Dr. Booth. The cards would be checked by the individual machines and the results then run through a central computer system overnight."

The next day the "classroom teacher would be provided with the results of each student, where he had trouble and areas where additional work was required."

"No one would be pushed faster than he could absorb the material nor delayed after he had learned the lesson. The computer would help the teacher map out individual lessons for each student. The teacher in turn could devote more time counselling students when help was needed.

"This would give education more bite, make it more attractive to the student and more rewarding for the teacher.

"It's appalling how ill-prepared high school graduates are today for university education. The basic cause is the contents of high school courses designed to treat everyone in the class equally.

"This is a misguided interpretation of democracy. I believe democracy means equality of opportunity, not equality of treatment. If one student has the ability to proceed at a faster pace he has the right to do so. Those who can not keep up, should not be forced to try nor act as a brake on the more brilliant child.

"Mathematics given an 18-year — old student in North America would be considered horribly simple by a 14-year-old Englishman or Russian student."

Astrological Forecasts

By SIDNEY OMARR

For FEBRUARY 6

Aries (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19) — Provide your own inspiration. Don't fall into trap of performing tasks automatically. Work with zest, enthusiasm. Be awake—or you could sink into boring pool.

Taurus (Apr. 20 - May 20)—Be receptive to gestures of friendship. Avoid aggressive actions. Do more listening than asserting. You can make contact of lasting value. This depends on your open mind.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)—Sense of security highlights. Look to future. Avoid flashy actions. What glitters may not be of real value. Steer clear of get-rich-quick schemes. Revere loyalty in friends.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)—Look forward to stimulating contacts with those at a distance. Avoid unnecessary travel. Your practical sense comes to fore. You instinctively know real answers.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22) — Again the question of how much to spend arises. Be imaginative. Exhibit flair for drama. But avoid extravagance. Member of opposite sex may not be telling "all."

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)—Conditions appear upsetting. Many sudden changes due. Protect public image. Highlight natural elegance. Put forth effort to make family member happy.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22) — Hidden factors come to light. Be observant. Seek advice from unorthodox source. Keep mind open. Investigate, ask questions. Piece together bits of information.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)—Handle responsibility. Display ability during emergency conditions. Remain calm, collected. One in authority may propose challenge. Accept. Do your best. That will be more than sufficient!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)—Be willing to listen. But also insist on getting own point across. Be charming but firm —receptive but confident. Be sure others know you mean business.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) —Many appear bent on confusing you. The truth is that you could be confusing yourself. Concentrate on one project at a time. Otherwise forces are scattered.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) —Obtain hint from today's Capricorn message. Haste does make waste! Money matters appear anything but steady. Key is optimism. Show you can be flexible.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20) — Examine possibilities. Yesterday you received valuable clue. Analyze its implications. Check with mate or business partner. Go after knowledge! Be patient.

If Today is Your Birthday—you are loyal, practical and talented. But you must make resolution to be more confident.

General Tendencies — Strong possibility of labor difficulty due to charge of "broken contract."

Balcer Plots Strategy To Meet Dief's Move

Three PC Premiers Not to Attend Meet

BULLETIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec Conservative Leader Leon Balcer, vowing that the party's national executive should have a free hand to deal with leadership and policies, said today he will not attend Friday's caucus of Progressive Conservative MPs.

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec Conservative Leader Leon Balcer, vowing that the party's national executive should have a free hand to deal with leadership and policies, said today he will not attend Friday's caucus of Progressive Conservative MPs.

He entered the discussions after the embattled opposition leader, facing his third test of power in two years, switched dates for a parliamentary caucus where he enjoys majority support.

After Progressive Conservative President Dalton E. Camp summoned the national executive to meet Saturday to discuss the leadership, Mr. Diefenbaker called the Friday caucus. It had been scheduled for Feb. 11 and 12.

The four men mentioned as possible successors to Mr. Diefenbaker as leader of the Conservative party have not given any indication they plan to attend the Saturday executive meeting.

An aide to Premier John Robarts said:

421 Million Spent on Liquor

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario residents spent more than $421,000,000 on liquor, beer and wine during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1964, according to the annual report of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, tabled in the legislature Wednesday.

Liquor store sales totalled almost $230,000,000 and netted the provincial government $97,100,000, plus sales tax of $6,194,545.

Sales in brewers' retail stores totalled $184,184,836, and wine stores $6,456,224. The sales tax from these two sources amounted to a $2,442,541 profit to the treasury.

Liquor store sales were up 11 per cent over the previous year owing in part to a price increase.

OTTAWA BENEFITS

G. Harry Sheppard, chief commissioner of the LCBO, said the federal government received $67,095,409 in customs and excise duties and more than $12,600,000 in sales tax on imported spirits.

When $58,514,841 for malt duties and taxes on domestic wines is included in this total, the amount received by both governments works out to $247,000,000, Mr. Sheppard said.

During the year the LCBO opened up 34 stores in the province, bringing the total to 358. Two stores were closed during the year.

Convictions under the Liquor Control Act in the fiscal year were up 11, of which more than half were for drunkeness. There were 700 convictions against bootleggers.

The annual report of the liquor licence board shows that 2,623 premises were licensed up to March 31, 1964, to sell spirits. Most of these were hotels—3,115. Taverns accounted for 306, public houses for 311, veterans clubs for 280, social clubs for 307, and military messes for 153.

During the year, 198 new establishments were licenced. Eleven licences were suspended for infractions such as serving to minors or after hours and there were 52 licence cancellations because of bankruptcy and other factors.

Gambia Becomes Nation

By JOHN STEPHENS

BATHURST, Gambia (Reuters)—Tiny Gambia, Britain's oldest and last West African territory, becomes an independent nation Feb. 18, after more than 300 years of British rule.

It will become an independent constitutional monarchy, with a British - style parliamentary system headed by Prime Minister David Jawara, regarded by observers here as a forward-looking moderate.

Gambia will be an independent member of the Commonwealth.

The 4,000-square-mile territory with 320,000 people which consisted of both a colony, around Bathurst, and a protectorate in the hinterland, was the site of the first British settlement on the West African coast in 1680.

A land of luxury sub-tropical undergrowth, a gg r o v e swamps and bamboo forests, Gambia is a narrow strip of land running 100 miles inland from the Atlantic coast of either side of the Gambia River.

(AP Wirephoto by cable from London)

The strip varies in width from seven to 20 miles and is bounded on both sides by the former French colony of Senegal.

Relations with Senegal and a lack of economic resources are the two main problems that Gambia will face immediately after independence.

The country's slender resources do not cover current expenditures, making a planned budget dependent on British grants which have amounted to about $500,000 ($1,200,000) a year over the last three years.

Britain has promised to continue aid to Gambia after independence, but says according to usually reliable sources, the emphasis in future will be on loans rather than grants for projects.

The two countries have already held a series of talks on future association. All that has emerged so far, however, is a mutual defence pact and an agreement on international representation.

Kosygin Flies to Viet Nam Stopping at Peking on Way

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Premier Alexei Kosygin left today by air for North Viet Nam via Peking on a trip that may have vital repercussions on the military situation in South Viet Nam and on Sino-Soviet relations.

Official sources said he would make a stop in Peking Friday night and arrive in the North Viet Nam capital of Hanoi Saturday for a four-day visit.

Western diplomats were convinced the Kosygin visit will result in significant Russian military aid for North Viet Nam, as a warning to the United States against extending the Viet Nam conflict to the territory of the Communist regime.

Most observers in Moscow saw the visit also in a wider context as probably part of a new attempt at a "dialogue" between the Russians and Chinese.

North Viet Nam is one of Peking's ideological allies, and some believed Kosygin went there partly because it will make it possible for him to stop over in the Chinese capital. Kosygin was expected also to return to Moscow by way of China.

Some Western diplomats welcomed Kosygin's visit to North Viet Nam as showing re-establishment of a Soviet "presence" in Southeast Asia, for a long time a preserve of the Chinese.

But it was doubted that Kosygin could be making the trip without Chinese acquiescence. China also is giving military aid to North Viet Nam, and Soviet supplies would probably have to be co-ordinated logistically with the Chinese.

Johnson To Visit Russia

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Leaders of the United States and the Soviet Union will exchange visits this year, President Johnson forecast Wednesday night.

Secret talks between the two countries have settled the issue, the American leader indicated in expressing "hopes" that he can visit Russia in 1965 and meet with the new Soviet leaders in the Kremlin.

Johnson, addressing a dinner audience, first recalled his Jan. 4 state-of-the-nation message to Congress in which he had "expressed the hope that the new leadership of the Soviet Union might visit our land—and to see us, to learn first hand the determination here in America for peace and the equal determination to support freedom."

He added: "I am gratified that this expression is receiving the active, constructive—and I hope fruitful—attention of the Soviet government."

"I have reason to believe that

Queen Sees Cavalry Charge

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Ethiopia's Gala horsemen, brandishing spears and screaming their blood - curdling war cries, thundered past Queen Elizabeth today to recall dramatically Ethiopia's long history of savage tribal wars.

Their charging steeds, festooned with gold and silver traces and multi-colored saddle cloths, galloped in a great cloud of dust like a raiding regiment from the days of Genghis Khan.

The wild - eyed warriors in white jodphurs, lion's mane headdresses and animal skin cloaks, charged within yards of the royal party watching the show from beneath a crimson canopy erected in the centre of the great crowd packing Addis Ababa's Janhoy Meda race track.

Camille Henry Traded

NEW YORK (AP) — Highscoring Camille Henry has traded by New York Rangers to Chicago Black Hawks in a seven-player National Hockey League transaction.

Accompanying the 32-year-old veteran to Chicago were Ranger defenceman Doug Robinson and defenceman, and Billy Taylor, a centre, plus a player to be named later.

The fifth-place Rangers, all but mathematically eliminated from the NHL playoff contention, obtained left wingers Doug Robinson and John Brenneman and defenceman Wayne Hillman from the Hawks. Chicago is tied for fourth place with the Montreal Canadiens.

De Gaulle Seeking Change In World Monetary System

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle called today for a new world monetary system founded on something more than the U.S. dollar and the pound sterling.

The president, addressing a semi-annual press conference, said the present system, which relies chiefly on the U.S. dollar no longer corresponds with the real situation in the world.

"Circumstances have changed," he said, "and France wants the system changed so that a fundamental lack of balance shall cease."

De Gaulle recalled that France last fall proposed a change in the world's monetary system, during a meeting of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) at Tokyo. This proposal was that world trade be conducted on the basis of a new unit of account, in turn based on the currencies of 10 principal trading nations.

De Gaulle today, however, asserted that gold should be the ultimate basis.

"Exchanges ght to be realized on an indisputable monetary base, on something which does not carry the imprint of any one country. What such a base be? There is no criterion other than gold which has no nationality."

Troops Loyal to Laos Premier Appear in Control of Capital

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—Troops loyal to neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma appeared in virtual control of Vientiane, administrative capital of Laos, early today after fighting in the streets with Parliamentary police supporting right-wing Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

More army units were reported on the way to reinforce the troops under the command of Gen. Kopurasith Abhay. Two new companies reached Vientiane from southern Laos.

But Phoumi, whose desire to recover lost military power was said to be the cause of the revolt, threatened a counter-attack.

The movement of army units into the administrative capital caused fears that Communist Pathet Lao might take advantage of the disorganization of government forces to try to drive them from the northeastern province of Sam Neua.

Pathet Lao forces were reported Tuesday to be in a position there for a heavy push against government troops.

(Reliable informants in Thailand reported no new fighting today in Vientiane, The Associated Press said.

(Eight persons were known killed and 38 others wounded in the fighting Wednesday before Abhay's forces put down the revolt of some 800 dissidents.

(The U.S. and Thai Embassy in Vientiane said there was some minor damage. A Thai embassy official was among the dead. None of the 1,000 Americans in the capital was believed hurt.

(The last uncorrupted report in Bangkok said foreign correspondents in Vientiane had been arrested.

(Thai officials said nearly 10,000 persons fled Laos and sought refuge in the Nongkhai area of northern Thailand. Premier Thanom Kittikachorn flew to the border town today for a personal inspection.)

The rebel leader, Col. Bounlet Syvoata, headed an unsuccessful army uprising Sunday night. A U.S. spokesman said that he switched to the loyalist side in Wednesday's fighting.

Thousands Flee Tidal Wave After Aleutian Earthquake

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) A powerful earthquake jolted the western islands of Alaska's Aleutian chain Wednesday night touching off a tidal wave that sent thousands fleeing from Pacific Ocean coastal areas.

There were no casualties reported.

The Alaska command here said the quake opened minor cracks in taxiways and masonry buildings at an air force station on Shemya Island. Other military installations in the Aleutians escaped damage.

The quake occurred at 7:06 p.m. Alaska standard time (12:06 a.m. EST). Its centre was at Amchitka, about 100 miles east of Shemya.

Ontario Shuffle Puts Belleville In Quinte Riding

City, Trenton, Sidney, Frankford Form Unit

TORONTO (CP)—A redrawing of Ontario's ridings, adding nine more provincial seats, was recommended to the legislature Wednesday.

Representation in the legislature will be increased to 117 from 108, said a report from the three-man Ontario redistribution commission.

Thirteen new ridings will be formed, but four others will be lost in the proposed shuffle.

Premier Robarts said legislation will be introduced in the house in the next few days to implement the commission's report.

Mr. Robarts said he was not surprised by the major changes recommended in most riding boundaries because of population changes.

"Whether it helps or hinders the Conservative party is something only the next election will tell," he said, "but the soundness of his own seat of London North have been revised.

WILL HELP

Opposition Leader Andrew Thompson, whose Toronto Dovercourt riding will be enlarged, said "In some cases it will help us. But I've heard considerable dissatisfaction from some members."

Northern Ontario will gain three new ridings and six will be scattered throughout the rest of the province.

Two ridings will be created in the Niagara Peninsula. The area north of Ontario between Toronto and Hamilton will also gain two ridings.

Single ridings will be created in the Chatham - Windsor area, Hamilton, suburban Toronto, Kitchener, Ottawa and Ottawa.

In the north, ridings will be gained by the Lakehead, Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury.

The ridings dropped in Toronto are Bracondale, Bellwoods and Woodbine. The representative of Bellwoods is Provincial Treasurer John P. Yaremko. North of Metropolitan Toronto, the huge riding of York North is divided in two—York North and York Centre.

In the Lake Huron area, four ridings — Bruce, Huron, Perth, Grey South and Huron Bruce—are reduced to three — Grey-Bruce, Huron-Bruce and Grey South.

In the Niagara Peninsula, three ridings — Lincoln, Welland and Niagara Falls — are expanded to four by moving existing ones plus St. Catharines and, Lincoln-Welland.

In the Windsor - Chatham area, the ridings of Kent West and Kent East are replaced by three ridings—Chatham, Essex-Kent and Kent.

Countless ridings throughout

Although a total of nine seats would be added to the Legislature, the number of Hastings seats would remain the same as result of the proposed redistribution of seats now before the Ontario house.

Under the bill the two present ridings—East and West Hastings—would disappear, to be replaced by a Quinte riding, taking in Belleville and Trenton, the township of Sidney, and Frankford with the balance of the county to be known simply as "Hastings."

In effect the proposed new Quinte riding could be termed an urban riding taking in concentrated populated sections of the county, with a population of 55,000 while the new Hastings riding would be predominantly rural with a population of approximately 35,000.

The riding redistribution would not take effect until the next provincial election.

Mr. W. Wendy Hender-cock, now deputy speaker for the Ontario Legislature, is the sitting member for Hastings West, while Clarke T. Rollins is the Hastings East member.

Under the present riding division, both East and West Hastings are the entire length of the county, East Hastings takes in 16 townships and West Hastings eight townships, plus Belleville and Trenton.

Wants Parley On UN Future

PARIS (Reuters) — French President Charles de Gaulle proposed a five-nation conference including Communist China to re-establish "the equilibrium of the United Nations."

De Gaulle said the UN had infringed on its own legality and this resulted in a loss of prestige and was responsible for the current UN crisis.

He proposed a meeting of the representatives of the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and Communist China to reverse the trend—an understanding in this matter."

He said the UN's "equilibrium" could be restored if the world organization returned to its charter, and that this needed an agreement among the five countries.

De Gaulle made the proposal at a press conference today at which, in departure from his usual practice, he read a prepared statement but called for questions from reporters.

The press conference lasted one hour and 15 minutes.

Premier, Jailer's Wife Disagree On Stories About Girl, 16, in Jail

NEWCASTLE, N.B. (CP) — The jailer of the Northumberland County jail says a young girl, held at the jail since last fall, spent most of her time in a cell located about six feet from the men's quarters.

Edward Touchie said in an interview Wednesday night the girl was in the cell "some days all day." It contained a sink, toilet and bed.

He said about 10 to 25 men usually occupied the jail's other cells but "they never bothered her."

County council Tuesday heard of the girl's confinement in a report from the jail committee and asked the attorney-general's department for an explanation.

Premier Robichaud, in a statement in Fredericton Wednesday, said reports that the 16-year-old was being held in the jail without a charge having been placed are "without foundation."

He said the girl, now in a campbellton, N.B., hospital will after a reported suicide attempt, had been a permanent ward of the Children's Aid Society since 1958. She was committed to the Good Shepherd Home for Girls in Halifax in June, 1964, on application from the court.

The premier's statement said the girl proved incorrigible while at the Halifax institution and was sentenced to two months in Halifax city prison when she was convicted of a criminal offence.

He said she was later transferred to the county jail here at the request of the director of the Good Shepherd Home.

Mr. Robichaud said the Children's Aid Society and the provincial department of youth and welfare made efforts to place the girl elsewhere.

Mean while arrangements were made to have the Northumberland County jailer and his wife take the girl into their home under the premier's statement said. The girl was to be kept separate from adult prisoners and confined in the women's quarters of the jail during the night.

The jailer's wife, in an interview Wednesday, denied that arrangements had been made to take the girl into their foster care.

"Nobody ever came to us to make those arrangements," Mrs. Touchie said. "Out of the goodness of our hearts we brought her up to our apartment to make the time go faster for her."

Mrs. Touchie said the girl was taken to her apartment from time to time during afternoon and occasionally in the evenings but there were no regular visits.

"She was a good worker and did things around the house."

Today's Chuckle

One of the first things a boy learns with a new girl friend is that he isn't likely to get another one.

Arrests Mount To 2,000 in Selma, Ala.

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—Arrests have mounted to more than 2,000 in an expanding Negro voter-registration drive aimed at shattering the white political monopoly in rural Alabama.

Negroes planned more marches today as fellow-worker Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is in jail, and in Marion, a small town 30 miles to the west.

Nearly 800 demonstrators were jailed Wednesday in Selma and Marion. The swelling numbers forced authorities to house overflowers at a state prison camp near here and a jail in Thomaston, Ala.

Negro students released from custody said Wednesday night they were kept in unheated and unlighted cells. Police denied this. The justice department said it would investigate.

Still other Alabama cities and towns are targets in the massive campaign that King started 17 days ago to dramatize the voter registration effort in counties where Negroes outnumber white residents but comprise only a fractional part of the voting strength.

MY LEGAL BLOCKS

King's forces met legal obstacles at state and federal levels Wednesday. U.S. District Judge Daniel Thomas of Mobile turned down a request for an order compelling the Dallas County board of registrars to register more often.

The board has scheduled sessions for two days this month. Thomas also refused to issue an order preventing city police from interfering with demonstrations under a parade ordinance.

King was arrested Monday for parading without a permit.

State Judge James Hare in Selma issued an order banning any assembly or demonstration on the courthouse grounds in the immediate vicinity. Negro leaders said they would ignore the order.

More than 860 Negro students walked to the courthouse and staged a singing demonstration before they were marched to temporary jail facilities at a building formerly used as an armory.

Approximately 400 Negro students went to jail in Marion for a similar demonstration.

The voter drive in Marion Monday in Marion and about 300 Negroes sought to take voter tests; 109 did so.

Johnson's Aide Begins Round Of Conferences

SAIGON (AP) — President Johnson's aide began a round of conferences today after arriving in the South Vietnam capital to push the United States remains committed to the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

Ambassador Bundy, Johnson's foreign policy adviser, is on a fact-finding trip to study South Viet Nam's political strife and war against the Viet Cong.

Even as he spoke, however, Buddhist and other pressure groups threatened new anti-government demonstrations next week. Premier Nguyen Khanh today had brought a lull in the war and disorders.

In addition to conferences with top U.S. officials, Bundy was expected to confer with strongman Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

Reports spread in Saigon that the Buddhists might stage more street demonstrations in an effort to oust Khanh in the belief Khanh regime who helped put down Buddhist demonstrations last August.

There were fears also that members of the Hoa Hoas, a militant quasi - religious sect, were planning demonstrations with some extremist Roman Catholic elements, against Khanh in support of deposed premier Tran Van Huong.

U.S. officials said had no word on the fate of Gustav Hertz, U.S. Information Agency man who disappeared Tuesday on a motorbike outing and presumed captured by the Viet Cong.

Balcer

barts said Wednesday the Ontario premier will not attend, and two other Conservative premiers — Duff Roblin of Manitoba and Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia — may or may not attend. But Mr. Robbin added that he usually doesn't attend national executive meetings.

Davie Fulton, British Columbia Conservative leader and former federal cabinet minister, was unavailable for comment.

Mr. Balcer would not name the persons he came to meet here, and offered a "no comment" to those who would attend Friday's caucus.

Mr. Balcer's criticism of Mr. Diefenbaker's politics and statements about Quebec and its role in Confederation withdrawn support from some English - speaking Conservatives.

One — Heath Macquarrie (Queens), criticized the calling of the caucus for Friday, saying that many English-speaking members defended the decision.

Mr. Macquarrie said it would be "presumptuous" for the caucus to decide on leadership and policy questions before the executive meetings.

NUCLEAR GIVEN VIEW

Erik Nielsen (Yukon), said it was "childish" to boycott the Friday meeting and said discussions of policy and leadership should be conducted behind closed doors instead of in public.

Gordon Churchill, Conservative house leader, said the caucus would give the pro- and anti- Diefenbaker members an opportunity to voice their views.

Four Quebec members— Georges Valade (Montreal Ste. Marie), Heward Grafftey (Brome - Missisquoi), Rene Paul (Berthier - Maskinonge - Delanaudiere) and Clement Vincent (Nicolet-Yamaska) — said they did not plan to attend the caucus.

Mr. Valade said a Friday caucus was "improper pressure" on the executive.

Gerard Laprise (Romouski) was the only one of the 10 Quebec MPs definitely planning to attend. The others were undecided.

WON TWICE

Mr. Diefenbaker defeated a cabinet revolt two years ago over the nuclear weapons issue and a year ago won an overwhelming oral vote of confidence in party circuits who wanted a secret ballot on his leadership were ruffled.

The weekend's meetings, however, are considered as special for the Conservative party as for Mr. Diefenbaker.

Many English-speaking members feel the Conservatives can not regain power without an accommodation on issues affecting Quebec. A complete defeat of any compromise on policy questions could force Mr. Balcer to make good his threat to bolt the party to all as an independent.

A vote for a leadership convention would leave the party in an uncertain position until Mr. Diefenbaker was either confirmed or rejected.

Business Heads Plan Expansion

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's major business leaders have planned a 20-per-cent increase in capital investment by 1966 over 1963 levels and indicate the new spending continues to the end of the decade.

This information was gathered in a survey of 1,000 rapidly developing industries, conducted by the Economic Council of Canada.

The survey differs from the annual outlook of private and public investment and its mid-year review, prepared by the federal government and the bureau of statistics, in that the special survey covers only some companies, not the whole economy, and looks to the longer-range future.

Chosen for the survey were those companies considered likely to be making the largest capital expenditures in new plant and equipment between 1963 and 1966. Utilities were given first attention since they are the highest-spending group and by the nature of their business, have to make long-range plans.

Most of the other firms surveyed were ones which appeared to be entering major development stages, such as paper, chemical, steel, automotive, petroleum, and mining.

The survey was made in mid-1965. Eighty-one firms supplied information. They estimated they accounted for 50.5 per cent of total business capital expenditures in Canada, including that made in agriculture, institutional services and housing.

Using the 1963 investment level as an index of 100, the survey found that the capital expenditure plans reach an index of 131.0.

After that, in the years 1967 through 1970, there is a falling off of the survey, but the author of the report, R. M. Keys, says virtually none of the companies are as far as they viewed expect a down - turn. Their definite planning simply hasn't extended much beyond 1966.

The figures show that "significantly greater growth is anticipated" in capital investment on new machinery and equipment than on construction, both during the period to 1966 and in the more tentative forecasts for 1967-1970.

In 1963, the year on which the surveys are based, total business capital investment in machinery and equipment was $1,387,000,000 in construction.

"Financing the proposed capital expenditures is not expected to pose any serious problems," the report says. "Retained earnings and depreciation are expected to continue to provide the major sources of funds for most of the programs.

"Those companies expecting to need outside financing virtually all plan to look to borrowing to meet as much of their requirements as possible. For the most part they intend to retain the bulk of the Canadian capital market but indicated a readiness to employ U.S. sources if the terms offered more favorable terms or conditions.

"In a number of instances, predominantly in the field of resource development, financing is planned in the form of advances from foreign parent companies. Few of the firms interviewed, with the exception of some of the utilities, contemplate financing in the form of additional equity."

Water Pressure Off 4 Hours in Downtown Area

Apartment dwellers and business places along Front Street, Dundas Ave., and Bridge Street, were without water pressure for almost four hours yesterday after a downtown fire hydrant was broken off during snow removal operations.

Early yesterday morning a city grader or snowplow was said to have caught the hydrant tipping it over at the ground level. Only a minor leak developed but utilities officials decided that repairs should be commenced.

Residents were warned to draw water enough to last while pressure was off but repairs took longer than expected and some ran out of water before pressure was back shortly before one o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Found Product Stuck Legs Together

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto department-store manager recently bought home a new glue-type product designed to hold up stockings without a garter belt and persuaded his teen - age daughter to test it.

The girl had a number of problems with it, her father reported Wednesday.

Once, shortly after putting on her stockings, she went out and found her legs stuck together.

When she applied too much glue her other clothes stuck to her legs and when she perspired the stockings came loose and tumbled round her ankles.

And on the occasions the glue did its job properly, she had an awful time pulling her stockings loose from her skin.

Oust Biologist Lysenko From Genetics Post

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Professor Trofim Lysenko, the Russian biologist whose theories on heredity caused worldwide controversy, has been relieved as head of the Institute of Genetics, an institute spokesman said today.

The spokesman answered telephone questions following a vigorous attack on Lysenko by the president of the Academy of Sciences, Academician Mstislav Keldysh, in today's issue of the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

In his annual report to the Academy of Sciences, Keldysh said a group of biologists headed by Lysenko had caused a lag in Soviet genetics.

Keldysh said Lysenko, a former protege of Stalin, denied highly important achievements in genetics and used administrative measures to establish mistaken views.

CALLS FOR CAUTION

He cautioned against rejecting indiscriminately everything Lysenko had done, but still said the exclusive position he occupied must not be allowed to continue.

Lysenko had come under increasing fire in Russia since former premier Khrushchev's replacement in October.

One accusation was that faked figures were used to support his theories on how to increase wheat crops, and that Soviet agriculture sustained "colossal losses" from his rejection of hybrid corn because it did not fit in with his theories.

Lysenko became prominent under Stalin when he contended that heredity can be changed artificially, a claim regarded as heretical by traditional geneticists.

Lysenko developed the theory, originally propounded by Ivan Michurin, a Czarist biologist, that hereditary changes in plants can be induced by environmental influences.

Unregistered Stock Sent Through Mails

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — John Christopher Doyle, a leading Canadian businessman, pleaded guilty Wednesday in U.S. District Court to a charge of unlawfully sending unregistered stock through the United States mails for sale or delivery after sale.

U.S. Attorney Jon O. Newman said he planned to drop three other similar charges against Doyle at the time of sentencing, which will be at a date to be fixed some three to four weeks from now.

Doyle, a resident of St. John's, Nfld., is chairman of the Board of Canadian Javelin, Ltd., a mining concern.

The specific charge against him deals with the mailing of 25 shares of Canadian Javelin Ltd., common capital stock on July 29, 1957, to Dr. Anthony Cipriano of New Haven, although at that time the mining firm had not filed a certificate of registration with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

In response to questions by Judge T. Emmet Clarie Wednesday, Doyle said he was entering the guilty plea voluntarily and with full knowledge that the maximum penalty for the offence is five years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

The tidal wave alert in Japan was called off at 9 p.m. (7 a.m. EST). The highest tides measured were 19 inches at Ofunato.

An emergency meeting of RCMP, civil defence and civic officials was called in Fort Alberni, B.C., shortly after midnight.

The meeting was considering possible evacuation of residents living in low-lying areas of the valley where a tidal wave hit 10 months ago causing millions of dollars damage.

The meeting was understood to have recommended the evacuation of Tofino, a community 50 miles west of Vancouver.

The U.S. Coast Guard told RCMP here a tidal wave from the quake would hit the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The Legion Triumphs

Monday evening the Deseronto branch of the Royal Canadian Legion presented the Town Council with a flag, the new maple leaf design.

This would have been a praiseworthy gesture if it had been unique. The really important thing is that it is not unique, that another Legion branch had made a similar presentation earlier and that the Dominion president of the Legion, writing in the organization's magazine, "The Legionnary" has called on Legion branches and Legion members to "accept and respect" Canada's new flag.

When one remembers that Legion members were amongst the most vocal, (one might also say bitter), in their opposition to discarding the Red Ensign as our flag, the full import of this stand becomes plain for all Canadians.

These men, who preserved their country and its flag on the field of battle, are providing all Canadians with another example of true patriotism. Once again they are stressing the fact that we all owe a duty to our country, that it is a democracy in which the majority rules and that, if the system is to be preserved, we must all accept the decisions reached by our elected representatives and abide by them.

We congratulate the Legion, and its Dominion president, Fred O'Brecht, for the sentiments expressed in The Legionary.

We doubly congratulate the Deseronto branch, and others like it, which undertake to translate fair words into graphic action, the meaning of which cannot be misunderstood.

We hope this lesson is not lost on others who, like the Legionnaires, wished to retain the Red Ensign.

The time for debating the flag issue is past. The decision has been made. What is needed now is for all to accept this decision, without complaint and without gloating, and to move on to the consideration of other problems, so that our flag can stand for something important, for a land without petty strife, well-ruled, caring for the needs of its aged, infirm and underprivileged and mindful, too, of its responsibility in assisting other less fortunate nations to attain a similar standard of good government and prosperity.

Short Measure

Twelve ounces equal a pound, but twelve ounces do not equal a pint, even in the U.S. measure.

Those pints of beer you consume are short measure—four ounces short if you are willing to settle for a U.S. pint and a full eight ounces below the Imperial drinker's measure.

These sad thoughts are generated by the announcement that the Liquor Control Board of Ontario is offering a bargain—short-lived, one may be sure—in Scotch whisky. While the supply lasts, 26-ounces which contain 26 2/3 ounces will be sold for the price of bottles containing 25 ounces, which is what the 26-ounces normally contains in the shortweighted world of the Ontario consumer of alcoholic beverages.

Remember those old 40-ounces? They really contained 40 ounces, which was two whole imperial pints. One full quart. Nowadays, anybody speaking about a quart of liquor is talking about a 26-ounce, which contains 25 ounces, unless it is one of the last more-than-honest bottles of Scotch, which contains 26 2/3 ounces.

Confused. So are we; all these ounces and—

Oh, you are still worrying about those 12 ounces equalling a pound? Well it's true, twice over. Apothecaries weight and Troy weight. Only avoirdupois weight avoirdupois 16 full ounces.

Dust Is Doomed

A Vancouver man has designed an electronic air purifier which sells for $150 and which can be installed in the cold air return of almost any forced-air furnace.

Not only does it purify the air, but it also provides a bonus. By retaining the dust, it eliminates, or at least drastically reduces, the familiar chore of dusting.

As long as the purifier's operation is tied in with the use of the furnace, it would appear to have one major drawback. There are going to be a lot of very hot, or dusty, summers.

The air purifier, though, is in its infancy, if its inventor, Stan Williamson, is correct.

Some day, he says, cities will purify their air and the smog which is now a familiar part of city life in many parts of the world will be a thing of the past.

We have only one question—what happens if a strong wind is blowing the day the works department cleans out the city's air purifying system?

Ottawa Offbeat
Pleasant Pearson Casts Spell On Parliamentary Press Corps

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It will probably shake your conception of what fiction and film writers traditionally have presented as "the typical hard-boiled newspaperman" to learn that the Parliamentary Press Gallery in the Capital is decidedly "soft" on Prime Minister Pearson.

Certainly most of the 120 or so press, radio and television reporters and commentators like the prime minister so much as a man, if not always or often as a politician, that not only do they hesitate to ask a tough or nasty question — they just don't.

The man is so personally likeable that even those who pride themselves as objective, let-the-facts-fall-where-they-may inquisitors find themselves shying away from what are known, in the prime minister's view, to be "sensitive areas."

And these days, with this scandal and that Government embarrassment, this judicial enquiry and that RCMP investigation, more areas seem "sensitive" than not.

In what could be a sense of guilt at letting personal considerations play such a part in their working relations with the prime minister, some reporters, in self-conscious mock, refer to themselves — as to others — as "Pearson Pussycats."

NOT THAT, PLEASE!

Case in point was the way the prime minister's two press conferences were handled when he flew into the Capital from his Florida vacation.

The first was held at Uplands Air Terminal and as the prime minister came down the ramp, his press secretary, Richard O'Hagan, suggested that questions be confined to whatever might arise from Mr. Pearson's home-coming statement.

As it happened, there really wasn't much in the statement on which to base questions. The prime minister had enjoyed a good holiday, had come home refreshed, was looking forward to a constructive session of Parliament, and that was about it.

At the back of every reporter's mind were the rumors, current for weeks, that Quebec Liberal Minister Lucien Cardin's Dupuis had resigned, was resigning, or would be asked to resign because, as he blame-lit later was to explain, of stories that he might be involved in what he referred to as "a scandalous affair involving application for a race track" in his constituency.

But nobody asked the prime minister about it, in fact, no mention was made of anything having to do with the approaching re-organization of the Cabinet in the wake of the questionable ministerial furniture deals, the continuing sensation of evidence before the Dorion Commission and investigations into strange happenings in the Immigration Department.

Then there was the second press conference, this one in Press Secretary O'Hagan's office in the East Block across the corridor from the prime minister's working quarters.

KEEP IT SHORT

Again from Mr. O'Hagan came the suggestion that questions be confined, this time to plans and the schedule for raising the new flag on Parliament Hill and across the country.

The prime minister was in a hurry, it was explained, and there wouldn't have time to answer a lot of questions in other fields of interest.

And that is the way it turned out.

Plans for the flag were discussed, a couple of other "nothing" questions asked, and the press conference was over.

Again, almost a point was made of not asking anything about the Dupuis resignation reports — although everybody in the Capital, including even the Parliament Hill char staff was aware of them — and no mention was made of other rapidly approaching Cabinet changes.

When the prime minister finally broke the Dupuis story, again there was a kid-glove treatment of him — except for one-freshman reporter who startled everybody, not the least Mr. Pearson, with the first "tough" or "nasty" question in weeks: "Any more Cabinet resignations coming?"

No, the prime minister replied.

"Who asked that question?" the rest of the press wanted to the prime minister's staff, equally surprised, wanted to know, as if the startled freshman reporter had been guilty of some affront.

It is strange — and this correspondent is no less lacking than others — that it is so difficult, though not impossible, to ask hard, tough, unpleasant questions of this so personally pleasant prime minister.

Strictly Personal
People Always Run From Reality

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: What the English language needs most of all is a neuter word meaning "his or her"; we are the only major language lacking this convenient symbol, which accounts for so many unclear and ungrammatical sentences.

A family isn't really established until it can boast of the skeletons in its ancestral closet rather than trying to conceal them.

Portraits of those hideously plump little cherubs with wings ought to be banned from religious art; they are absurdly contrary to all theological thinking about the nature of angels, and they damage the cause of religion by converting spiritual ideas into physical monstrosities.

The mistake of the bad person lies in convincing himself that "goodness" does not matter; not the mistake of the good person lies in believing that there is only one kind of goodness — his kind.

I emphatically agree with a passage in Theodore Haecker's "Journal in the Night" where he says: "There is scarcely a wrong with a man who is only partly humorous, or is only humorous at times, for humor ought to be a yeast, working through the whole of a man and not leavening it."

Half the trouble in the world is caused by people who are trying to run away from reality; and the other half is caused by people who are trying to force their version of reality on the rest of us.

In life, as in poker, nobody should play for stakes he cannot afford; for the winning player is almost always the man who can take his losses casually, without letting his fears upset his calculation of the odds or chances.

Those famous "citizens' committees" and "library boards" which are so fond of banning books for alleged indecency ought to be reminded regularly that when "Huckleberry Finn" was published, the Committee of the Public Library of Concord, Mass. — where some of the greatest writers of the century lived — banned it as "trash and suitable only for the slums." It is now universally recognized as perhaps the greatest novel ever written in America.

There is a great moral for mothers in the myth of the Achilles' heel — for it was the one part of her son's body she clung to in her effort to render him immune from harm that eventually proved his undoing.

When we condemn the ordinary citizen for lack of vision, it might be good to remember that Thomas Edison himself, in 1920, declared that the Wright brother's airplane "would never be of practical use or success commercially."

Histoplasmosis Caused By Fungus—Attacks Lungs

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently my child had a pre-school examination, including a skin test for histoplasmosis which reacted positively. My doctor tells me this indicates only a sensitivity and is nothing to be concerned about, but I am worried because the nurse told me histoplasmosis can be a fatal disease. What does this sensitivity mean? Are there any preventive measures? What is the prognosis?—J. O.

Several other inquiries about histoplasmosis have come to me.

It is a far more prevalent condition than might be supposed, in view of the number of people who have never heard of it.

It is caused by a fungus, and the majority of cases are of the pulmonary type — that is, the fungus attacks the lungs.

Only a fairly short time ago there was still a widely-used reference book which called histoplasmosis "a fatal disease." This has been corrected.

Studies in the last few years have proved that there are thousands of cases which pass unnoticed, and others noticed but not recognized. Like influenza and other diseases, "histo" can be fatal — but most cases clear up, or may be quite mild.

I suspect that the reason for the "fatal" designation was that, in past years, the disease was identified only in the most severe cases, and not even suspected in the thousands of mild cases.

In a severe case, there is scarring of the lungs as in tuberculosis, and the rest of the symptoms are the same, too: elevated temperature, could loss of weight, anemia. X-rays can be indistinguishable from TB. But — and this is important — a skin test will show which organism the patient has come in contact with, the histo fungus, or (with the tuberculin test) the TB germ.

A positive test of either type does not mean that the person has the disease, only that he has come in contact with it. You could say the test shows the body has, by that contact, become sensitized in that it will react. In either case (histo or TB) such a positive test means only that you should be reasonably alert for any further signs of the disease. But there may never be any development of it.

In our very searching study after histo had been noted among children in a certain area, old and small "lung spots" were found in large numbers. The children had had what was assumed to be "flu" or "a hard cold," but actually it was histo. They got over it, and except for that study, nobody would ever have known.

Histo, in mild form, can occur, and end, without any symptoms at all. At the opposite extreme, if lung tissue has been badly damaged, that portion can be removed surgically.

I know of no preventive. But the percentage of serious cases is quite small, fortunately. Exact method of the spread of the fungus is still subject to more studies, but we do know that the spores of the fungus often have been found in dust, such as fields, playgrounds, chicken yards, etc.

I'm glad to hear of more skin tests being made in areas where the fungus is known to have been found (it is more common in some localities than others) but histoplasmosis certainly does not warrant panic.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had a gas refrigerator for 13 years, but today someone told me that it might poison my food. Is this true? — C. G.

No. Just another one of the crazy stories that keep cropping up even in this age of supposed science.

Note to R. V.: Aspermatism means that the male sperm is not present. Without the presence of these cells, reproduction is impossible.

The Knockers

St. Mary's Journal-Argus — It takes more than one or two citizens to make a town successful in attracting new industries and to encourage the growth of existing plants . . . it is up to the whole body of citizens. One knocker can undo the work of many boosters. If you have been critical of those who have been trying to improve the local industrial situation, it is time you stopped being a knocker and turned your beefing into positive action to see what can be done in meeting the situation.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Feb. 4th, 1945

Proof is the old saying . . . "It pays to advertise," was proven on Monday following a news item in the Ontario Intelligencer, through the police news a resident of Picton reported the loss of a new pair of skis and poles, which were taken from in front of the London Lunch on Saturday night. The news item was published on Monday afternoon and observed by a local citizen that evening. The article proved to him just how his 10-year-old son and his chum came into possession of a pair of skis and poles. The boys carried the skis and poles home Saturday night, informing their parents they had "found them on the street." The skis and poles were given to police and were sent to Picton. So it does pay to advertise.

From our file copy at this time is learned that John Lancombe of this city has been awarded the contract to demolish the building and site of the burned St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here and to remove the debris. The building of the new church will commence soon.

Mr. Hector J. Poste of the Ritchie Store is in New York City on a business trip for the store.

Mrs. Edward Ling and daughter left today for St. Louis, Mo., where they will spend the balance of the winter.

At a meeting of the members of the fire committee in the city council which was held last evening, Captain William J. Brown of No. 1 Company, was recommended to be appointed chief of the fire department to succeed the late Chief William Campbell. Captain Brown has been connected with the fire department for many years and he is spoken in every way of performing the duties of chief.

False Economy

Charlottetown Guardian

Turning out the lights, advocated in the White House by President Johnson as an economy measure, may not save the government after all. The Detroit News reports that after a similar "lights out" campaign in New York, an electric industry spokesman pointed out that turning out fluorescent lighting might be more costly than leaving it on. What happens is that the life of the installation is shortened because of the extra "start" it needs when turned on.

Chief Justice Takes Accident Case From Jury

TORONTO (CP) — A lawyer poured water on a raincoat and caused a jury to be dismissed Wednesday.

Chief Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court said he regretted discharging the jury. It was another example showing why serious arguing out of traffic accidents shouldn't be tried before juries, he said.

Robert Montgomery spread the water on the coat to show how it would make the coat darker and more difficult to see at night.

Chief Justice Gale then told the jurors the color of the coat was a vital element in evidence and there was a chance they might be prejudiced by what they had seen. He said the lawyer had acted wrongly.

STRUCK BY CAR

The case involved William McCann, 22, of Glace Bay, N.S., who was struck by a car here Sept. 20, 1962. He was seriously injured.

After the coat-emptying demonstration, Peter Cory, McCann's lawyer, moved to dismiss the jury, saying evidence showed it was raining only slightly—if at all — when the accident occurred.

Mr. Montgomery apologized. Chief Justice Gale dismissed the jury and took over the case.

He ruled motorist John Moore, 33, of Toronto, 90 per cent to blame and ordered him to pay $6,000 and costs.

The chief justice remarked that he had had to dismiss the jury during the last three civil trials he had handled.

Difference Between Premier, Minister Aired in House

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec legislature heard Wednesday about a difference of opinion between Premier Lesage and a minister over the province's liquor board strike.

A British Columbia minister was asked to resign, and Newfoundland Premier Smallwood said nearly all persons who attended a reception in his province for Prime Minister Pearson last September gave "gate-crashers."

In the Quebec house, Rene Levesque, natural resources minister, said he had advised union leaders to continue the liquor board strike. Premier Lesage had previously asked the strikers to return to work, after which they would receive "generous benefits."

Francis Boudreau of the Union Nationale moved a vote of censure charging the government with mishandling negotiations with strikers. The motion was defeated 56 to 21.

In British Columbia, New Democratic Party member Anthony Gargrave accused Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell of unconstitutional and illegal acts and suggested he resign.

Mr. Gargrave charged Mr. Campbell had admitted that he approved mergers in two B.C. municipal areas "knowing he had no authority at common law or under the Municipal Act."

Fraser, Social Crediter Alex Matthew asked the government to provide clinics where drug addicts could obtain free treatment.

Premier Smallwood said 300 guests were invited to meet Mr. Pearson but that 1,200 showed up. And, he complained they drank 700 bottles of liquor. All in all, Mr. Smallwood said, the party cost the province $6,700.

Powerful Incentives Lie Behind Johnson's Effort To Keep Peace With Egypt

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Some powerful incentives including American oil interests lie behind President Johnson's determination to prevent relations with President Nasser of Egypt from sliding any farther than they have all—for the time being at least.

Hence the determined efforts now afoot to get a final $37,000,000 worth of the surplus farm produce to Egypt under an expiring three-year agreement.

Earlier, the House of Representatives had voted to block this aid as a sign of displeasure at recent Egyptian acts including aid to the Congolese rebels, burning of an American flag—and Nasser's angry intervention in the U.S. to jump into the Mediterranean with its foreign aid.

Nasser in turn has been contributing to an easing of tensions and tempers.

The Senate committee was told that while relations with Egypt have been "anything but satisfactory," the Middle East pipeline is the most dangerous situation which will require great presidential flexibility.

In other words, in the Middle East and other trouble spots, the president wants all the elbow room he can get unhampered by rigid congressional curbs and edicts.

He does not want to worsen a situation which has such an important bearing on The Congo and Cyprus and on the extent of Communist subversion and infiltration pressures throughout that continent.

HUGE OIL STAKE

At the dollars-and-cents level, American oil interests continue to have a high stake in being able to pump out Middle East oil and move through the Suez Canal.

Further, in the eyes of the U.S. state department, there does not seem to be much propaganda value in cutting off surpluses of food to a country whose expanding population sometimes is hard-pressed to find an adequate diet.

But at the same time, the president's message has had to be couched in language leaving the door open to cut off this final piece of aid as well as any further longer - term arrangement that might be contemplated.

The odds now appear to be against such further action.

However, the pressures remain strong within Congress to signify in a real way the discontent in the U.S. about continuing aid to less-than-friendly beneficiaries.

In the case of Nasser and the United Arab Republic, this latest episode also reflects the strong pockets of anti-Arab sentiment arising from Arab antipathy for Israel.

Ontario

the province undergo changes in their boundaries and their names.

In the Hamilton area, five ridings are judged to make six. The names which disappear are Hamilton - Wentworth and Wentworth East. They are replaced by Wentworth North, Hamilton West and Hamilton South.

Moving north and east, the old riding of Halton is divided in two, Burlington and Oakville are the new ones.

RIDING SPLIT

Peel riding, represented by Education Minister William Davis, also is divided — into Peel North and Peel South.

The Oshawa area also gains a new riding—Ontario South, which is fashioned from parts of the existing Ontario and Oshawa ridings.

The only change in actual number of seats in eastern Ontario is in Ottawa, where Ottawa Centre is added to Ottawa South, Ottawa West and Ottawa East.

However, Carleton riding is split into Carleton and Carleton East. The Russell and Prescott ridings are combined.

In the Peterborough area, a similar boundaries shake-up is recommended by the commission. The Peterborough riding is divided into the ridings of Kawartha and Peterborough, taking up part of the old Northumberland riding.

What is left is combined with its neighbor to the west to form the riding of Northumberland-Durham.

REDUCED IN AREA

In Northern Ontario, the huge Port Arthur and Fort William ridings are reduced in area and a new riding of Thunder Bay is created.

In the Sault Ste. Marie area, the new riding of Algoma is created, taking up most of the old Sault Ste. Marie riding, which now is restricted primarily to the city.

Sudbury gains the new riding of Sudbury East, completing the list of new seats to be added to the legislature by giving the next provincial election.

The premier told the house that since the last redistribution in 1954 Ontario's population had jumped to 6,500,000 from 5,000,000. But the increase had not been spread evenly across the province.

Mr. Robarts said the redistribution commission was able to keep riding populations above the recommended minimum of 25,000 and below the recommended maximum of 75,000.

The smallest riding population will be 32,725—in the new riding of Thunder Bay—while the most populous riding will be Peel North, with 69,653 residents.

"Where's the popcorn machine?"

Johnson

the Soviet leadership would welcome my visit to their country—as I would be glad to do. I am hopeful that before the year is out, this exchange of visits between us may occur.

"As I have often said before, the longest journey begins with a single step — and I believe such visits would reassure an anxious world that our two nations are each striving toward the goal of peace."

The president's message formed a major foreign policy initiative.

His speech followed by a few days word that Russia's new leaders were dispatching a powerful mission to North Viet Nam on the borders of the embattled Southeast Asian territory of Red Viet Nam where American advisory military and economic forces are so deeply committed against any further Communist infiltration.

It is understood that negotiations about Russian-American visits have been proceeding for at least a month.

Perhaps significantly, Johnson names no dates. He already has said he hopes to visit some Latin American countries, European capitals and Canada in 1965.

In any event, Johnson's words seem to hold up an olive branch in keeping with his apparent intent to restrain U.S. punches in the international scene.

The president spoke to the Anti-Defamation League.

If he realizes his hope of visiting the Soviet Union, he will be the first American president to journey to that country since Franklin D. Roosevelt attended the Yalta conference, in the Soviet Crimea, shortly before his death in 1945.

Canadian Members Being Asked to Fight McDonald Leadership of Steelworkers

By JOHN LABLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian members of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), largest union in Canada, appear to be putting their weight behind a move to overthrow David J. McDonald, international president since 1952.

Top Canadian officers of the union are endorsing the presidential candidacy of I. W. Abel, now secretary - treasurer and most locals in Canada have followed their advice and nominated the Abel slate.

The election is next Tuesday, and Canadian votes could be crucial in a close election. The balloting is on a popular-vote basis among the full membership, and the Canadian membership of 110,000 is about 10 per cent of the union's total.

The 58 - year - old Abel has thrown down the gauntlet to the powerful McDonald, who is 63, on the grounds — among others — "one - man rule," "creeping unionism" and an "alarming drift" toward what is described as the pretence that employers' and employees' interests are identical.

Canadian Director William A. Mahoney and the three district directors in this country, who are elected by the Canadian membership in the union's quadrennial voting, are strongly urging in a letter to their rank and file that a big vote be rolled up for the Abel group.

REPORT STRONG FEELING

"There is a strong feeling among our American brothers in their letter says, "that rank-and-file participation in union affairs has been on the wane locally to the detriment of the union's vitality; that we have tended to become a sleeping giant; that division in the leadership of our union must be ended.

"That is why I feel sin nona "That is why the Canadian directors came to the unanimous view that the time had arrived for the election of a strong new leadership team to guide our union."

The Abel - McDonald power play will have no immediate effect on the Canadian leadership setup.

The national director and two of the district directors—Larry Sefton of District 5 (Ontario and the West) and Jim Nicholson of District 2 (Maritimes) have been returned for four years by acclamation. Quebec Director Pat Burke is not contesting the election, for family reasons.

The Quebec post is being sought by Jean Beaudry, Burke's assistant, and Jean Gerin - Lajoie, a steelworker staff representative and first vice-president of the Quebec Federation of Labor.

The Canadian is running in the international elections. He is John Shipperbottom, veteran financial secretary of Local 1005 at Hamilton, a candidate for one of the three positions of international teller. These officials conduct the four - year elections — posts that carry prestige but no added money—and one usually is a Canadian. Alfonso Murray of New Glasgow, N.S., has been a teller for years but is not running this year.

Last Whaling Post Closed Down Under

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

WELLINGTON (CP)—A link with the earliest days of white settlement in New Zealand has been broken with the closing of the country's last whaling station.

Whaling was virtually the first New Zealand industry. From late in the 18th century, half a century before New Zealand became a British colony, whaling brought large numbers of craft to the coasts. American, British and French whaling fleets for a time made New Zealand their South Pacific headquarters. Whaling shore stations were among the earliest white settlements.

For many years now whaling has been only a minor New Zealand industry. But shore-based operations have continued on a small scale.

Now, however, the last station has been closed. It has been operated by the Perano family in the Marlborough sounds of the South Island for more than 50 years. From this central location whale chasers have annually made hauls and brought them to the shore factory for processing.

But Gilbert Perano, one of the principals, says whale oil prices have dropped so low that the company operates at a loss. The more whales it catches the more it loses. This is in spite of a government guarantee of $135 a ton for whale oil introduced in an effort to keep the industry alive.

ILLEGAL OPERATIONS

The depletion of whale stocks in the Antarctic, alleged to be partly due to illegal operations by some countries, has meant that the more profitable hump back whales have ceased to migrate in profitable numbers within range of New Zealand whaling stations.

The Perano catch of hump backs has fallen as follows: 1960, 226; 1961, 92; 1962, 27; 1963 nine. In the 1964-65 season not a single hump back has been sighted.

Antarctic whaling fleets have practically exterminated the hump back, the Peranos believe.

Instead, the company turned to sperm whaling. It caught 300 sperm whales in the 1963-64 season, and had reached 61 in the 1964-65 season when operations were suspended.

Whalers throughout the world are concentrating on sperm whales and the price of oil has fallen drastically. The oil is suitable only for industrial use and the limited market is glutted.

1,274 Computers For US Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. defence department estimates that it soon will have 1,274 electronic computers clicking off answers on everything from its total of uniform buttons to the outcome of hypothetical battles.

This doesn't include hundreds or even thousands of other large or small computers used in the field by the services as part of weapons systems, like missiles and submarine navigation, or in a number of research and development areas.

The military establishment already is the largest user among all U.S. government departments, including the space agency and the census bureau.

What Women Are Doing

Mrs. Dan Stewart is Division Commander for the Girl Guides in Belleville.

The administration of one of the largest youth groups in Belleville is the responsibility of Mrs. Dan Stewart, Division Commissioner, and the two hundred local women who, with her, are members of the Girl Guides of Canada. Mrs. A. McLeod Haig is Quinte Area Commissioner.

About twenty of these women make up the Division Committee and the executives of the local associations which aid the four District Commissioners — Mrs. E. C. McCallum, Belleville Northeast; Mrs. J. Sannon, Northwest; Mrs. T. R. Colden, Southeast, and Mrs. H. W. Hunter, Belleville West. With the five commissioners, about 80 women wear the uniform of the movement. These are the Guiders — a name descriptive of their role in guiding girls towards happy, useful adulthood, as good homemakers and capable citizens.

Guiders are the women who make possible the weekly meetings, who quite often find extra hours in the day to take girls for hikes and outings, and who, where possible, camp with the girls in the summertime. An excellent program for Guiders' training has been developed within the movement, and Belleville women have at their disposal, without cost or obligation, an annual twelve hour basic training which gives a good insight into aims and methods of the organization. It is followed up by frequent opportunities for further training in the city, at Waupoos, the area campsite, and at the Provincial Training Camp centre near Huntsville. Guiders have varied interests and backgrounds, but their common denominator is a love of girls and an agreement with the aims and methods of Guiding. Camping skills are not a "must" but are introduced to them, many Guiders find this the most attractive part of the program.

Some Guiders are Brown Owls or Tawny Owls — so named when the program was originally inspired by the lovely legends of the elves and the fairies of folk. The "Owls" will, under a revised age grouping, be working next fall with 7 - 10 year-olds, in a program geared to the modern Brownie.

Guide age girls (next fall 10-15) and Rangers (14-18), have captains and lieutenants. There is no military significance here, but a friendly, informal relationship between girl and Guider, with a smooth authority to ensure good organization.

A Belleville Guide, having earned her First Class, has been helped to come up to a good standard in sewing and cooking, first aid and home nursing; she knows and understands the history and aims of Guiding; she is able to hike and cook a meal over an open fire; she can use a compass, and has been tested in swimming and water safety. Her badges, without cost or obligation, take part in an International event of Guiding. Two Belleville Guiders have several Guides who have been chosen during the last three years to make trips abroad. Belleville women will take part in the diverse programs which is Guiding have found that it has much to commend it to the women of today.

'Fashions of the Future' Show Held at Montreal

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Fashion costumes forecast for the year 2065 provided an exciting introduction to contemporary spring fashions at a fashions of the future show Wednesday.

The production, featuring 12 futuristic outfits by winners of a cross-country designing contest and a selection of contemporary fashions from 30 Canadian manufacturers, will tour Canada in February and March. It is sponsored by a Canadian Fabric Manufacturing Company (Dominl).

Models will travel by train, modelling the costumes in cities on their way to Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Edmonton, Quebec City and Sydney. The show will be sponsored in these cities by various department stores.

Clothes for 100 years from now were shown by masked models in an all white "spatial" setting to the sound of sonal music.

HAS HOOD

A unisex jumpsuit, with several dippers and matching mitts and boots, came with a transparent bubble hood for protection against the impurities expected to infest the air in 1065.

The basic black dress, not discarded in fashion predictions for the future, became a black tunic with silver boots, stockings and collar. A green and silver room suit, with green sequin stockings and matching mitts was designed to enable career girls to fly to work.

Its contemporary fashion, bright fruit-colored sport co-ordinates were shown in a variety of modern fabrics. Several had matching blazers or jackets, usually worn with contrasting neck jerseys. Skirts were short to show off fancy stretch stockings, and head - pieces were worn with all of these sports costumes.

The fitted sassy dress was shown in solid yellow with several slits revealing flowered Bermuda shorts.

The town darks, a series of costumes in dark, dull solid colors, often with white trim, effected a smart tailored look. A two-piece town dress in dull grey had a fitted jacket that extended to the hip line. The collection was shown with unadorned coats — coarse textured wools, usually in black and worn on the back of the head.

KEEPS OUT OF LIMELIGHT—Mrs. Erik Nielsen, wife of the member of Parliament for the Yukon, thinks wives of political candidates should remain out of the limelight. Mrs. Nielsen, 38, relaxes with a magazine in her modern apartment on the edge of fashionable Rockcliffe Park near Ottawa. The Nielsens have three children. (CP Photo)

'Keep Out of Limelight' Says Wife of PC Member

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Erik Nielsen, wife of the Conservative MP who sparked the current Dorion inquiry, says wives of politicians are called upon to play too important a role in their husbands' careers.

"Of course I'm always eager to help my husband in any way I can, but I think there is entirely too much emphasis placed on the wives of political candidates.

"The limelight should be on the men themselves, not their relatives, or even their party affiliations."

The slender, 35-year-old redhead says her husband's constituency of the Yukon is "a Nielsen riding—not a Conservative riding," and that's the way it should be.

Mrs. Nielsen is a rather quietspoken Englishwoman she met and married Erik Nielsen in 1945 when he was in England with the RCAF.

"I was just 18 and had worked for only a few months at a local police office. I met Erik at a dance. He was a gay young officer, quite different from the serious lawyer he is today."

She could hardly have imagined then that 20 years later her husband would be a leading figure in a parliamentary drama which resulted in a judicial inquiry into charges that a Montreal lawyer had been offered a bribe to agree to bail for a suspected dope-smuggler.

SETTLED IN HALIFAX

A native of Louth, Lincolnshire, she, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hall. Named Pamela Jane, she was soon nicknamed PJ and even today she answers the telephone with: "This is P. J. Nielsen speaking."

In 1946 the Nielsens settled in Halifax for a time while Mr. Nielsen obtained his law degree from Dalhousie University.

"Canada was the land of plenty to me when I arrived. I gained about 10 pounds in the first six months I was there."

She says she enjoyed living in Halifax because it was close to the sea. When they moved to Whitehorse in 1953 she was impressed by the "unsurpassed hospitality" of the Yukon people.

It was in Whitehorse that Lee, now 17, Ricky, 11, and Roxanne, 9, grew up. There Mr. Nielsen built a flourishing law practice. And there too, the Nielsens built a comfortable home which turned out to be ideal for political gatherings after Erik Nielsen was elected to Parliament in 1957.

"Now I think of myself as a Canadian, with Whitehorse as my base. I miss my friends there very much."

LIVE IN APARTMENT

Since Mrs. Nielsen joined her husband in Ottawa in 1963, they have lived in a two-bedroom apartment located on the edge of fashionable Rockcliffe Park.

It's in the Champlain Towers, a big modern apartment building which has an indoor swimming pool. "The children just love it, and I do, too, for that matter."

A central feature of the Nielsen living room in Ottawa is a large stereo set painted soft yellow.

She is an avid reader and like to play all kinds of music on the record player while I read." She favors biographies, "especially of political figures."

In Ottawa Mrs. Nielsen wears the same casual but well-designed clothes as in Whitehorse. When interviewed she was wearing a soft white wool sweater and tweed skirt with gold jewelry.

She likes to cook — "politicians' wives have to be ready with a hot drink at a moment's notice" — play bridge and spend lots of time with her children.

"All in all: I'm quite satisfied with my present life."

Women's Institutes

REDNERSVILLE W.I.

ALBURY — At the January meeting of Redneersville Women's Institute, the 30th birthday of the Institute was celebrated with a banquet at the Belmont restaurant. There were 41 members present to mark the special day. Head table guests were the officers of the Institute, the county president, Mrs. Earl Onderdonk, and the charter and life members. Each was presented with a corsage.

Mrs. Clarence Vanallet presided at the meeting which followed the dinner. Leaders were appointed for the "salley way" project. The block printing summary day will be April 6th.

Mrs. Vanallet showed slides of their trip to the east coast, and Mrs. Allen Weese showed slides of Hawaii.

The floral table arrangement was drawn for with Mrs. Robert Weese holding the winning ticket.

MELROSE W.I.

MELROSE — The regular monthly meeting of Melrose W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. H. McKechnie with a splendid attendance in spite of the inclement weather.

The president, Mrs. G. Stratton welcomed all and thanked the hostess, after which she presided over a lengthy business session arising from the correspondence. A letter and Christmas card from Choy-Yong-Soon in Korea expressed thanks for gift and stated she was in Grade 3 and attended school regularly.

The subject of the next Home-maker's Club is "What Shall I Wear?" and since 22 girls want to participate it was necessary to appoint more leaders. Several girls known as Melrose Moonlight Munchers, who had completed the first course were presented and sang their theme song. Miss Judy McLaren entitled the poster, "Variety in Supper Menus" for all seasons and presented the commentary in a most clever manner. Much credit for their high standing in this work is due to their leaders, Mrs. Mrs. M. Lazier, Mrs. J. McFarlane and Mrs. R. Cook.

At the meeting Mrs. R. Badgley, public relations convener took charge of the program. Mrs. A. English read comments on the motto, "Perfection is not expected, but improvement is," which had been prepared by Mrs. W. English. Mrs. G. McLaren, board director for Trent Valley Area, Subdivision 8 gave a resume of the recent board meeting which she had attended in Toronto.

Mrs. Badgley chose as her topic "Plans for Worlds' Fair in 1967" and she gave a very descriptive and informative talk on this, the 100th birthday of Confederation. Expo. 67 will open on April 28 and close Oct. 27, 1967 and is authorized as a World Exhibition of the first category, the first of it's kind to be held in the Western Hemisphere and aside from the dollars and cents aspect it is a show window for Canada commemorating it's centennial as a nation.

Over 50 foreign countries will be taking part to make this a truly international Exhibition. The theme is "Man and his World" and exhibits will summarize his achievements in the fields of intellect, economics, design competition. The site and many other interesting features planned were mentioned and created much interest among the members that they are already planning a bus-trip. Canada the host nation will be on stage and in the spotlight when curtain goes up in 1967. A birthday contest concluded a most enjoyable evening after which refreshments were served.

Susanna's Family Fare

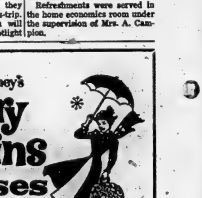
PATIENT PATIENT

Dear Susanna: My husband's youngest brother was involved in a car accident and must be confined to bed for about a month. Since they are the only 2 left in their immediate family, I insisted on looking after him at our home. Of course, the money was another consideration as he and my husband are business partners, for the next few years every cent we can possibly afford must be plowed back into the company.

What has surprised me most is just how much satisfaction there is to cutting corners in the spending department, a slang as everyone enters into the spirit of things.

My husband took a couple of fairly long, low cardboard cartons, cut a large rectangle out of each side, and covered them with some pretty wallpaper we had on hand. One makes an excellent bed tray or work and play area for our patient, and the other one is placed underneath the top sheet at the foot of the bed to keep the pressure of the bed clothes off an injured foot.

A third wallpaper covered carton we left intact and it is used for a bed rest under the pillows. We even tied a rope to the bottom of the bed and brought the other end up within easy reach. This is ideal for assisting him to pull himself up into a sitting position.



Rather than being a terrific burden, my brother-in-law's convalescence has brought us closer together as a family. It has taught us to be resourceful, considerate of one another, and has made us realize that help is at hand for anyone of us when it is needed.—M.M.N.

Dear Susanna: A lemon rind dipped in salt will remove most corrosion spots on brass. — Mrs. E. Millar

Leftovers Promoted To Tasty Dishes

By MARY MOORE

A good-natured complaint arrived by mail: "Mary, you tell us how to roast lovely big joints of meat but what do small and medium-sized families do with leftovers? I slice them cold for next day's dinner and make my lunch sandwiches from the cold roast but I want to make it up so it does not look like left over . . . incidentally, your column should never be on the back of the sports page — it creates friction".

To work Mary!

Dinner Menus

Meat Loaf; Tomato Casserole (see Wednesday); Baked Jacket Potatoes; Head Lettuce Wedges with Roquefort Dressing; Baked Apples; Pouring Cream; Tea.

SUNDAY

Roast Stuffed Chicken; Chicken Gravy; Cranberry Sauce; Fluffy Mashed Potatoes; Green Peas; Waldorf Salad; Angel Food Cake with Fresh Frozen Sliced Strawberry Topping; Coffee.

LAMB CURRY IN A HURRY
(Perfect for unexpected guests)

2 or 2½ cups cold roast lamb (or chicken) cut into ¾" pieces; 2 tablespoons butter; 1 or 2 teaspoons curry powder; ½ medium onion, chopped; 2 medium stalks celery, chopped; ½ green pepper, chopped; ½ lb. sliced mushrooms; 1 cup gravy; water, if needed; salt, if needed.

In large frying pan melt the butter and add the curry, onion, celery and green pepper and gently saute until onion and celery become translucent — but not brown at all. Add sliced mushrooms, cover and let cook gently for 5 minutes. Now add the gravy and meat. Heat through. If the gravy is thick you may need to add a little hot water to make it of serving consistency or remember that curries are served on rice. You have to use your judgment — it should be slightly sloppy. Taste for salt and add it if needed. Have ready fluffy boiled rice, arrange it in a border on preheated platter. Pour lamb curry in centre. Use a few slivers of raw green pepper for garnish.

NOTE: The amount of curry powder you add depends on your family's and guests' palates.

MANY PURPOSE NOODLE CASSEROLE

1½ to 2 cups uncooked noodles; ¾ to 1 cup diced cooked ham or chicken or roast beef; ½ cup grated cheese; ¼ cup chopped green pepper; ¼ cup chopped celery; 1½ cups milk; 1 egg, beaten; ¼ teaspoon paprika; 1 teaspoon salt (omit if ham is used); 1 teaspoon Worcestershirt sauce (if beef is used); ¼ cup buttered breadcrumbs.

NOTE: Chipped beef or canned crabmeat or lobster or shrimp may be substituted for the leftover meat listed.

Cook noodles until tender in salted water and drain. Butter a baking dish and arrange in it layers of noodles sprinkled with the meat, cheese, green pepper and celery. Combine milk, egg, seasonings and pour over. Cover with buttered breadcrumbs. Bake at 350 deg. fahr. for 40 to 50 minutes.

The Experts Say
First Step in Moving-- Let People Know Early

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Other people them out of the way and out pile will want to know when you the van.
are going to move from one home to another. Notifying them in advance should be among the first steps in a well-organized move.

Start with the moving company, and try to offer a choice of day or time. If you can avoid moving at the middle or end of a month or on a Saturday you'll be doing yourself a favor.

E. G. Sparks, sales manager of Tippet-Richardson, an Ontario firm, says those are peak times for movers everywhere.

You should also notify the post office, insurance company, delivery men, stores where you have charge accounts, publications you subscribe to. Arrange school transfers and change the address on your driver's licence. Notify electric, gas, water and telephone companies.

Sparks says some thing people consistently forget is to have major appliances disconnected. Movers are usually not permitted to do this sort of job and amateurs shouldn't try to disconnect gas and electrical equipment. Even if you can get them in a hurry on moving day the wasted time will cost you money.

HOUSECLEANING TIME

Start packing well ahead of moving day. There's no point to housecleaning, Mr. Sparks says. "Get rid of the stuff you plan to sell.

If your move is a local one it may also be a good time to have rugs and drapes cleaned, especially if the cleaner has a pickup and delivery service and can bring them to your new home.

Packing boxes should be no smaller than two cubic feet but not so big they are difficult to lift. Forty to 50 pounds is as much as they should be when filled, and don't overload them.

Don't pack breakables with your pots and pans. Each dish or glass should be wrapped separately. Heavier items go in the bottom of a box, plates and platters on edge.

Large breakables, such as lamp bases, mirrors and pictures, should be padded and crated. Some moving companies train their men to pack these things.

If you pack dressers don't leave valuable items as perfume and ink in the drawers, and don't pack heavy items that may shift and damage the furniture. If drawers or doors are hard to fasten, tie them shut.

LABELS HELP

If sending some furniture to storage, label it, and also label boxes and furniture by room. It will help you and help the mover put things in the right room.

Throw out combustibles—oily mops or opened tins of paint. Pack food carefully and consider the weather—will the food freeze or spoil in transit?

Be ready for the mover. Mr. Sparks says men arriving at 8 a.m. often have to wake people up.

Plan picnic-style meals or eat out on moving day. Have someone available to look after the children if you can't.

When there are young children, put them in a room to pack some of their toys," Mr. Sparks says. "It makes them feel part of the move and keeps

Family Night Enjoyed by Community

On Friday evening despite the cold weather, approximately 90 persons enjoyed a sumptuous pot-luck supper in the L.O.O.F. Hall in Stirling convened by the agricultural group of River Valley Women's Institute. A silver collection was taken to defray expenses.

Glenn Bush was chairman for the evening and welcomed the group. A sing-song of old favorites was in charge of Mrs. Jack McIntosh with Mrs. Philip Conley as pianist. Mrs. Ernest Carr read a humorous poem.

SCIENCE MOVIES

Mrs. Jack Bush introduced Rev. Gordon Whitehorne of Seymour United Church charge who gave a travelogue with a number of scenic movies of his trip to Europe and England. The views showed historic buildings, a trip up the Thames River, Windsor Castle, The Tower of London, the Changing of the Guard, Piccadilly Circus, Windsor Castle, The Mall, Westminster Abbey, Edinburgh Castle, the floral clock and interesting scenes of the famous Loch Lomond.

A 16-mile movie trip taken on the train gave a glimpse of the beautiful countryside. The animals in the London Zoo were of particular interest to those of the younger generation. The movies concluded with scenes taken in Cornwall and Devon.

Thanks were expressed to Rev. Whitehorne for the interesting array of pictures and Mrs. Kenneth Myers made the presentation of a gift on behalf of the Women's Institute.

PRESENTATION

At this time Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh who were re-cently married were given away of honor at the front of the hall and an appropriate address was read by Mrs. Roy Bush. A presentation of a wall mirror and a floral table centre was made by Messrs. Ernest Carr and Kenneth Myers.

The young couple expressed grateful thanks for their friends in the River Valley community for the lovely gifts and invited them all to visit them in their home on Mill Street.

Mrs. Philip Conley and Norman Rosebush provided music for dancing with Ed Kent calling the figures. Special prizes were awarded by Mrs. Glenn Bush and her group.

The ladies were given an ovation for the fine work done in sponsoring the event.

Ann Landers

Husband Says Mother His Closest Relative

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Who is a man's closest relative, his wife or his mother?

Recently my husband was filling out a card in his new wallet. It had a space for "closest relative." Wesley filled in his mother's name and showed it to me. I was awfully hurt.

We have been married 11 years and have six children. I always thought a man's closest relative was his wife. When I told Wesley how I felt he said we were related by law — but that was all. I am not this man's closest relative after 17 years and six kids. I'd like to know it.

ANN LANDERS

Thank you for any help you can give me. — STRANGER IN THE HOUSE.

DEAR STRANGER — Your husband means you are not blood relatives. You are his next of kin, however, and the six kids follow you. His mother is actually in 8th place if he wants to get technical.

P.S. Tell Wesley that being related is not nearly so important as being friends.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a college senior, female. A few weeks ago I asked a classmate, a nice-looking, intelligent girl, if she would like a blind date. (My steady boy friend wanted to fix up a friend of his.) She accepted readily.

The evening went off well, I thought. The two seemed busily engaged in conversation and I was sure they liked each other.

This morning my friend asked me if I knew why the fellow never called her for another date. She said, "We had a great evening. I'm sure I made a favorable impression."

I decided to investigate so I telephoned the fellow. He said, "Mabel is a nice person but I couldn't take all that yakkety-yak. I gave up trying to talk after two hours of listening to her tell me how smart she was."

I don't have the nerve to tell Mabel what he said but please print this letter for the benefit of other girls who could use the hint. — GUTLESS FRIEND.

• • •

DEAR FRIEND — The Bible tells us that Samson slew one thousand Philistines with the jawbone of an ass. Heaven only knows how many romances are killed every day with the same weapon.

The right girl relaxes — and listens. The dame who is so afraid of being thought dull that she unloosens a drumfire of non-stop conversation doesn't go over. She merely wears everyone out.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 18-year-old daughter babysits five days a week for neighbors who have three children. The father works odd hours and the mother has a job which keeps her away all day. Some come home at 3:00 p.m.

Do you feel it is right that a babysitter should be expected to wash, iron, cook, clean and even do the mending?

On Monday when she comes to work she finds all the dishes left over from Saturday and Sunday. Is this fair? I would very much appreciate your views on this subject. I feel that these people are taking advantage of our daughter because they know she needs the work. How about it? — G.N.C.

• • •

DEAR G.N.C. — I don't know what these people are paying your daughter, but she certainly needs a new title.

A girl who does the washing, ironing, cooking, cleaning and mending is no babysitter. She is a full time maid and cook and she should be paid accordingly.

• • •

When necking becomes petting, watch out? To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Premier Kosygin's Visit To Hanoi Could Affect Viet Nam Situation

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei Kosygin left today on a mission to Hanoi that could profoundly influence the Viet Nam situation and the U.S. position in Southeast Asia.

The delegation going with him by special plane is stacked with experts who can arrange "the necessary assistance" that Moscow has promised North Viet Nam in case of American attack.

The simplest explanation of the Kosygin mission would appear to be he is going to discuss arming Hanoi against the United States and perhaps arming the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

But there is another possibility:

The long-term goal of the Kosygin mission may be to try to establish enough Soviet influence in an area where it now is almost entirely linked to anti-Soviet Asia away from a nuclear confrontation.

The Soviet Union is publicly pledged to defend other Communist countries. But it does not want a nuclear war. Therefore it does not want "to be dragged on the coattails of a basically Chinese policy in Viet Nam into a nuclear confrontation.

A goal of seeking a moderating influence would be at least as consistent with other recent Soviet foreign policy moves as might be seen by exacerbating the Vietnamese situation with fresh weapons.

The mission to Hanoi was announced the same morning the voice of the Soviet party leadership, Pravda, said "the Soviet Union has always sought understanding with the United States."

Pravda said President Johnson's suggestion that the new Soviet leaders visit the United States "met with a positive response" and endorsed the idea of Soviet and U.S. leaders meeting to exchange opinions.

The Moscow correspondent of a west European Communist newspaper sought guidance from Pravda's editors on how he should report the Kosygin mission and the comment on Johnson, "together, for they are related, he was told.

The two could be considered separately as moves in opposite directions if Kosygin's purpose was merely to arm anti-American feeling. If not, they might fit together better.

Soviet influence used to be significant in Indochina. But the area is in China's backyard. With Moscow and Peking openly competing for influence throughout the world, the Kremlin lost out in Asia.

The North Vietnamese have not been happy about this.

In the 1950s, Ho Chi Minh used Soviet influence to balance the Chinese. He tried hard in the last world Communist conference to avoid a Soviet-Chinese split because he feared being left alone with the Chinese.

He failed and today North Viet Nam is little more than a Chinese satellite.

For this reason, Kosygin's mission has strong overtones of being an anti-Chinese move, a competition with Peking for the ear of the North Vietnamese rather than an anti-American move.

Nothing that Kosygin can offer Hanois is likely to change its support for Peking on such things as opposing the Moscow call for a world Communist meeting. Kosygin cannot change the geography of North Viet Nam.

But he may introduce a calmer voice in the Viet Nam situation than those of the Chinese.

Soviet arms for Hanoi presumably would be accompanied by Soviet advisers, as they have been elsewhere. These advisers would compete with Chinese advisers.

It will take some time before the outcome is clear.

Signature Was 'Total Phoney' States RCMP

VICTORIA (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia said Wednesday that a letter written on Prime Minister Pearson's stationery and mailed to an assistant of Prime Minister Pearson in Ottawa had "no authenticity."

Mr. Bonner, a general said the letter did not mention American millionaire Harry Stonehill, but that certain general terms seemed to imply that it was written on behalf of Stonehill.

Stonehill, who arrived in Vancouver last year after being deported from Manila and the Philippines, had applied to the immigration department for landed immigrant status. However, he was refused residence in Canada.

Mr. Bonner said the letter was written on the premier's stationery and bore "a signature purporting to be that of the premier."

MAILED TO DORNAN

It was mailed to Hal Dornan, a former Vancouver newspaperman who is now an assistant Prime Minister Pearson's staff.

Mr. Bonner said he had asked the RCMP to check the letter and they advised him Wednesday that the signature was a total phoney. He said the RCMP know who wrote the letter and that the person is not a member of the government staff or with political standing in B.C.

No charges have been placed and the person has not been arrested. However, Mr. Bonner declined to say whether any charges were contemplated.

He said he had not seen a copy of the letter and knew of its contents only in general terms.

Strike Deadline Nearing With No Settlement

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations continued into the early hours of today between representatives of Massey - Ferguson Limited and the United Auto Workers (CLC) in an effort to reach a contract settlement before a 2 p.m. strike deadline.

A union spokesman said Wednesday night "it doesn't look very promising." He said there were a "fair number" of economic and non-monetary matters to settle in the dispute which affects 6,200 employees at five Massey-Ferguson plants in Toronto, Brantford and Woodstock.

The old contract expired Dec. 31, but employees have continued working under its terms. Negotiations for a new contract started last September.

George Burt, Canadian director of the union, said that if the company did not change its position there would be a strike.

Angus Fraser, a Massey-Ferguson spokesman, said the chances of a strike were good.

The union is asking for a 50-cent wage increase over a three-year period.

Outflow Control In Great Lakes Is Solution

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government feels that control of outflow from Great Lakes — not diversion of water from other sources —is the solution to the problem of the lakes' water levels, the legislature was told Wednesday.

R. J. Boyer (PC — Muskoka) vice - chairman of the Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission, said during the throne speech debate:

"Before we complicate present studies with questions of adding to the water supplies of the Great Lakes; we should obtain better management of the water we have."

Energy Resources Minister John Simonett said Mr.Boyer's comments represented government policy.

HAVE PLAN

Mr. Boyer said the United States Corps of Engineers has a plan for regulating the outflow of the Lakes Michigan, Huron and Erie which involves construction of remedial works at the Lake Huron and Erie outlets.

The plan for a $2,000,000,000 Grand Canal to divert water from James Bay to the Great Lakes did not show whether the benefits would justify the expenditures, Mr. Boyer said.

Another scheme — to divert surplus water from the northern Rocky Mountain region to water - short sections of the continent — would increase the flow of water through the lakes and Niagara and raise the level of Lake Huron eight feet. He said the flow would have to be modified, if this plan was accepted.

House Committee Report On Canada Pension Plan Will Be Ready for Feb. 16

OTTAWA (CP) — It seems likely that the report of the joint parliamentary committee on the Canada Pension Plan will be ready for the Commons when it resumes Feb. 16, but there may be a lot of political fighting before it gets final approval.

The committee has about completed hearing submissions —the Communist Party of Canada is yet to come. Then work will begin on a report to be presented to Parliament. The committee will not make a clause-by-clause study of the massive bill.

Although the bill was given unanimous support on second reading—approval in principle —some Commons members, particularly among the Conservatives, are known to be unhappy with the legislation. Some say they were placed in an impossible position of having to vote for the legislation in principle before the committee had an opportunity to examine it.

Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound - Muskoka) agreed with a suggestion by a Toronto actuary earlier this week that the second - reading vote involved a form of "unintentional blackmail." Mr. Aiken said there should have been a committee examination prior to second reading.

On many points during the 20-odd days of hearings so far, Conservative and Liberal committee members have split firmly along party lines during arguments.

Another 30-minute wrangle developed Wednesday when George Chatterton (PC—Esquimalt - Saanich) moved a motion that would — in line with a suggestion from the Ontario government — ask the royal commission on taxation whether it could look into some of the implications of the proposed pension plan.

Two similar motions by Mr. Chatterton were ruled out of order by Chairman A. J. P. Cameron (L — Toronto High Park) on the ground the committee had no right to ask the tax commission to do anything. Only the government could do this.

Observers thought it likely that similar moves would be made when the pension plan bill returns to Parliament. But some committee members said Ontario's announcement of its intention to enter the plan has lessened the possibility of a prolonged parliamentary fight.

Opposition to the bill is centred on several fronts: That a wage - related scheme gives the least to those who need it most, that the plan does nothing for today's retired; that the plan has inherent inflationary tendencies, and that the massive shift of money from the private to the public sector of the economy could cause a serious dislocation.

Most of the opposition so far has come from insurance companies, financial institutions and private actuaries.

New Personnel at NE Plant

The Northern Electric Company here has announced the transfer of two company personnel to the Belleville plant, replacing two local men who have been transferred to other positions, one in Bramalea and the other in Montreal.

Effective the middle of January, Murray K. Brown of Montreal, assumes new duties at Belleville, as accounting superintendent, replacing William E. Larvah who has been transferred to Bramlea.

Also, effective March 1st, W. A. Thompson is being moved from Montreal to Belleville as the new superintendent of engineering. Mr. Thompson will replace W. T. Simpson who is being moved to Montreal as manager of staff engineering. Mr. Simpson has been in Belleville since 1953 and has been head of the engineering division since 1955.

JOINED IN 1937

Mr. Brown, the new accounting superintendent at the Northern Plant in Belleville, joined the company in 1937, and worked in accountancy departments in Montreal before being moved to Belleville. He is married with one daughter, Ann Kathryn, age 12.

A graduate of Queen's University with a Bachelor of Science degree in mechanical engineering, Mr. Thompson was with Bell Telephone from 1949 until 1954 when he joined Northern. Since 1961 he has been assistant superintendent, central design control and it was from this position that he was moved to Belleville as superintendent of engineering.

He is married with four daughters, Ann, Katie, Jane and Christine.

United Church Minister at Cornwall Quits

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — A United Church minister has resigned his 2½-year-old ministry here because "I am just a little tired . . . of being the compromises the modern church seems to demand of its ministers."

Rev. Frank Ball, minister of St. Paul's United Church in Cornwall, said in his letter of resignation that the distaste for his ministry among members of the church board is great enough to constitute "what I can only regard as a running opposition."

"My boss is God, not the official (church) board," Mr. Ball, who was ordained 18 years ago, said in an interview Wednesday.

The board's opposition to his ministry had dated back to 1962 when his wife ran as a New Democratic Party candidate in the federal riding of Stormont.

Though he had not used the pulpit in any way for partisan interests, a proportion of the board had tried to subvert his efforts to discuss "contentious issues" in his sermons from a non-partisan viewpoint.

Following the board's opposition at that time, Mr. Ball had resigned, but reconsidered when 650 members of the congregation signed a petition to recall him.

There was "a great deal of dissension about my leadership in worship" and criticism of his spending too much time counselling alcoholics outside the congregation, Mr. Ball said.

Scientists Test Vaccine Against German Measles

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto scientists are testing a vaccine against German measles, a disease indicted as a major cause of damage to unborn infants.

Dr. Andrew J. Rhodes of the university's school of hygiene told postgraduate students at a refresher course that clinical trials of the vaccine on humans may start soon.

Dr. Kenneth Rozee, a virologist at the school who helped isolate measles virus, said Wednesday in an interview that trials of the vaccine on rabbits are being completed in Connaught Laboratories here. The next step, he said, is to receive a licence for human clinical trials from the Food and Drug Directorate in Ottawa.

German measles, known scientifically as rubella, is four times as common among women of child-bearing age as in men. The disease is blamed for a wide range of disorders from miscarriage and stillbirth to congenital malformations, deafness and heart disease in infants.

Injections of gamma globulin are useful in warding off rubella when given before any rash appears. But it must be known that the potential victim has been in contact with a person who has the disease.

Scientists here and elsewhere have been working to develop a vaccine that could be given to all women in adolescence—when natural production of immunities is wearing down—to protect them from rubell's ravages during child bearing.

Dr. Rozee said a rubella virus was first isolated in late 1962 in Washington by Cdr. Edward Beuscher, a doctor with the United States Marines. A similar virus has been isolated given encouraging preliminary trials among a small group of U.S. military recruits.

A team under Dr. Rhodes had been doing parallel work in Toronto and succeeded in isolating a virus early in 1962.

Dr. Rozee, 31, said the rubella virus used for the production of vaccine was the 23rd isolated here and thus is known as R-23. It was taken from a Toronto child who had the disease.

R-23 is a "fully pedigreed" vaccine, Dr. Rozee said, which means there is a completely documented history of the virus from its origin in the child to its processing in Connaught Laboratories. This pedigree is required by the Food and Drug authority as a condition of its use on humans.

Arguments on War Crimes In Germany Gets Hotter as Prosecution Deadline Nears

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The argument about whether West Germany should extend its statute of limitations for Nazi war crimes is getting hotter as the deadline approaches.

The discussion, in Germany is likely to get hotter still because a federal election is due in September and also because news items about war criminals are calling attention to the controversy although not directly related to it.

Rudolf Hess, 70, Adolf Hitler's one-time deputy, is reported hoping for a pardon after serving 20 years of a life term.

Hermann Krumey, Adolf Eichmann's top lieutenant, was sentenced in Frankfurt Wednesday to five years of hard labor for complicity in the murder of 300,000 Hungarian Jews.

The first movie made in Germany after the war was titled Die Moerder sind Unter Uns (The Murderers are Among us). Last month a German television documentary asked "are there murderers among us?" and suggested that there are.

COULD GO FREE

It was in this atmosphere that the big debate began about the provision in the German criminal code by which murder is no longer liable to prosecution 20 years after it has been committed.

This was interpreted to mean any murder committed before the May 8, 1945, end of the Hitler regime could go unpunished after May 8 this year.

Noting the reports of Hess, some observers have suggested the fate of Martin Bormann, another of Hitler's henchmen, has been deliberately ascertained. They asked what would happen if he turned up after the statute of limitations had run.

But German spokesmen stress the 20-year deadline does not apply to crimes already known or under investigation:

The German judicial authorities have seen to it that the statutory limitation has been interrupted in regard to all known murders and their perpetrators who are or may be found. The question of where they are living or whether their names are known or unknown . . .

"The 20-year period would therefore apply only to murders not yet discovered."

This is not enough to satisfy critics either inside or outside Germany. One solution — recently confirmed by former Chancellor Adenauer — however would be to advance the application of part of a new draft criminal code which would extend the time limit for all murder cases to 30 years.

Opponents say it was the practice of Nazi legislators to bend the law to suit their purposes and this should not be followed now however worthy the motives.

The argument has split politicians and jurists tgeardless of political ties. The newspaper Hanover Press argues strongly in this century last year that prosecute ordinary criminals rather than mass murderers. "It would be considered inadequate lest Germany "risk that thousands of murderers will remain undiscovered in our midst after May 8."

Germans Deny Plutonium Being Produced

BONN (Reuters)—West Germany has denied an East German charge that a nuclear research centre at Karlsruhe is producing plutonium for military purposes and could make atomic bombs by 1967.

A statement issued by the Bonn ministry for scientific research Wednesday night said the claim, by Prof. Klaus Fuchs, deputy director of the East German institute for Nuclear Research at Dresden, is completely without foundation.

Fuchs, who helped create the first atomic bomb and was jailed for nine years in Britain for betraying nuclear secrets to the Russians, told the Dresden newspaper Sacchsische Zeitung Wednesday his claim is based on information gathered from scientific literature on the West German centre.

300 Employees Walk Off Jobs At G. E. Plant

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The Canadian General Electric Company Wednesday suspended 300 hourly-rated employees until Friday morning when they walked off their jobs for the second time this week in protest of the company's use of a camera in a machine-shop time study.

Company officials said 1,600 more day workers who followed the lead of workers suspended until this morning for leaving their jobs when the shift started. Another 900 afternoon workers who refused to report for work in support of their fellow workers Wednesday afternoon are scheduled to return today.

A spokesman for Local 1234 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Ind.) said the membership voted in a closed meeting Wednesday afternoon to have the executive committee tell the company they would "walk out again and again" as long as cameras were used.

The 300 members walked out Tuesday after the use of the camera but were persuaded to return Tuesday. They agreed that the camera had been removed but when they reported Wednesday they found it still in operation.

The company has been using a movie camera to investigate political grievances at the time allowed for a drilling operation had been unreasonably cut.

105 Air Cadets Are Dismissed From Academy

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The superintendent of the U.S. Air Force Academy announced Wednesday completion of an investigation into cheating by cadets at the academy, listing the final total of cadets resigning at 105.

Lt. Gen. Robert H. Warren said only cadets involved in the theft, sale or use of stolen examination papers were asked to resign.

He said those who stole or sold papers will receive less than honorable discharges and those who used them will receive honorable discharges.

Warren said 29 who resigned were football players, including 20 who would have been cadets for the varsity team next season.

He said altogether 40 athletes were involved.

Warren defended the cadet's honor code which has been criticized as a result of the scandal and said in his opinion it should continue unchanged.

He said only four per cent of the total cadet wing of 2,567 was involved.

This Jet-set Is Vital to Canada

By RON MacDONALD

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — The RCAF pilot training program is catching up with the jet age.

RCAF station Moose Jaw has begun operating the CT-114 Tutor, designed and built in Canada as the service's first basic jet trainer.

Student pilots who once took their first instruction in the propeller-driven Chipmunk and Harvard now climb into the cockpit of the Tutor for their initial training and then graduate to the T-33 Silver Star advanced jet trainer.

From the T-33 they go on to the 1,600-mile-an-hour Super Starfighter, a needle - nosed tactical jet, and the 1,200-mile-an-hour Voodoo twin-jet interceptor.

All-jet pilot training has been the rule for some years in a number of air forces, including those in the United States and United Kingdom.

The all-jet program cuts about 20 per cent off the 80 to 85 weeks needed to train a pilot on the Chipmunk-Harvard-T-33 program and reduces the $18,000 cost of training a pilot by about 40 per cent.

Maintenance presents fewer problems on jets and there is no need for trainees to learn skills on propeller driven aircraft which they will never have to use on operational jet aircraft.

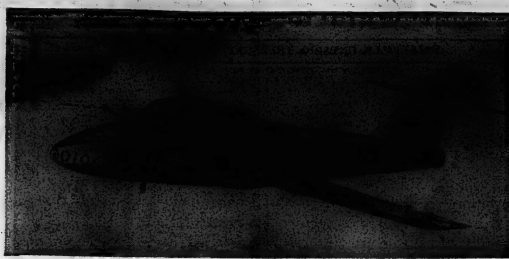
VERSATILE AIRCRAFT

The high-tailed, stubby-nosed Tutor can climb to 45,000 feet and reach a top speed of about 600 knots — performance largely unlike any other than that of the Harvard.

The single General Electric J-85 turbojet has more than adequate power for a full range of aerobatics and recovery from flight spots such as a aborted landings, says Flt. Lt. Murray Nielson, a flying instructor

Flt. Lt. Nielson said location of fuel tanks near the centre of gravity in the fuselage and the high-tailed construction results in easy recovery from spins.

Stalling speed is 70 knots under normal conditions, range 1,300 miles with wing-tip fuel tanks, take-off distance less than 3,000 feet and landing distance less than 3,000 feet.



The trainee and instructor sit side-by-side in a cockpit with a bubble canopy, for good all-around visibility. Upward-firing ejection seats may be lowered to altitudes of 120 feet.

The instrument panel is laid out simply, with all the warning lights on one "peek-and-panic" panel.

Canadair Limited of Montreal, which designed the $725,000 trainer, has received an order to build 190 for the RCAF. Fifty of these will be based at Moose Jaw along with 41 T-33s when the station has its full complement.

LENGTHY WORM

The tereido wood-boring worm can grow up to six feet in length.

TRAINING PROGRAM GOES ALL-JET — The CT-114 Tutor is the first basic jet trainer for the RCAF. As an initial trainer, it replaces the propeller-driven Chipmunk and Harvard aircraft, making the RCAF training program an all-jet one. The Tutor has greatly improved performance over the Harvard and cuts maintenance time, training time and the cost of training each pilot. The RCAF has ordered 190 Tutors.

Long Lines of Thirsty Drinkers From Que. Seen Regularly at Hawkesbury

MONTREAL (CP) — Montrealers nursing a strike-induced thirst and a yen for carnival atmosphere have only to drive 62 miles northwest of their city on a Saturday morning to get their hearts' desires.

Hawkesbury, Ont., normally a quiet community of about 9,000 inhabitants, would be the destination. On recent Saturdays, block-long lines of people outside its biggest current attraction, a retail outlet of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, have been the rule.

"Quebec licence plates abound in the vicinity of this store and residents of the border town seeing a strange face are wont to ask, 'Are you from Quebec?'"

The visiting face lights up by way of an affirmative reply. The understanding local grins and gestures with a mitted thumb: "It's that way. Turn left on the next street."

There the visitor joins the line, made up mostly of so-called "freedom drinkers" from his home province.

All kinds of tradesmen, from service-station operators to general shop apparently are benefiting from the influx of visitors from Quebec, where for two months employees of the provincial liquor board have been on strike.

Since the Quebec board controls the distribution of liquor in the province, the strike has cut off the flow of hard stuff and bizarre phenomena like the Hawkesbury boom-town have been the result. The town is across the Ottawa River from Quebec province.

A recent weekend pilgrim, Bruce Taylor, writing for the Montreal Star, quotes a waitress in a restaurant close to the liquor store as saying of the trade boom: "We can't keep up with the rush."

Quebecers waiting outside the liquor emporium seem unworried about the possibility of being arrested by their provincial police for bringing back liquor and so violating the Quebec liquor law.

"The cops aren't after people like us," said one man in the queue. "All they want is the guys who bring it back by the truckload to peddle."

Mr. Taylor quotes "a Montreal man" describing an incident reminiscent of bootleg practices familiar during prohibition in the United States.

The Montrealer said he saw two other Quebecers carry numerous cases from the Hawkesbury store and load them in a hearse bearing Quebec licence plates.

Later, en route home, he passed the hearse on a Quebec highway. The sombre vehicle was cruising sedately at 30 miles an hour, its back curtains drawn. The two liquor-loaders were up front, looking appropriately funereal in tall silk hats.

Mr. Taylor writes that there's little sign of Quebec police patrols in the Hawkesbury area despite the suggestive density of traffic from Quebec.

He quotes one citizen of the town as saying, "I hope they never settle that strike in Quebec."

A REAL TANK-FULL — Workmen lower into place this 130-ton steel tank which will house a new $3,000,000 atom smasher at Atomic Energy of Canada Limited's Chalk River, Ont., plant. A building will be built around the tank.

Chalk River Project
Atom Smasher to Reach 133 Million Miles Hourly

By JOHN E. BIRD

CHALK RIVER, Ont. (CP)—It's difficult to envisage anything that travels at a speed of 25,000 miles a second.

This speed has been achieved with ease in an atom smasher used for several years by Atomic Energy of Canada Limited to study the structure of the cores of atoms.

But even this incomprehensible velocity isn't sufficient to permit scientists at Chalk River to conduct all the research they would like to do on the forces that bind atoms together.

Therefore, they are building a new $3,000,000 atom smasher that will accelerate beams of electrically-charged particles to speeds greater than 27,000 miles a second or 133,000,000 miles an hour.

This new atom smasher or particle accelerator will enable scientists to expand their research into how neutrons and protons are arranged in atoms and to obtain more information about the motions of these particles within the nuclei or cores of atoms.

This type of knowledge will enable scientists to understand more about the nature of the atomic fission process, the basis of present-day nuclear power plants. It also will give them a better idea of the composition of matter and possibly lead to discovery of new sources of energy.

The new machine, which will develop 20,000,000 electron volts, will replace a 10,000,000-volt accelerator. When the more powerful piece of equipment is in operation in 1966, the smaller machine will be given to the University of Montreal.

Known as the MP Tandem Van de Graaff, the machine is being designed and built by High Voltage Engineering Corporation of Burlington, Mass. It will be mounted in a 130-ton steel tank 81 feet long and 18 feet in diameter.

The tank was delivered to the Chalk River research establishment in sections and assembled there. The building that will house the accelerator will be built around the tank.

The higher energy of the new machine and its ability to accelerate heavier projectiles—electrically charged particles —will make possible the determination of physical properties in high radiation fields. The machine will produce more intense radiation that can be generated in a nuclear reactor.

Saskatchewan Legislative Battle Looms

REGINA (CP)—A long struggle is shaping up for the first session of the Saskatchewan legislature which opens Thursday with the Liberal party occupying the government benches for the first time in 20 years.

The session will be the first legislative test of Premier Ross Thatcher's successful election platform — private enterprise versus socialism—that resulted in the defeat last April of the CCF administration.

Labor legislation is expected to be one of the prime topics. There is considerable published speculation that the government might propose making labor unions legal entities so they can be sued in court.

The Liberal government, with 32 of 59 seats in the House, will face a powerful opposition supplied by former premier Woodrow Lloyd and 25 CCF members, including eight former cabinet ministers. There also is one Progressive Conservative member.

Premier Thatcher, who says the previous CCF administration made Saskatchewan residents the highest-taxed in Canada, has promised to reduce taxes and at the same time increase spending.

Automation Will Banish Drudgery Says Western Dean

By BOB TRIMBEE

SASKATOON (CP)—It's a lot of rubbish to suggest automation is throwing 40,000 workers out of jobs each week in North America, says Dr. A. D. Booth, dean of engineering at the University of Saskatchewan.

"All automation does is to allow humans to work as humans and to lift the drudgery from labor."

The British - born physicist said in an interview he can only laugh when he hears labor and government suggest the severest danger posed by automation is unemployment.

"The general result of automation has been that more jobs are created, more people are required to do them, efficiency of workers has improved and company profits have gone up."

Dr. Booth, who designed and built one of the first computers in the world while at Birkbeck College at the University of London, said experience in the United Kingdom, which has had the benefit of automated industries for some years, has found that computers have done much to automate routine jobs. This speeds production.

"The effect is felt all the way down the line. Greater production requires more labor to handle it. It has provided workers with more time to learn new skills. Automation may well dislodge 40,000 workers a week from backbreaking, unskilled jobs, but it certainly hasn't left them without work."

Computers have played a key role in developing many industries, he said. "Among the most promising and important are those involved in space travel and the bio-medical field. To some extent we are involved in both here at the University of Saskatchewan."

His department is participating in research on the development of control mechanisms for rockets.

"The idea is to develop a transistor system which will allow a rocket to repair its own electronic components . . .

"We hope we can introduce our system in rockets fired into space by the Upper Atmospheric Research Institute during its next polar rocket tests from Fort Churchill, Man."

ENGINEERS AS DOCTORS

In medicine, Dr. Booth said, engineering has helped produce machines that will speed or slow down the heartbeat, give accurate measurements of eye or brain pressures, locate tumors, increase efficiency of open-heart surgery instruments and provide better blood circulation and purification systems in kidney-transplant operations.

"Both medicine and engineering agree there is a vital area where joint action is needed. For this reason we have established a joint medical-engineering course in which the graduate student is both a registered engineer and a physician.

"Two students enrolled in our first course last fall. We hope they will become research physicians. The course will take about seven years because we have combined one basic arts course to serve as both the premed and pre-engineering program. The graduates will be especially valuable in development of artificial organs which involves both medical knowledge and engineering principles."

Design by Robot

VLAARDINGEN, The Netherlands (AP)—Designer Cor Aldershoff says the music of Johann Sebastian Bach inspired the design of the carpet for a new wing at a hotel here. Aldershoff says he analyzed a Bach fugue, fed the mathematical pattern into a computer and allowed it to control a weaving loom which produced a harmonious design in shades of brown.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Boxing's Pearl of the Plugs, one Cassius Clay, perhaps doesn't know it, but placed in a different setting he would be the answer to a Madison Avenue prayer.

The self-dubbed high priest of the Black Muslims, Muhammid Ali to give him his title, is the best commercial to pleecmeal boxing's shadowy show since it hit the lowest rating in its history.

The mouthings, boastings, innuendoes, insults and other products of the "Louisville Lip's" vocal chords have done as much to fill the hustles of hash as the sounds of his fisticuffmen, the Beatles.

You have to admit the handsome young ring gladiator has done a tremendous public relations job for a guy named Cassius Clay—and any brawl in which he has taken part.

He attained his objective, gold for the exchequer of the "Greatest" and in the doing much mazuma for promoters, the foemen and Uncle Sam's Treasury department.

Take that safari to London back in 1963 when he knocked out Henry Cooper in the sixth round.

Clay took on a public-speaking job, that had the stodgy London fans chewing on their Woodbines and growling in their arf-and-arfs. He told them in no uncertain southern lingo that he would murder their Henry and send him back to Soho as limp as a welk and as soft as their "sausages-and-mashed."

The Andy Capps bought it wholesale. Those who intended to stay home and listen to the "wireless" blew the weekly pub money and packed the hall to capacity. Canny Cass took in the "house," put Henry bye-bye, packed $75,000 in his duffle-bag and high-tailed it for the good ole U.S.A.

Came the tainted Sonny Liston tete-a-tete, Clay toured the country in a highly-colored Cadillac, the flagship of the fleet and proclaimed to all within earshot that he would dine on a filet of "the Ole Bear" after he had disposed of him—and gathered unto himself the heavyweight championship of the world.

An opportune shove by a trainer which pushed him back into the ring when he was ready to call it quits in the fifth saved his face and he went on to see Sonny yield the crown while glued to his stool.

The wily promoters of the Patterson-Chuvalo fight, realizing the paw-filling potential of the Clay tonsils hired him as a commentator for the affair.

The youngster who bombed his way to an Olympics gold medal, whose grandfather was a slave and whose fighting ability is overshadowed by his showmanship, lived up to form.

He put on one of his outrageous publicity stunts, visited the camps of the fighters, where he stole the show on both occasions and announced that Chuvalo would knock out Patterson.

Cassius had something going for him in previous fights for on several occasions he called the round—and was right in which he would dispose of the foeman.

This may have impressed the Gotham sportswriting and columnar experts for after Clay called Chuvalo to win by a knockout the majority climbed aboard the youngster's bandwagon and favored the Canadian.

Patterson's attempt at a comeback, the pre-fight Chuvalo ballyhoo helped a lot but in the main it was the clowning Cassius, his predictions and crazy highlinks that bulged walls of Madison Square Garden with pewsters that saw the best fight in many a frolic moon.

Chicago Whips Rangers ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Hull In Fight

Hawks, Habs Tops; Coaches Worried

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Both Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens are in first place in the National Hockey League today, but coaches of both teams are wondering where they'll go from there.

Not far, according to Canadiens coach Toe Blake, if most of the changes continue leaving the work to just one line. Not far, echoes Chicago's Billy Reay, if Bobby Hull's current slump becomes prolonged.

The players who launched Montreal into first place during the opening half of the schedule are faltering. And those players whose performances kept the Hawks out of first place during the first 35 games are now coming to life—players such as Stan Mikita and Kenny Wharram.

Both scored goals Wednesday night as the Hawks downed New York Rangers 4-1 in the only game scheduled.

The victory moved the Hawks into a first-place tie with Montreal at 37 points, although Chicago has played three games more than Montreal.

The Canadiens make up one of those contestants tonight when they meet Toronto Maple Leafs in Montreal. Detroit Red Wings meet the Bruins in Boston in the only other game scheduled.

Mikita, Wharram and goalie Glenn Hall failed to match their performances of last season during the first half of the current campaign. But suddenly they have stepped in to fill the gap left by Hull's six-game goal famine.

Mikita slammed home his 17th of the season on the tailend of a Chicago power play in the first period and Wharram's 18th set up by Mikita, pushed the Hawks in front 3-1 after the Rangers tightened the score in the third.

Hall made 46 shots, losing his shutout to Phil Goyette on a New York power play early in the finale.

Other Chicago scorers were Phil Esposito, whose unassisted tally made it 2-0 in the second, and Fred Stanfield, who provided the fourth goal late in the third.

Hull again failed to score, and the results of the nine-checking he meets in every game began to show. The voting leader for the Lady Byng Trophy, awarded to the cleanest and most effective player, became involved in a fight.

New York's Bob Plager clutched Hull as he wrestled for the puck on the boards. Hull retaliated with a high stick and both went off with minors. Plager got a Madison Square Garden fan exchanged more than words at the penalty box and the customer was ejected.

Hull is one member of the Hawks in a slump, but Blake feels that several of his players aren't producing.

"Some of the same fellows who got us into first place may well be responsible for us not staying there," says Blake.

He feels the only line working is the unit of centre Ralph Backstrom and wingers Claude Larose and John Ferguson. He's hoping Claude Provost, Henri Richard, Dave Balon, Bobby Rousseay and Jean Beliveau soon will leave the doldrums.

"The next two weeks could decide just where we finish. But I'll say this, we will never finish first if some of the players don't start producing."

Juniors Lose to Trenton

Belleville "B's" continue to find new ways to keep their slump going in the OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League.

Trenton Apple Kings helped stretch the "B's" losing string to six games in Brighton with a 7-4 victory last night.

Belleville blew this one late in the third despite outplaying the Apple Kings.

It was 1-0 for the "B's" after one frame and tied 3-3 after forty minutes of play.

Trenton surged in front 4-3 early in the final period but Belleville again knotted the count. It stayed 4-4 until about the midway mark before the Kings socked home three goals for the final 7-4 score.

Belleville coach Gordie Bell voiced his discontentment via phone this morning. "We outplayed the opposition again but blew it," he said.

He added that only 12 players made the trip "and this is getting to be a habit." "Some of the players seem to be losing interest," Bell said, "and it's a fine time for this to happen with the playoffs just around the corner."

Bell Bell was in the nets for the "B's" again last night. Coach Bell said that regular goalie Bob Moon, out for several weeks with a broken hand, had been expected to play last night. "Moon attended a practice on the weekend and said he would be ready to play. Then he called Tuesday and said that his parents had told him he could not play," Bell said.

The Juniors expect to give forward Carl Boomhower another shot at the goal-tending job in Friday's game here against Napanee.

Belleville's goals last night were scored by Larry Stewart, Jim Rutherford, Carl Boomhower and Steve White.

The game was evenly played with only a handful of minor penalties summoned.

Ross Quigley scored a pair of key goals to spark the Trenton attack.

Only a small crowd attended the game which was a half hour late in starting. Bell said that facilities at the rink were lacking. He said that the time clock was not working and added "no one could give us a scoresheet with the scoring, penalties and lineups on it following the game."

The victory for the Apple Kings pulled them to within one point of Belleville, with a game in hand. Napanee is four points behind Trenton.

'Best Thing Ever Happened' — Hayes
Referee-in-Chief Voss Resigns

MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Wednesday referee - in - chief Carl Voss will resign at the end of the season.

Campbell said Voss indicated in 1963 he wished to resign and that "personal persuasion" had prompted him to stay on.

"Three months ago I received a letter from Mr. Voss indicating once again his desire to resign at the end of the 1964-65 season," Campbell said in a telephone interview.

Voss, 58, was appointed referee - in - chief in 1950-52. Previously he had acted as president of the United States Hockey League.

He climaxed his playing career as a centre with the Stanley Cup champion Chicago Black Hawks in 1937-38 after playing 12 seasons with a total of eight NHL teams and several International League clubs.

No successor was named.

INGERSOLL, Ont. (CP) — George Hayes, veteran linesman in the National Hockey League, said Wednesday that the resignation of Carl Voss as referee-in-chief "is the greatest thing to happen in the NHL in years, especially to the referees and linesmen."

Hayes was commenting on the announcement by NHL president Clarence Campbell that Voss is resigning at the end of this season.

"Why Voss quit," said Hayes, "there certainly will be better conditions for the officials working the games."

Hayes, who served 19 years in the NHL as an official, was suspended Jan. 15 for refusing to take an eye test. The league later terminated its contract with Hayes, effective Feb. 14.

Hayes said he thinks Voss's resignation is connected with the "Eddie Powers deal."

He was referring to the man who resigned as an NHL referee two years ago after a disagreement with Campbell. Powers was publicly berated by coach Toe Blake of the Montreal Canadiens and the referee quit when Campbell fined Blake $200. Power thought the punishment should have been more severe.

Plager Finds It Tough Road

Felt Hull Short Cut to Fame

By HAL BOCK

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago's Golden Jet, Bobby Hull, fired a couple of afterburners at New York Rangers, and today the Black Hawks' bomber is the centre of the National Hockey League's latest feud.

Hull, who admitted after Chicago's 4-1 victory over the Rangers that his six-game scoring slump is getting on his nerves, helped precipitate quite a fracas when he tangled with rookie defenceman Bob Plager in the third period Wednesday night.

Chicago's Stan Mikita, who had engaged in earlier jostles with Rod Selling and Lou Angotti of the Rangers, moved into a corner after a loose puck with the Rangers' Arnie Brown. When Hull elected to ward them, Plager grabbed Bobby from behind in a bear hug.

Hull, needled by jibe fans all night, became infuriated and dropped his gloves after finally breaking free from Plager. It was an unusual pose for the all-star left wing.

Hull went off for high-sticking and Plager for holding. Just as the game was about to resume, Plager began flailing away at a fan behind the penalty box who, he said, had first heckled and then spat at him.

Hull sat stock still while special police and Ranger players dragged Plager off the fan, who was identified as George Johnson from New York City. Johnson, who suffered a bloody nose, was ejected from the game.

If I had got into it, I probably would have been on the fan's side," said Hull, who has run afoul of Plager several times since the youngster from Kirkland Lake was called up in December. "I guess Plager wants to stay in the league and he figures he can do it by going after me."

Plager agreed, "People notice when you hit a Hull," he said.

Bob Hope Golf Led By Beard

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) A small army of golfers fanned in four directions today with Frank Beard leading the pro-cession into the second round of the 90-hole, $100,000 Bob Hope classic.

The 25 - year - old Louisville professional, who recovered from a sleeping - sickness ailment that threatened his career last March, had a first-round 68.

That was six strokes under par for the Bermuda Dunes Country Club and Beard held a one-stroke lead starting out today.

Jerry Steelsmith and Stan Thirsk were tied at 67, and the big group included Bob Rosburg, Don Jazayerg, Kermit Zarley, Chuck Courtney and Rod Funseth.

The ever - threatening figures of Arnold Palmer, in the 70 Italian, Jacki Nicklaus, 71, and Tony Lema, 72, were not far behind.

Also at 72 was Stan Leonard of Vancouver. The other Canadian entrant, George Knudson of Toronto, shot a 74.

BY STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—Coach Anatoli Tarasov of the Russian national hockey team says Canadian players have become set in his club than ever before during the recent Soviet tour of Canada and the United States.

Commenting on the December tour for the Soviet Union's Nornoil press agency, Tarasov said he enjoyed "the tremendous thrills I got watching Canadian ice hockey specialists showed for the Soviet team."

"Never have I had the Canadian professionals and top specialists attended our training sessions and matches — they just ignored us.

"This time, apart from closely watching our boys, they talked to us and asked many questions about our hockey which, evidently, appealed to them."

The Russian won 10 and tied one of the 12 games they played, most of them against Canadian teams. They lost their only game to the Czech national team.

The Russian coach said he saw nothing new in the Canadian brand of hockey.

"Frankly speaking . . . we did not see in the Canadian pattern, as we had done two or three years before, creative combinations of less fascinating newness would captivate not only the players but also the spectators.

"The attack, based on the old tactics of pressure, with its vigor and ruthless handling of the opponent, all the beauty and reason of style, produced first a terrific and then a bad impression."

He also threw a few stones at the roughness of the Canadian team.

"There are very sorry that the U.S.S.R. national team practically lost two players: Vitaly Davydov had his jaw broken and was left in a U.S. hospital.

"Oleg Kulyev, who considered a nasty leg injury, was immediately put into surgery in Moscow.

He had high praise for the defence of the Montreal Junior Canadiens, whose strength stood by six professionals from the Quebec Aces for their game against the Soviets, who won 3-2.

"Never before had we faced such a solid defence," Tarasov said.

Summing up, Tarasov said Canada remains "one of the most formidable rivals." He predicted the Czechs would be powerful this year, as they would be "a constant and serious opponent."

MOSCOW (CP) — Russia is "ready to discuss" the idea of a new five - country international hockey league, Valentin Alexhin, chairman of the U.S.S.R. Ice Hockey Federation, said Wednesday in an interview.

"It deserves attention and investigation," Alexhin said of the proposal to be placed before the International Hockey Federation by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Presentation of the proposal, to be made during the world championships in Finland next month, was authorized by delegates to a recent CAHA meeting in Winnipeg.

Noting that the scheme proposed for membership are tops in International hockey, Alexhin said the league would look like a smaller version of the world championships.

"Of course it would be good," he added. However, the Russians would have "many questions" to ask about the Canadian proposal before committing themselves.

Guy Rink Finally Stopped

By EDDIE COLLISTER

QUEBEC (CP)—Quarry taikin, part in the week-long annual Quebec International bonspiel took a breather Wednesday night to attend a banquet marking the half-way mark in the event.

Bill Adamson of Burlington, Ont., scored an upset Wednesday when his rink stopped the crew skipped by Jimmy Guy of Kenora, Ont., 9-5 in the first round of the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy, the top prize in the event which started Monday.

In the other games of the first round Wednesday, Alden Clark of Fredericton and W. D. White of Oshawa, needed extra ends to beat each their opponents. H. Doherty of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., and Royce McAuley of Sudbury, Ont. Both draws ended 10-9.

Jack Clark of Oakville guided his rink to a 11-5 win over John Kilburn of Fredericton and Nels Findley of Pinawa, Man., won 8-6 over J. Bragdon of St. Adele, Que.

Bold Lad, Sadair Out
Derby Picture Confused

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Kentucky Derby picture was more confused than ever today with Sadair retired to stud and Bold Lad out indefinitely with an injury, leaving only Jacinto among the big three still in training for the May 1 classic at Churchill Downs.

Sadair, champion money-winning two-year-old with a record $498,217, suffered a fractured right ankle and his knee is his left foot Monday and Mrs. Mary B. Hecht, owner of the handsome Swaps-bred, said Sadair would be retired to stud in Kentucky.

Bold Lad's injury, first announced Tuesday, was more serious than at first reported and Mrs. Hecht said the 6th of Peters out of Blue Missy would be sent to a few mares this spring and have a full season in 1966 at Henry White's Plum Lane Farm in Lexington, Ky.

POPS SPLINT

Wheatley Stable's Bold Lad, 1964 champion two - year - old with eight wins and two seconds in 10 starts and winner of $387,175, stopped a split in his right foreleg.

Trainer Bill Winfrey said a veterinarian would fire the injured part and he hoped to have Bold Lad, strapping son of Bold Ruler and Misty Morn by Princequillo, to training in 10 days.

Winfrey said he had every hope of making the Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah March 3.

Jacinto is from California, where he has the fans talking of his three sparkling victories at Santa Anita. Like Bold Lad, he is a son of Bold Ruler and is owned by William Haggin Perry.

Varsity Wallops Waterloo

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

University of Toronto Blues moved farther ahead of the league in the Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association Wednesday night and Steve Monteith moved into the record books.

In one of three games played, the first place Blues defeated University of Waterloo Warriors 7-3. Monteith scored four goals for Toronto, but the goal brought his career total to 63, edging Dunc Fleury Raymond of Laval Rouge et Or, who held the former record with 62 goals.

In a game played at Laval, McGill Redmen defeated Laval 4-3 to move out of last place and two points ahead of Guelph Redmen.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs defeated McMaster University Marlins in the other game played. Western now has 16 points and is in third place two points behind Montreal Carabins.

Meanwhile at Waterloo, Monteith wasn't stopping at just a good scoring record. He also assisted on three goals to set league record of 42 points—most scored in one season. The four points he picked up gave him a total of 129 career points —also a record.

GOVERNMENT HELPS

LONDON (AP)—The government will start developing sports in Britain — the first time in history such a move has been made officially, Denis Howell, widely known soccer referee who is minister of sport for the Labor government, told the House of Commons Wednesday a sports council is to be formed with himself as chairman to advise the government on the development of sports and physical recreation.

City Minors Win One, Drop Two

Visiting teams won two of three Ontario exhibition contests against Belleville squads at Memorial Arena last night.

The basketball Golfettes were the lone local winners. They blanked Trenton bantame by a 2-0 score.

Napanee peewees continued their winning ways against Belleville Rollins with a tight 3-1 decision.

Cobourg midgets shaded the Oddfellow midgets in a 5-4 battle.

The bantam tilt was a rough one in which the Oddfellows scored all the game's goals in the first period and held it there at 3-0.

Joe Lamoston was the triggerman on two of the scoring plays while Harry Smith notched the other goal. Ron Mitchell had the only assist.

Belleville drew eight penalties and Trenton six. Included in the total were fighting and a game misconduct to the Oddfellows' Bill Hanley, major and a misconduct to Trenton's John Hodley and fighting and a game misconduct to Peter Vance, also of Trenton.

All the peewee scoring was also confined to the first period, with Napanee having the 2-1 edge.

Murray Vanalstine and Gary Brinklow scored for Napanee. Peter Weese and David Johnston picked up assists.

Rollins' scoring play saw Terry Meagher convert passes from Fred Stickle and Austin Wilson.

There were three penalties in this game, two to Rollins.

Cobourg midgets led 1-0 after one period but it was tied 3-3 going into the third. Cobourg got the nod with a 2-1 edge in the third period.

E. Butlarz, P. Ito, J. Blastors, J. Banbridge and Stevenson made up Cobourg. Bainbridge drew two assists, G. Kelly and Mooney one each.

L. Moore, J. Cole, R. Summers and D. Duvall triggered the Oddfellow scoring in that order. J. Parks and A. Scott each had one assist.

Four minor penalties were evenly divided.

76 Competitors
Seek Figure-Skating Titles

CALGARY (CP) — Grace, skill and power are the means and national and perhaps world glory the end for 76 competitors who plunged into the 1965 Canadian figure-skating championships today.

For some of the 12 eventual champions, however, the week will be a step to the North American championships at Rochester, N.Y., and the 1965 world championships later this year.

Canada's 1965 North American and world teams, to be chosen when the national championships end Saturday night, likely will include some of the skaters competing here for the 1965 world competition previously.

Ron Ludington of Toronto, defending Canadian senior women's champion, skated in the 1964 world championships and last year placed third in both the world and Winter Olympics meets.

She is rated a contender for the world women's crown vacated by Holland's Sjoukje Dijkstra.

SEEK DANCE TITLE

Carole Forrest and Kevin Lethbridge of Toronto competed in the world championships in Prague in 1964 and this year are competing for the Canadian senior dance championship vacated by Paulette Doane and Kenneth Ormsby of Toronto, who have turned professional.

Dr. Charles Snelling of Toronto, defending Canadian senior men's championship, competed in the Olympics in 1956 and 1964 and was with the Canadian world team six times.

Faye Strutt and James Watters of Vancouver this week the Canadian senior pairs championship, won last year by Lynn Nightingale and Debbie Wilkes of Toronto, who have turned professional.

Donald Knight of Dundas, Ont., vying for the senior men's crown, competed in the world championships the last two years and the Olympics in 1964.

Liverpool, Manchester Win Round

LONDON (Reuters) — Liverpool and Manchester United, the top two clubs in English soccer's first division last season, won replays in the fifth round of the English Football Association Cup after winning their third round ties Wednesday night.

A goal midway through the second half by centre - forward David Herd gave United its third time in 1963, will next meet Burnley, which last won the trophy in 1914.

Liverpool, which has never won the cup but has gained the first division title six times, had a comfortable 2-0 away win over Stockport County, the bottom of the fourth division. English international Roger Hunt got both goals.

Liverpool visits Bolton Wanderers, four - time cup winners, in the next round.

Manchester United had been held to a scoreless draw by Stoke, and Liverpool had drawn 1-1 with Stockport Saturday.

Odd-Ball Golf
11,774 Scored Aces

NEW YORK (AP)—There were 11,774 holes-in-one recorded officially last year but the most unusual was the result of a bet between two New England business men.

Harry F. Foil of Salem, Mass., was playing the Salem municipal course with only a putter last June 12 when he came to the 150-yard eighth hole. He gave the ball a hefty whack. It caromed off the side of a bunker, bounced on to the green, hit the flag stick and dropped into the cup.

This was just one of the odd - ball experiences made public today by Golf Digest magazine, which has become the national clearing house for holes-in-one and the sponsor of a national sweepstakes.

The magazine reports that the odds against holing out a tee shot are 4,000 to 1.

Norman Manley, a foundry-and-scrap dealer of Inglewood, Calif., scored three holes-in-one during the year, two of them on the same hole-in 330-yard, par-four seventh at Del Valle Country Club, Saugus, Calif., and two of them back-to-back.

Fred Leidig, 84, knocked in a 110-yard ace at Carmel, Calif., and Mike Richardson, 9, holed out a 157-yard tee shot at Wendell, N.C.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Everybody has their own individual tastes when it comes to selecting hockey sticks. And the time to experiment with them is before or after a hockey practice, rather than during practice or in a game, in my opinion.

If I'm having a little trouble with the lumber (sticks), and I'm not getting the shot away, I'll select a stiff, medium and probably a semi-whippy one, then go out on the ice and find out the one with which I shoot the best.

There are problems enough in a game without experimenting during a game. Of course, a lot of it is mental. If you find a stick that's snapping pretty good and you say "that's it", then you go out on the ice with all the confidence in the world.

If you don't experiment in advance, you'll be fighting every piece of lumber you take out there. And there are enough problems without worrying about the equipment you're wearing or using.

In addition to differences in the flexibility of the stick, some players like a shorter blade than others. For instance, Floyd Smith likes a shorter blade while Pit Martin likes one about half an inch deeper than the usual run.

When we saw the Czechoslovakian team play in Montreal a while back, I noticed the blades of most of the players seemed almost the height of a goaltender's blade.

Again, some fellows hate to see a thick looking heel. They'll take just a fraction of an inch off. It's mental but its part of the game. Thin the blade down and make it look like it's light and it's going to feel lighter.

Many players like a thin handle. In contrast, I like a big one so it won't rotate in my hand when I'm getting my shot away. My hands are probably bigger than most players. Consequently a stick with a heavier handle is going to be stiffer, less flexible.

Glover Bros. Rack Up Five Goals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hockey fans in Cleveland were planning something special for Fred Glover Wednesday night, but they'll probably declare Feb. 3 a civic holiday in honor of the Glover brothers from now on.

The celebration was in honor of Fred Glover's 1,000th American Hockey League game, and the 37-year-old Toronto native showed his appreciation by scoring two goals and assisting three others as Cleveland Barons walloped Springfield Indians 13-4.

It was the third win in a row for the Barons, who trail the league's western division, and their highest scoring victory of the season.

Howie Glover got into the act too, scoring three goals off brother Fred's assists.

Elsewhere, Buffalo Bisons defeated Providence Reds 3-1, and Hershey Bears edged Pittsburgh Hornets 3-1.

Vic Emery Nursing Injuries

MONTREAL (CP) — Vic Emery came back from driving Canada to a second straight world bobsled championship Wednesday night describing the alpine track where he did it as "very tough."

Emery, a Montreal engineer who drove Canada's top team of Peter Kirby, Mike Young and Terry Presley to victory in three of the four heats at the St. Moritz, Switzerland, competition, was nursing a separated shoulder, cut arm and bruised knuckles.

"We had no trouble during the two heats of the actual championships, but it went up to 40 degrees in the final day and times were very slow," he said in an airport interview.

APPLICATION DENIED

TORONTO (CP) — An application by harness racing driver Gordon Kingston, 45, of Oshawa, to appeal a five - year suspension was dismissed Wednesday by the Supreme Court of Ontario. Kingston was suspended last month by the Ontario Racing Commission for betting on a horse other than his own at Greenwood race track last August.

Red Kelly to Start Movement

1976 Summer Olympics For Canada?

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Red Kelly, hockey player and politician, burst into print the other day with a suggestion that Canada, specifically Toronto, might push to get the 1976 summer Olympic Games. Don't get it, Red, there's more important and pressing business.

That is, to get the 1972 winter Games for Banff-Lake Louise. The Alberta people have been working on this for years, have twice gone to the International Olympic Committee for the go-ahead, and twice have failed.

They will make their third—and undoubtedly, final — pitch to the IOC in 1966. And right now the chances are pretty good that Canada will top the poll. In this event, it is inconceivable that the IOC would entertain the idea of awarding this country the summer Games four years later.

It will cost a lot of money, possibly in the neighborhood of $15,000,000, to stage the winter Games for between 60 and 30 countries and 1,000 to 1,200 athletes and competitors. The Alberta and federal governments will be expected to kick in with most of this money.

HUGE COST INVOLVED

And it is peanuts compared with the cost of staging summer Olympics for between 6,000 and 8,000 athletes and officials from nearly 100 countries. It cost Japan nearly $3,000,000,000 to stage the summer Games at Tokyo last October. Most of the Japanese went first class on capital expenditure.

For instance, they built a $65,000,000 swimming pool which certainly must be the most expensive in the world. It was wonderful to behold. It seated 15,000 spectators and the Japanese sacrificed another $5,000 to 8,000 seats to modern architecture.

That building probably never will pay for itself.

Kelly, Liberal MP for York West and forward with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, didn't mention total cost. But he did say the Canadian Olympic Association would need federal government support and added that they could get it."

He pointed out that Toronto has the facilities to accommodate boxing, wrestling, weightlifting, gymnastics and indoor events and that the rowing could be held at St. Catharines, Ont., and the equestrian events on farms near Toronto.

BACKS ALBERTA

But Toronto would need a new stadium for track and field that would seat up to 80,000 persons and a swimming pool to hold 10,000. Then, of course, two Olympic villages—one for men, the other for women—would be needed, plus a huge press, radio and television building, new hotels and so on.

First, under IOC rules, the country going for the Games—and this one must—must get the okay from the national Olympic Association. But right now, the COA is wholeheartedly behind Alberta's bid for the 1972 Games and it is unlikely it would do anything before this was determined one way or the other.

This business of seeking summer Games for Toronto isn't new.

It has come up two or three times in the last 10 years. In 1961, a Toronto group talked about getting the 1968 or 1972 Games in that city and the promoters estimated cost of the project at $17,300,000, not including expense of constructing an Olympic village.

Those chaps didn't even get as far as presenting their case to the COA. They forgot to request an official hearing before the association and the idea died then and there.

Kelly likely will pursue his idea. But don't hold your breath for an official answer.

Probing Reported Injury

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission's inquiry into Floyd Patterson's reported hand injury continued Wednesday. Dr. Irx McCown, medical director of the commission, was conducting the investigation.

Patterson said he suffered the injury to his left hand while training for a fight in Puerto Rico in December and required the hand be taped for Monday night's bout with George Chuvalo of Toronto.

The injury was reported to be a bone separation in the left hand.

The former heavyweight champion had been examined several times by commission doctors prior to the fight and he had been found a superbly conditioned athlete.

Although his salary was not announced, the 31-year-old slugger said he got a raise over his pay last year with Kansas City, an estimated $48,500. McDougall May Play In Canada

HAMILTON (CP)—Fullback Gerry McDougall may be playing for Canadian football in Canada again this year.

McDougall said in an interview here Saturday he wants to leave San Diego Chargers of the American Football League.

He said he will meet Lew Hayman, managing director of Toronto Argonauts, to discuss a possible move.

Hayman said in an interview that McDougall "is still our property as far as Canadian football is concerned," but did not elaborate.

McDougall joined Hamilton in 1956 and moved to Toronto Argonauts after the 1961 season, then played out his option before joining San Diego the following year.

How Many Can Rhyme American History Facts?

By JACK HUTTON

Quick now, without thumbing through that nearby bookshelf, who was the second president of the United States? You've absolutely correct — John Adams.

Who was the second prime minister of Canada?

A blank? Think of a man with long wavy hair, smooth upper lip but thick, billowing whiskers framing his face. His name was Alexander Mackenzie, the first of our prime ministers to collide with a depression.

Sir John A. Macdonald, defeated by Mackenzie in November, 1873, rode back to victory five years later in October, 1878.

I wonder how many of us in why our generation can rhyme off facts and figures about American history, thanks to the impact of TV, magazines and films from south of the border, while we draw blanks on our own forefathers.

It's a sacred rule in the newspaper business that you rarely mention the name of a commercial group of organization in a column of this type. I am going to break that rule today.

The best pfromotion I've seen of its kind has just been launched across Canada by Quaker Oats Co. of Canada Ltd. in stores and schools — an offer to supply sketches of all 14 prime ministers for 50 cents and two of their box tops.

They're good. I've got all 14 thumbtacked to my basement wall right now, in fact, looking at somebody on the mess that usually surrounds my desk and typewriter.

Frankly, I suspect artist Harold Shaw of being rather kind to some of his subjects. Prime Minister Lester Pearson and Diefenbaker both look at least 10 years younger than their present ages.

NEW GAME

But the sketches are still valuable. And we've led to a new game around our house — the Prime Minister Game.

Really, you've no idea how superior you can feel after you have studied the dates for a few evenings (dates of office are listed on each sketch). When friends visit, I casually mention Sir John Thompson.

"Sir John Thompson?" gapes one visitor.

"Yes, surely you must remember the fourth prime minister of Canada? I reply. "A Nova Scotia gentleman who had served as minister of justice in Sir John A. Macdonald's cabinet. You mean to say you hadn't heard of him?"

"Well, as a matter of fact, . . ." says my friend, looking helplessly at the wall.

"What about Sir Charles Tupper?"

"Ah, wasn't he on that late TV movie the other night with Bette Davis?"

At this point I provide pencils and paper for guests to try their luck at naming as many of the 14 prime ministers as possible. Average score has been seven. Very good is 10; and anyone naming 14 rates as a scholar.

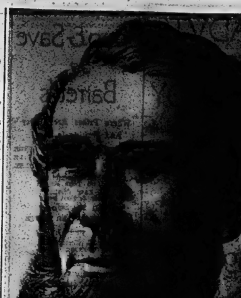
How would you fare? Or your family? Why not draw up a chair around the kitchen table and see who the Canadian history buff is in your family circle. (Try not to peek at the answers below).

You can get the 14 sketches by writing to Quaker Oats Centennial Offer, Box 3887, Terminal A, Toronto 1. They ask you to include 50 cents and two box tops.

Names of the prime ministers — Sir John A. Macdonald, Alexander Mackenzie, Sir John Abbott, Sir John Thompson, Sir Buck Mackenzie Bowell, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Wilfred Laurier, Sir Robert Borden, Arthur Meighen, Mackenzie King, R. B. Bennett, Louis St. Laurent, John Diefenbaker, Lester B. Pearson. How did you do?

Project PEN is into a new country this week — Korea.

Thanks to Diane Westbrook, a Grade 10 student in London, Ont. we have the name of Mr. Choi Un Gwon, president of the Student Pen Pal Club in Korea. His address: Student Pen Pal Club, P. O. Box 98, Kwang Wha Mun, Seoul, Korea.



He has promised that every overseas student who writes to him, listing name, address, sex age and bobbles will hear back from at least one pen pal within "10 or 22 days".

If you write Mr. Gwon, he'll also mail back a form for others who may want to join the world's fastest growing form of international communication.

In fact, I think I'll sit down now and write him myself.

TOP TWENTY HITS

1. Downtown, Petula Clark; 2 I Feal Fine, The Beatles; 3 Love Potion No. 9, The Searchers; 4 You've Lost That Feeling, The Righteous Brothers; 5 Come See About Me, The Supremes; 6 Keep Searchin', Del Shannon; 7 Hold What You've Got, Joe Tex; 8 The Name Game, Shirley Ellis; 9 I'll Be There, Gerry and the Pacemakers; 10 Sha La La, Manfred Mann; 11 Give Him a Big Kiss, The Shangri-Las; 12 Thou Shalt Not Steal, Dick and DeeDee; 13 How Sweet It Is, Marvin Gay; 14 All Day and All Night, The Kinks; 15 Let's Lock the Door, Jay and the Americans; 16 Look of Love, Leslie Gore; 17 The Jerk, The Larks; 18 Ace of Diamonds, Ricky Mason; 19 Jolly Green Giant, The Kingsmen; 20 Going Out of My Head, Little Anthony.

Can you name this man? That's right, Alexander Mackenzie.

Nineteen Programs Likely To Retire Next Season

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Each September some 30 new television programs appear on the three major networks, creating an equal number which died the previous spring.

Apparently, just about the same mortality rate will continue this season. Next fall's tentative schedules are due in about two weeks and indications are at least 19 programs will be retired. Another 18 may survive for another season.

It looks as though there will be no tomorrow for NBC's The Rogues, Kentucky Jones, That Was The Week That Was, Mr. Magoo, Jack Paar Show, and Suspense Theatre.

On the dubious list, are Mr. Novak, the Alfred Hitchcock Hour, International Showtime, The Man From U.N.C.L.E., and even The Jack Benny Show.

Rumors say CBS expects to cancel Many Happy Returns, The Joey Bishop Show, The Cara Williams Show, Bailey's Beat, Dalton, The Entertainers and On Broadway Tonight. It is looking dubiously at The Doctors and The Nurses, Slattery's People, and Password.

Wagon Train, The Bing Crosby Show, The Flintstones and Johnny Quest, likely will be dropped by NBC and there may be no renewals for Burke's Law, Valentine's Day, The Tycoon and The Jimmy Dean Show.

Death comes to most television entertainment shows from low Nielsen ratings.

Recommended tonight:

Preview, ABC, 10-11 EST — Special program showing behind the - scenes activity in preparing a Broadway play and making a motion picture, with Douglas Fairbanks Jr.; Perry Como Show, NBC 10-11 —Special from St. Louis with Danny Thomas and Shirley Jones.

Lena Horne Draws Standing Ovation From First Nighters

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Singing solo can be a lonely business, and so Lena Horne is looking for new fields for her talents. Last week she opened at the Valley Music Theatre in nearby Woodland Hills and twice drew a standing ovation from the first-nighters.

For Lena it was a happy return to the land where she spent a decade of her earlier career.

She went under contract to MGM in 1942 and sang in the studio's glamor-packed musicals —Panama Hattie, Broadway Rhythm, Two Girls and a Sailor, Ziegfeld Follies and Words and Music, but her appearances were always on a segregated basis.

She would perform a song or two in the films, but never took part in the plots.

"That was conveniently arranged so the sequence could be snipped out for showing in certain states," she remarked.

Lena played roles in only two films: The all-Negro Cabin in the Sky and Stormy Weather.

"Both of them made a load of money," she recalled, "but that didn't convince the studios to make changes."

Although MGM made little use of her talents, she was seldom idle. The studio assigned her to play the theatres it owned before the U.S. government enforced separation of production and exhibition.

"I didn't mind so much, although I was paid less than my usual salary," she said. "When you're in your 20s, you thrive on work."

Eventually the studio control began to pale, especially when MGM turned down a request by Jerome Kern for Lena to play Julie in a Broadway revival of Show Boat. And when the studio passed her up to cast Ava Gardner as Julie in the film remake, her disappointment was keen.

Lena left MGM to become a top night club attraction, a field in which little rivalry existed for her. Of late she has limited her engagements to two or three a year.

Successful Living

Wildest of Wolves Could Certainly Pose as a Lamb

DEAR DORIS — I went with this guy two weeks before he went away to Germany. He was the sweetest thing, nice, kind, generous; he wouldn't do a thing to hurt me, not a drinker, not a heavy smoker.

He write regularly and I just got a letter from him saying "If you waited this long, we can still wait a little while longer." He has been there nearly three years. I've heard that soldiers have a girl in every port. It doesn't look too good for a girl to go around with a guy in uniform.

I would like to know whether our meeting would be a success after two weeks of seeing each other and then three years of writing. Do you think he does this and says wait for him just because he's lonely? — GERMAN GIRL.

DORIS CLASS

DEAR GIRL — Of course he's lonely. Wouldn't you be? But don't count on capturing a soul mate when he steps off that train. The wildest of wolves could pose as a lamb for a two-week span. Letters don't tell enough.

When he left you were 16. Wait no longer to catch up on the social life you should be having while you wait!

P.S. Invite more people, get married, raise fine families. But while you are getting acquainted, count on yourself for good behavior, as with any other boy.

DEAR DORIS — Can you tell me if proof of a debt must be in writing? If there is a witness to an oral acknowledgment of a debt, is this sufficient evidence of its existence? We have a telegram in which a loan was requested on one occasion. I thought we should request a series of post-dated cheques and if the obligations are not met, this might constitute evidence of the debt.

Failing this, I thought it would not be unfair to speak to the head of the department by which this person is employed. Some action might be taken as most companies take sufficient interest in the personal affairs of their employees to frown upon any suggestion of irresponsibility or dishonesty. The delinquent borrower is well-heeled but extravagant. — E.C.D.

DEAR E.C.D. — Written proof is helpful, but not essential. A judge would consider any type of evidence which tended to show the debt existed.

Going to the debtor's employer might serve to get revenge, but is a poor way to collect a debt of the kind you describe.

• • •

DEAR DORIS —

1. Would a person have to go to college to obtain education for the real estate business or can a correspondence course be taken at home?

2. What basic schooling does one need for this type of business? — MARRIED BUT AMBITIOUS.

DEAR MARRIED —

1. College is not essential; but it helps, and our Canadian universities do run special courses. I don't know of a correspondence course in real estate.

2. Neither must you have completed high school. I've noticed that those who succeed really "hold at this work" usually taken the trouble to pass at least some of the college courses leading to a degree.

• • •

(Is yours a question about careers? Ask Doris, who knows Canadian resources and can help.)

ACTED WITH PROPRIETY — Hal Dornan, an executive officer on the staff of the prime minister, arranged for a meeting last year between Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to the immigration minister, and persons seeking to arrange a stay of deportation for multi-millionaire Harry Stonehill. Mr. Pearson, in a statement issued Tuesday, said Mr. Dornan acted "with perfect propriety" in arranging the meeting. Mr. Dornan is shown at his Ottawa home. (CP Wirephoto)

Youth Admits Shooting Woman

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — A statement which John Freeman, 16, of Cobourg, Ont., admitted the Oct. 18 shooting of Mildred Crocker, 56, because she hit his guinea pig was admitted as evidence Wednesday at the youth's trial on a charge of capital murder.

In the statement, the accused said: "While we were in the kitchen and we'd finished lunch, Mildred asked if she could feed Bubbles (the boy's guinea pig). She went to the fridge and got some celery. Sometimes he nips people and I think he probably nipped her because she said ouch.

"She hit him and sent him sprawling across the cage. She went upstairs and I looked at Bubbles and he was not moving around and I thought he was dead, so I got a gun and I shot her."

Miss Crocker, who was employed as a maid by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Freeman, the boy's parents, was found dead with three bullet wounds in the head, at the home.

The woman was described as having a mental age of eight or nine and was a ward of the Ontario Hospital here.

Cpl. J. R. Keane of the provincial police here, testified a palmprint on the rifle butt near the trigger was the boy's.

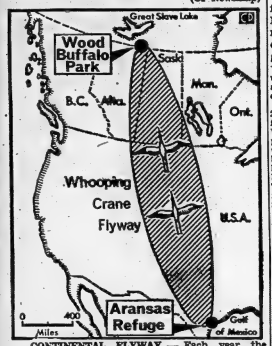
Crossed Fingers--Sign of Survival For Canada's Whooping Cranes



WHOOPING CRANE POPULATION — Since 1939 when protective measures began, the population of the whooping crane has tripled. Indiscriminate shooting and encroachment of civilization on nesting grounds had reduced the stately whooper to 15, but careful nuturing has restored the number of wild birds to 42. Eight others are in captivity. (CP Newsmap)

OUTLOOK GOOD — Naturalists are keeping their fingers crossed on the future of the whooping crane, a stately graceful bird which now numbers 50. Forty-two are wild and eight are in captivity. The wild ones follow a season migration up and down the central flyway from Northern Alberta to the Gulf of Mexico. In the lower photo, the whoopers share a pond with four Canada geese. (CP Photo)

GUARDS NEST — Wood Buffalo Park on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border is the only known breeding area of the whooping cranes. Encroachment of civilization has pushed nesting grounds into the wilderness. In a bid to increase population naturalists plan to gather eggs and raise young birds in captivity. (CP Photo)

CONTINENTAL FLYWAY — Each year the whooping crane population commutes 2,500 miles between Wood Buffalo Park on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border and the Aransas wildlife refuge on the Gulf of Mexico. The whoopers leave for Northern Alberta each April from Aransas and return in the fall, using the same flyway as thousands of Canada geese and ducks. (CP Newsmap)

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The whooping crane has been saved so far from following the dodo into oblivion, but naturalists are keeping their fingers crossed over the future of the beautiful bird.

Good luck and publicity have helped pull the whooper back from the edge of extinction, wildlife experts say. The luck could change.

As the 26th year of careful nurturing began, the known number of the whooping cranes —which had fallen to 15 in 1939 —was up to 50. This record number for the period included 42 wild birds, migrating between Wood Buffalo Park in northern Alberta and a sanctuary at Aransas, Texas. The other eight were in captivity.

The stately whooper — North America's tallest bird—became the object of a rescue mission by the Canadian and United States governments after indiscriminate shooting plus the encroachment of civilization on nesting grounds had reduced it to the vanishing point.

PUSHED NORTH

Nesting areas, once common on both sides of the international border on the prairies, were pushed farther north. Today, the long migration adds extra hazards for the birds.

Officials of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service say the other main threat to the species' survival is a high rate of infant mortality as evident in the Aransas check of new birds each year. The new arrivals of 1964 totalled a record 10, but this contrasted with none the year before, when the Canadian nesting area was hit by high water.

The arriving adults numbered 32, same as the year before. In addition, the Canadian Wildlife Service picked up a youngster with a broken wing in Wood Buffalo Park in September and he was flown to a rearing station in Colorado. It is hoped to use him for breeding.

The U.S. wildlife service attributes the current high figure of whoopers largely to a "tenacious trend" assisted by publicity. Bad weather in any season, it says, could wipe out the new crop of chicks and play bob with the adults, as a hurricane did in Louisiana in 1939.

MULTIPLY IN ZOO

The lone survivor of a flock of 13 in the New Orleans Audubon Park zoo was Josephine. Crip, wounded by gunfire, became her mate in 1949 and they survive with four offspring. A seventh whooper in the zoo is Rosie, recovered in Texas in 1956 with a broken wing.

A new effort to help the whoopers multiply is to be carried on in Wood Buffalo Park where eggs are to be gathered and the young birds raised in captivity.

The free birds consume 2,500 miles between Wood Buffalo Park and Aransas. The Wood Buffalo area is a national park of 11,000,000 acres in a wilderness region on the Alberta - Northwest Territories border and is the only known breeding area of the whoopers. They leave for there each April from Aransas and return in the fall.

Aransas is a national wildlife refuge established by the U.S. government in 1937 on a broad peninsula on the Gulf of Mexico. Its 47,321 acres of upland and coastal marsh are on the Central Flyway and provide a home for up to 300 species of birds. As many as 35,000 Canada geese and 120,000 ducks turn up for the winter.

The whoopers arrive singly, or by couples or families. Their first act on landing is to stake out individual territories of about one square mile. Other cranes are chased away. The public also is barred from the extremely shy whoopers' area, but they can be watched through binoculars from special observation posts.

Diefenbaker Expects To Get Caucus Backing

Will Face Executive With Confidence Vote

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA (Special) — A fight, perhaps a hard one — on the key and possibly touch and go, question of a secret ballot faces John Diefenbaker at the Conservative National executive leadership session tomorrow.

Today he faced the Conservative parliamentary caucus certain of a solid vote of confidence in his leadership with which he could confront the executive.

Tomorrow, though, won't be that sure and simple. In the 129 member caucus, 96 MPs and 33 senators - he appeals largely to friends and supporters, and will have to contend with few openly avowed enemies, for the most part specialized foes are mostly absenting themselves. In the 138 member executive it will be different.

To that executive session will go only 30 members of the large loyalist caucus — 20 MPs and 10 Senators . . . and not all of them supporters. And there, in the national organization, John Diefenbaker will find his opposition concentrated.

WANT SECRET BALLOT

This opposition will move, hard and fast, for a secret ballot. The report is that Egan Chambers, former MP for Montreal St. George—St. Lawrence, former parliamentary secretary to ex-Conservative defence Minister Harkness and former party president, will be the lead-off man, moving for the secret ballot. Seconding him, and certainly supporting the secret ballot, will be such publicity proclaimed "Anti-Dief" MPs as the opposition leader's Ottawa River neighbor Heath Macquarrie of Queen's Quebec deputy, Leon Balcer of "rebel" group, Gordon Aiken of Parry Sound—Muskoka, Herbert Smith of Simcoe North, Heath MacQuarrie of Queen's and Gerald Baldwin of Peace River. How many more there might be supporting the secret ballot and then voting for a leadership convention is the question that will determine whether John Diefenbaker's political future.

WAS ISSUE BEFORE

Just a year ago, when John Diefenbaker beat back the second rebellion in two years he met this same executive there was a floor battle, at the party's annual meeting on just this issue of the ballot.

His enemies—Mr. Harkness and former Minister Without Portfolio, Davie Fulton—himself among them—argued that the delegates should be free to express their views, each one voter, in private. To have to declare publicly for or against John Diefenbaker, they argued

Once Powerful Rightist Leader Now Fugitive in Laotian Jungle

VIENTIANE (AP)—Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma emerged today as Laos' strong man but once powerful Deputy Premier Gen. Phoumi Nosavan is described as a fugitive in the jungle with a handful of policemen.

A sharp turn of events after the week's fighting in the tiny southeast Asian kingdom has left Phoumi without the major role he held as right - wing leader in the shaky neutralist-rightist coalition government headed by neutralist Premier Souvanna.

"The government declared him a rebel and will arrest him if he tries to come back," a cabinet minister said in an interview.

The official, Ngon Sananikone, minister of transport and public works, added that the military may shoot Phoumi if he is captured. He said Phoumi probably would be stripped of his cabinet post and replaced by another right-wing politician.

Phoumi, 44, had been a dominant figure in the confusing struggle for power in Laos since 1959 when he became defence minister, thus controlling the 30,000-man Royal Laotian Army.

His rise began after he engineered an army coup that forced the resignation of Phoumi Sananikone as premier Dec. 31, 1959. He also directed the military operation in 1960 that ousted the regime of Premier Souvanna.

Souvanna regained the premiership in June, 1962, and made himself defence minister. Phoumi was relegated to finance minister, losing control of the army.

Now, in a dramatic reversal less than five years later, forces loyal to Souvanna have crushed Phoumi's apparent bid to regain power.

Government officials claimed that Phoumi had tried six other times to recapture control of the army before his last effort Wednesday was smashed in 10 hours of furious street fighting. Military sources said at least 60 persons were killed in the abortive revolt and uncounted others wounded.

Pearson Defends His Govt.

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson says his "new politics" has taken a mauling in Parliament but is still very much his goal.

He defended the morality of his government in a speech Thursday night to the Toronto and District Liberal Association and said he would refuse to yield to "unfair" pressures to sacrifice those who did not deserve it.

Though he did not refer directly to specific allegations of wrongdoing against persons in government, he accused opponents of "incrimination and insinuations" and of poisoning the atmosphere. Some political gains, he said, normally and cheerfully hit below the belt.

Referring to his expressed hope of a year ago that Canadians would develop a politics aimed at working together for national objectives, he said:

"This kind of politics has taken a mauling in the present Parliament, but it is still very much my goal. Not withstanding the current connection on incrimination and insinuations; notwithstanding the predilection of some to preoccupy themselves with the obstructive and negative aspects of politics. I

Living Costs in Canada Set Record in January

OTTAWA (CP)—Living costs in Canada rose to a record high in January, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The consumer price index was 126.9, up 0.1 per cent from the previous record of 126.8 in December, and 2 per cent over the January, 1964, index of 124.2.

Five of the seven major components making up the index went up while the other two, food and clothing, went down.

The bureau's latest available index of average weekly wages and salaries is for November. That index was 104.8 compared with 205.9 a month earlier and 197 a year earlier. The price and wage indexes are based on the 1949 figures equalling 100.

The price sectors that showed increases in January were housing, transportation, health and personal care, recreation and reading, and tobacco and alcohol. The indexes are based mainly on prices sampled early in the month.

The food index for January was down 0.5 per cent to 132.5 from 133.2 a month earlier. Within the food sector price movements were mixed, with higher prices for cabbage, potatoes, celery, carrots, fish, some dairy products, chicken, selected meat cuts, some canned fruits and coffee. Prices were lower for oranges, tomatoes, lettuce, steak, blade roasts, turkey and eggs.

The decrease in the clothing index was 1.5 per cent to 119.2 from 121.

The greatest of the price increases came in the transportation sector. The index was up 2.5 per cent to 146.3 from 142.7.

Increased automobile insurance was the major factor moving the index although minor gasoline price increases occurred in several cities in Ontario. There were also higher taxi and bus fares.

The housing index rose fractionally to 139.8 from 139.6. Tenant repairs increased slightly but mortgage interest rates and household supplies and services. Prices of home furnishings and appliances were generally down.

Health and personal care costs edged upward to 174.4 from 174.3. There were minor increases in a few of the individual items such as soap and cleansing tissue.

The rise in recreation costs was 0.3 per cent to 154 from 153.5. The changes were mixed with higher prices for television sets and lower costs for radios and phonograph records. Higher prices for newspaper pushed up the reading component by nearly 2 per cent.

The fractional increase in the tobacco and alcohol index to 121.7 from 121.6 resulted from slightly higher prices for beer and liquor. Tobacco prices were unchanged.

Fire Destroys Farm Home In Sidney Twp.

A Sidney township farmer, widowed three months ago, yesterday lost his home by fire.

Left homeless when his big six-bedroom house burned to the ground was Hugh Gray, whose homestead is on the township's fourth concession.

Cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

Mr. Gray was at his barn nearby attending the birth of a calf when a neighbor saw in to tell him his home was afire.

The fire apparently started in a rear shed and spread rapidly through the big frame house.

Belleville fire department rushed three trucks to the scene but the blaze was already beyond control when they arrived.

The final touch of destruction came when flames reached a 200-gallon oil tank in the basement fueled only a few days earlier.

Firemen concentrated on containing the blaze away from outbuildings, dampening down the roof of a nearby driveshed where the fire had spread.

Mr. Gray, who lost his wife in November, said the house and its contents were partially insured.

COLLINGWOOD (CP) — The 730-foot bulk carrier Simonoski, one of the biggest ships ever built here, was successfully launched Thursday — despite a low water level and a blizzard.

Tenth Of Water Pumped Escaping Back Into Bay

Herchimer Residents Report Gurgling Noise

As result of a cross break in an eight-inch water main on Herchimer Ave., Ritz, Belleville Public Utilities has been losing 400,000 gallons of water a day into the Bay of Quinte . . . and all without its knowledge.

The leak was discovered only after residents in the area reported an underground "gurgling" noise as they walked along the street.

Commission trouble shooters using sounding equipment pinpointed the break and repairs were effected early this week.

The break was discovered because residents in the area were interested enough to call the Utilities office," stated commission chairman Gerald B. Hyde. "We appreciate that interest."

NO COMPLAINTS

Oddly enough residents of the area had not complained of a falling off in water pressure and the commission chairman said there was no way of determining when the break might have occurred.

The water main runs along side a storm sewer and the escaping water was getting into the storm drain and running into the Bay of Quinte.

Mr. Hyde said the leak in the Herchimer Ave. main amounted to about one tenth of the total water pumped at the West Belleville pumphouse where the average is about 4,258,000 gallons a day.

Peak pumpage during a 24 hour period last year was 7,538,000 gallons with the lowest day's pumping being 2,868,000 gallons.

Total pumpage during 1964 was 1,558,528,000 gallons, up 91 million gallons from 1963.

Five Massey Factories Shut Down by Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators seeking settlement of a work-contract dispute between Massey-Ferguson Limited and its 6,200 United Auto Workers took a recess today while five factories were shut down by a strike.

Workers in three Brantford plants and at factories in Toronto and Woodstock began leaving their jobs as the 2 p.m. deadline approached Thursday after last-minute efforts at agreement foundered.

Shouting Match In House

TORONTO (CP) — The hue and cry raised by a grand jury report last fall on conditions at the Mercer women's reformatory in Toronto boiled over Thursday into a shouting match by two members of the Ontario legislature.

James Trotter (L — Toronto Parkdale) said employees at the reformatory had lied to Richard Lyall, the grand jury foreman.

Allan Grossman, minister of reform institutions, leaped to his feet and demanded to know what right Mr. Trotter had to accuse civil servants of lying. The men yelled back and forth for a while until the speaker, Donald Morrow, calmed the proceedings.

Earlier, Mr. Trotter had accused the government of making a "vicious attempt" to silence Mr. Lyall. He told of a critical letter Mr. Lyall, an insurance agent by profession, received from the department of insurance, a section of the attorney-general's department.

QUOTED MATRON

Mr. Trotter said Mr. Lyall used his insurance agency stationery to send members of the legislature a press clipping of a story quoting a matron who said Mercer as saying the grand jury's findings were correct.

Mr. Lyall later received a letter from A. A. Halford, licensing officer in the department of insurance stating: "As the subject matter has no relation to the business of an insur-

Graves of Children Believed to Be Two Brothers of Churchill's Father

BLADON, England (CP)—A small mystery has been brewing over the mention in some British newspapers of two "unnamed babies" buried in the Oxfordshire graveyard where Sir Winston Churchill lies.

A review of the parish register shows that the children—whose Christian names only appear on their grave—were in fact Spencer-Churchills. They were sons of the sixth duke of Marlborough and therefore younger brothers of Lord Randolph Churchill, Sir Winston's father, who died in 1895.

The double grave, marked by two flat stone slabs within an iron railing, lies a few yards from Lord Randolph's grave. Until recently it was so overgrown with ivy that the inscription was completely obscured. One day a verger, clearing away the undergrowth, found a metal plate between the two headstones which records the following:

Charles Ashley
Born 28 November 1856
Died 11 February 1858

Augustus Robert
Born 4 July 1858
Died 12 May 1859

Miss Ethel Savill, who has lived for most of her 70 years in Bladon and with her sisters, Miss Mary and Miss Edith, has made a lifelong hobby of the history of Bladon and its church, told a reporter that while the grave gave no indication of family relationship, "we know from an old newspaper cutting that they were younger brothers of Lord Randolph Spencer-Churchill." The register bears this out.

Rev. John Fearn, curate of St. Martin's Church, said in an interview that almost every page of the parish register during the 1850s and 1860s showed children dying, probably as a result of epidemics. Lord Randolph Churchill, who was only 45 when he died, would have been six when the elder of the two children was born.

Mystery still remains as to why only the first names were inscribed on the tomb. Speculation in the village has long revolved around the 19th-century custom that if a gravestone carried only Christian names and no surname, the occupant may have been illegitimate.

The fact that both boys are commemorated on one plaque placed between the graves indicates the inscription was made only after both children had died; that is, more than a year after the death of the first child.

President Johnson Loses No Time In Taking Issue With de Gaulle

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has done to French President de Gaulle almost exactly what de Gaulle did to President Kennedy. And now Johnson and de Gaulle look as far apart as Kennedy and the Frenchman did.

Johnson suddenly called a press conference within a few hours after de Gaulle had finished a press conference. If it hadn't been for this, the Frenchman would have had world headlines to himself.

This is what de Gaulle did to Kennedy:

In early 1963, it was known for some time Kennedy would deliver his State - of - the - Union message to Congress Jan. 14. Under ordinary circumstances this would have given him the world stage for one day. The world was waiting.

De Gaulle jumped into the act. He hadn't had a session with reporters since May, 1962, but he suddenly decided to meet the press not only on Jan. 14 but a few hours before Kennedy was to speak to Congress.

Kennedy's message spoke glowingly of a Europe moving toward unity. The Frenchman contradicted this idea before Kennedy could mention it. He made a mess of Kennedy's foreign policy.

This is what Johnson did to de Gaulle:

For weeks it was known de Gaulle would meet the press Feb. 4. Johnson hadn't held a pre-announced press conference since last July 24. Reporters protested and newspapers criticized him.

At 9:56 a.m. Thursday, immediately after de Gaulle's conference, the first bulletin from Paris said he called for a new world monetary system founded on something more than the U.S. dollar and pound sterling.

At 10:05 a.m. another bulletin: De Gaulle proposed a five-power conference, including Communist China, to examine and perhaps revise the United Nations charter, although China isn't a member.

At 10:25 a.m. a Bulletin from Washington said White House said Johnson would hold a press conference at 11 a.m. If anything was needed to show the Johnson administration's displeasure with de Gaulle, it was this:

Before Johnson could meet reporters, Associated Press already were disagreeing with de Gaulle. At 10:42 a.m. The Associated Press reported unnamed officials considered his five-power conference idea impossible.

Then Johnson, at his press conference, challenged de Gaulle's suggestion for revision of the UN Charter. Still later in the day U.S. treasury officials said de Gaulle's monetary ideas would be a retreat to 1931 when the world economy collapsed.

Cobourg Youth Not Guilty By Reason of Insanity

COBOURG (CP)—A 16-year-old boy who claimed to see dead persons walking on the street was found not guilty by reason of insanity Thursday at the capital murder of his family's 36-year-old housekeeper.

Mr. Justice R. E. Smith ordered that John Ryan Freeman be held in close custody at the county jail at the pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor.

The youth was charged with the Oct. 18 shooting of Mildred Crocker, a ward of the mental hospital at Cobourg who was working at the Freeman home. A psychiatrist testified that Miss Crocker had a mental age of eight or nine.

Defence counsel asked the 12-man Ontario Supreme Court jury to deliver a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity. Crown Attorney Geoffrey Borgstrand told the jury that, in view of the psychiatric evidence, he would support the request.

Four psychiatrists and a psychologist from Toronto testified Thursday that Freeman was suffering from a severe case of schizophrenia.

HAS DUAL PERSONALITY

Dr. Harry L. Hutchison, chief psychologist at the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, said that the Freeman boy, while not mentally deficient, suffered from a dual personality.

Dr. Hutchison said Freeman believed that television programs were intended to communicate something to him, that he could hear and feel sensations that were not there and could hear and see things that did not exist.

Earlier, Mrs. Alexander Freeman, the youth's mother, testified that her son had strange ideas about death and was frightened of the dark.

"As a small boy John kept toy guns beside his bed to protect him from the vampires," she told the court. "Now, he always keeps a heavy piece of driftwood or an RB gun or machetes. There is always a collection beside his bed."

She said her son believed that persons came back from the dead and claimed to see persons who had been killed walking on the street.

Senior Citizens Hold Meeting At Centre

The Senior Citizens Club held their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday in the Recreation Centre with a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. M. Clapp, conducted the meeting which opened with the National Anthem, followed by the club motto.

Secretary Mrs. M. Robinson read the minutes of the previous meeting, the birthday song was sung for two members, and one new member was welcomed to the club.

One minute of silence was observed for a former member, Mrs. Alice Gill, also for the late Sir Winston Churchill. All joined in singing appropriate selections with Mrs. L. Adams presiding at the piano.

Mrs. Tryon, treasurer, gave the financial statement, and Mrs. M. Cook reported on the entertainment. The rest of the evening was spent in playing bingo. The door prize was won by Mrs. J. Stoliker.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Dr. Bond's committee, preceded by singing of grace, and the meeting closed in the usual manner.

New Products Often Used Faster in Que.

By DAVE STOCKAND

MONTREAL (CP) — The French-speaking Quebec housewife, often pictured as being the tube on the apron strings of television, packs home more detergent products, instant coffee and teabags than her sister shopper elsewhere in Canada.

She is more willing to give a new product a try—and, she is less critical of the advertising used to promote it.

Management speakers at a seminar here are told to do business profitably in Quebec sought Thursday to explode the myth that the French-Canadian consumer is a bound-up-in-the-past conservative.

"When properly promoted and communicated, the rate of acceptance for new products is often achieved faster in Quebec than in Ontario," said Roger Heron, vice-president of marketing for Robin Hood Flour Mills Ltd.

He warned however, that a marketing success in the balance of Canada does not guarantee the same success when introduced to Quebec. It's a matter of communications; a matter of understanding.

There should be consumer research in Quebec to study psychological habits and likes and dislikes, he said, instead of projecting consumer studies done in English Canada.

The two-day seminar, sponsored by the Canadian management centre of the American Management Association, was attended by more than 300 executives, a number of them from the United States.

Immediate Action Not Expected

By HAROLD KING

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle's call for a big four-plus-Peking conference on the United Nations is involving no immediate French government action, foreign ministry sources here said today.

Officials here said they were expecting initial U.S. objections to the proposal but hoped it will prove fruitful in due course.

De Gaulle proposed the conference in Geneva of the United States, Britain, France, Russia and China to restore the UN's "equilibrium."

French sources recalled that there was an initially hostile reaction to de Gaulle's 1963 call for the neutralization of Indochina.

They said this hostility has now been modified to such a point that French authorities are playing down by negotiation in South Viet Nam, with Communist China's encouragement, mainly a long-term prospect.

REACTION NEGATIVE

De Gaulle proposed the UN conference in a televised press conference here Thursday. First official reaction from Washington and London was negative.

However, there was optimism here that 1965 will call for a basic reform of the world body, and above all a renewal of the security council's predominance in the task of preserving world peace, will find wide echoes.

On the question of reforming the world's reserve currency system, de Gaulle focused dissatisfaction which has been widespread but mainly private. In France and elsewhere.

The subject of reform was raised notably at a meeting in Washington last year of the International Monetary Fund in Tokyo. De Gaulle's pronouncement is expected to give it a new impetus.

France is in a good position to call for reform, observers here said.

The French international payments situation is excellent, with gold and foreign exchange reserves of more than $5,000,000,000.

In Washington, U.S. treasury officials said de Gaulle's proposal for a return to the gold standard lacked support in Europe and had no prospect of adoption.

Several French newspapers said today some of President de Gaulle's statements in his press conference were divorced from reality.

Publicly-Held Money Supply Shows Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada's total investment in government securities fell by $67,200,000 to $2,982,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday, with all the decline being in short-term treasury bills.

The bank's weekly statement Thursday showed that holdings of short-term bonds declined by $67,500,000, to $269,200,000, while long-term bonds dropped by $2,400,000 to $2,170,600,000. Holdings of treasury bills increased by $2,700,000 to $432,300,000.

Cash reserves of the eight chartered banks declined by $7,000,000 to $1,319,000,000. Two weeks earlier, reserves stood at $1,322,000,000.

Liquid assets of the banks, including day-to-day loans and treasury bills as well as cash reserves, declined by $18,000,000 to $2,852,000,000. Two weeks earlier the liquid assets totalled $2,870,000,000.

The publicly-held money supply as of Jan. 27 was $17,064,000,000, an increase of $116,000,000 over a week earlier and up $1,361,000,000 from the comparable date last year. These figures do not include government deposits in the chartered banks.

Tribunal Trial On Theft Charge Denied by Judge

MONTREAL (CP) — One of three men charged with a $90,000 rum theft Thursday demanded Thursday that he be tried by a military tribunal because of his membership in "a liberation front."

Gaston Plante, 28, said he is a member of le Front de Liberation Nationale (National Liberation Front) and that "outside the Geneva Convention . . ." he is entitled to be tried by military tribunal.

Plante was cut short by Criminal Court Judge Marc-Andre Blain, who said Plante was not a member of the regular armed forces and there would be no argument.

"You are charged under the Criminal Code and your case will be heard before this court," the judge said.

Appearing with Plante for preliminary hearing were Raymond Mooney, 33, and Claude Dubeau, 22.

The men were ordered held without bail until Feb. 11.

The coin robbery occurred last Feb. 2 during a closed-door shop. The robbers took ~some $4,000 in cash, and between $20,000 and $25,000 in rare coins, plus a revolver.

Davie Fulton Undecided About Attending

TORONTO (CP) — E. Davie Fulton, British Columbia Conservative leader, said Thursday night he is undecided about attending the party's national executive meeting in Ottawa on Saturday.

"I'm thinking it over," Mr. Fulton told a press conference. "If he attends the meeting called to decide on the possibility of a leadership convention, he said he will be there in an ex-officio capacity.

Mr. Fulton said he could not answer "at this time" whether he would accept party leadership if the position became vacant.

Asked if he was in favor of a leadership convention, he said the question could not be answered at a press conference.

Mr. Fulton, a former justice minister, opposed party leader John Diefenbaker at the Toronto servative leadership race in 1956.

NOT MENTIONED

Speaking to the Forest Hill Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Fulton did not mention either the proposed leadership convention or Mr. Diefenbaker.

But in discussing political aims, he said "unity is the soul of a political party" and "colourless should not wreck a party of character."

He said the Pearson government is incapable of integrity. "I don't expect that integrity in its narrow sense — in having your hand in the till or your foot in the door," he said.

The current Dorion inquiry into alleged attempted bribery of Yvonne Dupuis would break a heart to think that such things should be going on," he said.

Third Offence Brings Jail Term

A Belleville youth today was sentenced to a month in jail for his third offence of driving while impaired.

It was Joseph's L. Palmer's third offence in recent months. He pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and a further charge of failing to produce proof of insurance was dropped.

She chose a grand piano.

Details to Exchange Visits Of Leaders Not Worked Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Soviet leaders have yet to work out the details of the exchange visits and formal agreement to exchange visits this year.

Officials said today there has been no understanding so far on timing or extent of the proposed trips—when and where.

Johnson's original proposal for how broadly and at what time Soviet leaders would tour the United States.

Johnson got word through diplomatic channels early this week that the Soviet leaders are willing to visit Canada and were interested in his suggestion that they visit the United States.

It was understood that the Soviet embassy relayed the Soviet attitude to the state department Monday.

Johnson's original proposal for the Soviets to visit and tour the United States and appear on television was made in his State of the Union message Jan. 4.

He received a positive response last Sunday when the Russian Communist party newspaper Pravda carried an article saying Johnson's statement had received a "positive response" in the Soviet Union.

Johnson said in a speech Wednesday night that he had "reason to believe" he would be welcomed to the Soviet Union—and he hoped that an exchange of visits would come about this year.

Thursday, the Soviet government newspaper Isvestia told its readers about Johnson's hopes for the exchange of visits this year. Publication of Johnson's remarks and the text of the newspaper indicated official government sanction for the hope.

Moscow sources indicated that neither of the visits would be made before summer.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Summit contacts between American and Soviet leaders could help deal with "immediate problems" of U.S.-Russian relations as well as world issues, a Soviet as well as world issues, a Soviet newspaper said today.

Moscow News, an official English-language weekly, said Soviet - American summit talks "would certainly provide an opportunity not only of exchanging opinions on the major issues of our time, but also on immediate problems of Soviet - American relations."

Moscow News did not define what the immediate bilateral problems were.

Premier Bennett Requests Letter Be Sent to Inquiry

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett has asked for a complete investigation into a mysterious letter, typed with his signature and sent to a member of Prime Minister Pearson's staff.

"There are many peculiar things about this, in the prime minister's office and the RCMP," the premier told the legislature Thursday in proposing that the matter be brought before the Dorion inquiry.

The inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Frederic Dorion, has held hearings in Ottawa and Montreal into alleged attempts of bribery and coercion of federal ministerial aides in extradition proceedings against Lucien Rivard, wanted in the United States on narcotics charges.

(An aide to Mr. Pearson said Thursday night in Toronto, where the prime minister gave a public address, it is up to Mr. Justice Dorion to ask for the letter if he wants to have it brought before the inquiry.)

The entire matter of the letter, the involvement of Prime Minister Pearson's staff and the RCMP is "odd," Mr. Bennett said.

He said he first heard of the letter from reporters Wednesday. When the attorney-general asked the RCMP about the matter, Mr. Bennett said he was "amazed" to discover the RCMP had known of the forgery for several days.

WAS NOT INFORMED

He said the RCMP had not informed the premier or Attorney-General Bonner.

The premier said he also discovered from the RCMP that a man in Vancouver had admitted at least three ways prior to Wednesday that he had forged the letter.

Attorney-General Bonner said in an interview charges may be laid against the unidentified man.

Mr. Bonner said a letter with Mr. Bennett's forged signature was sent last May to Hal Donnan, a member of Mr. Pearson's staff.

He said the letter apparently dealt with the case of Harry Winchill, an American draft resister whose application to become a landed immigrant in Canada is under indefinitely.

MENTIONS 'OUR FRIEND'

The letter, addressed to "Dear Hal," said in part:

"Thanks for your interest in the settlement of our friend in Canada.

"Investment is secondary industry such as he proposes can be of inestimable value to the economy of British Columbia and we are most anxious to see this type of development. Discussions to date have been somewhat delayed due to uncertainty about the outcome and hope this can be settled favorably as quickly as possible."

Mr. Bonner said the letter did not mention Stonehill by name but "in general terms (it) seemed to imply it was written on behalf of Stonehill."

Mr. Bennett said it is "peculiar" that the letter was "sent not to him (the prime minister) but to a member of the staff of the minister of citizenship and immigration," and that no mention of the letter was made to Mr. Pearson.

(Mr. Donnan said in Ottawa that he had seen the letter addressed to him, presumed it dealt with the Stonehill matter, and had forwarded it to the immigration department.)

WOULD CLEAR CAPTAIN

LONDON (AP) — Britain's high captain petitioned the government Friday to reopen investigation of the Titanic disaster to clear the name of Capt. Stanley Lord. They say inquiries on both sides of the Atlantic were wrong in finding that Lord, master of the freighter California, neglected to go to the aid of the Titanic which hit an iceberg on her 1912 maiden voyage and sank with the loss of 1,500 lives.

Ted Poste Now Chief of Fire Dept.

With the retirement of Fire Chief Gerald Vance on February 2nd, Belleville has a new fire chief this week.

He is former deputy chief Ted Poste, a veteran of 28 years service with the Belleville Fire Department. At the same time Leo Culhane steps up to the position of deputy chief No. 1.

It is almost 28 years to the day that Chief Poste joined the local fire department. That was back in the days when Belleville's fire stations were still on Front Street — one at the Upper Bridge, and the other on Lower Front Street at Fireman's Park.

Prior to being named deputy chief two years ago, he served for six years as Captain-Instructor.

"I had always been my ambition to work my way up through the ranks to the role of chief," the new fire department head said today.

"That time has now arrived and it will be my aim to give my best to the citizens of Belleville."

Fire Chief Poste said he would always be available to give lectures in the promotion of fire safety.

Also joining the dinner were retired deputy chief, Gerald "Warpy" O'Brien and retired Captain Frank Post.

Youth Freed On Charge Of Assault

TRENTON — Donald Nelson Lawrence, 19, of Glen Miller was found not guilty when he appeared in magistrate's court in Trenton on Thursday on a charge of assault against Mrs. Doris Graham, 18, of 36 Edwards Street.

Defence lawyer Ronald Cass of Belleville brought before the court an impressive array of character witnesses, including an Anglican rector from Stirling.

Main witness for the accused was 19-ear-old Donald Clapp of R.R. 5, Trenton, who accounted for Lawrence's whereabouts at the time of the attack on Mrs. Graham occurred on the evening of Dec. 16. Douglas Dempsey, a part-time clerk in the King Sol Store on Front in west Trenton, testified that Lawrence and Clapp had been shopping in the store around nine p.m., the time pinpointed by Mrs. Graham as the time when she was attacked by a man in east Trenton.

In finding Lawrence not guilty, Magistrate T.V. Wills commented that although Mrs. Graham evidently "very honestly" thought Lawrence was the man, who had attacked her, there was a "very strong doubt" in the mind of Whitehead Swan brought to her by conservation officer George Warner last summer. He had been found in the Bay of Quinte. His wing had been injured and Mrs. Kent undertook to nurse him back to health.

"But I guess he had been too long without food and his injury had created an infection in his body." Mrs. Kent said today.

STICK TO BUSH

Conservation Officer George Warner at Stirling reports a scattered population of deer this year. Because of the heavy snow, deer are sticking mostly to the deep bush or cedar swamps. They chew on the available twigs and branches and in the swamps eat white cedar.

A few brush wolves were reported in the area recently. These are half dog and half wolf and relatively harmless.

Beavers in the area are in abundance. They spend the winter in huts of twigs and small branches, some near their dams and some in the river bank. From time to time they venture out to secure a succulent twig to chew on, but their food has been stored in the huts before the winter sets in.

Because this is known as an area of "nuisance" beaver . . . they can use the streams and flood roads and fields, the 500 trappers in the 7,000 square mile Tweed conservation area, (this includes all of Hastings County, Prince Edward County, Lennox and Addington, South Renfrew and Frontenac), are encouraged to bring in beaver pelts, with the regulation quota by-passed to a certain extent. Pelts of beaver, mink, otter, marten and fisher must be "sealed" by the conservation officer to keep a record of the "crop" and also keep control of trapping.

During the first two months of the trapping season, November and December, 4,000 pelts were sealed. During January, 3,000. Trapping goes on through February and March and even up into the first week of April.

Mink trapping is down by 40 per cent from last year, with 1,500 pelts turned in up to now. Otter trapping is fairly stable this year, according to Tweed conservation officer Wm. Bittle. Two hundred pelts have been turned in.

ONLY 20 FISHER PELTS

Fishers, (a small, weasel-like animal, feeding on the lesser rodents, rabbits, mice and squirrels), are not too much in demand and scarce around here. Only 20 pelts have been sealed.

Marten and fisher are used for neckpieces in the fur trade. The female fisher with her dark fine fur is preferred over the coarser, male fur, in fact, used almost exclusively.

"Very poor," fishing is reported from the winter fishermen with shanties on the river and the bay. In fact, the catch is almost negligible this season.

Long, Hard Winter for Birds Says Naturalist at Wooler

TRENTON — "It's been a long hard winter for the wild birds", Jack Austin of Wooler said today. Mr. Austin reports purple finches, tree sparrows, English sparrows, woodpeckers, blue jays and "juncos" (a little gray bird with a light breast) at his outdoor feeding station.

They pretty well all like sunflower seeds, which may be bought at the stores along with plastic sacks of wild bird seed mixed with sunflower seed.

The woodpeckers disdain the seed, however. They prefer beef fat or suet. Suet can be melted, mixed with peanut butter and formed into balls. Place the balls in an onion sack (or anything of a net like nature) and hang the sack in a tree and the woodpeckers will peck away at it all season.

None of the birds like pork fat but they do go for beef fat in any form.

Out at Edward Kent's bird sanctuary on the Stirling-Frankford road, the water fowl, mallards and Canada Geese are spending the winter in open coops. Mr. Kent puts straw on the floor of the coop, so that the birds can dry off their feet after venturing out into the pond. Ice has formed below the waterfall at the back of the Kent property and Mr. Kent keeps this chopped out for the fowl.

Mrs. Kent reports with sadness the death of a Whistling Swan brought to her by conservation officer George Warner last summer. He had been found in the Bay of Quinte. His wing had been injured and Mrs. Kent undertook to nurse him back to health.

"But I guess he had been too long without food and his injury had created an infection in his body." Mrs. Kent said today.

PUC Commissioner to Be Honored for 15 Years' Service

Belleville Utilities Commissioner W Harry Rollins will be honored by the Ontario Municipal Electric Association at its annual convention in Toronto on Feb. 28 and March 1-2-3.

Each year at its convention the Association honors utility commissioners with 15 years of service and Mr. Rollins this year is entering his 15th year with the local commission.

At its monthly meeting yesterday the Belleville commission discussed the sale of its gas plant property on South Church St.

Negotiations are underway for sale of one-third of the land area property to be used for future expansion of the W. T. Hawkins Ltd. plant. The commission has an offer to purchase the property. Belleville Metal and Waste Company for the remaining two-thirds of the property.

NO FURTHER USE

With the planned construction of its new garage and warehouse on Sidney Street, the commission will have no further use for the gas p'ant property. All the necessary approvals except that of the Ontario Municipal Board have been received for the new Sidney Street garage.

The capital works program for the utilities this year included extension of a 24 inch watermain from Sidney Street along College to North Front Street; the new garage on Sidney Street, and the installation of a booster pump to increase the pumpage capacity of raw water into the filtration plant.

Next Tuesday the commission will meet with a special committee from city council to discuss fluoridation of the city's water supply as approved last December by city voters.

WILL CONDUCT TESTS

And experts from the Ontario Water Resources Commission are still conducting tests at the local pumphouse with the view of overcoming the objectionable taste noticed periodically in city water.

Currently a chlorine dioxide solution is kill objectionable tasts and odor in water is being added to the filtered water supply.

Whether this is the final answer to the problem has apparently not been determined, but in recent weeks there have been no complaints from water users.

Reptile-Lover Given Year For Theft

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A 21-year-old reptile-lover and his pregnant wife pleaded guilty to snake - stealing Thursday while the evidence hissed at the judge and rattled the defense lawyer.

Four boxes of snakes, two gila monsters, a Habu, a pit viper and a nervous cobra sat through the hearing atop a courtroom table. Observers said the proceedings moved with unusual speed.

Ridge Gene Williams sentenced Joseph Littlepage to a year in prison. His wife, Sharon, pregnant and two weeks overdue, was sentenced to "time already served." She has been in jail since Jan. 6.

Littlepage and his wife were picked up a month ago in Sarasota, Fla., keeping company with a skunk, several alligators, 100 snakes, a 20-pound rat and a bathtub full of turtles.

"With a 15-year-old boy as manager, they planned to start their own serpentarium in the Everglades.

Judge Williams said he was glad it wasn't a jury trial.

"I would hate to have to ask the court clerk to tag all the evidence."

Two $1,000 Grants Approved For Two Arenas

The Hastings county finance committee has approved of county grants of $1,000 each to the Stirling Memorial Arena, and to the Tweed-Hungerford Arena at Tweed.

The grants were requested at the January session of county council but were referred to the finance committee for action.

The committee also has approved a grant of $200 to the Deloro Community Centre, to assist in renovations to the building.

Donors' Views of Agencies

Amongst the most interested readers of the reports presented to the seventh annual meeting of the Belleville United Appeal ought to be the officers of the twelve member agencies, who depend on the Appeal to provide them with the money to undertake their work in the community.

We say these officers "ought to be" amongst the most interested readers, rather than that they will be, because the meeting heard some discouraging facts pointing to lack of interest in the work of the Appeal by some of these agencies. They appear to believe that they have a right to expect the Appeal to provide them with money, without them taking an active part in the laborious task of raising these funds. This does not appeal to us as reasonable.

Altogether aside from this field, though, the reports at the annual meeting give rise to the thought that some consideration might well be given to revising the list of agencies the Appeal seeks to serve.

This year, for the first time, arrangements were made for donors to allocate their gifts to specific agencies, with these allocations likely to mean something in their division of funds. In the past, while allocations were possible in theory, in practice they had no bearing on the amounts the agencies received. This year, as executive manager A. L. Gnaedinger explained in his report, a plan authorised by the directors "insured that those agencies highly favored in this way (by allocations) would share to a better degree in these types of gifts than they had in former years, but that in no event could any agency receive an amount greater than its approved budget."

Perhaps even more important than the monetary impact of this plan is its potential value in judging what contributors to the United Appeal think of the different member agencies.

Mr. Gnaedinger's report not only listed the amounts of allocations but also listed these allocations as percentages of the total budgets of the member agencies.

These percentage figures indicate an amazingly large spread in the popularity of the agencies with donors, allocations ranging from a high of 245 per cent of the budget, in the case of the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada, to a low of 3.4 per cent in the case of the YMCA.

Perhaps, however, these percentage figures are deceptive because of the wide difference in the size of the budgets.

Let us, therefore, be scrupulously fair and consider the total amounts allocated. Here we find allocations to four member agencies classified as "character building" totalled $2,085.50, while three agencies dealing with welfare received $4,034.68 and four health agencies were given $3,656.40. The twelfth agency, the Canadian Red Cross, listed as a partner, was allocated $1,117.61.

Returning to percentages, we find that four character building agencies, whose combined budgets represented slightly over 40 per cent of the budgets, received less than 20 per cent of the gifts allocated.

It is obvious that in the opinion of Belleville citizens donating to the United Appeal the four character-building agencies, the Belleville Minor Sports Association, the Boy Scouts of Canada, the Navy League and the YMCA, are of lesser importance than the agencies concerned with health and welfare. As a group they received 5.6 per cent of their budgets by allocation, while the welfare organizations received 20.8 per cent and the health organizations 21.4 per cent. There were sharp variations in the appeal of individual agencies, the Boy Scouts in the character-building group getting 15.5 per cent of its budget and the Civic Action Committee of the Canadian Women's League in the welfare group receiving 5.5 per cent. Nevertheless, as a whole, character building is considered of lesser importance than health and welfare work.

Who is to say that these citizens are wrong in their estimate? Even those who regard the work of character-building organizations as of the highest value will have to admit that their claim on the charitable is not as strong as that of other organizations. A strong case can be made out for the contention that the character-building group ought to be practically self-supporting, which the charitable agencies obviously cannot be.

We know that the whole idea behind the United Appeal is to eliminate a multiplicity of appeals. However, since there is no indication the Appeal will be able to achieve a clear-cut victory in this effort, perhaps it ought to concentrate on helping those groups which donors have indicated they consider most worthy of support.

Uremia Is the Result Of a Kidney Failure

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother-in-law recently died of uremic poisoning.

What are the early symptoms? Is it possible to discover this illness early enough to save her life? If high blood pressure is not the only cause, what are the others? I have high blood pressure. — Mrs. C. L. D.

Uremic poisoning (uremia) is not caused by high blood pressure, although high blood pressure can result from uremia or kidney disease, among other things.

Uremia specifically is the result of kidney failure. The nitrogen waste matter of the body is not sufficiently eliminated, and gradually piles up in the blood stream.

Some forms of nephritis, or kidney disease which involves the filtering mechanism of the kidneys, is the usual forerunner of uremia. In turn, a stop infection (whether recent or remote) is the most common cause of nephritis. Another cause of kidney breakdown, however, is a complication or form of hardening of the arteries.

Kidney disease is an extremely common disorder. It is the subject of a vast amount of research work these days, but the public in general is only very slowly becoming aware of what a disabling and deadly disease it can be.

There are many ways of detecting it: Urine tests (for albumin, urine volume tests, and measurement of specific gravity); chemical determination of the amount of nitrogen in the blood can detect either actual or impending uremia; there are more intricate but very useful tests for determining the efficiency of kidney function.

Headache, fatigue and swelling are among symptoms more readily noted by the patient. Burning sensation, cloudy urine and such ominous signs as traces of blood should be reported to one's physician. These don't necessarily mean nephritis or incipient uremic poisoning; they may be from bladder disorders or some other ailments. But they are important.

Can uremia, detected early, be treated so as to save lives? Decidedly yes, although it would be foolish to say that all can. Some cases of nephritis can be arrested and lapse into a chronic state. Some can be cleared up completely. Others progress relentlessly into uremic poisoning. Kidney infection is not easy to treat, but there has been gradual improvement for some years now in developing effective antibiotics.

Individuals with high blood pressure should have tests to discover whether kidney disease is responsible, or, whether other factors are the cause, because, obviously, treatment will be different.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any harm in chewing gum? I've been told it's bad for the stomach. — C. A.

No harm to the stomach — but dentists frown on constant gum-chewing because it keeps the mouth in a faintly sugary condition for long periods, which can encourage cavities.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I read your article about warts, but what about moles? I have them all over my body. What could I do to remove the five on my face, without surgery? I had one removed under my arm because it was uncomfortable but it left a scar. — Mrs. L. C.

There is no way for you to remove them yourself.

A dermatologist or plastic surgeon can remove the ones on your face, leaving only a very small scar. When the one was removed under your arm, there was no reason to try to avoid a scar. It may, for instance, have been removed by cautery, which is rapid and simple. Surgical methods would be used on the face, or wherever a scar would be objectionable.

Chef's Hats Once Like Night Caps

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the children was reading a book about knighthood, and the first illustration depicted knights at mealtime. In the background, one could see a chef carving the roast. He wore a high starched white hat.

This struck me as an interesting example of what might be called "false tradition." we have become so used to identifying that kind of hat with a chef that we assume it goes back all the way to the Middle Ages.

Actually, it was not until the 19th century that Antonine Carême, chef to kings and statesmen, introduced the high starched chef hats. Before 1810, cooks and chefs wore hats that resembled nightcaps complete with tassels.

Carême made the hat the symbol of rank in the kitchen. In the French kitchens, the head chef wears the tallest hats, the specialist chefs wear hats half the size, and the lowly, apprentices must restrict their hats to no higher than 6 inches. All this is a fairly recent development.

A more pertinent example of "false tradition" came some years ago, when I suggested to a column that "The Star Spangled Banner" be replaced as our national anthem by some more suitable words and music.

From the outraged letters I received, you would imagine that this silly and tuneless song had accompanied our men at Bunker Hill, and was one of the oldest spiritual underpinnings of the Republic.

In point of fact, not one American in a thousand knows that "The Star Spangled Banner" was not officially adopted as our national anthem until 1931, and was not even played by the military and naval services until 1916. The tune comes from an old English drinking song, "Anacreon in Heaven," and should have stayed there.

When I saw a revival of Shaw's "Joan of Arc," not long ago, it surprised me how few people knew that Joan was not canonized as a saint until 1924, about 500 years after her death. And, on the same subject, even most Catholics are not aware that the doctrine of "papal infallibility" is less than a hundred years old — it was proclaimed at the Vatican Council of 1870, with many members dissenting or abstaining from the vote.

The human animal has a great need to invoke tradition, or even to invent it when required. I once heard of a sign appearing on a university bulletin board: "Beginning Monday morning, it will be a tradition that freshmen may not cross the campus diagonally during the daytime."

Let's Leave Eskimos Alone

By George Lend in the Vancouver Sun

Wherever I hear the sappy platitudes about how Canada is finally treating its Eskimos properly I am reminded of Oguh.

No. Oguh is not an Eskimo. Oguh is Bingo spelled backwards — an instruction from the federal government.

The order came a few years ago when I was area administrator of Baffin Island.

Eskimo families often came to me in need of necessities.

Just to give them handouts would have turned them into beggars. So I let them win what they needed at free games of Bingo.

"Ah, hah!" the government cried; "Fixed Draw!" That's doubly illegal." And I was ordered to turn the name around to conform to the letter of the law — ergo, Oguh.

A small matter, perhaps, but it had a special significance for me, for nothing so well illustrates the folly of government policy in the North.

It's a backward policy twisted, misguided, confused — and the sooner we abandon it and pull out of the North, the better it will be for the Eskimos of that policy, the poor Eskimo.

* * *

That this should be so is ironic. I have no doubt John Diefenbaker wanted to do everything for the lot of the Eskimos when he offered the electorate his famous "Vision of the North."

The whole excuse for that vision was the fear other governments might think Canada's voice in world welfare problems was hollow in view of the shabby treatment Canada accorded its own Eskimos.

But that so-called vision became and remains a nightmare of corruption and waste.

Tens of millions of dollars have been poured into northern communities for the alleged purpose of helping the Eskimo.

But precious little of this money has actually reached the Eskimo, and, all things considered, it would have been much better if we had left him alone in the first place.

I make this charge admittedly, after only a year's training and work — teacher, social worker, administrator — and I went actually singing for joy, on landing at Pangnirtung.

I left ready to throw up if I dwelt on what I'd seen.

* * *

In her writings, Taylor Caldwell equates cruelty with ignorance, and ignorance with poverty.

This applies to our dealings with the Eskimo. They have been carried out with ignorance and stupidity. The results have been cruel and mean.

We refuse to recognize that our civilization is totally alien from the Eskimo's. He is, literally a living Stone Age Man.

Therefore, he is not a social simple. They are that, all right. They also are honest, and friendly and generous.

And when our two cultures collide, after a short time, the naturally determined hierarchy of values is permanently destroyed for Eskimo.

The same situation exists in every northern community: drunkenness, prostitution, depravity — the whole bit.

For those of us who have experienced the Eskimo, the promises an ugly open sore, disgusting and painful to remember.

* * *

What about specifics?

Let's take morals. The Eskimo, as a matter of course, practice trial-marriage, but I never heard of a couple once married who did not love and respect each other their whole lives.

They marry about age 14 or 15 after a trial-and-error period which may go for a year or more. Often the marriage partner is one decided for them by both pairs of parents.

Once married, any children they have are either raised by them, or by some relative the child "cottons" to. There are no illegitimates for the simple reason that the race seems to be blessed with adolescent sterility.

Again, Eskimos may indulge in wife-swapping, but it is done by a mutual agreement — not as a game of switching car keys as, say, in West Vancouver.

No Eskimo husband is fool enough to venture out very far with his dog-team without someone along to look after it. Also it gets ripped or chew big kahns when the soles become brittle.

If his own wife is ill, he does not run the risk of subjecting her to the elements during a protracted hunting trip, but makes temporary arrangements — quite agreeable to all — with another couple. What follows may or may not include cohabitation.

So what does the white man do in this ripe situation?

Well, he spreads venereal diseases for one thing, he encourages prostitution (yes, mother, and, since when Eskimo girls who are mature are married, he breaks up families for the child).

It is the white man, not the Eskimo, who is degraded in such an affair, regardless of the outcome.

And don't you believe this doesn't embrace the vast majority of every other white man in the area in carrying out his work. It does.

* * *

Now, let's look at religion, as introduced to the Eskimo by the Catholics, Anglicans and Pentecostals.

Judging by what I've seen myself, heard in conferences and read, these "missionaries" have done their damndest to convert and discipline and mix-up and frighten the Eskimo with the set father against son and mother against daughter.

Yes, Eskimos are superstitious, and they do have shamans, but I never came across a belief or custom that, examined in the light of day, was not a sensible one.

And I say it is criminal to teach such a people that to have faith in their beliefs and customs is wrong.

What happens when a particular preacher is transferred? The people are left with faith in nothing.

* * *

Medical aid? It's mainly pill-pushing — penicillin and salts and gin — and, to a man with virtually no previous contact with either diseases or drugs, the results have not always been totally satisfactory.

The Eskimo has been taught not to use his own cures but to seek out the white man first.

There have been some — and they are not isolated — of Eskimos travelling hundreds of miles to a first aid post and being refused admission because it was "after hours."

I myself was once taking an Eskimo woman who had contracted gonnorrhoea and pleurisy to my home by dog-sled when I came upon a government aircraft and attempted to commandeer it.

The aircraft was being used for Operation Mukamuk, a pool of servant was flying around pulling the Eskimos on whether they liked the name Mukamuk or not, whether they would prefer another name for their territory.

He told me: "If you think I'm gonna take some sick Eskimo woman on board, you're nuts. This is government business I'm on."

Communist Pride

Ottawa Journal

A certain Russian advised fellow countrymen travelling in western countries to say, "I am proud to be a Communist and it." If they want to earn the respect of their hosts. Westerners do despise Communists — pretend they are "almost like the other fellow," he said.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Feb. 9th, 1915

At their regular session on Monday evening, the city council approved the granting of $40,000 to the Hastings Exhibition Association to be used in building the proposed convalescent and chronic hospital, subject to further investigation by the committee in ways and means of the amount required after the members had met a delegation from the W.C.A.

The members were of one accord as to the soundness of the proposition but they were dubious as to the means of financing and were interested by the Committee that the raising of the money could be budgeted for the next year. If the project is paid for by debenture, permission for the granting of these debentures will have to be obtained from the Department of Municipal Affairs. Since the scheme is proposed for the Department of Health there appears no possibility of the request not being granted.

30 YEARS AGO

Feb. 8th, 1905

At a meeting of the city council it was decided that for the time being, deputations will be received at the city council at committee meetings only. Therefore, next Monday, but in the main, deputations will be heard at the regular meetings of the council.

Alderman Thos. H. Marshall had introduced a motion that no deputations be heard at committee meetings. However, on motion of Mayor Tice, it was brought back to the council for further consideration. Mayor Tice said in effect, that there are times when it may be inconvenient for business men from out of town to be present at the council meeting on Monday night and there are times when deputations call for a calm deliberation to, matters brought up, instead of making snap judgments, as is often the case when a matter is sprung on them in council.

The council increased the salary of fire chief Lynch to $1,200 per year from Feb. 1st. The tender of Jas. Thompson to pump for the supply of 30 tons of coke at $9.85 per ton was accepted.

40 YEARS AGO

Feb. 5th, 1925

Mr. B. Mallory, the treasurer for Hastings County, has re-elected auditor for the Holstein-Friesan Association for his 22nd year at a meeting of the association in Toronto recently. Just before the close of the business session, on behalf of the members, the Hon. W. J. Lee presented Mr. Mallory with a gold headed cane in recognition of his long and valued association with the organization.

The Ontario Government will commence work shortly in the construction of a new highway west with the city of Belleville system.

Mr. Charles Walters went to Toronto today on business.

50 YEARS AGO

Feb. 8th, 1915

In the second hockey match between the teams of the Deacon Shirt Company and the Belleville Intelligencer, the latter were victorious, the score being 5 to 1. The following composed the teams: Intelligencer — Reynolds, Riggs, Mason, French, Bales, Ford and Barber. Deacon team — Hinchey, Middleton, Finkle, Barrett, Hibbard, Rayfield and Alexander. The referee was Ray Hinchey and he handled the game well. Sam Hibbard was the official timekeeper. The rink was in fine condition for the flying puck but he will recover.

Mr. Charles Wilson of Ottawa is renewing acquaintances in town.

Flight Pay Is Costly

Toronto Star

Each year about 3,000 deckhound former flying officers in the air force, army and navy have to draw others from the ranks for the nearest airfield to qualify for a special bonus of $100 a month by logging 15% flying hours every three months.

The idea is the taxpayer for this "proficiency flying" is considerable. It cost $65.5 million annually to pay the special bonuses, the necessary ground crew and the cost of maintaining the aircraft. In addition the aircraft which are used in this program cost $11.5 million.

Are these flights really necessary?

Defence Minister Pouliot Hellyer has earned an enviable record for cutting out unnecessary defence expenditures. He should take a hard look at pro-ficiency flying.

Coats Longer, Looser and More Relaxed

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

PARIS (AP) — Balenciaga, dean of French couturiers, presented a finale to the semi-annual marathon of fashion collection openings Thursday which, as usual, had buyers scrolling their most superlative superlatives:

"His coats and suits have taken on a new dimension in design," observed one veteran purchaser from New York, "they are longer, looser and more relaxed. They are not shaped and they are not bulky or big, either.

"They are built up higher, very young looking, with a wider shoulder and a one-piece sleeve construction. Jackets are 24 to 25 inches longer . . . but skirt lengths are the same, covering the knees."

On coats and suits, were few belts, not more than two or three; little black velvet collars; some soft tweeds, but mostly navy with gold button trims. Brown, white, carmel and a little coral are used, but the color story is mostly navy.

SWEET LOOK SHOWN

The sweet old - fashioned girl look in a modest shirt - waister and a skirt that tightly girdled the middle was among the memorable dinner dresses shown.

But the costume getting the most rave reviews was a long silver scarf and sleek, fur edges of which had drip-like icicles with long, silver beads.

Of all his counterparts, Balenciaga is the only one who sparks his collection with plenty of jewelry. Many many gold chains, and bibbets with gold-colored stones glittered at necklines, while dangling from mannequins' ears were four-inch double strands of gold, each swinging with pearls.

With daytime clothes of all hues, the mingos were two-tone and those of carmel and ombre with tie fronts and bull-eye heels. Plain silk pumps in a variety of shades shod the misses when wearing after-five apparel.

Club Activities

NEIGHBORS' AID

2ND THUMLOW — The January meeting of the 2nd Thurlow Neighbors' Aid was held at the hall on Wednesday afternoon with over 20 present.

The president, Mrs. Manley Mitchell presided for the meeting and the secretary, Mrs. Maurice Reid read the minutes, correspondence and thank-you cards. Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, treasurer read the financial report and a number of arrangements were made for future meetings and social parties.

Mrs. Bruce Pettit had arranged the program for the meeting when a reading was given by Mrs. Robert Atkins. Community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. Mitchell at the piano.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Pettit also introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. M. Bakay of the Bell Telephone of living conditions dating back to the first of the century up to modern times.

First of all she compared prices of farm produce at the beginning of the 1900's with those of today. Many scenes were shown of old fashioned wearing apparel, some of the first cars, the original telephone, when there were only 382 telephones in Belleville. Scenes were also shown of family life as it used to be gathered around the piano for a sing-song and many other pictures pertaining to family life in that era.

FIRST COMMUNICATION

She also told of the first telephone communication between Montreal and Vancouver; showed scenes of soup kitchen lineups during the depression years; views of wrecked buildings caused by bombings during the Second World War and dealt with the discovery of penicillin and concluded by noting that the first air broadcast of CFRC was in 1946 and TV coming to the fore in 1952.

Mrs. Bakay was presented with a gift at the conclusion of a most interesting talk.

Lunch was served by the hostess Mrs. M. Dent and Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, Miss Sarah Stickney and Mrs. Robert Atkins.

The next meeting to be held in March will be in the form of a potluck dinner.

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH CONTACT CLUB

On Monday evening a large group of Christ Church Contact Club members, together with guests and members of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, met for an interesting and most informative meeting.

Mrs. Ruth Follwell, a member of the Education Committee of the Canadian Cancer Society, addressed the group and showed two appropriate films, "Time" and "Two Women", produced by the American Cancer Society, also gave a talk on the Ontario Division of the Canadian Cancer Society.

Following the films, Mrs. Follwell answered questions asked by Florence Lennox, which gave a great deal of insight into many facts about cancer.

President June Fisher announced that an invitation had been received from the Women's Church Year of St. Thomas Anglican Church to attend a meeting on March 10th, at which time the guest speaker will be a member of the Order of St. John the Divine from Toronto.

A tasty lunch was prepared and served by the hostesses, Dorothy Sinclair, Marge Bunnett and Edith Pringle.

ENERGETIC CLUB

The Energetic Club of Holloway Street United Church met recently with Frank and Thelma Hicks as hosts in charge. Quiet music was played while the call to worship was given in honor of Sir Winston Churchill.

The business period was conducted by the president Audrey Brethour, and two new members were introduced. Plans for the banquet which will take place early in March were discussed.

Fred J. Wilson introduced the guest speaker, Rev. James Smith, who came to Canada from Japan to attend a world Anglican Congress in Toronto. He is on a two-year leave from his diocese in Tasmania and will start his journey home on April 21st. He is at present assistant curate at Christ Church, Belleville.

The speaker told of Tasmania, its largest island, the greatest country in the southern hemisphere, using slides to illustrate his talk. A small Koala bear made from kangaroo fur was shown to the club.

Ross Dryden thanked Mr. Smith for his interesting talk. He also thanked the group in charge for the enjoyable evening.

COUPLES' CLUB

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP — The February meeting of the White's Church Couples' Club was held on Saturday night in the church. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were in charge of the devotional service and they described a day lived in consciousness of God and the emotional and spiritual benefits accrued thereby. It was suggested that each member attempt to follow the method outlined and thus enrich their lives.

GUEST SPEAKER

The speaker for the evening, Constable Wills of the Ontario Provincial Police, was introduced by the program convener, Mrs. Glenn Meyers.

Constable Wills was born in Ireland, and it was evident that his sense of humor had helped him through some amazing experiences while patrolling Sidney Township. He told of the many areas of knowledge with which the Provincial Police had to be familiar - the Criminal Code, the Juvenile Code, the traffic regulations, mental and racial relations, Children's Aid and psychology.

TWO SUGGESTIONS

Constable Wills studied psychology extraordinarily well Queen's University. He suggested two areas for improvement of Sidney Township, one is a place of public access to the Bay of Quinte for recreation, and the other was more facilities in the community for teen-agers, so they would not have to travel to Trenton or Belleville to have fun.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. James Palmer and presented with a box of chocolates.

Mr. Lawrence Dafoe, secretary-treasurer of the club read the minutes and gave a report of the financial standing and Mr. Taylor presided.

The club voted to have Mr. Taylor join a film club to procure visual aids for Sunday School use from the United Church facilities.

A social hour followed the meeting and lunch was served.

Canadian IODE Celebrates 65th Birthday This Month

The I.O.D.E. (Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire) will celebrate its 65th birthday on February 13th.

The impact of the work of the Order's 978 chapters is felt in Canada as well as in countries throughout the world and, at Founder's Day meetings from coast to coast, the members will reflect with pride on the achievements of the Order which has grown from a small group of Canadian women, to a large national voluntary organization, raising over $1,000,000 a year for education, emergency welfare and other community services.

Accomplishments in the educational field where more than $350,000 is spent annually, continue to expand.

ADOPTED SCHOOLS

Sixty-three schools and ten hostels in the Yukon and Northwest Territories have been adopted by the chapters. Thirty-six schools in Northern and Southern Labrador, and thirty-nine remote and isolated schools in Newfoundland have also been assigned.

Apart from the schools in Canada, the I.O.D.E. has adopted secondary schools in The West Indies and British Honduras. School adoption involves gifts of new libraries, prize books, records, pianos, geographic aides, projectors, and varied visual aids.

The I.O.D.E. in every province continues to support Canadian Arts. Recently the National Chapter of Canada awarded a second bursary, amounting to $500.00 to the bicultural National Theatre School of Canada.

This year is the fortieth anniversary of the I.O.D.E. calendar project. The 1963 edition has a new format which includes original designs by two Micmac Indian artists from New Brunswick. The IODE hopes that this original calendar will provide encouragement to artistic talent among Indian artists.

The work of the Commonwealth relations department is done mainly in education. This year, three undergraduate students are studying medicine — two in India and one in Nigeria. Students from Australia, British Guiana and Ghana are taking post-graduate courses in Canada.

BURSARIES AWARDED

$56,000.00 was awarded from IODE First and Second War Memorial Funds for eleven Post-graduate Scholarships (Overseas), valued at $2,000 each, and 21 bursaries at $1600. each in Canadian universities for children of Canadian war veterans.

On welfare services $400,000. is spent in Canada and $100,000 for supplies to the needy in Europe, The Middle East, The West Indies, Hong Kong, India and Korea.

Eleven years ago X-ray equipment was provided for the T.B. clinic in Korea. The IODE is currently sending the 40th shipment of X-ray developer, film and parts necessary for the maintenance of the unit—the cost amounting to $3-600 annually.

Members continue the knitting and sewing of thousands of articles for distribution, and give countless hours of service to institutions such as cerebral palsy, retarded, blood donors, blind and Canadian Paraplegic Centres.

At Christmas a large supply of handmade toys were packed and shipped for the Eskimo and Indian children in the Far North, for distribution at community centres, hospitals and schools.

CENTENARY FUND

The IODE is raising a minimum of $50,000 for the national fund, known as the "IODE Canadian Centenary Fund." A special educational project under the auspices of each province will commemorate Canada's centennial year. A share of the money will be allocated to the chapters in the Yukon Territory and the remainder of the fund will be equally divided among the ten provinces.

Susanna's Family Fare

YUM YUM TREE

Dear Susanna: I was invited to tea the other afternoon, and in the centre of the coffee table was an arrangement of large bare branches collected from a fruit tree. Something had been added, however, to make them party-like and gay.

A colorful gumdrop had been slipped onto the end of every short stubby shoot so that the whole tree was loaded.

While we were still there, her nephew and his three young daughters dropped in. You should have seen their eyes! She then served them little sandwiches and milk in the breakfast room and placed the tree on their table for them to nibble at for dessert.

I've never seen anything so delightful. — Mrs. W. Jane

RISE AND SHINE

Dear Susanna: I clean my stainless steel sink with baking soda, then rinse and dry. Not only is it good for the drain, but it keeps my sink sweet-smelling and looking like new. — Mrs. W. Tomlinson

There was also a nice letter in the same mail about using dry baking soda to give small appliances a final professional looking shine. Let's try this one together:

After unplugging the toaster, we are to clean it off in our usual way to remove any little burnt-on-pieces. Now we sprinkle some baking soda on a dry cloth and rub it all over with this. Next step, polish with a clean cloth. — SUSANNA

After an appropriate devotional on "Brotherhood" by C.G.I.T. girls, the minister, Rev. Chas. R. Reader's Friday Column

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: . . . enjoyed your recent Meat Balls Stroganoff! Tried my first yeast dough with 1½ lbs. buns and have gained enough confidence to try others as a result . . . Your January 15th reply was more than prompted me to write because her comment about the texture made me wonder if what she wanted was a boiled perogi. May I offer you Grandma's and Mother's recipe for the dough? . . . Arlene J.

Answer: Sure, but who was it?

SCOTCH SHORTBREAD

1 lb. butter; 4 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour; ¾ cup unsifted icing sugar.

Mix these 3 ingredients by hand in large bowl until of rolling out consistency. Roll out to ¼" thickness on lightly floured board. Edges of dough will crack, but-gastrically coax dough into a smooth round. Cut out with lightly floured cutter or various cutters. (I made 52 2¼" shortbreads from this amount. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. on unbuttered baking sheet about 20 to 25 minutes. Remove as soon as they are barely tinged with gold. They should not be browned at all. Okay?

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Cream of Tomato Soup (see Wednesday); Golden Curried Scallops (see Tuesday); Shredded Beets; Fine Shredded Cabbage Salad; Old-Fashioned Custard Pie; Coffee.

DOUGH for BOILED PEIROGI (Courtesy Arlene J.)

This is a Ukrainian recipe. Three cups flour, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 eggs, ½ to ¾ cup water. Measure flour and salt and mix. Make a well in centre and add eggs. Work eggs in, then add water gradually. Work until flour is all worked in. Knead until dough is smooth and elastic. Shape into a stubby roll. Cut off a piece at a time and roll out with rolling pin into a small flat round. Place one tablespoon filling on each, be sure to seal well and cook in boiling salted water. When dropped into the salted water they sink like stones, but rise when done. We serve these with gobs of sour cream. Next day fry any left-overs in butter.

ANSWER: Thank you Arlene for sending this for S.H.Z. Readers, I am giving you a second PEIROGI FILLING because you may not have seen the recipe that Arlene refers to on Jan. 15: ½ lb. uncreamed cottage cheese, 1 cup mashed potatoes, 2 chopped green onions, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 table spoons butter. Saute onions gently in butter and add to remaining ingredients.

Question: Mary, would you mind repeating your exact recipe for Scotch Shortbread — just as you make it. I tasted some you sent a friend — mutual — at Christmas. Molly D.

Church Groups

ST. THOMAS W.A.

MINTO — The annual meeting of St. Thomas W.A. was held at the rectory in Harmony on Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance. Rev. Stewart conducted a splendid provoking talk on the selected Scripture stressing how members can apply their lives by always being of service to the community and the church.

Mrs. Colden read minutes of last annual meeting.

Mrs. Preston welcomed all and thanked Rev. and Mrs. Stewart for opening their home for meeting. A board report was read by the president.

Miss Edna Tanner gave the treasurer's report showing a balance. Business was discussed. Mrs. Lindsay Tanner moved a vote of thanks to officers for splendid interest and work done in each capacity.

Mr. Stewart took charge of the election of officers which resulted in all officers returned as follows: president, Mrs. Ted Preston; vice-president, Mrs. Mabel Ray; secretary, Mrs. Ed. Colden; treasurer, Miss Edna Tanner; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. Mabel Ray.

Some new items of business were read and "Living Message" subscriptions received. The next meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. John Courtney in two weeks.

Meeting was closed and Mrs. Stewart served lunch.

Ann Landers

Five Children Good Excuse For Wife Not Working

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Before I married Lena she was a real go-getter, full of pep, held down two jobs, and could pitch horseshoes around the lot of us on Sunday. I was real proud of her.

ANN LANDERS

We were married in 1958 and have five children. Lena certainly has changed. I can't get her to go out and find a job no matter how hard I try. My mother lives with us and she thinks she's on crutches she could watch the children fine. Our oldest child is five and she's like a little mother to the younger ones.

Last night I told Lena I didn't think she was carrying her share of the load. While I work hard in the mill she's at home taking it easy. Lena got mad and said, "Why don't you shut your foolish mouth?" She reads your column and thinks you are smart. Please tell her to stop making excuses and go to work. I could sure use the help. — RED.

DEAR RED — A woman who has had five children in six years doesn't need an excuse for not going to work. She's got plenty of work at home.

I can't imagine what Lena does home-all day after she finishes the laundry, the ironing, cleaning, scrubbing, cooking, baking, dishwashing, mending, marketing and referees the children's fights. Maybe she just collapses. I second the motion about your mouth, Buster.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I pasted a guy in the mush because he said something fresh to my girl. Now she won't speak to me.

Last night we were at a restaurant and a loud drunk in the next booth kept hogging the juke box and playing the same record over and over. I asked him to knock it off. He said he liked the record and was going to play it at least a dozen times more.

I told him my girl hates the record and it was making her sick. He called her a mopey, bow-legged broad so I let him have one right in the kisser.

The owner of the restaurant threw us out. Now my girl says she wants nothing to do with a roughneck who fights in public. Honest, Ann, it was just like I told you. Please help me. — FRANE.

* * *

DEAR FRANE — Consider yourself lucky you didn't get your profile changed. Some guys get drunk but they fight sober. You should have left the place if you didn't like the music.

Promise to use your head instead of your dukes in the future and I'll ask your girl to give you another chance. Okay? Okay.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am especially pleased to hear you roast the time-honored (and insulting) practice of men hulding at parties and ignoring the women.

This is a junior high school stunt — boys on one side and girls on the other.

I refuse to believe that men and women must be segregated to insure interesting conversation for both. When we entertain I remain firmly rooted in the living room with the girls. This forces the men to come in from the kitchen and the back porch.

Since the separation of the sexes is a common social practice I wish you'd lambaste it one more time. Thank you. — MR. J. H. B. of GREENSBORO.

* * *

DEAR J.H.B. — You are a generous man, indeed, to place the blame on the males. I happen to believe it's the women who are at fault. When they begin to play "TEA—or "TWARDOS," or "Kitchen," or "Junior said the cutest thing today," the men wander off. And who can blame them?

* * *

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is it Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

LBJ Denies Paris Rumors Of Viet Nam Truce Feelers

WASHINGTON (AP) — What will the United States do if a South Vietnamese government ever asks it to stop the anti-Communist war and get its 23,000 soldiers out of the country?

That was the toughest question asked at President Johnson's press conference Thursday.

Johnson said he would cross that bridge if he ever came to it, but that he did not anticipate having to cross it.

The president would have to "cross that bridge" if a government came to power in warweary Saigon that believed it could handle the Communist guerrilla problem without U.S. help and probably by some kind of "neutralization."

But only practical way such a government could come to power, as U.S. experts assess the prospects, would be by action of the politically powerful Buddhist leadership, which is not a deal with some group of military men.

Whether such a deal is possible is one of the things Johnson's top foreign policy aide, McGeorge Bundy, is trying to find out in his talks with U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor, other American officials and South Vietnamese leaders this week in Viet Nam.

The questions Bundy is asking, administration officials insist, have far more bearing on the future U.S. role in South Viet Nam than the persistent reports out of Paris that secret diplomatic probings are under way for a negotiated settlement.

Paris informants have reported contacts there between Communist and South Vietnamese unofficial representatives. But top U.S. officials are being informed.

Johnson was asked to smash the Paris reports at his press conference Thursday, denouncing them as incorrect and saying they had "no validity." He also took the occasion to declare of the present attitude toward Viet Nam:

"I only want to reassert . . . our determination to support our present policy . . . to try to help the people of Viet Nam to help themselves to preserve their freedom."

Later, other officials said the administration sees no basis whatever for a negotiated settlement under present conditions. They concede the situation is chaotic and frustrating and that the Communist effort to destroy is fed up with pouring money and men into a war which the United States not only cannot seem to win but cannot even control.

ance agent, we must ask that you refrain from using your letterhead to deal with private matters."

On another subject, Murray Gaunt (L—Huron-Bruce) recommended to the legislature that Ontario's first two-year community colleges should be established in Sarnia, Barrie, Kitchener and North Bay. Liberal leader Andrew Thompson has proposed a 25-school community college network across the province.

A report prepared by the department of Labor forecast that, of Ontario's 10 economic regions, the northeastern region and the lakehead region will show the greatest percentage increases in the labor force by 1986.

The province's labor force was 2,383,015 in 1961 and will range from 3,673,900 to nearly 4,000,000 by 1986, the report said.

SCHOOL REGIONS SET

Education minister William Davis announced his department has drawn up boundaries for the first five of 10 educational regions envisaged for Ontario as part of a program to establish decision-making apparatus outside Toronto. The first five regional centres will be Port Arthur, Sudbury, North Bay, London and Kitchener-Waterloo.

Two acts introduced in the legislature Thursday provide that:

—a coroner must be notified of all bodies donated to medical schools for anatomical dissection.

—hospitals must administer tests to new-born babies for the presence of phenylketonuria, known as PKU, a metabolic disorder of childhood which results in a chemical imbalance in the blood and causes mental retardation.

Wine Consumed On Boat Ride Says Witness

DRYDEN, Ont. (CP)—A 13-year-old girl testified Thursday she saw her sister and Raymond Landon, 19, of Indian Lake, Ont., go off in a boat on a northwestern Ontario lake on the morning of Aug. 5, 1964.

Margaret Rose Landa said she did not see her 19-year-old sister, Hazel Landon, after.

Margaret was giving evidence at Landon's preliminary hearing on a charge of criminal negligence.

Inspector R. McGarva of the Ontario Provincial Police said he found a bag on the shore of Whitney Lake, northwest of Dryden, in which clothing was found alongside.

Margaret Landa said Landon, a half-breed, had come to the Landa home Aug. 5 during a party. She said Landon, Mary and herself went for a night boat ride, during which wine was consumed.

Margaret said all three went to sleep on an island. She awoke in the morning she saw Mary and Landon head off in the boat.

Margaret was found on the island Aug. 7 by a tourist.

The hearing continues.

unsuccessfully, was to invite reprisals. His friends contended that any man who didn't have the courage," as it was phrased, "to stand up and be counted" simply didn't deserve the privilege of a vote.

When the showdown came, for or against the secret ballot, not more than 10 rose supported it. And John Diefenbaker with his pointed "You ask where I stand . . . I want to know where you stand", carried the day overwhelmingly. Jr. Gaunt in this brief revolt against his leadership, his enemies contend the secret ballot is the key to a successful coup. On this issue, the first blood Saturday at the executive session will be spilled.

HAITI NATIVE IS ONTARIO MAYOR — Dr. S. F. Monestime is a Haitian-born Negro who is serving his second term as mayor of Mattawa, Ont. He is married to Zina Petschersky, a native of Poland and a direct descendant of Czarist Russians. They met when he was a resident doctor at the Ottawa General Hospital. 'Caused by American Influence'

Race Discrimination in Tourism Says the North's Negro Mayor

By JEAN GUY BIGRAS
Of the North Bay Nugget

MATTAWA, Ont. (CP)—When Dr. S. F. Monestime, a Haitian-born Negro, took the oath of allegiance as a Canadian citizen in 1958, he said:

"I am ready to give my life for this country if I have to. I also expect to enjoy all rights of this country and I do not want to be considered as a second-class citizen."

His expectation appears to have been fulfilled in this town 225 miles east of North Bay. A first-class citizen, he now is serving his second term as mayor.

A general practitioner and surgeon, Dr. Monestime came to Canada from his native Haiti in 1941 and began practising medicine here 10 years later.

He became interested in municipal politics, was elected top councillor in 1963 and swept to office. He was re-elected by an overwhelming majority for this year.

"In Haiti you become an enemy of the state as soon as you leave the civil service," he says. "I was afraid for my life."

He applied for permission to study in Quebec City, which was granted. In 1941, he left his country quietly, without announcing his departure, for fear of reprisals.

Dr. Monestime arrived in Quebec with a dollar in his pocket. "I took a taxi to Ernest Jeous Hospital. The charge was 90 cents and I gave the driver a 10-cent tip."

He interned at Quebec, Montreal, Sherbrooke, Que., and Ottawa and was granted immigrant status in Canada after he had passed the examinations of the Canadian College of Physicians and Surgeons in Quebec City. Meanwhile he became a resident doctor in Ottawa.

He met Miss Petschersky, a native of Poland and a direct descendant of Czarist Russians. Dr. Monestime met his wife when he was a resident doctor at the Ottawa General Hospital. They now have four children: Vala, an 11-year-old girl, and three boys, Fedia, 10, Yura, 4, and Sasha, 2.

After completing his studies at Fort-au-Prince in 1936, Dr. Monestime was named medical officer on the international route between Haiti and the Dominican Republic. He was on duty during the massacre of 50,000 Haitians, ordered by Dominican President Dr. Raphael Trujillo, in 1937 and 1938.

"I saw all kinds of broken bodies. I helped bury the dead and saw dogs pull bodies from the graves."

After the truce, in 1938, Dr. Monestime received the Haitian Legion of Merit and Honor from President Elie Lescot. He was given a state medical position in Port-au-Prince.

Later he began public criticism of what he termed deplorable conditions in his homeland, including industrial families in his attacks. Eventually he resigned as state medical officer.

HAS OUT OF MONEY

Dr. Monestime intends to remain in Mattawa to continue his medical practice until he retires.

ACCUSES GOVERNMENT

TORONTO (CP) — Poverty pervades Ontario society and the provincial government has made no real attempt to assess its nature and depth, James Renwick (NDP—Riverdale) told the legislature Wednesday. Mr. Renwick said that of the province's 2,000,000 poor, 700,000 are destitute, 500,000 live at subsistence level and 800,000 do not have the necessities or comforts of life. Another 1,000,000 are "just—able to make ends meet, he said.

Museum Piece To Be Used by Armed Forces

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian armed forces have had obsolete weapons now and then but it's doubtful they have ever before acquired a museum piece for operational use.

That's the case with the Genie nuclear rocket. A museum has received one of three missiles which the RCAF isn't scheduled to obtain until spring.

North American Air Defence Command, a joint Canada-U.S. operation, reported Tuesday that a missile museum is being established at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Among weapons donated to the museum by the U.S. Air Force Base at Tyndall, Fla., is a Genie nuclear rocket. Another contribution is the Falcon air-to-air missile, the present armament of the RCAF Voodoo jet interceptor.

The RCAF will retain the Falcon as a conventional weapon when it gets the nuclear Genie. Thus the air force will carry two museum exhibits on a single plane.

In the nuclear field, the American-produced Genie is classed as a has-been and is no longer used by the U.S. Air Defence Command.

The weapon is an awkward nine feet long and weighs 800 pounds.

Genies, apparently those discarded by the U.S. Air Force, are to be stored at four RCAF bases in Canada: Chatham, N.B., Bagotville, Que., Val d'Or, Que., and Comox, B.C.

Officers said the Genie won't be carried by the Voodoo unless there is an emergency air defence alert.

Secretary-Treasurer
Gordon V. Kleinfeldt, C.D., B.A.Sc., P.Eng.

William M. Flanagan was born and raised in Belleville.

After graduating from the University of Toronto in 1948 with the degree of B.Sc. in Mechanical Engineering, he spent four years in Sales Engineering related to the heating industry.

He started his own consulting practice in 1952 and through the years to 1962 had completed approximately 950 engineering consulting projects with a staff that averages around twenty employees.

One of the best known and many recent projects with the Engineering design work related to Channel 9, CFTO-TV, Toronto.

Other projects of note are the Canadian Oil Office Building in Toronto, the Imperial Oil Office Building in St. John's, Newfoundland, Canada's Centennial Pool, now was carried out by Mr. Flanagan's firm on the Confederation Heating System in Downtown Toronto and the Central Mining Building, Mr. Flanagan Air Station in Stevenville, Newfoundland, for the U.S.A.F., whose engineering Designs were done in 1957 for the Department of National Defence on the Standards School 1958. For the R.C.A.F. across Canada.

Contracts completed under the jurisdiction of Mr. Flanagan total over 40 million dollars.

Mr. Flanagan has come from a family steeped in the history of heating. His father spent all his business life with the C. A. Dunham Company, being the original employee of Mr. Dunham himself. This deep background in the heating industry has influenced and guided Mr. Flanagan through his career and new innovations and modern advancements have been introduced in Canada by Mr. Flanagan.

His experiences have enabled him to become an authoritative way on the heating industry activities in many trade magazines and newspapers. He has recently been interviewed on radio and is sought out for his advice and comments by radio and T.V. panels on this subject.

Mr. Flanagan is President of P.C. Engineering Limited and W. M. Flanagan and Associates Limited.

Mr. Flanagan is married, with three sons. He is a member of both Toronto Board of Trade, Delta Tau Delta Fraternity, and the Chinguacousy Country Club. He is also a member of the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario and Newfoundland, Association of Consulting Engineers of Canada, Engineering Institute Canada and America Society of Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Engineers.

Mr. Kleinfeldt was a Pilot and Flying Officer in the R.C.A.F. during World War II and upon graduation from the University of Toronto in 1948 with the degree of B.A.Sc. in Civil Engineering. During 1949 he was assistant Works Officer Central Ontario and in 1950 received a regular Canadian School of Military Engineering. In 1951 he received the qualification of Radiological Defence Officer in Maryland and spent two months on special duty at Chalk River. In late 1951 he was transferred to Ottawa as Officer in charge of the Bridge School at the Royal Canadian School of Military Engineering and was subsequently posted to Germany for a two year period with the NATO forces.

In January 1956, having resigned from the Canadian Army (Active), Mr. Kleinfeldt joined the firm of T. O. Lazarides, Lount and Partners as a field engineer. In March 1956, he was placed in the Civil Engineering Design department of the Lake Ontario Portland Cement Company Limited project and in September was placed in charge of the Civil and Structural departments of this project, (construction value $18,000,000.). In June 1957, he was appointed Assistant General Manager (Engineering) of Federated Concrete Ltd. co-ordinating the design and supervision of construction of member firms on several projects of an industrial and mining nature.

In February of 1958, Mr. Kleinfeldt started his consulting firm of Pennot Consultants Company in the Town of Brampton. On April 10th, 1961, he incorporated the firm of G. V. Kleinfeldt and Associates Ltd., of which he is the President, and participated in the incorporation of the consulting engineering firm of P.C. Engineering Limited, of which he is Secretary-Treasurer.

Mr. Kleinfeld is a Major retired in the Can. Inf. He is a member of the MEAC (Toronto Branch) and of the Officers' Association of 2 Field Engineer Regiment (RCE (M).

Since commencing business in 1958, Mr. Kleinfeldt has been a member of the Board of Directors of Peel Memorial Hospital, a Rotarian, a member of the Committee of Adjustment of the Town of Streetsville, a member of the Boy Scout Movement, a Steward of the United Church and a Director of several firms.

Today's construction problems demand co-ordination of form with function. Professional guidance as to site, location and orientation of any project is necessary in order to give efficient and flexible design to suit present and future needs. PC Engineering Limited was formed in order to give such a service. PC Engineering Limited has its Belleville offices at 219 Front Street, is a Professional Engineering firm comprising a number of established Consulting Engineering Firms and Consultants, all of whom are recognized specialists in their own field.

This amalgamation of professional abilities, supported by trained staff and administrators, provides the knowledge and experience so necessary to successful construction. P C Engineering Limited is a co-ordinated service that provides direct contact between the client and the professional in charge responsible for all phases of engineering design. This eliminates many problems the Owner may encounter, when vital technical services, necessary for efficient building function, are thought out without the Owner's direct participation.

The services of PC Engineering Limited embrace all 1948 aspects of engineering construction and design.

The diversified experience gained by its members firm in serving other building owners, institutions, municipal and government departments, can be put to use by sounder planning in design and construction, closer liaison between client and consultant on all phases of the job.

This organized application of group thinking backed by experience — born judgment — results in greater economy and money and simplifies allocation of responsibilities.

The merging of the facilities of the participating firms assures the client of a large established group of trained professional engineers drawing upon a combined experience acquired over many years in established practices in various fields of engineering.

PC Engineering Limited offers many measurable benefits to its clients in terms of efficient planning and sound business procedures, including:

1) A thorough study of Client's requirements — ensuring complete co-ordination of all engineering and project functions.
2) Accurate estimates of cost for Client purposes.
3) Complete detail design of present and future phases of projects.
4) Preparation of plans and specifications for tender purposes and to establish firm costs through contract documents.
5) Undertake full responsibility and complete supervision during construction.
6) Total service including finalization of project and contents; pre-occupancy, testing of all phases of engineering systems, assisting the Owner of its proper function.

The integrated structure of this organization makes it possible to maintain at all times a large group of trained engineering personnel who can easily be brought together quickly to form a task force capable of dealing with new projects. The result of such action is reduced cost for each project and increased speed in carrying out such services.

PC Engineering was encouraged to open its Belleville office by Robert Temple, Member of Parliament for Hastings South.

Use of Ministerial Power In Field of Immigration Examined by Jos. Sedgwick

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government shows signs of planning curbs for ministerial discretion, the polite phrase used here for powers of a cabinet minister.

In theory, the cabinet minister wields power and Parliament approves or disapproves after he has acted.

But, in the case of the power exercised by successive ministers of citizenship and immigration, Parliament rarely has had a clear idea of how and when the minister makes use of his power.

Prime Minister Pearson has set Toronto lawyer Joseph Sedgwick to work on this thorny problem of ministerial power in immigration.

Mr. Sedgwick was given four basic questions:

1. Is the present degree of ministerial power necessary?

2. Is the exercise of that discretion subject to pressures?

3. Is it practical and reasonable to enlarge the degree of power and the way it is exercised?

4. Is there a more satisfactory way of reaching decisions on difficult immigration cases?

Three celebrated cases illustrate the problem Mr. Pearson has tossed to Mr. Sedgwick, who already is a consulting director of immigration procedure.

In 1954, Hal C. Banks, later a Canadian head of the Seafarers' International Union and now a fugitive, was permitted by ministerial discretion to remain in this country although his deportation had been recommended by the departmental inquiry.

Banks later was convicted of conspiracy to commit bodily harm and fled to the United States last year while out on bail appealing a five-year prison sentence.

More recently Joseph (Bassanese) Bonsanno, a Mafia boss with a criminal record, tried to get permanent residence in Canada and was charged with perjury for failure to state his criminal record. He subsequently left — the department says he was expelled and his lawyers say he left voluntarily.

While the perjury charges were pending, application was made through Liberal MP Guy Rouleau to Mr. Tremblay to exercise his ministerial discretion to permit Bonanno freedom on bail. It was rejected.

In another case last year, Harry S. Stonehill, an American multimillionaire, was refused permanent residence in Canada but only after efforts were made to have Mr. Tremblay exercise "ministerial discretion" in his favor.

Raymond Denis, the ministerial aide who handled the application, was reported to have asked what's in it "for me or for us?"

The remark was taken as a joke in poor taste but the danger is that a situation may develop into something more serious apparently was a factor in Mr. Pearson's decision to have Mr. Sedgwick examine whether ministerial discretion is subject to pressure.

Another factor in his decision also may have been the expectation that the whole system will come under attack when Parliament resumes Feb. 16.

World Diplomacy Jolted By the de Gaulle Proposal For Nuclear Power Parley

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Once again, Charles de Gaulle has jolted world diplomacy to the bottom of its striped pants.

The bombshell this time is the French president's suggestion the world's five nuclear powers sit down at Geneva and talk about how to restore the equilibrium of the United Nations.

What he is proposing in Washington and Peking take part in negotiations on the power structure of the UN—and this at a time when the United States won't even concede Peking's right to a seat and the Chinese are insisting they aren't interested in one.

De Gaulle also suggests the nuclear powers decide how the UN should be run while the other 110 members sit outside in the cold, wailing and wondering.

On the fact of it, the audacity of the idea tops anything that has come out of Paris since Napoleon decided to take on the Russians.

But with de Gaulle, as with icebergs, a good deal lies below the surface.

In this case, the sub-surface motivations already are the subject of intense speculation at the UN itself.

It is conceded de Gaulle is fully aware of the attitudes of both Peking and Washington: that he doesn't expect quick acceptance of his proposal or any more than he did in the case of his 1963 idea of neutralizing Southeast Asia.

Rather, the president is seen as talking about the shape of things to come—and possibly shaking up international patterns that appear to him to be hardening in an unsatisfactory way.

De Gaulle's proposal seemed to some at the UN to be a sort of double-barrelled warning.

First, he was telling the UN it couldn't expect much French support until the restoration of big-power supremacy in peace-keeping operations.

Second, he was saying the big powers can't settle anything among themselves—such as disarmament — until Peking and Paris are given a full say. De Gaulle doesn't like to see problems settled over his head by Washington and Moscow.

The French president also seemed to be accentuating the idea his country should act as a bridge or a balance between East and West.

This would fit with France's earlier recognition of Peking and the disclosures Wednesday informal talks are going on in Paris between the Communist North Vietnamese and the American-backed South Vietnamese.

To some, de Gaulle will appear to be rushing in where angels fear to tread. But on some in the West disputes things are going badly at the UN, in South Viet Nam and on the question of rapprochement with China. Some fresh ideas may be welcomed.

Thatcher of Sask. Promises Tax Cut in Throne Speech

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Taxpayers have been assured that provincial expenditures in both Saskatchewan and British Columbia are going up, but the Saskatchewan government coupled this forecast Thursday with an announcement of proposed tax cuts.

Premier and Finance Minister W. A. C. Bennett of B.C. is expected to introduce his budget in the legislature today, and for the first time in history predicted expenditures in the province are expected to exceed $400,000,000. Last year's budget was $380,000,000.

In Saskatchewan, the first Liberal government in hold office in 20 years revealed plans for major tax reductions in a proposed legislative program.

The speech from the Throne also indicated an increased spending budget for highways, education, a new youth department and Indian and Metis development.

The 1,500-word Throne speech indicated the tax reductions would be partial because of the belief that the province's taxes "are a burden greater than that borne by Canadians in other parts of the country."

Some anticipated tax-cuts involve a reduction in sales tax to four per cent from the current five per cent and the use of tax-free colored gasoline in farm trucks. Both had been mentioned previously by Premier Ross Thatcher.

Other developments in the five provincial legislatures now in session:

British Columbia—Alex MacDonald (NDP — Vancouver East) asked the government to set up a central pharmacy in the province "to break the vice of the drug companies." He said Canada's "drug bill" rose to $133,715,527 in 1961 from $52,010,574 in 1951.

Saskatchewan — A proposal calling for legislation to introduce the sale of colored margarine and measures to increase the minimum wage in the province were made in the Throne speech. It also called for amendments to the province's Election Act to "illegally discontinue" absentee balloting and allow members of the armed forces the same voting privileges as other citizens.

Ontario—James Trotter (L—Toronto Parkdale) accused the government of making a "vicious attempt" to silence Richard Lyall, foreman of a grand jury which reported on poor conditions at Mercer Women's Reformatory in Toronto.

Two bills were also introduced—the first calling for an act requiring coroners to be informed of all bodies donated to medical schools for anatomical dissection; the second making it mandatory for hospitals to administer tests to new-born babies for phenylketonuria, a metabolic disorder of children which results in a chemical imbalance in the blood.

Quebec — Premier Lesage said no provincial contracts have been given since July, 1960, to three companies listing Robert-Emilien Gignac among officers. Gignac was involved in a preliminary hearing in Montreal on a capital gains charge.

The premier also introduced a bill limiting the po of the lieutenant-governor and government wants to do away with the veto the upper chamber has over high tariff and legislative assembly, Mr. Lesage said.

Newfoundland — Premier Smallwood said his government has decided to change the name of the Hamilton River, its famous falls and its 22,000-square-mile watershed in Labrador to perpetuate the memory of Sir Winston Churchill. The 300-mile-long river will be called Churchill River and the falls, where a 9,000,000-horse power development is proposed, would be called Churchill Falls.

Woman Given Six Months For Witchcraft

TORONTO (CP)—A 45-year-old woman, accused of pretending to practise witchcraft, pleaded guilty Thursday and was sentenced to six months in jail.

Charges of witchcraft and theft over $50 against Ruby Williams (alias Butch Parker) were withdrawn by the Crown.

Mrs. Williams, who appeared in court wearing gold ear rings and with her black hair done up in braids, admitted five previous convictions for witchcraft, fortune-telling and theft.

Police testified that the accused defrauded a 22-year-old West Indian woman of $307 by performing rituals with an axe, a bible, bits of hair and other items. The acts were supposed to exercise evil spirits that were causing the woman to have body odors.

Kosygin Warmly Welcomed by Chou En-Lai

PEKING (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was warmly embraced by Chou En-lai when he arrived here today for a one-day visit on his way to North Viet Nam.

But it was clear the Chinese regarded this first visit here of a top Russian leader since Nikita Khrushchev came in 1959 as unofficial.

There was neither the usual ceremonial guard of honor nor welcoming crowds when the two leaders drove from the airport to the government guest house where Kosygin is staying.

As Kosygin stepped off the plane, Chou told him in Russian: "I am very glad to see you here in Peking."

Both men smiled as the Soviet leader replied: "I am glad too. We met not long ago. It is always good to see you."

Chou and Foreign Minister Chen Yi arrived at the airport at the last minute to join the Russian embassy staff and other counterpart Chou En-lai an informal welcome to the Soviet premier.

Diplomatic sources said the two premiers will hold talks today but the topics were not disclosed.

Kosygin is on his way with a large Kremlin delegation to Hanoi, North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi. He planned to spend the night in Peking before flying to Hanoi Saturday.

PREPARES FOR MEETING — Quebec Conservative Leader Leon Balcer sorts documents and letters in his office on Parliament Hill in Ottawa Thursday as he prepares for the Saturday meeting of the 137-member executive of the Conservative party in the capital. The executive will meet on the request of Mr. Balcer and other Quebec members of Parliament for a leadership convention. (CP Wirephoto)

About Half the Population In Ontario in 1986 Will Be Living in Two Regions

TORONTO (CP) — A report prepared for the labor department forecasts that two of Ontario's 10 economic regions—the northeastern region and the Lakehead region—will show the greatest percentage increases in the labor force by 1986.

The Georgian Bay region is expected to be the area of slowest growth. Little population change is anticipated in counties such as Huron, Bruce, Dufferin, Grey and Manitoulin, and some may actually decline in population.

The report, prepared by the economics and development department, predicts that Ontario's population in 1986 will range from 10,387,900 to 11,165,700, depending on the rate of immigration.

About half the population will be living in the Metropolitan Toronto and Niagara Peninsula economic regions. In 1961, the year on which the projections were based, these two areas had 42.7 per cent of the population.

IMMIGRATION FACTOR

The economists forecast that by 1986 Ontario's labor force will have increased by 2,402,000, or 66.4 per cent over 1961, depending on immigration.

The labor force in 1961 is given at 2,393,015. By 1986 it will range from 3,673,600 to a figure just short of 4,000,000. The lower projection is based on a pessimistic immigration forecast, while the higher one is based more or less on existing levels of immigration.

Among other forecasts included in the report:

—A fairly sharp upturn in the birth rate will begin in 1966, when women born during the late 1940s begin to move into the child - bearing ages.

—By 1986 the percentage of the population under 15 years of age will increase to 34.9 per cent from 32.3 per cent in 1961.

—By 1986 the main working age group — from 25 to 64— will make up a lesser proportion of Ontario's total population, dropping to 40.7 per cent compared to 46.5 per cent in 1961.

These are the 1986 forecast populations for Ontario's 10 economic regions (1961 populations in brackets):

Eastern Ontario — 1,360,700 (782,531)

Lake Ontario — 572,200 (335,603)

Metro Toronto — 3,786,600 (2,087,545)

Niagara Peninsula — 1,534,500 (762,228)

Lake Erie — 711,900 (405,258)

Lake St. Clair—797,800 (449,776)

Upper Grand River — 647,000 (372,713)

Georgian Bay—530,500 (318,900 (305,651)

Lakehead—412,500 (216,523)

Falls and River In Nfld. Named After Churchill

By DAVE BUTLER

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood told the Newfoundland legislature Thursday the government has decided to change the name of the Hamilton River, its famous falls and its 22,000-square-mile watershed to "perpetuate the memory of Sir Winston Churchill."

The river would be called Churchill River and the falls, where a 9,000,000 horsepower development is proposed, would be called Churchill Falls. The river is 220 miles long.

Mr. Smallwood said he expected the decision would commend itself to the House and enable the legislature members to show "their high regard for Sir Winston Churchill" who died Jan. 24 in London.

He said the cabinet made the decision because "it was Sir Winston Churchill who first helped greatly in getting the British Newfoundland Corporation launched." Brinco is the government - concessionaire for the development of the Hamilton Falls hydro - electric power project.

INTEREST INTENSE

"I think I may say," Mr. Smallwood said, "he not only got Brinco started, but he helped in the financing by becoming a shareholder himself. His interest was intense."

Mr. Smallwood said he met with British financier Edmund de Rothschild while he was in London attending Churchill's funeral and Rothschild asked him some letters from Churchill. One of the letters contained a sentence that Rothschild's mother had quoted many times: "It is high times the falls had a bride."

The announcement brought applause from both sides of the House.

The Hamilton River, drawing its water from thousands of lakes, rivers and streams in the vast Labrador interior, cuts across central Labrador and empties into Lake Melville.

The river plunges 245 feet at Hamilton Falls, a distance terrible for miles. Niagara's Horseshoe Falls has a 160-foot drop.

Hamilton Falls is 112 miles east of the mining community of Wabush City near the Labrador - Quebec border.

DIFFERS WITH DYMOND

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — The provincial government has been made aware through petitions of the low wages paid to workers at Ontario mental hospitals, John Harkness, president of Branch 27 of the Civil Service Association of Ontario, said Wednesday. He took exception to recent remarks by Health Minister Matthew Dymond that he was not aware of extreme dissatisfaction over pay among workers at the Ontario mental hospital in Hamilton.

Who Has Power to Call PC Leadership Convention?

OTTAWA (CP) — While the controversy raged over whether the Progressive Conservatives will hold a leadership convention, a subsidiary argument is going on over who is empowered to call such a convention.

One side argues the national executive, as the most representative body of the party between conventions or annual meetings, has the power.

Another argues the executive must play a part, but not the decisive part, in such a decision. The decision should be a joint one by the executive and the caucus of members of Parliament because the latter body weighing slightly heavier.

Heath Macquarrie, MP for Queens and a member of the constitution committee of the Progressive Conservative Association, takes a somewhat middle-of-the-road position. He contends only the national association should call a leadership convention.

Dissident Quebec Leader Leon Balcer contends the national executive "is the only body with the necessary authority to decide whether a leadership convention should be called."

On the other hand, Gordon Churchill, Conservative House leader and MP for Winnipeg South Centre, argues it must be a joint decision of the caucus of MPs and the national executive "with the weight a little heavier on the side of caucus."

Mr. Macquarrie rejects outright any suggestion the caucus has sole authority or responsibility in selecting or endorsing party leaders.

"I would be very leery of presuming to speak for the whole of the party on matters of an extra - parliamentary character now causing anxiety to Conservatives throughout the country," Mr. Macquarrie says.

"The calling of leadership conventions is a matter for the national association, a much larger body which by constitution must be representative of all constituencies in the country as well as of all party organizations as well."

Mr. Churchill says "the leader who fails to have the majority support of the caucus is in a very precarious position."

"I couldn't accept that the executive is the controlling interest and I wouldn't argue that the caucus is the controlling interest."

Mr. Balcer, in arguing only the national executive has the necessary authority at this stage to call a leadership convention, adopts the Macquarrie argument that the caucus is too narrowly based to pronounce on the question.

In a statement Thursday announcing he will not attend today's caucus on the eve of a national executive meeting, he argues the executive should be given a free hand to deal with the leadership question "unhampered by influence or pressure, actual or potential, from any quarter."

The party's constitution appears to have conflicts about calling leadership conventions.

One section says "the national association shall be the authority in which is vested the power to elect the leader of the Progressive Conservative party of Canada and to call any convention for that purpose."

But another section, dealing with the executive's powers, says "the executive officers shall have the authority to call a special meeting at any time, or to postpone the annual general meeting in any calendar year in which there may be a general election, leadership convention of the party, or other reason which, in the opinion of the executive officers, justifies such postponements."

Three Accused Identified by Court Witness

MONTREAL (CP) — Two of three men accused of the capital murder of Jeanne Rocky Brunette last Sept. 17 were identified Thursday as having been at the scene at the time of the murder.

Brunette was shot in the parking lot of a hotel in suburban Vimont where he was employed as a doorman.

Jean - Guy Laroche, another hotel employee identified Marcel Maurice Poirier and Robert Cadillic, two of the three accused, were at a table in the hotel on the night of the murder.

The third man accused is Robert Gignac, a self-described general contractor who faces five charges following his testimony before the Dorion federal inquiry.

Mr. Laroche said he could not identify a third man at the table and he did not notice the departure of the clients until he heard four shots from the parking lot.

Rocquey Poitras, a dental technician, said he had been sitting with Brunette the night of the shooting and that "Rocky" went outside in response to a clear gesture implying "come on outside I talk" from unidentified persons sitting at a nearby table.

The case continues.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

This column's reader-rating has increased 200 per cent over the short space of a year. A year ago it was two. Yesterday I discovered it had upped to at least six. 200 per cent?. Even Bonanza, Ben Casey and Bewitched can't beat that.

Yesterday, I'm told, I was accused by a gaggle of gals via the airwaves of favouring Hardenda, of "dishing" the lovely village of Point Anne "the bushland of Ontario."

I assume my accusers are residents or former residents of the bayside community that gave Bobby Hull birth. I'm sure they do not get their mail at the home town of Frank Mahovlich, Punch Imlach, Jean Beliveau or other National Hockey League personalities.

I admire their loyalty. Their willingness to stand up and verbally fight to protect the good name of Point Anne is worthy of resument. Not many good hair-frms (I'd better explain that one, too, before I'm sued for defamation of character) would take time out from the noonday bitchen calisthenics to put the Harpy on any upstart who would belittle the name of their home-town.

But before they ride their verbal chargers into battle I wish they would study more closely the document upon which they base their charges.

I called Point Anne, in a recent column "the American-dubbed bushland of Northern Ontario."

In Time Magazine not too long ago a writer doing a piece on Bobby Hull said, "Hull is a prodigy of the bushland of Northern Ontario."

So you see, m'dears in my own not too brilliant way, I was merely quoting the American scribe.

To explain further, an American is a resident of that large area south of the Canadian border, born or acquired.

"Dub"—the dictionary says—is "to confer a name upon."

'Tis a strange word, methinks, not used too often. In fact it originated back in the days of Good Queen Bess who when her favorite sailor, a bloke named Drake brought home a galleyful of gold Spanish doubloons, clouted him over a shoulder with her sword, saying "I dub thee Knight."

She "dubbed" him with the title of "Sir."

I imagine Bobby Hull guffawed long and loud when he read the story in the American magazine even as he did when another writer from south of the border stated: "Hull was discovered by current skating ace a small open-air rink with snow swirling about him. He was born near the village of Belleville up in northern Canada."

After all, what's in a name? A cabbage will make just as good sauerkraut if you call it a truffle. And I'll bet there's many a village in Ontario—or Canada for that matter—which would be proud to be dubbed "bushland" if they could claim hockey products like those Hull boys.

I hope those "bushmen" like Earle Anderson, Phil Left, Murney Green, Bobby Strachan, Bill Shaw, the Bennetts and others believe me. I know Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hull senior, do.

I'd hate to be "bushwhacked" some dark night on the Point Anne boulevard with a bag of the village's best product.

Hold it, girls don't reach for the phone. "Housfraus" means housewives—or in modern parlance, "home-makers."

BCI, Moira Cagers

Stage Trio Of Thrillers

By DAVID TEMPLER

The BCI Collegians out-caged the visiting Moira Trojans in two games to three, in the most exciting triple-header this season. BCI seniors edged Moira 49-48, BCI bantams stole a one point victory, 30-29, and a single basket gave the Moira juniors their 39-37 decision.

The senior game was an example of the fast moving, hard-checking battle of two evenly matched teams which is so exciting to behold. The rebounding and shooting of Moira's Bob Dunsmore was partially overshadowed by the excellent defensive effort of Murray Swan.

The playmaking and shooting of George Pugh were more than equalled by BCI's Doug Parkes.

Ron Walsh played a spectacular all-around game for the Collegians. He scored three consecutive foul shots with less than thirty seconds remaining in the game and the set up, Allan Mott also having a fine night for the winning field goal.

The Collegian individual rundown is as follows: Walsh (7), Perkes (12), Mott (12), Swan (3), MacCormack (3), and Hurst (2).

For Moira Dunsmore got 14, Pugh 11, Bailey 9 and Leckie 4.

In the junior game BCI was outscored only in the 1st quarter and this was only four points. But in three quarters of the game BCI only regained two of the points.

The final score 39-37 was mainly a compliment to the tutoring and checking of Bob Watson and Dave Beresford.

For Moira the scores were Watson (24), Beresford (13), McLean (12), Banting (6), and Clarke (2).

For BCI, Chalmers, BCI's rebounder scored 13, McCreary, the playmaker also scored 13, Bonnis scored 12, Sheridan (8), Ronnie (7), Harder (3), Thibeau (1), and Thompson got two.

In the bantam game BCI played a good game. Drum defended and the CNR team's injury scored 18 points and he and Shea snagged BCI's share of the rebounds. The rest of the scoring for the Collegians was Shea (6), Ridley (6), Cass (6), Moffatt (4), Loader (3) and Beresford (2).

By TED BLACKMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Punch Imlach may buy up every suit of clothes in Montreal, and end up selling the shirt off Toe Blake's back.

Imlach purchased a new suit on each visit to Montreal last season and his Toronto Maple Leafs compiled a successful record against the Canadiens, knocking them out in the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

But in the early stages of the current National Hockey League campaign, the superstitious Leaf coach neglected the haberdashery shops and the team ran into trouble. The tailors, however, are back in business again.

"I bought a new suit on our last trip here and we won," Imlach explained in an interview. "I did the same thing this time and we beat Montreal again.

"I'm gonna keep buying new suits the rest of the season and I don't care how much it costs me."

Imlach, sporting a fine set of new threads, was behind the bench Thursday night as the Leafs downed the Canadiens 3-2 to climb right back into the NHL pennant race.

The victory also enabled Toronto to escape the clutches of Detroit Red Wings, who dropped a 3-1 decision to Boston Bruins in the only other game played and fell three points behind the third-place Leafs.

The loss cost Montreal a chance to move into sole possession of first place, which they share with Chicago Black Hawks at 37 points. Toronto now is four points behind the co-leaders.

The new suit wasn't Imlach's only gimmick. He also started a lineup of five defencemen and the result was Tim Horton's 20th goal of the season—after only 13 seconds of play in a 60-foot blueliner.

The all-defencemen play backfired, however. The rearguards were still on the ice when Claude Larose tipped in Terry Harper's drive to tie it 20 seconds later.

It just wasn't Gump Worsley's night. Three minutes later Andy Bathgate beat him with a 100-footer. The Gumper stopped the puck but with his stick and watched disgustedly as it drifted in.

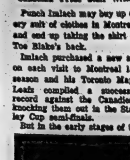
George Armstrong and Dave Keon pushed the Leafs ahead 4-1 in the second and Red Kelly added a fifth Leafs goal in the finale before Latvian bolt Terry Sawchuk with his second of the night.

In the Canadiens dressing room, there was speculation Charlie Hodge may get the call to replace Worsley in the next game.

The possibility will be considered, Montreal general manager Sam Pollock said. Hodge has been resting while Worsley handled goaltending duties for the last nine games, allowing only 14 goals in the nine other games with Montreal this season.

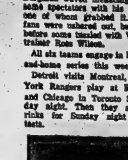
The Bruins snapped Detroit's four-game winning streak on goals by defencemen Leo Boivin and penalty-killer Forbes Kennedy in the third period.

A 1-1 tie on goals by Detroit's Norm Ullman and Boston's Don Awrey had lasted from the first period.



Besides Boston's two goals in the third, there were two fights of major proportions.

Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby and Boston's rugged Reg Fleming engaged in a stick-swinging duel that netted both game miscondncts and automatic $100 fines.



A little later, Detroit's Gary Bergman waved menacingly at Eddie Spezzatico with his stick one of whom grabbed it. The fans were unbcred out, but not before some blood with Wings trainer Rose Wilson.

All six teams engage in home-and-home series this weekend.

Detroit visits Montreal, New York Rangers play at Boston and Chicago in Toronto Saturday night. Then they switch rinks for Sunday night contests.

Name Dates For OMHA Playdowns

Playing dates and times for the opening round of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association playdowns, between Belleville and Kingston, were confirmed yesterday.

All four Belleville teams, the Rollins peewees, Oddfellows bantams and midgets, and the A.C.T. juveniles, battle their counterparts from Kingston on home ice first.

The series this year will be two-of-three, a change from the previous two-game, goals-to-count affairs. The teams will flip a coin for home ice for third and deciding games, should they be necessary.

The peewee and bantam divisions see action first, here at Memorial Arena on Wednesday, February 10. The peewee game will be played at 7.00 with the bantam tilt slated for an 8.30 p.m. start.

Midget and juvenile series will commence here the following Wednesday, February 17. The midget game is scheduled for 7.00 and the juvenile for 8.30 p.m.

All four Belleville teams play their return games in Kingston on Saturday, February 20, at the Community Centre Rink.

Rollins peewees are scheduled for an 11.30 a.m. game, the bantam Oddfellows at 1 p.m., the midget Oddfellows at 2.30 and the A.C.T. juveniles at 4.00 p.m.

OMHA novice playdowns are conducted in a different manner. All teams in a division participate in a series of tournaments at the various rinks with the club collecting the most points winning the championship.

Belleville is represented in the novice grouping by the Riteways.

All-Stars Win Over Downsview

TRENTON (Special) — The RCAF All-Stars, of Trenton, defeated Downsview RCAF 6-4 in an exhibition hockey match here this week.

The All-Stars will compete in the Ontario Intermediate "C" playdowns, according to a team spokesman.

Paul Pelletier led the winners' scoring parade against Downsview with a pair of goals. Single markers were scored by Tony Buchanan, K. Stevens, Bud Gardiner and Ay McVicar.

Downsview goals went to M. Matthews, Art Rennick, M. MacKenzie and Art Buckland.

The exhibition win was the second for the All-Stars. They defeated the Trenton CNR team by a single goal in earlier play.

Coast Pair Wins Junior Crown

By RON MacDONALD

CALGARY (CP)—Vancouver competitors took one national crown and gained the edge in the battle for three others here today in the Canadian figure-skating championships.

Betty Ann and John McKilligan, a brother-sister duo from Vancouver's North Shore Winter Club, became the junior pairs figure-skating champions of Canada with a scintillating display before 4,000 spectators in the Stampede Corrall.

Faye Strutt and James Watters of Vancouver's Kerrisdale Figure-Skating Club won the first round—compulsory figures —in the senior pairs competition; Steve Hutchinson of Kerrisdale won the compulsory figures in the junior men's event and Cynthia Titcombe of the North Shore Club won the junior women's compulsory figures.

Toronto couples locked up the first three spots in the initial round of the senior dance, with Carole Forrest and Kevin Lethbridge finishing first and shoulders above their rivals.

The junior men's and junior women's championships were to be decided tonight with the second portion of the competitions —the free-skating.

Free-skating will wrap up the senior competitions Saturday.

The McKilligans executed the fine death spirals, in which Betty Ann, 15,-bent backward, her head drooping toward the ice, and spiralled about her partner while gripping his hand. John, 16, performed a double overhead lift, spinning around twice with Betty Ann held high overhead.

The pair placed third in the junior pairs competition in last year's championships.

Derijan Redsell and Ross Garner of the Oakville, Ont., Figure-Skating Club finished a close second in the junior pairs with a series of graceful lifts and a spectacular death spiral.

Miss Strutt, 17, and Watters, 18, competed in the world championships last year and finished sixth in the 1964 Winter Olympics after skating together less than five months.

Miss Titcombe, 14, finished third in the B.C. senior women's competition this year. Margaret Sonko of Toronto's Silver Blades Skating Club won second place in the junior women's compulsory figures.

Hutchinson, 15, won his compulsory figures over nine other skaters and grabbed a sizeable lead over his nearest rival, Archie Zariski of the Edmonton Figure-Skating Club. Hutchinson won the B.C. senior men's title this year.

Miss Forrest, from Toronto's Upper Canada Skating Club, and Lethbridge, from the Lakeshore Figure-Skating Club, put on a beautiful display of ice-dancing.

Second and third in the initial round of the senior dance were Lynn Matthews and Byron Topping of the Toronto Cricket, Skating and Curling Club and Gail Snyder and Wayne Palmer of Toronto's Granite Club.

Juniors Seek First Win In Seven

To say the Belleville Junior "B" Hockey Club is having it's troubles would be an understatement.

And now comes the red-hot Napanee Legion squad to add to the local's woes.

Napanee and the floundering "B's" clash in an OHA Eastern Junior game here at Memorial Arena tonight, at the 8.00 o'clock.

The "B's" have lost six consecutive games after leading the league before the slump started. The "B's" now have six points on eight wins and 10 defeats.

Meanwhile, all the loop's other clubs have been seeing their share of games, Napanee included.

Walt Gerow's Legion lads shook a lengthy slump with two impressive wins during the past week, 9-6 over Picton and 11-3 over Trenton, and are now close on the heels of Oakville and Trenton.

Those 20 goals scored in two games does not speak well for the "B's" tonight but they will be going all out, it is expected, to retain their winning form.

Belleville next faces the Frontenacs in Kingston Monday night.

Skinniest Ranger Henry Now A Hawk

7-Player Deal

NEW YORK (CP) — Two parties figure to be pleased by the seven-man trade that put Camille Henry, the National Hockey League's skinniest player, into a Chicago Black Hawk uniform.

Happy about the transaction are the Hawks, who think the 32-year-old Henry may be the man they need to give them a first-place finish this season, and the lightweight forward himself, who is sire of picking up some playoff loot.

For Madison Square Garden fans, with whom the 145-pound Henry has been a favorite for many years, the deal is something else again.

Emile (The Cat) Francis, who replaced Muzz Patrick as Ranger general manager in October, said Thursday that he expects to be roasted on the spit of public opinion, but he defended the transaction, which brought three younger players to New York. He said the Rangers are looking for youth and depth.

"I might have to come in the Garden's back door," he said. "But I've gone through a few back doors being in fifth place."

The Rangers, all but mathematically eliminated from the playoffs, sent Henry, farmhands Don Johns and Billy Taylor, and a player to be named later, to Chicago in exchange for defencemen Wayne Hillman and forwards Doug Robinson and John Brenneman.

"We've strengthened our chances of finishing first," crowed Chicago coach Billy Reay. The Hawks, now tied with Montreal Canadiens for the NHL lead, never have won the regular-season championship.

He didn't say it, but Henry also should be a key figure in improving the Hawks' power play.

Henry, one of the league's most prolific goal - scorers, is one of the best in the NHL on the power play. He has scored 13 of his 21 goals this season in such a situation.

During an NHL career now in its 10th season, he has scored 162 goals.

He will be in a Chicago uniform for the Black Hawks' game at Toronto Saturday and the Chicago power-play combination is expected to be Bobby Hull, Henry, Stan Mikita, Pierre Pilote and Ken Wharram, who among them have scored 97 goals this season.

Robinson will replace the Quebec City-born Henry on the Rangers' "French line" with Rod Gilbert and Phil Goyette, said coach Red Sullivan.

Sullivan said he'll put the 22-year-old Brenneman at left wing on a line with Billy Hicke and Earl Ingarfield. Brenneman and Hillman have been with St. Louis Braves of the Central League.

Reay said Johns and Taylor probably will be sent to St. Louis.

Crothers To Meet Snell

TORONTO (CP)—One of the highlights of the current indoor track season, a 1,000-yard run featuring Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., and New Zealander Peter Snell is definitely on in Los Angeles Feb. 13, Crothers and his coach Fred Foot have announced.

They said they have accepted an invitation to race at Los Angeles. Snell has also said he will attend.

A scheduled race between Crothers and Snell didn't materialize last weekend at the Telegram - Maple Leaf Indoor record holder for the 1,000 metres, mile, 800 metres and the 800 yards and the 1,000 and 800 yards indoors, could not come to Toronto because of business commitments.

Crothers finished second to Snell in the Olympic 800 metres at Tokyo last October.

North Shore Hockey League

Albury shaded Cherry Valley 4-3 and Melville Shorelines nipped Proctor Silex 5-4 in a pair of Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League thrillers at Wellington last night.

Melville stretched their league-lead to three points over the runner-up Proctor Silex with their win.

Albury jumped into a 2-0 first-frame lead against Cherry Valley but the losers cut that to 2-1 after two frames. It was a tight one until Albury netted the clincher goal with about three minutes left to play.

The line of John Emerson, Billy Genereaux and Reg Ell starred for Albury. Emerson and Genereaux each scored twice and assisted on the other two. Ell earned three assists and Bill Greer had one.

Bob Woods and Gord Cole were the losers' marksmen and Ken Pendleton got a lone assist.

Included in the game's dozen penalties was a bench misconduct to Cherry Valley.

Proctor Silex led the Shorelines 2-0 after one goal and it was a 2-2 game entering the final chapter.

Joe Scott paced Melville with two goals and one helper. Jim Dunlop also scored twice and Eldon Cooper got one goal and two assists. Ed Ross was in on three of the scoring plays.

Ken Fraser bagged a goal and assist for the losers. Bill Courtney, Morris Weeks and Ralph Irvine also scored. Earl Foster, Vic Allen and Roger Cummings drew assists.

Proctor Silex collected two misconducts among the game's eight penalties.

Quinte Hockey League

SACO clinched first place in the Quinte Hockey League standings by whipping Ter-Har Rubbers 8-1 in one of the two league games played here last night.

In the other contest, Rossmore dumped Horlock Electrics by a 6-1 count. The schedule winds up on February 18.

SACO scored single goals in each of the first two periods and had that slim 2-0 lead going into the third before wrapping up the game and the league pennant.

Don Forsythe and Jim Johnson rattled home two goals each to pace the winners' scoring output. Jack Gilby, Larry Potter, Garz Genereaux and Art Deline had the other markers. Genereaux also drew three assists, Ken Forsythe two, Doug Tallam and Deline one apiece.

Ron Dreh fired the lone Ter-Har goal, aided by Ron Feltmeier.

Rossmore got a single goal in the first and led 5-0 after two periods against the Horlocks. They split a pair in the third.

K. Osterhout potted a brace of goals for the winners with one each going to Dennis Kerrush, Ron Atkins, "Wedge" Adams and Bernie Boulter. Adams also earned three assists, Osterhout, John Hutchinson, Atkins and Bob Morris one apiece.

Don Stewart tallied the Horlock goal, unassisted.

Moira Senior Girls Win, Juniors Lose

By JACKIE THOMPSON

Moira S.S. and Trenton High School girls' basketball teams left the court sharing victory honors at Moira yesterday.

The host school seniors won easily over Trenton by a 50-31 score while the juniors were down to a 48-17 defeat.

The senior game started at a quick pace with the half ending with Moira leading 14-7.

The winners increased the margin to 29-14 at the end of the third quarter, then opened up to score 21 points against four in the final session.

The junior game was played at a slow pace with Moira having bad luck around the basket. The score at half time was Trenton 22, Moira 8.

The visitors took over in the third and fourth quarters, leading 31-12 at the end of the third.

They outscored Moira 17-5 in the last quarter.

Top scorers in the senior game were: Moira—D. Schroder 18, L. Thompson 11, J. Neill 8, A. Thompson 7 and J. McConnell 5.

P. Griffiths was tops for Trenton with 13 points; V. James had five and N. Baker four.

F. Steele led the Moira juniors with 10 points. D. Hanson and D. Platt each had two with J. Dyble, W. Wood and S. Hall scoring singles.

J. Casbolt stood out for the winners with 29 points; L. Wanamaker scored 15 with S. Lange getting two and J. Jeffrey one.

Five Stage Race For Top Honors

GALT (CP) — Five players have continued a season-long duel for scoring and stopping titles as the Ontario Hockey Association Senior schedule moved into its final month.

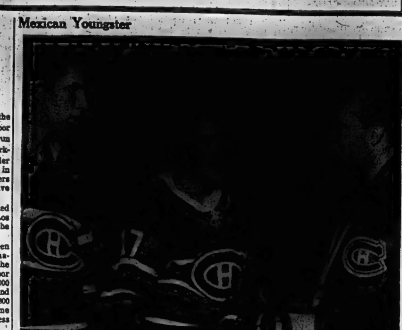
Four of the main contestants for individual honors—forwards Dave Luciuk, Don McGregor, Joe Malo and goalie Harold (Goat) Hurley—are members of the second-place Guelph Regals. Goalie Dave Dryden of the league - leading Galt Hornets is the other.

Luciuk leads his linemates in the scoring race with 86 points, three more than centre McGregor. Left winger Malo is third with 83 points. McGregor's 37 assists and Malo's 25 goals lead those departments.

Hurley and Dryden are only a fraction apart in their battle for the Turofsky Trophy. Hurley remained in front this week with a 2.06 goals against average after 33 games, but Dryden closed the gap by lowering his mark to 2.10.

W. Germans Lose First In Seven

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Montagnards of the St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League edged the touring West German national team 6-5 Thursday night in an exhibition watched by about 3,000 fans.



The Montties were booed several times by their home fans as they sent the visitors down to their first defeat in seven games played in Canada.

The Germans won three and tied three in the Atlantic provinces. Their next game will be played tonight against the Lakehead All - Stars in Fort William.

Referees Gordie Pranschke and Perry Shore called 21 penalties, 11 to the Montties. One of the Ottawa penalties was a five-minute major for spearing to defenceman Mike Blum.

Mexican Youngster

MEXICAN HOCKEY — Chacho Roberts, 17-year-old scoring champion of the Mexico City junior hockey league, was selected for a month-long visit to Montreal to work out with Montreal Junior Canadiens. He says interest is growing in hockey in his country with Mexico City boasting 17 teams in two leagues. Chacho, whose grandfather was from Canada, talks with coach Scotty Bowman and Larry Pleau of the Junior Habs. Bowman will conduct a hockey school in Mexico in July. (CP Photo)

Exchanges Pucks for Bulls

MONTREAL (CP) — Bullfighting is to Mexicans what hockey is to Canadians and it never seemed likely the twain would meet.

But who would have thought the Mexicans, with their subtropical climate, would ever embrace hockey?

Implausable as it may seem, the game was introduced in Mexico City a few years ago by Canadians living there. And now it's played on two rinks by 17 teams — a five-team senior league and a 12-team junior circuit.

Having established a beachhead, Mexico's organizers now are anxious to fine tune their game by learning from the experts. They settled on Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Last fall, Jamie Roberts, secretary of the Mexico City Hockey Association, wrote to Canadiens appealing for assistance.

Canadiens invited him to Montreal where he spent several days observing the team in operation. And Montreal assigned Scotty Bowman, coach of the Junior Canadiens, to conduct hockey schools next summer in Mexico City, at Canadiens expense.

SON WORKS OUT

Meanwhile, back in Mexico only a year ago, was leading Chacho, who learned to skate only a year ago, was leadin the city junior league scoring race with 14 goals in 11 games.

As a reward he was picked for a month-long visit to Montreal to work out with Canadiens-sponsored junior teams.

Chacho, who arrived here in mid-January, says the NHL has quite a following in his country, and both Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks are "big heroes in Mexico City."

At home, Chacho plays for a team called Canadiens although it wears blue uniforms patterned after those of Toronto Maple Leafs.

"We have to practise at five o'clock in the morning because there aren't enough rinks for all the players," he said in precise English. His grandfather was a Canadian but his father was born in Mexico.

"He's a good lad," Bowman says. "He has a lot to learn about the rudiments of hockey but if it's possible to judge by his interest and all the questions he asks, he'll learn quickly."

Chacho is eager to "get all the experience I can" before returning home in mid-February. He is seeing all NHL Canadiens home games and travels with the juniors in addition to working out with junior-age teams in the metropolitan area.

On his return home he will meet with his father's association. "I'm going to tell them what I did here and what I learned and then I'm going to try to show my other players how to do the things I learned."

One thing Chacho won't be able to teach his mates: How to shovel snow. Since his arrival, Bowman's driveway has been kept clear of snow, thanks to Chacho's energetic efforts.

Several Suggestions Made By Fire Chief to Council

PICTON (Staff) — Recommendations for the coming year were made by Fire Chief Bell to town council when that body met earlier in the week. He suggested:

"That a fund be set up each year for the depreciation of fire trucks and equipment in order that the money will be available when needed for the purchase of same.

"That the council consider hiring at least one permanent man for the purpose of improving the efficiency of the department. He would become a trained pump operator and also assist with inspection work. The Fire Marshals' office is taking a dim view of the fact that we do not have at least four men on a permanent basis. This could be a start which is badly needed.

"That a meeting be set up with the inspector of the department of Energy and Resources for the purpose of drafting a by-law to Regulate Control and inspect the installations of Oil burning Appliances and the Storage of Fuel Oil for the use in connection therewith.

"That at least two more kits of breathing apparatus with spare cylinders be purchased.

"That at least 4,000 feet of 2½-inch hose complete with couplings be purchased to replace hose which has become unserviceable.

"That consideration be given to the purchasing of amber lights for the volunteers' cars so that they may be identified when responding to a fire."

Fire loss for 1964 as reported by Fire Chief Bell is as follows:

Building, value $399,500, loss $9,826.50; insurance $424,300; contents, value $73,000; loss $37,313.50; insurance $193,000. Total value, $561,500.00; loss $37,350; insurance $617,300.

Classification of fires was as follows:

Chimney two; overheated stoves nine; stove pipes eight; electrical five, burning leaves one; rubbish and grass 13; gas and oil spillage 0; structural fires nine; car and truck fires seven; children with matches one; false alarms three and miscellaneous 2.

Fishing Derby To Be Sponsored By Chamber

ROAD NEEDS REPAIR

The Provincial Highway from Bloomfield to Picton and Glenora needs rebuilding, Chamber of Commerce directors agreed at their meeting this week. Warden B. Hepburn pointed out that the old road is a heavily travelled one and is also the scene of numerous accidents. It is in contrast to those sections of highway which have been rebuilt.

The Chamber decided to send a letter to Norris Whitney, M.P.P., requesting his assistance in having this section rebuilt.

Juniors Drop 4-3 Squeaker To Trenton

PICTON (Staff) — Vaughn Cunningham's second goal of the game mid-way through the third period gave Trenton Juniors a hard-fought 4-3 victory over Picton Merchants here last night.

Early victory was Trenton's second in as many nights and boosted the club into the OHA Eastern Junior League's third spot, one point ahead of Belleville and two back of Picton.

Dave Johnson opened the scoring for Merchants before periods were half-way through when Bill Haddock, Hopkins and Thompson had had a goal and assist for the losers.

Trenton battled right up to the three-way play with Good Stevenson and Jack O'Donnell to tally the deciding marker. Earlier, Terry Hutchings and two Trenton assists, Johnson and Rick O'Donnell, one apiece.

Picton pulled goalie Larry Holmes in favor of a sixth attacker in the final minute. The move almost backfired when Rick O'Connell went in all alone on the open net, hit one goal post with his first shot and bounced his rebound off the other. Trenton outshot the Merchants 45-37 overall.

Only seven minor penalties were called but a second-period fight between Rick O'Donnell and Picton's John Todd earned them majors. Todd suffered an injured neck during the battle, requiring a neck brace.

Strong Strain of Iowa In Actress Jean Seberg

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"There remains," says Jean Seberg of Marshalltown, Iowa, and Paris, France, "a strong strain of Iowa in me."

Perhaps the strongest indication is her hankering for the soil. Not content with a Paris apartment and a home on a Greek isle, she is negotiating for a place in the Caribbean. And she tried to buy an Iowa farm.

"I thought it would be a good idea, to own it and let a cousin run it for me," she said. "But everyone talked me out of it, even the farmers themselves."

In most outward respects, Jean Seberg is much changed from the days when she attended proms and basking beneath the Marshalltown sun. She is a film star, wife of French diplomat and literary lion Romain Gary, and lives the leading salons of Paris.

Jean has just made a film in Hollywood until now. She is appearing in Mervyn Leroy's Moment to Moment, a romantic-and-love story laid in the Riviera.

Jean figures she might never have made it to the film capital except for Leroy.

"I felt I had myself unwanted either Audrey Hepburn, who turned out to be unavailable, or Leslie Caron," she remarked. "He had seen me in Breathless, as well as the other films I have made in France. Although there is an awareness in New York that I have done nine films, I don't think too many producers in Hollywood know about it."

Jean thinks Leroy's decision underestimates the extent of her fame. Her saga is unique: How Otto Preminger plucked her from Marshalltown to play Saint Joan, how she publicly scorned her inadequacy, how he cast her as the Saga heroine in Bonjour Tristesse with Mike Hale better results, how the new young film makers of France recognized her qualities and starred her in their experimental movies.

Rex Named Best-dressed

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rex Harrison, credited with the big boom in the so-called Henry Higgins' tweed hats—the one he wore in My Fair Lady — is named among Hollywood's best dressed actors by Calmac, the men's apparel club of California.

Also getting the group's nod will be Tony Franciosa for television and Paul Petersen, who plays Donna Reed's son, for the Mr. Teen Award.

BOND IN INDIES

The next James Bond movie, Thunderball, will be shot partly in the West Indies, reports Star Sean Connery as Agent 007.

ABC Special Peeks Behind The Scenes at the Theatre

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's "preview" specials, the first of which were seen Thursday night, are built on the old but eternally fascinating idea of peeking behind the scenes at the theatre.

With Douglas Fairbanks Jr. as guide, we watched Tony Bennett cut a record, talked with the stars of a comedy about being made in England and attended a rehearsal of a show heading for Broadway.

Everybody had a chance to plug the products involved. They also were much aware of the cameras and spent most of the time directing rather stilted language to the unseen audience.

Cyril Richard, one of the stage stars, pointed this up slyly after co-star Anthony Newly had given him a lengthy explanation of what to do and why to do it.

"You told me all that last week," said Richard, "but I'm listening nicely anyway."

Still, it was fun, the way even guided tours of movie studios are fun.

Hal Kanter, who was head man of the George Gobel show for a couple of seasons, was in New York rehearsing another ABC's Valentine's Day, which, because of poor Nielsen ratings, may be dropped.

A veteran radio comedy writer, Kanter seems more perplexed than bitter about the cool reception accorded his comedy series.

"The television critics are always crying for something new, something different," he complained. "Well, we gave them a comedy series with Tony Franciosa on style and that's expensive to make. We thought it was different from those comedies where the wife throws her husband a towel and says 'your turn to dry' and the laugh track goes wild."

Hardware Show Offers Many Specialties

TORONTO — Many specialized products will be on the home handyman and the do-it-yourself supplier firms exhibit some 17,000 lines of hardware, housewares and sporting goods for dealers from across the country. Hardware show manager, Vaughan G. Taylor, expects that about 24,000-000 worth of orders will be placed on the show floor during the four days. The show being, he points out, substantially sets the pattern for what Canadian householders will buy on dealers' shelves through 1965. About 6,000 hardware dealers and another 2,000 chain and department store buyers and purchasing agents generally attend.

SPECIALIZED GOODS
"Naturally this is a far cry from the 1905 hardware show when a dollar would buy a good axe-hammer stove or complete home repair kit for mending shoes; when a steel hammer cost a quarter and a jack-knife sold for a nickel," Mr. Taylor notes. "But there has been a notable trend in just the past half dozen years that seems to reflect a particular consumer demand for specialized top-quality goods, especially for leisure activity."

"This Diamond Jubilee Hardware Show is the biggest we have held; we have attracted more exhibitors than last year and had to turn down a score more in the past two months," Mr. Taylor reports. "It indicates supplier enthusiasm and we look for at least a five percent rise in hardware and housewares retail trade in 1965."

Advance registrations show that ten hardware people from the Belleville area intend going. They are:

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce May, Mr. and Mrs. H. Ross Row, Tom Jury, Fred Papke, Jack H. Sills, Reg Stalker, W. Ross White and W. R. Wilcox.

Liberals Find Diefenbaker Govt. No Match for U.S. In Matter of Horse-trading

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberals manage to muster a weak smile about it now though they still maintain the previous government left them with a set of multimega-dollar financial inabilities" in the defence department.

A cost-accounting of one of these so-called liabilities was recently made and released to cities said Thursday, that in 1963 Prime Minister Diefenbaker's government could have had the U.S. Kennedy administration when it came to horse-trading.

At that time, the U.S. had provided Canada free with 66 Voodoo jet interceptors, worth about $100,000,000 in today's dollars. Canada taking over financial responsibility for 12 radar stations in the country that were used by the U.S.

These planes have cost Canada $181,000,000 to man and operate in the last 3½ years, officials said, and they will likely continue in operation for several more years, apart from the two closed down last year.

However, there was a side dish to the main Voodoo-radar package that the U.S. put up: $150,000,000 and Canada $50,000,000 for production. Most real of 140 F-104 jets for the U.S. mutual aid program. Mr. Diefenbaker estimated in June, 1961, that this program would provide 7,000 jobs for three years.

OUTLAYS CONTINUE
Taking into account all phases of this 1961 deal, Canadian expenditure will thus surpass those of the U.S. in 1967. American outlays ceased last year but Canada will continue for years yet.

In 1957, the Liberals were apparently so confident of re-election that they left a $240,-000,000 nest-egg in a special defence department account.

The new Conservative finance minister, Donald Fleming, promptly used nearly all of it — $237,000,000 — to carve a record slice out of the 1958-59 deficit. There were only pennies left in this account when the Liberals returned to power in 1963.

The Liberals say they'll never have a kitty like that to play around again, no matter how confident they might be of re-election.

The present government also got a nasty jolt when it returned to office and found that the Conservatives hadn't put required $1,500,000 into the armed forces' pension account in 1963. The Liberals had to find the money for the contribution and as a result ran into the biggest defence budget since 1957 when they were in office.

Unhappy Politicians Burn Ears of Those Responsible For Redrawing Ont. Ridings

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's three redistribution commissioners completed one job, had their ears burned by unhappy politicians, and embarked on their next.

This week the commissioners recommended that the 108 seats in the Ontario legislature be expanded to 117. Almost every electoral boundary in the province was redrawn.

The next day—Thursday—the commissioners met to begin in earnest their redrawing of Ontario's 25 federal ridings, which they propose to expand to 88.

In the meantime, the ruling Conservatives, opposition Liberals, and the New Democrats complained that redistribution would make a crazy quilt of Ontario ridings.

The non-partisan commissioners are independent of the Ontario legislature and need not answer the criticisms.

Chairman of the commission is Mr. Justice E. A. Richard-son of the Supreme Court of Ontario. The two other members are Roderick Lewis, clerk of the Ontario legislature and the province's chief election officer, and Prof. K. Grant Crawford, a municipal expert from Queen's University, Kingston.

Appointed in April, 1963, the commissioners felt Ontario's electoral districts should be no smaller than 90,000 persons, nor no larger than 75,000. The range for rural districts should be from 25,000 to 35,000, and for urban districts from 50,-000 to 60,000.

STATED WITH 88
Based on the 1961 census, this would result in no more than 120 seats in the legislature, which had been the size of the Ontario redistribution was begun.

The commissioners also hoped to include the whole of any one municipality within a single electoral district. This would be impossible in 42 cases, although in some cases rural-urban ridings took on the appearance of bedroom surroundings municipalities.

The commission presented an interim report in December, 1962, dealing mainly with suburban Toronto. The city itself was left untouched, but representation in the suburbs within the boundaries of Metropolitan Toronto was raised to 18 from six.

In the general election of Sept. 25, 1963, Ontario electors voted for 108 members instead of 98.

The next year the commission tackled the rest of the province. Perhaps its most difficult choice was dividing the city of Toronto into 10 ridings, where it had existed previously.

Critics of the redistribution report say that what the commission apparently decided to do was to take away from Toronto seat from each of the three political parties.

Reaction — Conservative seat —absorbed part of its westerly neighbour Woodbine, a New Democratic seat, and became Beachwood.

The remainder of Woodbine was swallowed up by Riverdale, also an NDP seat. Thus an NDP seat was dropped by the wayside.

Continuing west the ridings are St. David, St. George, St. Patrick and St. Andrew, all Conservative, at this point two ridings vanish completely—Bellwoods (Conservative) and Brockondale (LIBP seat).

And the ridings assume their former names Dovercourt (Liberal), Parkdale (Liberal), High Park (Conservative), and Eglinton (Conservative).

Kelso Roberts, minister of lands and forests, Allan Grossman, minister of reform institutions, and John Yaremko, provincial secretary, held the seats Patrick, St. Andrew and Bellwoods ridings respectively.

The taxe of the redistribution commission was less ticklish in the rest of the province, where it ceased only one riding to disappear and created only new ones, for a net gain of nine to the province.

As it turned out, the commission was able to hold the maximum size of the ridings to 68,-853 in the extreme case, and to a minimum of 32,725 at the extreme.

What happens now is up to the legislature's committee on bridges and elections, which will begin considering the redistribution as soon as Premier Robarts introduces the necessary legislation.

Boy 17 Likes Girl 13, He's Robbing the Cradle

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am 17 years old and a male. I do not live at home, but am staying with people who are putting me through school. These people have a daughter who is 13 years old, but she looks and acts older than this.

The facts are: I like her very much. I have gone steady before, but have never liked a girl so much before. She goes with my best friend, but neither one seems to care too much for the other. I don't know if she likes me or not, although she sometimes gives me the impression she does.

What can I do? Tell her what I think of her? I have tried forgetting her, but it doesn't work that easy. — UNDECIDED.

* * *

DEAR UNDECIDED — She may look older, but you are still trying to rob the cradle if you let a peep out of you. If you value your education, look outside the family for feminine company in your own age group.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am a custom milliner doing business from my own home, specializing in bridal and bridesmaids' headdresses as well as designing hats to match suits and dresses.

I would like to start a millinery salon. Can you give me any information on the basic things I should know in starting such a business? — HIGH HAT.

* * *

DEAR HIGH HAT —

1. Start small. Could you make your own living room over into a shop, to start with, and the window into showcase? Keep stocks small. Too high an overhead has caused many a venture to die a-borning.

2. Link up with the trade through (1) membership in the professional organization, (2) subscribing to the best periodical, and (3) making friends with your wholesalers.

3. Learn about the market and the business by-laws where you are by talking with your chamber of commerce.

4. Get expert help in letting people know you are in business. A mailing piece to prospective customers, a small display ad in your local newspaper, co-operation in a fashion show — any or all of these can bring business to your door.

Good luck!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am now taking a correspondence course in modern fiction from a university, and am enjoying it thoroughly. It is difficult as I have no actual contact with the teacher, but I find it stimulating and most interesting.

Thanks to you I have found a hobby that uses my spare time to the best advantage. — A.C.

* * *

DEAR A.C. — Culture by correspondence takes the self-starter type. Congratulations!

More and more we are being told that our new-found leisure can make or break us — according to what we do with it.

* * *

TO ANXIOUS MOTHER — Are you sure Joey is not reacting to your anxiety? Here are some pointers: (1) Don't make fun of his fears; (2) Don't make him feel ashamed in front of people; (3) Don't insist on him "facing" what he fears before he is ready; (4) Don't let him sense your obvious impatience; (5) Let him know you understand; (6) Spare him fearful situations where you can; (7) Talk his fears out with him; and (8) Show patience and serenity and love.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NOT A WOMAN HATER" — I agree with you that all men are not like that. Indeed ,the Peeping Toms are a very small minority.

* *

(Longer, fuller replies went privately to those correspondents enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

New Comic Starts Monday

Ookpik's coming to the comic pages of The Ontario Intelligencer!

He's the merry little Arctic owl who was created by craftsmen of Canada's Port Chimo Eskimo band on Baffin Island.

Ookpik is now Canada's best known Eskimo art form. His arrival as a comic strip character caps his career as a distinctive Canadian symbol who has won world-wide as well as national attention.

Ookpik will appear every day as the hero of his own strip, drawn by Toronto Telegram cartoonist Al Beaton.

As original Eskimo art, Ookpik has been patented by the Canadian Government in the name of The Queen, thus assuring full legal protection for Port Chimo's Eskimos.

This is why the Ookpik strip will carry the most distinctive copyright line of any newspaper feature . . . Copyright Her Majesty The Queen I"

And Port Chimo's Eskimos will enjoy a material reward from the success of Ookpik. Ten per cent of syndication royalties are being turned over to the Eskimo's own co-operative.

Watch for Ookpik starting in The Ontario Intelligencer on Monday.

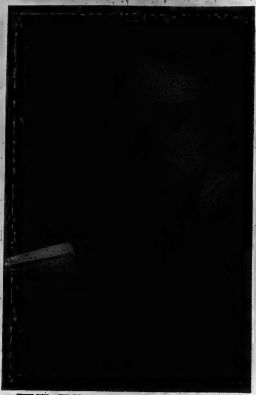
'Thank The Lord That's Finished'

Politician's Wife Finishes History of Baronial Life

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Margaret Wade Labarge turned the first copy of her new book over in her hands, admiring its shiny burnt orange and black jacket.



"Thank the Lord that's finished—I guess that is my first reaction," said the historian, wife of Canada's new deputy minister of national revenue, Raymond Labarge.

As she talked to a reporter in the sunny living room of her large stone house on Ottawa's Driveway overlooking the Rideau Canal, it was obvious that a sense of satisfaction was mixed with the feeling of relief.

"It is quite a thrill," she admitted, reflecting the pride an author feels when he sees the first bound - and - ready - for - the-shops copy of one of his books. "But now I have to wait and see what the reviewers think of it."

The book, her second, is called "A Baronial Household of the Thirteenth Century." It grew out of her first work, a biography of British nobleman Simon de Montfort which won critical acclaim in British, Canada and the United States in 1962.

Due to be released simultaneously in Britain (by Eyre and Spottiswoode) and Canada (by Macmillan) March 11, the new book is a detailed picture of how a large medieval household functioned.

FIRST EDITION — Margaret Wade Labarge, Ottawa historian and wife of Canada's deputy minister of national revenue, holds first copy of her new book, A Baronial Household of the Thirteenth Century. The book, her second, is to be released by British and Canadian publishers in March. Mrs. Labarge was born in New York City and educated at Radcliffe and Oxford. (CP Photo)

TAKES THREE YEARS

In it, Mrs. Labarge has attempted to use the daily household accounts of a large manor to throw light on the wider historical events of the times.

"The book really grew from a chapter in 'Simon' which dealt with his wife Eleanor's household accounts. Many people seemed to find it interesting so I decided to enlarge on it."

Mrs. Labarge does her writing in a long, narrow study on the second floor of her home. Each of her books has taken about three years to complete.

"I spend about 1½ years on research and the same amount of time on writing."

Most of her work is done in the middle of the day when her children are at school and her husband at work.

"Nobody comes home for lunch, so I usually have the house to myself until four in the afternoon."

She writes three or four pages a day, reading them over at night for errors. Chapters often have to be completely revamped.

"Then I pass the work over to long-suffering friends and relatives for re-reading."

Her husband usually gets into the act when the manuscript reaches the second draft stage.

"If he says 'I don't understand what you are getting at here' I have to start the chapter all over again."

RESEARCH IS EASY

The research is the easy part of writing a history book. For Mrs. Labarge it's the organizing and getting it down on paper that takes time and patience.

She has reached the end of her research for a third book, a biography of Louis IX of France.

The author has spent roughly half of the last five years of her life mentally engrossed in the 13th century.

"It's fun working in one specific period because you get to know your way around; to realize when a fact or theory doesn't ring true."

She first became interested in the period while studying for her Bachelor of Literature degree at Oxford. That's also where she met Raymond Labarge.

Margaret Labarge attributes the success of her first book to his understanding and encouragement, and the help of her four children. As she said in the preface to "Simon de Montfort:"

"I must acknowledge my gratitude to my husband and children, who have regarded the increasing impingement of the 13th century on their life with cheerful tolerance. . . ."

The Labarges have two daughters, Claire, 18, and Suzanne, 16, both attending universities in Toronto, and two sons, Charles, 16, and Paul, 14, in high school in Ottawa.

READS THE LABELS

She and her 51-year-old husband relax from their busy lives with the children at a Gatineau cottage. "We like the outdoor life."

Mrs. Labarge is an avid reader, enjoying biography, history and a little fiction. "I'm one of those people who, if stuck, would read the labels on tin cans.

A cheery woman, she is of medium height, has light brown hair, and says her one vanity is collecting fine leather shoes and handbags.

She likes cooking but feels it's not necessary to make a fetish of housekeeping to prove you are a good wife and mother.

Born in New York and educated at Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass., Mrs. Labarge is the sister of Mason Wade, a specialist in the history of French Canada. She has taught history at Carleton and Ottawa universities here.

She and her French-Canadian husband have seen to it that all their children speak both English and French.

Asked for her opinion as a historian of the state of Confederation, she said she didn't want to make any sweeping statements, "but I don't think anyone should go around hanging crepe about it."

POLES SMOKED LESS

WARSAW (AP)—Poland's tobacco monopoly reports that Poles smoked fewer cigarettes in 1964 than in the previous year. It said average per capita consumption was down to 1,597 cigarettes last year from a high of 1,700 in 1962. Western medical reports of the dangers of smoking have been publicized here.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

It is difficult for me, an old pro, to understand why tenants are willing to make expensive improvements to a property with no assurance that they will benefit. Yet, judging from the mail, this is very common.

The following letter is typical of such cases, although its good humor is unusual. What is an "ingrate of the year" often a calamity.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: If there is an "Ingrate of the year" award, I want to nominate our former landlord.

He had a house in such poor condition he couldn't sell it so he rented it to us cheap. We fixed it up ourselves. We repaired floors, plastered, painted, papered, built shelves and cabinets and put up expensive draperies.

Our landlord was pleased. He said we were the best tenants he ever had and that we had added at least $2,000 to the value of the property. Apparently we also made it salable. Yes, guess-ed it! He not only sold it — he got $2,000 more than he had been asking before we moved in!

The only thing we salvaged were the draperies — and they don't fit in our new place. As my husband and I sit here contemplating the four walls — which also need repairing, plastering, painting and papering — we ask ourselves (and each other) "What should we do this time?" (Mrs.) A. F. F.

ANSWER: You may consider him an ingrate, but other landlords probably think of him as a darned lucky, if not diabolically clever, fellow.

Before you generously improve someone else's property, be sure that you at least have a long-term lease so that you may be assured of staying long enough to enjoy the fruits of your labors.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have an old frame house, and the siding is in very poor condition. What is the least expensive (but durable) siding we can install — and what will it cost? — T. M. C.

ANSWER: Asbestos shingle is a durable, maintenance-free siding. It has a long life and is relatively low in cost.

If you can put it on directly over your old wall without elaborate preparations, it will cost about 20 cents per square foot, installed (labor and materials). If the old wall is in poor condition — is rotting or has boards missing — preparation will add to the installation costs.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Every time I offer a helping hand to a member of my family I get it back with some of the fingers missing.

Five years ago I agreed to give a relative a mortgage. Banks, being smarter than I am, refused to trust him. At the end of two years, when it was to have been paid in full, he said he could only afford to pay me the interest, and could give me nothing on the principal. I agreed, along with this for three years.

Now he informed me he won't even pay the interest as the fellow he works with, who is taking an evening course in real estate, says that after this time the mortgage is no longer valid and enforceable. Can this really be true? — A. W. A.

ANSWER: Your relative's friend must be taking his real estate course very late in the evening, for it is obvious that he is sleeping through his classes.

You have a valid mortgage. If you can bring yourself to treat this as business and not a family matter, turn it over to your attorney. He will quickly demonstrate that the mortgage is enforceable.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I believe I am a competent physician, but admit I know very little about real estate. I have been offered an option on a piece of land and am considering developing it myself. I would appreciate your advice.

Could you tell me how much it would cost to build a small professional centre for doctors? Part of the space would be for my own use and the remainder for three other doctors.

I would also like to know what a fair rental would be.

An M.D. from New Jersey.

ANSWER: Total costs and total rent, of course, depend on the number of square feet of space required by you and your colleagues. Construction costs vary according to specifications. As a base figure you can use $14 to $15 per square foot.

Fair rental varies by location, but in terms of the construction cost, etc., you will need $4 per square foot of space to cover operating expenses, mortgage payments and a fair return (10 to 12 percent) on your cash investment.

• • •

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Must Have Receipts for Charity Claims

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister Benson said Wednesday some taxpayers in filing their 1964 personal income tax returns continue to claim deductions for charitable purposes to which they are not entitled.

He said in a statement he thinks this is due, in most cases, to a misunderstanding of the law, but some are submitting claims for donations they didn't make.

Revenue department sources said the problem has been a recurring one, particularly with receipts for church donations in Quebec.

An information bulletin issued in December, 1962, available to all church and charitable organizations, lists types of donations that cannot be claimed as a deduction even though they are of a charitable nature.

These include donations to charitable organizations outside Canada, donations to individuals, donations of old clothes or furniture, tuition fees paid to private or church schools and amounts paid for card parties, bingos and lotteries even though held for the benefit of charity.

The maximum that a taxpayer can charge for charitable donations is 10 per cent of his net income, but he must back up the claim with receipts.

Some taxpayers mistakenly claim the full amount of the 10-per-cent deduction.

DIGGING OUT was the order of the day today as the weatherman dumped up to eight inches of snow over the district yesterday and last night. Here Jack Morrison sweeps snow from almost buried car.

Quinte Area Is Buried on Friday By Another Blinding Snowstorm

Belleville and district came through its worst lacing of the winter without a scratch yesterday.

Well, without serious injury, beyond nervous wear and tear.

Then too, there were some strained muscles last night and today as the district dug out from nearly eight inches of snow.

For the Belleville area, it was the heaviest fall of the year.

Visibility was reduced to hazardous margins as the storm swept the area, blanketing the region from Picton to Madoc under the same depth of snow.

MATTER OF LUCK

Highway was travel mostly a matter of luck as the storm reached a peak in the early afternoon.

The wind-driven snow squall also forced traffic from the highways.

What there was moved at a crawl and both provincial and municipal forces reported no serious accidents throughout the day.

"We didn't even have scraped fender," said one OPP officer at Madoc.

Sheer volume of traffic raised the incidence rate in Belleville and neighboring towns.

OFFICERS' BUSY

Traffic officers were kept on the go throughout the day—and early evening rush hours—investigating a running series of minor collisions.

The winter-in-action session was already underway when most people rose Friday morning. It lasted well over 12 hours, finally blowing itself out late last night.

Gold Bars Stolen From Ship

SOUTHAMPTON (Reuters)—British police today were ripping apart a luxury liner in a search for $300,000 worth of gold bars missing in a robbery that would be done Goldfinger proud.

"We are searching this ship as no ship has ever been searched before," said Detective Chief Inspector Bertram Adams, as his men swarmed through the 27,000 - ton liner Capetown Castle.

The bullion, part of a shipment worth more than $23,000,000, disappeared from a sealed strongroom deep in the ship during a three - week trip from South Africa.

Through the night police and customs men removed paneling from cabins, dismantled engine room equipment, examined the funnel, and even took apart cushions and pillows.

The theft was so well executed it was not discovered until four hours after the ship docked in Southampton Friday. By that time, most of the 267 passengers had gone ashore and half of the 400-man crew had been paid off.

The bullion, in 10 boxes each containing two bars of gold, could have been smuggled ashore at any of five stops the Capetown Castle made since leaving Durban, South Africa.

Investigations were begun in the South African ports of East London, Port Elizabeth, and Cape Town, and in Las Palmas in the Canary Islands.

The theft brought immediate comparisons to the late Ian Fleming's famous fictional character, Goldfinger, who was foiled by secret agent James Bond in his bid to rob Fort Knox.

Normally, gold loaded in South Africa is stored in the ship's main strongroom, but because of the extra amount consigned on this voyage the overflow was piled in another room normally used for mail.

This room is locked, sealed and welded shut with five iron bars. But security men overlooked a ventilation shaft that passed through the room.

The thieves, entering from an adjacent room, cut a hole in the shaft, crawled along it, cut their way into the gold room and passed the bullion out along the shaft. They papered over the holes they cut and the holes were not noticed until after the loss of the gold was discovered.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — The trend to milder weather will continue over the weekend as a new storm now in southern Alberta moves eastward into Northern Ontario tonight and Sunday. This disturbance will bring fresh snowfalls to northern regions Sunday.

Extend Wheat Accord

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — The international wheat council, representing 49 wheat exporting and importing countries, approved Friday a one - year extension in the existing international wheat agreement which expires next July. It also decided to explore ways of developing a more comprehensive pact to replace the current arrangements in 1966.

The two - day council meeting, at which Canadian economist Dr. Claude Hudson presided, also discussed the stiff wheat price fight among Canada, the United States and Argentina and concluded that price cutting had run its course and the situation now would stabilize.

The council, at which 38 member countries appeared, said in a statement Friday that the recent "adjustment" had brought wheat prices back to those prevailing in mid-1963 and that prices now would "stabilize at the new levels."

This seemed to suggest that world wheat prices now would tend towards the wheat agreement floor rather than towards the ceiling following a decline in world wheat demand which had reached peaks in the last two years. The existing three-year agreement, now to be extended to July 31, 1966, sets floor a ceiling of $2.02½ (U.S.) for No. 1 northern at the Lakehead and a flat $2 at Seaway.

Deputy Trade Minister J. H. Warren, Canada's chief delegate, said in an interview after that the one-year extension is "very satisfactory."

Many delegates had hoped for a two - year extension but the U.S. maintained it could set here only to a one-year addition because American farm legislation is under renewal and possible revision next year and the government could not bind itself beyond change the U.S. Congress may make.

Private Eyes Stop Necking In Library

WYANDOTTE, Mich. (AP) — The teen-agers don't neck on the front steps of Wyandotte's Bacon Memorial Library any more.

The suburban Detroit library has hired a private Detroit police agency to tiptoe through the stacks and other spots in and out of the building and put a stop to any hanky-panky.

Head librarian Mrs. Louise Naughton said:

"We're none too happy about having to hire police but it works. It's just that our young people had no place to go—so they began using the library as a social centre."

Luther King Leaves Jail Wants to Talk to Johnson

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who spent five days in jail here, wants to talk with President Johnson about more civil rights legislation as a result of an Alabama campaign that has brought more than 3,000 arrests within three weeks.

And the Negro integration leader said the Alabama drive is only beginning.

King, Nobel Peace Prize winner, was released from jail Friday under $200 bond and announced he is trying to get an appointment Monday with the president.

King told a press conference a constitutional amendment was needed "guaranteeing the right to vote."

Later, at a church meeting in nearby Marion, he said: "We are going to get this right to vote even if it is necessary to fill up all the jails of Alabama. Alabama will be the major target for 1965."

King announced he would speak Monday night in Montgomery, where Negroes will open a mass voter registration drive. He also planned forays into other Alabama counties.

ARRESTS UP

Nearly 550 arrests were made in Selma Friday when Negroes demonstrated at a registration chairman V. B. Atkins Sr. refused to accept their questions of the registration board.

Those arrested included 475 young Negroes, most of them high school pupils, who staged a demonstration at the courthouse. Most of them remained in jail.

King left jail shortly after 10 congressmen from northern and western states arrived in Selma. They talked with King after his release and then met with the mayor, the sheriff, the registrars and several other local officials.

Representative Charles C. Diggs (Dem., Mich.), a Negro who acted as spokesman, said that neither his group nor four Republican congressmen from Alabama were able to persuade the other side to change its views.

Russia Issues New Call For Conference on Laos

LONDON (Reuters) — The Soviet Union today issued a new call for an international conference on Laos without "preliminary conditions," the Soviet news agency Tass said.

Tass said the purpose of the conference would be to take "urgent steps for a peaceful solution of the Laotian question." It said the Kremlin hoped Britain will support the move.

Tass said it was authorized to state that the Kremlin "resolutely condemns the barbarous bombings by the United States of the territory of Laos and the attention of the United States to spread the war into the entire Indochinese Peninsula is being viewed as a dangerous idea."

"All responsibility for the possible consequences of these aggressive actions rests with the United States," the statement said.

Tass said U.S. Air Force planes, based in Laos, South Viet Nam, Thailand and "on aircraft carriers of the U.S. 7th Fleet," have "started bombing the territory of Laos controlled by the (pro-Communist) Pathet Lao forces."

The agency said 24 American fighter-bombers made "a sudden massed raid on a district in Xieng Khouang Province" on June 12.

Prof. Warns Girls Cold Can Make Legs Hideous They Heap Scorn on Suggestion So Perfidious

NEW YORK (AP) — No doubt the bachelor professor from England was only trying to be helpful when he warned women of the danger of exposing bare limbs to the elements. But his advice was received with undiluted scorn on this side of the Atlantic.

Professor Alexander Boyd, 59, head of Manchester University's department of surgery Thursday, advised women to wear thick stockings, boots, even bloomers—anything to keep their legs warm.

The professor's theory and advice left Americans, from designer Rudi Gernreich to actress Jill St. John, almost unanimously unimpressed.

Miss St. John said she had no intention of wearing thick stockings or heavy bloomers.

"If he's a bachelor, I'm sure he's going to stay that way," she said. "The whole world doesn't live in Goose Gay, Labrador, or Thule, Greenland. I think the doctor would be doing more of a service if he devoted his research elsewhere—like finding a cure for the common cold."

Girls who dress scantily in cold weather," said Boyd, "run the risk of getting fat calves and blotchy skins by the time they're 30."

The cause of the response to cold is a condition called erythrocyanosis crurum puellarum frigidum.

"Hideous legs can ruin a girl's life," he said, "the only answer is to keep them warm."

Caucus Plays It Rough Before Endorsing Dief

Chief Emerges Smiling

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—John Diefenbaker, given publicly his roughest handling in years at a parliamentary caucus, goes before the national executive of the Progressive Conservative Party today on the issue of the party leadership.

The 69-year-old former prime minister emerged from a five-hour stiff session smiling and happy, saying the party is united after according him a "virtually unanimous" vote of confidence.

But word quickly filtered through the Parliament Buildings that the old warrior had met tougher talk from his parliamentary colleagues than had been heard in Conservative caucus meetings in many years.

Several sources said that when it came to a stand-up vote of confidence only the "yes" votes were called for, leaving between 20 and 30 MPs and senators without a chance to register their vote.

The second round of the challenge to Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership—third in the last two years—comes at the national executive meeting, summoned by national president Dalton Camp to discuss demands of the leadership review group for a leadership convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker was anything but downcast when he dressed his way through a horde of reporters at the door of the caucus chamber Friday.

"I'm very happy," he told them. "The party is united. There (the caucus members) were virtually unanimous in support of a vote of confidence."

REQUESTED VOTE

Informants said the vote was requested by Mr. Diefenbaker, who successfully fought a test of leadership strength at the party's last annual meeting a year ago.

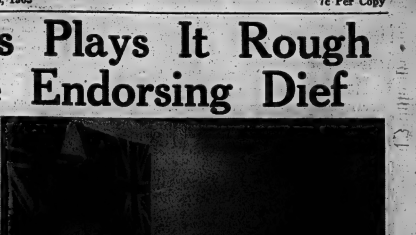
But they said it was confined to his generalship in the Commons.

The executive meeting results from demands by the 10 Quebec MPs, led by Leon Balcer, that a leadership convention and change of policies be considered.

Mr. Balcer, who boycotted the caucus meeting on the ground that the executive should pass judgment without pressure from the parliamentarians, said reports of the caucus agreeably surprised him.

His delegate at the caucus session, Paul Martineau, MP for Pontiac-Temiscamingue and a former Diefenbaker cabinet minister, said the caucus had a "very frank" exchange of views.

Reports filtering out of the caucus indicated Mr. Martineau in a starring role with Mr. Diefenbaker.



The latter was reported to have addressed the meeting for nearly an hour with a strongly-worded attack on Mr. Balcer and a number of Mr. Balcer's non-Quebec sympathizers, such as Gordon Fairweather (Royal), Gerald Baldwin (Peace River), Gordon Aiken (Parry Sound-Muskoka) and McHath Macquarrie (Queens).

TRIED TO STALL

Then Mr. Martineau rose to speak, a motion for an immediate vote was attempted to forestall his intervention.

However, the former mines

Former Viet Nam Premier Given Sanctuary by British

SAIGON (Reuters) — Former premier Tran Van Huong, overthrown by a military coup last week, has been granted refuge at the house of the British ambassador, a British embassy spokesman said today.

The spokesman said Huong sought refuge at the home of Ambassador Gordon Etherington - Smith last Wednesday because he believed he was in "personal danger."

Vietnamese generals overthrew Huong in the midst of a violent Buddhist campaign against him.

The British ambassador ran into bitter Buddhist criticism last December after he spoke in support of the Huong government at a dinner party.

Police guards at the house were expected to be reinforced once the news of Huong's presence becomes more widely known in Saigon.

The Buddhists and other religious leaders were to meet today with McGeorge Bundy, special assistant of President Johnson who is in Saigon on a fact-finding trip.

Reliable sources said Bundy would Friday with strongman Lt-Gen. Nguyen Khanh and Lt-Gen. Nguyen Khanh on Khanh's attempts to set up an army and people's council. Khanh was reported to be having trouble doing it.

Bundy was to confer with leaders of the Buddhists, Roman Catholics, the Hoa Hao and the Cao Di. The last two are local political - religious sects with a combined following of nearly 5,000,000.

Judge Rene Lippe Assails Millard's Trusteeship Views

OTTAWA (CP) — The sharp split within the federal martime union trustees has blown wide open in a letter by Judge Rene Lippe to the Canadian Labor Congress assailing views expressed recently by Charles Millard.

Judge Lippe and Mr. Millard are the two remaining members of the original trusteeship set up by Parliament in October, 1963. Mr. Justice Victor Dryer, the chairman, resigned Dec. 31.

Recently Mr. Millard made public a letter to the CLC in which he called for a labor-sponsored trusteeship to replace the government - imposed arrangement.

"He also voiced criticism of the way the federal trusteeship is being run.

Judge Lippe's letter, made available to The Canadian Press Friday by an Ottawa source, replies to Mr. Millard's criticisms, calling them "factual errors." It was written in Montreal Tuesday.

LOOKS CONFIDENT

Finally there was a break in the calls and cackles and the door was opened. There sat the defending champion, looking, as his handlers had accurately described him, calm and confident, lolling back in his leather captain's chair, but cocked through a big and untidy sheaf of telegrams. If one sentence could sum them up, they were "Hang on John" telegrams.

"Got 127 of them just this morning," he reported. "Here, this is typical." It was the executive of a constituency women's association declaring support and denouncing their MP as one of the rebels. The big pack was littered a couple of inches deep, in loosely-piled letters.

"Got a couple of hundred in the morning mail," he said, "Here read this." It was from a Toronto lawyer and the message was: "Non carborundum illigitimuesci." A quick sampling showed them to be all variately they cannot agree with Mr. Millard's proposal for a labor trusteeship.

Champion Ready for Big Fight

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA (Special) — How was the defending champion on the eve of the big fight? How did John Diefenbaker spend the last day before stepping into the caucus-executive ring to face his three challenge in three years? His handlers, special assistant Peter Richardson, executive assistant Thomas Van-Dusen and research assistant N. Gregor Guthrie reported him as calm and confident.

"Why not," asked Mr. VanDusen, "he has the experience, hasn't he? Take a look at our man for yourself."

But it wasn't quite that easy. Their man was busy seeing, seeing other people, taking phone calls.

"Premier Stanfield's on the line," sang out the secretary on the little desk-set switchboard with all of its five buttons signalling in-coming calls. Waiting on one of them, calling from Vancouver, was Ray Milner of Edmonton, reputed Conservative Party bossman for Alberta. Holding on another was a Charles Murphy who identified himself as a life-long Liberal, and was calling, he told the switchboard girl just to say "Go get 'em Dief." Out of the inner office came Nova Scotia's George Nowlan and in went Manitoba's Gordon Churchill.

LOOKS CONFIDENT

Finally there was a break in the calls and cackles and the door was opened. There sat the defending champion, looking, as his handlers had accurately described him, calm and confident, lolling back in his leather captain's chair, but cocked through a big and untidy sheaf of telegrams. If one sentence could sum them up, they were "Hang on John" telegrams.

"Got 127 of them just this morning," he reported. "Here, this is typical." It was the executive of a constituency women's association declaring support and denouncing their MP as one of the rebels. The big pack was littered a couple of inches deep, in loosely-piled letters.

"Got a couple of hundred in the morning mail," he said, "Here read this." It was from a Toronto lawyer and the message was: "Non carborundum illigitimuesci." A quick sampling showed them to be all variately they cannot agree with Mr. Millard's proposal for a labor trusteeship.

Fire, Explosion Send Three To Hospital

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—An explosion and fire destroyed a garage here Friday, sending a family of three to hospital with the front part of the house into the street and smashed windows of nearby homes. The roof and walls collapsed and fire broke out, fed by natural gas lines.

Firemen and volunteers battled the fire for about two hours.

Officials of the fire department and gas company are investigating the explosion.

Contract Talks To Go to Top Teams

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Contract talks between Chrysler Canada Limited and the United Auto Workers (CLC) are to go to top negotiating teams this weekend as talks at a 7,000-man strike now nine days old.

The strike of Local 444, UAW, workers has shut down three Chrysler plants and Walker Metal Products, a Chrysler subsidiary.

Contract talks continued Friday at the sub-committee stage, but it was learned that most of the contentious matters in a new collective agreement have been dealt with.

The biggest issue to go to the main bargaining teams this weekend will be who will have the strongest voice in determining production standards. Until now the company has had that prerogative. The union seeks a share in such decisions.

TORONTO (CP) — An air force officer was killed and a navy officer injured early today when their car missed a construction detour and crashed into heavy wooden barricades, police reported.

GRAPES FLOW

HICKORY CURED . . . ?

Folks used to think rheumatism could be cured by carrying a hickory nut. Today, we laugh at those old wives' remedies. We have so many reliable, quick-acting medications now. Medical discoveries in recent years have eliminated or greatly eased untold pain and suffering. But, remember—most medicines should be used only upon the advice of your physician.

When you or a member of your family become ill, see your doctor first. Then come to us for the medicine he prescribes.

GONDAR, Ethiopia (AP) — The Queen visited the romantic 17th - century castles and ruins of Gondar Friday and spent night in a camp 9,000 feet up in the Ethiopian mountains.

The camp, perched on the brink of a jersey 2,000 - foot plateau, consisted of a breathtaking panorama of the broad rugged valley below.

The Queen and Prince Philip, who acts as his sightseeing aide on this eight-day state visit, arrived with Emperor Haile Selassie at the camp in the early evening.

Hundreds of Amharic horsemen greeted them, charging toward the camp in a great tan cloud of calico.

Troops of the emperor's imperial bodyguard lined the camp, with machine-gun posts commanding the approaches.

The Queen suffered none of the camp's usual discomforts. She slept in a silk-lined canopied bed with a fireplace and private tent for her use.

The Queen also visited the grave of Chanul Plowden, British first diplomatic representative in Ethiopia.

He was murdered on his way to Gondar to greet Queen Victoria's governament, and Ethiopia's King Theodore subsequently massacred some 8,000 tribesmen he thought were responsible.

Dismissed J. P. Files Writ For $16,000

KINGSTON (CP) — David Lockett, dismissed as justice of the peace in July, 1962, filed a writ Friday with Ontario Supreme Court asking for $16,000 after that the city pay him $16,000.

Mr. Lockett claims the sum is for preparation of informations and summonses while he was in office.

No reasons have been given for his dismissal.

Mr. Lockett claims he was not paid over the last 4½ years for documents he prepared in cases where the company has convictions and in those that ended in fail sentences rather than fines. He received 50 cents for information and 50 cents for a summons when cases ended in convictions.

Mr. and Mrs. Moyer and George helped the younger children to safety through a window.

BAD GOOD YEAR

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada Ltd. had net profits of $6,536,000 equal to $3.72 a share in 1963 compared with $5,196,970, or $2.96 a share, in 1962. Sales were also record levels, but the company says that declines in exports, caused by the Canadian dock strike, contributed to the profit slowdown. Capital expenditures totalled $7,171,672.

FARM INCOME RISES

Canada's income of farm persons from all agricultural sources rose 8.3 points in December to 263.1 from 242.9 in November, the bureau of statistics said yesterday. The increase was attributed to seasonally higher prices for livestock and potatoes. The December 1963 index was up 15.5 points from December, 1962. 'Master Spy' Is Arrested By Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) A "master spy" said to have links with Peking has been arrested at the Kuala Lumpur Airport, Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman said today.

He said the agent carried a large sum of money and was to have applied it for payment in assisting dissident politicians to set up a rebel government.

Rahman said the Tass International connections, including links with Peking.

The premier announced last month that a large fifth column movement had been uncovered in the Malaysian Federation and that there were opposition leaders, arrested the previous day, were implicated.

The government claimed the men were in league with Indonesia to defect, form a government-in-exile and raise rebel armed rebellion in Malaysia.

Malaysia and Indonesia have been fighting an undeclared war since the federation was formed 17 months ago.

Armed Forces Going Back To Old Weapons

OTTAWA (CP)—In the age of missiles, the Canadian armed forces have begun to go back to fashioned guns as less complex to maintain and more reliable to shoot.

In the army, bigger guns and heavier tanks and bigger howitzers are being acquired for the artillery.

The navy's new jet fighter-bomber will carry cannons just like the Mosquito and Typhoon in the Second World War.

In the navy, new destroyers will get the biggest guns—five-inchers — that Canadian destroyers have ever carried.

In the last year or two, the early enthusiasm for missiles to do short - range as well as long - range work has burned off, largely because of difficulties experienced in reliability and maintenance.

Many officers say they have doubts about weapon systems which rely heavily on electronics. These doubts have been partly confirmed, for instance, by continuing special studies required to find the "bugs" in the SAGE (semi - automatic ground environment) electronic control network at North Bay, Ont., for the RCAF's air defence system.

Air force officers say they have long since been disenchanted about the Bomare anti-aircraft missile.

The army is acquiring some small missiles for anti - tank work but when it comes to bombardment it will continue to rely on the gun.

This trend is just as pronounced in the navy which will get the American ASROC (anti-submarine rocket) but only for seven of its 20 modern destroyers.

City Youth Loses Licence, Fined $233

A 21-year-old Belleville youth, caught speeding while already facing a charge of driving charge, has forfeited his driver's license and nearly $240.

Richard William Reid was convicted on three counts yesterday by Magistrate T. Y. Wills after Constable Reid had driven up to 115 miles an hour to evade pursuing police.

Traffic officers Barry Tinsson and Douglas Martin claimed to have recognized Reid as the driver of a car which sped past them through the city, but could not catch.

Subsequently, he was charged with dangerous driving. While facing the court, Reid was charged with speeding a week later.

Magistrate Wills suspended Reid's driving privileges for three months, fined him $150 and costs for dangerous driving, $33 for speeding and $50 for having no automobile insurance.

County Beef Body Re-elects Executive

Yesterday's heavy snowstorm which dumped up to eight inches over the Bay of Quinte area did not affect efforts at the annual meeting of the Hastings County Beef Improvement Association held in the Agricultural office at Stirling.

President Charles H. Farrow and all the other executive officers are back in office for another year.

The meeting decided to purchase ten cattle oilers to assist in controlling flies and other winged pests which host on cattle.

This type of oiler is an oil saturated canvas which hangs between two posts. The cattle will walk under the canvas and the fly repellant oil scrubs off onto the back of the cattle.

Because of the small attendance no action was taken on planning for two bus trips and tours to be taken during the coming year.

Heroic Action Saves Bomber From Jail Term

TORONTO (CP)—Testimony to his heroism two years ago saved Donald Smith, 19, of suburban Lasalle from a prison sentence Friday on a charge of possessing narcotics.

Instead of a 10-day sentence, Magistrate Charles Fassel bound Smith over "to keep the peace with sentence suspended on the posting of a $200 bond.

Smith was convicted of throwing a home-made bomb Dec. 7 at the home of Lloyd Dickinson, a candidate for mayor in Lasalle in civic elections that night.

The bomb exploded, blowing a hole in the roof, but no one was injured.

Smith testified earlier he intended the bomb, a quart-stick of dynamite wrapped in tin foil, to land on a small hill near the Dickinson home.

Dominic Chaffe, 51, of Toronto testified on behalf of Smith after reading of his last court appearance in a newspaper.

He told the court he and his daughter were in a boat on Lake Simcoe with Smith and two others in July, 1963, when a wind came up and the boat started shipping water.

Mr. Chaffe said the party reached shore four hours later because of Smith's coolness in directing the others to put on their life preservers and to bail with their hands.

Form Society To Promote Marijuana

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says a group of young adults has formed a secret society with a "beautiful 24-year-old brunette" as its leader to promote marijuana smoking.

"The society, mostly consisting of beatniks, has well-stylized intellectuals and art addicts, holds regular meetings, canvasses support from high school and university students and has a charter dedicated to the advancement of marijuana," says the morning newspaper.

The Province says it obtained a copy of the charter "almost at the same time as six beatnik - type young men — were being charged in magistrate's court with trafficking and possession of narcotics."

The charter quoted by the newspaper said that marijuana produces no physical dependence so "why not give marijuana the same legal and social status as alcohol by legalizing its import and consumption?"

Find No Poison, Nobody Blamed In Toronto Death

TORONTO (CP)—An inquest jury investigating the Dec. 6 death of Maria Dolores Calbus of Toronto, 42-year-old mother of three, attached no blame to any party when it returned its verdict here Friday.

But the jury's findings implied that closer co-operation between the dead woman, her family and physicians who attended her might have saved Mrs. Calbus' life.

The jury recommended that everyone's family doctor should be a general practitioner and that where illness or illness should first be sought from him.

Secondly, the jury said, in the public interest physicians should adhere closely to the medical code of ethics.

The inquest had been adjourned for a week from Jan. 29 to allow chemical examination of Mrs. Calbus' vital organs following a suggestion death might have been caused by arsenic poisoning.

Dr. Ralph E. Will said the "erratic pattern" of the illness might have been caused by arsenic.

Friday, Dr. Cruikshank criticized Dr. Will, saying: I do not believe there was a shred of evidence that warranted such a suggestion."

Dr. Hans Sepp, pathologist at St. Joseph's Hospital where the woman died, reported Friday that no trace of arsenic had been found in Mrs. Calbus' tissues.

Soviet Premier A. Kosygin Leaves Peking for Hanoi

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin left here today for Hanoi, North Viet Nam. Soviet sources said he would pass through Peking again in about a week.

(The Soviet news agency, Tass, later said the premier and his delegation arrived in Hanoi.)

Kosygin and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai chatted at the airport before Kosygin left aboard a Russian plane for the non-stop flight to Hanoi.

Friday night, Kosygin and his high-level delegation were guests at a banquet given by Chou and Foreign Minister Chen Yi, both sides held a conversation afterwards.

They also talked immediately after Kosygin arrived Friday but neither side revealed any details.

It was the first encounter between the two Communist heads of government since a November meeting in Moscow.

Chinese newspapers today published brief agency reports of Kosygin's arrival in Peking and Friday night's banquet.

SEEN AS COOL

Although Chou warmly embraced Kosygin at the airport Friday and welcomed him in Russian, diplomatic observers said the reception was the coolest and smallest in scale possible for a visiting Communist head of government.

The Chinese treated Kosygin's one-day visit as unofficial. The airport was not decorated and there were no welcoming crowds nor guard of honor.

When Indonesia's President Sukarno made a similar one-day stopoff in Shanghai last fall he received a full ceremonial welcome at the airport.

Chinese-Canadian Couple Says Their Baby Barred

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Chinese-Canadian couple said Friday night the federal immigration department has refused to permit their four - month - old daughter to come to Canada despite the fact the baby is registered as a Canadian citizen.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Yat Yuen said they understood their child may have to remain with her grandmother in Hong Kong for as long as a year before being permitted into Canada.

Mr. Yuen said he entered Canada illegally from Hong Kong in 1958 but was granted amnesty by the Canadian government. His wife, however, is a landed immigrant who came here legally in 1962.

The child, Pauline, was born while Mrs. Yuen was visiting her mother in Hong Kong. The baby is registered in Hong Kong as a Canadian citizen, said Mr. Yuen.

Laos Rightists Are Reported In Thailand

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Well-informed sources said today Deputy Premier Phoumi Nosavan and Police Gen. Siho Lamphoutacul are in Udorn, Thailand, where they fled after loyal rightists crushed their rebellion.

The sources said both men were at the house of the Udorn provincial governor and had appealed to the Thai government for asylum. Laotian sources did not know whether the two men would be returned to Vientiane.

There was no immediate confirmation of the report.

A spokesman for Premier Souvanna Phouma said Phoumi might be shot if captured—and in any case probably would be replaced in the shaky rightist-neutralist coalition cabinet.

Udorn, site of a U.S. Air Force base, is in northern Thailand about 40 miles south of Vientiane.

Most members of Phoumi's family, including his wife and friends, were rounded up by soldiers in the vicinity of Vientiane and returned to the capital after loyalists put down the rebellion on Wednesday.

Provinces May Get Too Much Power

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Two members of Parliament and a law professor warned Friday that the Canadian Bar Association, Andre Brewin, New Democratic Party member for Toronto - Greenwood, suggested "the pendulum has swung too far" toward decentralized power.

Professor Bora Laskin of the University of Toronto law school said that under the formula some federal powers could be stripped away "until the provinces are in full control."

Gordon Fairweather, Progressive Conservative member for Royal, said it would be deplorable and tragic if the provinces used the threat of veto on constitution changes to bargain for gains from the federal government.

Mr. Brewin said that if the proposed formula is adopted there will be "legislative sterility for years to come."

WOULD ALLOW CHANGES

The formula would allow changes in the British North America Act — Canada's constitution — without reference to the British Parliament.

Mr. Brewin said that in future generations the plan could be a bar to needed changes in the constitution. He called for an all - party parliamentary committee to study it.

Prof. Laskin said delegation of authority to the provinces "may have provided a moment of truce" in federal - provincial differences, but it did not answer any of the fundamental questions on amendment.

Donald R. Macdonald, Liberal member of Parliament for Toronto - Rosedale and parliamentary secretary to Justice Minister Guy Favreau, told the panel the formula will receive full debate in Parliament and in the provincial legislatures.

Liberal Charges Most of Grants Given Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Eddie Sargent (L—Grey North) accused the Progressive Conservative government Friday of ignoring the rest of the province for Toronto.

He told the Legislature the government is getting careless and is starting to think it can use public money to the advantage of the Conservative Party.

Conservative members and cabinet members are personally presenting provincial grant cheques to municipalities, he said.

And most of the money was being given to Metropolitan Toronto, which had the highest-priced real estate in the province but kept getting more than its share of new buildings located by the province.

The rest of Ontario is "fed up to the teeth with it," he said. Farmers were in trouble and were being ignored.

Outside the legislature, Attorney - General Arthur Wishart agreed with a Liberal member's criticism of an official of his department.

Mr. Wishart said Richard Lyall, foreman of a grand jury that investigated conditions at Mercer Women's Reformatory, was justified in using stationery from his insurance agency to circulate a news item about the jury's report.

THIRD PRESSURE

James Trotter (L—Toronto Parkdale) said in the House Thursday that A. A. Halford, licensing officer under the superintendent of insurance, had tried to silence Mr. Lyall by suggesting that he not use the letterhead to deal with private matters.

A bill was introduced by Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, calling for the removal of exemption granted small apartment buildings in the Ontario human rights code.

The bill asks that it be illegal in any building of more than two units not to rent an apartment to anyone because of religion, race or colour. The present stipulation is a building of more than six units.

The government has said it will amend the code this year.

Unemployment Decreased In January

TRENTON — Unemployment for the 400 square mile area covered by the Trenton Employment Office was down by 39 from that of last year for the month of January, according to the report released this week by manager J. K. White.

In January, 1964, there were 733 unplaced males and 261 unplaced females. In January of this year, the total of unplaced males was down to 537 while the unplaced female total was up to 358.

Mr. White explains the increase in unplaced female applicants for work this year by the seasonal layoff in industry, affecting female workers.

The picture is better this year, Mr. White thinks, because of the "Do It Now" campaign and incentives to build homes.

In demand are draughtsmen, domestic and personal service workers.

PLANS DISCUSSED

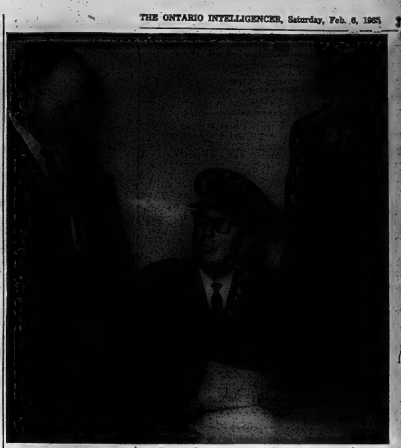
Trenton realtor, James Day, is discussing plans with Murray Township Council for a subdivision to be developed south of the village.

Ten Canvases Feature Exhibition

TRENTON — Ten canvases by well known Canadian artists are shown at a painting exhibition in the East Northumberland Secondary School at Brighton on February 24.

The exhibition will include paintings by two members of the Group of Seven, Arthur Lismer and J. E. H. MacDonald, and also an abstract of Harold Town's.

The exhibition is free to the public and area artists have been asked to bring along their own work.



The exhibition is one of a series of showings across Ontario sponsored by the Art Institute of Ontario and Paul Bennett, a director of that body will be on hand to lecture, advise and comment.

Name President Ministerial Association

TRENTON — New president of the Trenton Ministerial Association is Rev. Ronald Reid, pastor of Bethel Temple. He replaces Rev. R.C. Raycroft of the Church of the Nazarene, who is leaving Trenton.

Vice-president is Rev. James Spearman of the Wesleyan Methodist Church and Miss Nancy White, assistant minister at the church will act as secretary-treasurer of the association.

The association this week sent out letters of appreciation to Rev. J.T. Irwin of King Street United Church who has moved to a Calgary charge and to Rev. Raycroft.

NEWLY-PROMOTED senior city police officers are Staff-Sergeant Ralph Blatchford (left) and Detective Sergeant Harold Reid, here with retiring Deputy Chief J. Clair Hayes (centre.) The deputy chief officially retires this year, after 22 years of service. The two other officers assume the rank of inspector.

New York Fair Tightens Belt, And Expects to Get Out of Red

NEW YORK (AP)—As world fairs go, the $1,000,000,000 New York venture went over fairly well last year—but not as well as the rosy predictions — and probably will again this season.

Fair President Robert Moses had hoped for 40,000,000 paid admissions in 1964 and 30,000,000 this year. The actual figure for the first season was 27,145,280.

With the end of the first season, the fair began a financial belt-tightening.

Ninety - five persons in the publicity and promotion departments were dismissed. Budgets cuts of one-third were ordered in all departments. The adult admission charge was raised to $2.50 from $2 for this year.

CITY MAY LOSE

Then it was announced the fair probably wouldn't be able to pay back $24,000,000 the city advanced for "permanent park improvements" on the fair site.

City Controller Abraham Beame cried foul but Moses shrugged back that the $24,000,000 wasn't a loan in the first place. It is now considered as in the event that the fair made a big enough profit.

The fair will need $3,500,000 in cash for operating expenses before the new season opens April 21. Moses said this will be no problem, that the money can be easily obtained.

He said an attendance of 37,500,000 is expected this year, and that, in the end, the fair will come out "in the black" after having met all its obligations.

Ask Government To Intervene in Liquor Strike

QUEBEC (CP)—The executive of the Confederation of National Trade Unions has called on the Quebec government to intervene immediately in the strike of Quebec Liquor Board employees, which enters its third month today.

Marcel Pepin, secretary-general of the Quebec-based labor group, announced the CNTU decision Friday to ask for intervention before the situation gets any worse.

He said the executive also reiterated its support for the 3,200-odd strikers, who mit representa, and resolved to support them in any way possible, including public demonstrations if necessary.

Talks in Montreal with liquor board representatives were suspended Friday and board negotiators said they will resume Monday. Before talks broke off Friday, negotiators had held out some hope of a settlement.

Bombers East of Suez

Britain's V-bombers are east of Suez, standing nuclear guard over lands which might be threatened by atomic bombardment by the Chinese.

If a Conservative Prime Minister had made that announcement, imagine the uproar which would have arisen in Britain and been echoed around the world!

Yet this imperialistic-sounding policy, embraced by a Laborite, may escape censure except from the communists themselves and their close friends or their temporary associates by reason of present expediency.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson, in warning of the necessity for Western nuclear powers to stand guard of Eastern lands in the shadow of China's newly developed atomic bomb, once again has demonstrated a curious paradox about the British Labor Party.

In theory, it is primarily concerned with domestic affairs, with the remolding of British society in a fashion more compatible with what it conceives to be the precepts of social justice. But in practice, whenever it has attained power, the Labor Party has had to face difficult problems associated with the remnants of British imperial power. In doing so, it has frequently followed policies which were indistinguishable from those which would have been followed by a Conservative Government dedicated to the preservation of the Empire. In other instances, where its policies may have been different, they have been generally appealed to historians as foresighted in the light of subsequent events. Labor Party failures have occurred more frequently in the domestic field, in which it professes to specialize, than in the field of foreign policy, in which it is supposed to have lesser knowledge and even interest.

It ought to be noted, though, that while the retention of British nuclear bombers east of Suez is a policy likely to win the approval of any Commonwealth-minded Conservative, Wilson's reasons for this decision are not inconsistent with the Labor Party's past pronouncements respecting nuclear weapons. Labor is prepared to depend on U.S. nuclear power to provide a shield for the homeland. The only reason for this policy is to avoid the proliferation of nuclear forces, which Laborites and many other statesmen inside and outside Britain, believe would make an eventual nuclear war virtually unavoidable. It is for precisely the same reason that Wilson is maintaining Britain's nuclear capacity in the East. Otherwise, he fears, many lands might be tempted to develop their own nuclear arms as a counterweight to the nuclear threat from China.

Here in the West we may doubt whether Britain would be any more prompt to reply to a Chinese nuclear attack on, say, India, than would the U.S. This, though, is beside the point. What matters is what these countries believe. Many of these lands have been dealing with the British for centuries, while the U.S. is a comparative newcomer to the area as a great power.

The really important thing is not which Western power maintains a deterrent force on which potential foes of China can depend, but whether the existence of this force can be used to coerce, compel, other countries to refrain from acquiring nuclear weapons themselves. Indonesia says it is working on an atomic bomb. Egypt is believed either engaged in or considering the same project. Prime Minister Shastri of India is staunchly resisting pressure to follow the same course. Eventually, though, many more nations will join the nuclear club unless prevented. The present nuclear powers, the U.S., Russia, Britain, France and China, if they joined forces, could almost certainly prevent such a development without resort to war. It is in their interests, and in the interests of the world as a whole, that they do so.

If a given scientist had not made a given discovery, someone else would have done so a little later. Johann Mendel dies unknown after having discovered the laws of heredity: thirty-five years later, three men rediscover them. But the book that is not written will never be written. The genius of a great scientist delays humanity; that of a great writer deprives it. — Jean Rostand.

Jazz is a young music, and the reason why you find so few jazz fans of seventy or eighty is because when they were at the impressionable teen age jazz did not exist at all. So just leave it for a decade or two and you will find plenty of doddery jazz fans, to go with the doddery old jazz musicians.—British jazz musician Humphrey Lyttelton.

"Wonder If He Knows How Tough We Are, Boss?"

To Your Good Health
The Cause of Catarrh Is Sometimes Anatomical

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain catarrh and what if anything can be done about it.

It was told many years ago by my grandmother that I had catarrh. At that time I had an unusual flow of mucus from my nose. I still have a drainage into my throat but not as bad as when I was younger. — Mrs. J. B.

Catarrh is a perfectly good word which comes from the Greek word meaning "to flow down," and is usually applied to a chronic mucus-type discharge.

To a mild degree this is normal — our mucous membranes are intended to remain moist. When the flow increases heavily we call it catarrh.

Essentially this means some sort of irritation is inciting the membranes to increase the flow as a means of combating the problem.

It is possible, with certain medications (of the "nose drop" type, among others) to reduce this flow or "dry up the membranes."

However, that doesn't get at the basic cause, which is the irritation. In fact, such arbitrary drying up is actually an interference with what Nature is trying to do. Excessive use can damage the membranes, or lead to new irritation of a different type, or contribute to nosebleeds or such.

Hence, in general, I oppose their use except very briefly, when a temporary drying up is worth the drawbacks.

Rather, the important point is to find out what is causing the excess flow, what is the irritant? It can, of course, be a cold. Or chronic irritation from smoking or from the air pollution is seasonal, it strongly suggests allergy.

Sometimes the cause is anatomical: Adenoids or tonsils; a deviated septum in the nose; polyps or some other obstruction.

Continued catarrh is a nuisance but your chances of finding a cure on a do-it-yourself basis can be rather remote. Your physician, surer and more effective approach is medical examination of the passages of nose and throat. Once the source of irritation is identified, correction often is obvious and sometimes simple.

But that's the story of medical care in general: Until you find the cause, there's slim hope of stumbling onto a cure. Once you do find the cause, the battle is almost over.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the cause of clay-colored stools, reddish brown urine and diarrhea? I felt quite bloated for several days. — C. L.

Dear Doctor: Do clay-colored stools suggest gall bladder infection, or clirrhosis of the liver? Is it possible to have a fever with a gall bladder infection? — C. H.

Normal stool color comes from some ingredients of bile. Lack of this color can mean lack of bile, either gallstones or other obstruction associated with the gall bladder, or lack of function of the liver, which produces bile — thus hepatitis could be involved, or advanced cirrhosis of the liver. Jaundice is usually noted in such cases.

The highly colored urine could be due to bile being excreted through the kidneys. All of the foregoing suggestions are "could be." Tests should be made to find out what is wrong.

Gall bladder infection can occur either with or without a low-grade fever. . . .

Dear Dr. Molner: I read recently that yogurt is a wonder food and is supposed to kill all disease-producing bacteria. — S. S.

Yogurt is a good food for those who like it. But if it could kill all disease-producing bacteria," we would have put an end to infectious diseases long ago. It's not a wonder food.

Good Talk Hard to Find

Brantford Expositor

"How long is it since you had an evening of completely stimulating conversation, the kind that jolts your thinking?" This question, once asked by a leading magazine, is often echoed by thoughtful people who are appalled by the inaudible that so often passes for conversation when groups, large or small gather for an evening.

There is conversation and good conversation. Many people don't appear to know the difference. Their talk never rises above the level of gossip, often malicious, frivitality or the inanely obvious. They shift their brains into neutral and let their tongues idle.

Even the supposedly educated are often unable to find any subject for sustained conversation they can share except golf and bridge.

The hours pass in an exchange of complaints about prices and taxes or views on the merits of cars, hockey stars and suchlike. And when all is said it boils down to nothing much. Mostly it has been a parroting of stale ideas or borrowed opinions on topics of no real value.

No one has had any worthwhile information to impart. No one has had to exercise his wits to explain or defend a point. No one feels stimulated except by what he has drunk.

It has been a swapping of bedraggled threadbare mental washing. There has been conversation but not good conversation.

Ottawa Offbeat
George Harris Hees Playing An Eager Waiting Game

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The InfoElliptor's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — If ever you saw a man on the bench and waiting to get back into the game, it is George Harris Hees, 54, the flamboyant former Toronto Argo linebacker and Conservative Trade Minister now heading the Canadian and Montreal Stock Exchanges.

Officially, he has been out of the play since he left the field in the Cabinet crisis of two years ago.

But unofficially, he has been keeping in shape for a return to the team.

As President of the Stock Exchanges, he attends no political rallies, makes no political speeches — well, not exactly political speeches.

He has rented a house in Montreal, but keeps his Toronto apartment, and has put his great personal charm and free-wheeling vigor into the investment business, looking for all the world like a man comfortably at home in what, at first glance, might seem a life career.

But it only looks that way.

Talked to him at Montreal the other day, and it quickly became apparent that his Stock Exchanges presidency, though strictly, formally and officially non-political, is precisely the place to keep in training for a return to what, with obvious relish, he refers to as "The Great Game" of politics.

MEET THE PEOPLE

The presidency is almost 100 percent a public relations job.

Of course, there are administrative responsibilities which keep him desk-bound at Montreal.

But never for long.

Most of the time he is doing the thing he likes and does best — meeting people.

All kinds of people: business groups, service clubs, student organizations, women's clubs — in fact, just about any association, provided it is on this side of the International Boundary, are booked through the necessary formality of extending him an invitation to speak.

His speeches come-in equally fluent English and French, and more recently increasingly had the joys of national public service.

To the suggestion that all this public exposure on the speaking platform is just the ticket for an old political athlete keeping in training for a return to campaign competition, he beams an amiable grin and shakes his ah keed!"

And, he confesses, his interest in national politics hasn't diminished in the slightest.

"There's nothing so important," he says, "nothing so exciting and so rewarding in the sense of self-fulfilment as public service and the knowledge that you are participating in the direction of the affairs of your country at the very source of power which, of course, is Parliament."

His terms as Conservative Transport, and then Trade Minister he rates along with the days as a cadet at Royal Military College as "the greatest years of my life."

LOTS OF TIME

At 54 he is still young, in the way national politicians measure age, and talking to him you get the message, loud and clear that he is biding his time confidently to more "greatest years."

Oddly, he has no family or lifelong tradition as a Conservative, for one who rose so high and became so prominent in the party.

He thought of politics first when he was crossing Canada (he had a brilliant war record) discovering that although he was one of the fortunate few whose family enjoyed ample money, there were others less lucky who had come through some pretty rough times in the Great Depression of the 30's.

Perhaps naively, he thought that in national politics he might do something about it.

His brother-in-law, an ardent Liberal, sent him to Ottawa, when he returned home wounded, to see Prime Minister King's Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley and Defence Minister J. L. Ralston.

"Ralston told me that I had a real contribution to make, whatever party I joined," he relates.

"It might have been the Liberals, except at that time, the Government, fighting against inevitable conscription, was telling the country that troops overseas had all the reinforcements required — and I knew how wrong that was, how all were going back into battle exhausted and dying because of lack of reinforcements, entirely to the Government manpower policy."

So he became a Conservative, fought in the North Grey by-election where conscription was the issue and Government defeated, and found his life's purpose and career.

Now as a stock exchange president, he was "only taking time out — for when I join a team it's for keeps and I go all the way."

Fine Print In Policies

Windsor Star

A citizen recently renewed his insurance on home and contents, along with certain ancillary coverages. He received his new policy and perused it. He found it 4 remarkable document indeed.

There were 4½ pages of fine print—though fine, fine print which he'd be more accurate description. It contained over 60 clauses, with various sub-sections, some of which ran to nine points in themselves.

The citizen, who is a reasonably intelligent fellow, sat down to study it. He made a quite honest attempt to figure it all out! Before he got half through he was befuddled. He perhaps could catch the meaning of one particular paragraph, but, before he was halfway through, his mind began to boggle. It was incapable of absorbing all the ifs and buts, the inclusions and exclusions, exceptions, etc., etc. Baffled, his eyeballs had become weary in the reading of the fine print. It made him wonder, as it has pood the intelligence and ingenuity of large insurance companies to state clearly and succinctly what a policy means? Surely it is possible to word policies which makes something essentially simple so confusedly complicated and involved. Fortunately the citizen had a competent and reliable insurance agent who explained the major provisions.

The citizen did remark on one favorable factor. The price of the three-year policy on the house and contents was less than the cost of a one-year insurance on his automobile, despite the house being much the more valuable. But then, he reasoned, a house does not go careening down a highway in constant danger of being crashed into by another careering house!

The year 1945 will be a testing time for the motorist. For another year he will carry on with the old tires and it is natural that cuttle a number of cars will have to be laid up for the rest of the duration and in the purchase of new cars.

The desire of motorists, of course, is to keep their cars running until the time comes when they will be able to replace them they will be able to replace the and possibly to buy new cars. But the outlook for that is not very near. That will be after the war is over and the result is that it will be necessary for owners to care for the tires they possess, and make them stretch out until a better day for tires comes around.

The retail butchers in the city, supported by a large deputation from the Retail Merchants' association, presented a lengthy petition to the city council last evening at its regular meeting in the council chamber, asking that cattle cutting up of meat for sale on the local market be prohibited. J. Livesey presented and read the petition and a number of members of the Retail Merchants Association and a few members of the council spoke on the matter. However, discussion was not necessary as Mayor Geo. W. Ellis informed the deputation that the matter had already been carefully considered by committees and that their petition would be granted. Later in the meeting a recommendation was passed "that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare a by-law preventing the cutting of fresh meat on the market."

Spot Plague In Syntax

Toronto Telegram

Writers who are concerned for the health of their syntax should be on guard for a current increase in the spread of "spot plague."

This disease is especially virulent among people who have a compulsion for periods in preference to semicolons and commas. . . .

H. W. Fowler, in his Dictionary of Modern English Usage, says the essence of this style of writing is: "that the matter should be divided into as short lengths as possible separated by full stops, with few commas and no semicolons or conjunctions. . . ."

Fowler says the style is tiring to the reader—on whom it imposes the task of supplying the connection— and corrupting to the writer—whose grasping for brevity persuades him that anything will pass for a sentence.

Are the Gnomes of Zurich Behind Series of Attacks On World's Key Currencies?

By RICHARD L. GRAVES
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The name of the great international financier Hayley is an: "Who wants to cut key currencies?"

In seeking clues as to who—or whether—is raiding the pound sterling and the dollar, Britain and the United States also ask: "Why?"

Ask the Gnomes of Zurich or the Club of Basel or The Paris Club or any of the other real or rumored brotherhoods of international bankers and the official answer will be silence. Money talks; international bankers don't.

The fact is the pound, and to some extent the dollar, have faced sharp attacks for more than two months. The earliest raid led to the British sterling crisis of Nov. 25. The most recent foray was a run on gold that pushed its price in dollars to the highest level since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

To attack a currency it is necessary to dump securities of it on exchanges suddenly, thus depressing its value relative to other currencies or gold. It takes vast sums to attack the currency of a nation and cause a crisis. It takes even greater sums to shore up the currency in the face of a crisis.

BALANCE SHEEN

Huge amounts of dollars and pounds are in the hands of foreign nations because both Britain and the United States in recent years have been paying out more than they have been receiving in international transactions.

The attacks on the pound and the dollar have threatened to shake world confidence in those two currencies. Along with gold they are the backbone of the present free world money system. The two are closely linked. An attack on one is a virtual attack on the other.

The sources of the attacks are unknown to the public. Whether any of the central banks know themselves is another mystery.

Though many economists feel the pound and the dollar are secure from attack for the time being, some look for more attacks in the next six months.

But who are the attackers?

First, it is necessary to meet the so-called "chief" that control the international financial channels.

The Club of Basel—Technically, the club is formed around the bank for international settlements, formed by the Allies in the Swiss city in 1930 for organization of First World War reparations payments.

The Gnomes of Zurich—This is a rumored league of central and world European bankers who form what one banker referred to as "a mutually advantageous intelligence operation." Where the Club of Basel is principally made up of government bankers, the Gnomes are reported to be private bankers.

The question recurs: Who has the vast sums to put up to shake the pound and dollar?

That question was asked by Associated Press reporters in the central banking centres of Europe. Some initially, by all.

London: Britons are undecided whether the heavy pressure on the pound last November was caused by their own merchant bankers or by the Gnomes of Zurich.

Britain has a system of commercial banks, led by five major institutions. Authorities contend those banks would not desperately sell their domestic assets by creating a money crisis that could lead to devaluation of the pound.

Frankfurt: Bankers there dispute any reports that Germans attacked the pound. An official of one of the three major German banks said they did not have any substantial surplus of pounds that could be used to depress the value, even if there had been a reason to do it.

Zurich: Swiss financial sources deny any suggestion that Swiss banks sought to speculate with the pound sterling. But they noted that many of their clients sought to dispose of their pounds, thus escalating the crisis after it developed.

Amsterdam: Dutch bankers blame the sterling crisis on big American corporations transferring their pounds into dollars. The Dutch bankers estimate that the crisis cost Britain $3,000,000,000 on Nov. 25 alone, one of the early days of the attack.

Paris: The Bank of France, as a main constituent of the Club of Basel, was one of the important elements in establishment of the $3,000,000,000 pool to bolster the British pound.

But what is not known—and central bankers won't tell—is whether France attached any strings to its aid.

Where the Gnomes of Zurich generally are supposed as profit-minded financial troublemakers, French President de Gaulle now is cited in some quarters as a leader who sees some political advantage in the troubles with the pound and dollar.

Some weight was lent to that argument by the gold rush of early January, it was France that touched off the gold speculation by announcing with some fanfare that it would convert its dollar holdings into gold.

De Gaulle proposed Thursday that a new international money system linked to gold be established, declaring that the dollar and pound have lost authority as key world currency.

RESERVES DROP

Concurrent with de Gaulle's statements, the U.S. federal reserve reported the U.S. monetary supply of gold had dropped an additional $100,000,000 a week. The total drop so far this year has been $300,000,000. Though the government generally does not disclose where the gold is going, most of it has gone to France. The current U.S. monetary gold supply totals $15,085,000,000,000.

Though the French presidents economic statements are not specific, it is believed he wants to see the United States hook the fixed $35 an ounce price for gold to the French franc.

Setting of a higher price in terms of dollars would, in effect, devalue the French franc, dollar. Countries with most of their reserves in gold, such as France, would find their reserves relatively more valuable.

At the same time the $65,000,000 French war debt owed to the United States would be substantially reduced, for practical purposes.

There is also an attitude in international financial circles that President de Gaulle intends to use France's capacity to ratify the pound and the dollar as a lever to gain other political objectives.

minister delivered a 30-minute speech. Sympathizers described it as a "brilliant" call for the party to understand. Mr. Balcer's contention that the Conservatives face the danger of cutting themselves off as a national political force without the backing of Quebec members.

Mr. Balcer and a number of Quebec members have said they are considering sitting as Independents if the party fails to heed their call for a change of leadership and outlook.

One source said Mr. Diefenbaker also tangled with Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon, former trade minister.

Mr. Diefenbaker is reported to have used the senator's name among others in contending "termites" were boring from within the party.

Senator McCutcheon is reported to have replied that he had, advised Mr. Diefenbaker before Christmas to retire rather than have the party go through another crisis.

Mr. Diefenbaker set reporters shuns when he left the meeting at one point after it had been under way about an hour. He said later it was to receive a personal assurance by telephone from Premier Robarts of Ontario that Mr. Robarts had denied reports he favored holding a leadership convention.

FEELS GREAT

"How did he feel?"

"Do I look worried. Sound troubled?" The answer had to be no.

"Feel great," he said. "Feel ready."

The caucus was one thing; the national executive another. One certain, the other not so certain. So how was he preparing for the confrontation with the executive? Speech from a script? Even from notes, maybe.

"N. text. No notes," he said. "Don't like 'em. Seldom use 'em." How, then?, "straight off the top."

One thing seemed to bother him despite all that calm and confidence his handlers claimed for him and he so convincingly displayed.

"Who's the mystery contender?" he asked. "Who's going to step into the ring? Leon Balcer, maybe?"

U.S. Dollars, Sterling, Gold Three Alternative Mediums For Financing World Trade

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President de Gaulle's call for a return to the gold standard emphasizes the difficulties the world faces as it seeks an alternative acceptable medium of world exchange at a time when both Britain and the United States are pursuing policies that would restrict the world flow of U.S. dollars and British pound sterling.

Currently, all three — gold, sterling and dollars—are widely used to finance an expanding world trade that must keep on growing if countries are to maintain economic health.

The amount of official gold that is available at current prices is insufficient to finance the myriad of international deals.

But oddly, the amount of dollars and sterling that is available depends to some extent on the weaknesses of the American and sterling trading positions. Expansion of the world flow of sterling and dollars is generated partly by deepening deficits in U.S. and British foreign grade.

To the extent the U.S. and Britain are successful in reducing their deficits, there may be a contraction on the amount of their currencies available abroad.

OTHER SOURCES USED

But in addition to these sources of international credit of liquidity, the world has such other sources as the various reserves of the international monetary fund, the world bank and the various bilateral lending arrangements by the central banks of the industrialized countries.

However, there is a tendency for looseness and lack of co-ordination among these various liquidity agencies. The International Monetary Fund has been grappling with ways of ensuring an adequate flow of liquidity.

De Gaulle is probably aware of all the various proposals, there is little world support for a return to the gold standard and the rigidities of the 1931 financing system that proved untenable.

But France has been turning much of its surplus holdings of U.S. dollars into gold, at the expense of the U.S. treasury. The European Common Market countries now hold about $13,213,000,000 in gold compared with some $15,000,000,000 in the U.S. as of Dec. 31, 1964.

If European countries, including France and West Germany, were to decide to convert more of their U.S. dollars into gold, Europe, and not the U.S., would become the predominant holder of official gold reserves.

BREAKDOWN

The United States realizes the relative weakness of its position. While the U.S. dollar is still recognized as a powerful world currency and is likely to remain so as long as the world requires American goods, there are forces in the U.S. who are beginning to question whether the world is losing confidence in the future of the U.S. dollar.

The U.S. probably could recapture much of its lost gold by boosting the long - maintained official price of $35 ounce. Or it could enhance world prestige in the dollar by making the dollar scarce.

The more de Gaulle attacks the weakness of the American position the more likely will be the American desire to retreat and consolidate. But restricting the flow of U.S. dollars abroad may also affect the U.S. power to back up its foreign intrusions by the use of dollars.

In the end, de Gaulle may therefore achieve what he appears to want—a reduction of American influence in Europe and in other areas where de Gaulle believes a "third world force" under his leadership could gain strength.

Had Idea To Develop Cannibal Mice

PERUGIA, Italy (AP) — Some 500 years ago, a retired Italian soldier-turned-inventor came up with an idea which he figured would put rats and mousetraps out of business. He was going to develop a cannibal mouse.

A dusty manuscript found in the archives of Perugia University outlines this plan conceived by Corgnolo Della Corgna:

Suspend a piece of cheese above a cross - shaped cut in a sheet of parchment stretched over the mouth of a base. As one mouse after another tumbles into the base, they will become hungry enough that the stronger mice will devour the weaker ones.

The survivor would be a confirmed cannibal. A race of cannibals would be developed by repeating the plan.

Bustling City of Singapore Stands as Reminder of Past

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

SINGAPORE — The sun shines, as it always has, on the Lion City, this great inland port of 1,000 ships a year at the tip of the Malay Peninsula, surrounded by the magic named waters of the Malacca Straits, the China Sea, and the Straits of Johore.

Daily the great white ships anchored in the Inner Roads or tied up at the godowns disgorge their cargoes of tinfoils. They come to ride trishaws and bargain for cameras or 18-dour-$30 suits in the awninged confines of Change Alley. And they come to gaze at the busy sampans and fat tongkans in the Singapore River as they transfer rubber and tin and spices and timber to the lighters for Sawawak. And they come to relax over a gin and tonic at the Raffles Hotel's afternoon tea dance.

But to those of our generation these names bring back memories of those black days in early 1942 when the eyes of the world hung heavily, hopefully yet hopelessly, on Britain's mightiest bastion in the Pacific.

Then the not-so-distant boom of Japanese guns could be heard on the Causeway to the Raffles Hotel's tea dance music. If there were any English left in the city they would have read in that afternoon's "Straits Times": "Any persons desiring evacuation shall report to the Collyer Quay ferry station this afternoon no later than 4 p.m. Lack of passage cannot be an excuse for no object." A few hundred made it.

SIMPLE MEMORIAL

North on Bukit Timah Rd., stands the Ford plant where the instrument of surrender finally was signed because the Japanese had threatened to cut off the water supply across the Straits of Johore. The bridge had been blown up and there is a new causeway, but the water pipeline still runs alongside it. On the nearby hill where the British and Anzacs fought their last desperate battle stands a simple war memorial with 4,500 graves and 24,000 names — Indian, Chinese, Malay, and English.

Even the colorful tourist-oriented harbor boat tour stirs up long dormant recollections. From Collyer Quay the launch crosses the Inner Roads past the forests of masts of Chinese junks, their bows painted with abstract red and green dragons' faces to stave off evil spirits, past huge Indian lighters with deck houses where whole families live. And then the years intrude themselves again with the rusting hulks of 40,000 ton of Japanese shipping sunk one night in September, 1943, by British and Australian commandos in junks. White sailboats now flit heedlessly through the clutter.

Past neat villages of Malay stilt houses, complete with gardens and canals of water, past oil refineries and copious harbor traffic, and past the British commander's official house on a haughty height, towards the Outer Roads we see why Singapore was considered impregnable. The channels are narrow and twisted, surrounded snugly by hills with sweeping views of the sea.

WRONG-WAY GUNS

And those standing on the headlands like dead, blind and toothless sentries, we see the abandoned pillboxes still bearing their brown and green World War II camouflage. These are the sites of those famous "strategic" big gun emplacements that pointed the wrong way and could not be turned around; no one dreamed the Japanese would come through the "impenetrable" jungles of Malaya.

Miles of hedges stand in the open waters, as they do through-out Malaya. They are designed to trap fish in pole-supported nets by attracting them with underwater lights.

Dozens of islands dot the harbor. From one, called "Dead Man's" — now covered with modern homes — British anti-aircraft managed to shoot down most of the attacking Japanese bombers, thereby saving Singapore from destruction.

Much of the old colonial flavor remains in Singapore, a 226-square - mile microcosm of the Federation of Malaysia. The stone bank buildings downtown, the Victorian frame government houses with their verandahs and cupolas bring to mind another image of Singapore . . . waterfront dives with bamboo curtains, loitering sailors, trade in opium and other sin. But these are no more, if ever they did exist.

North of the city the island offers a sampling of Malaya. The parkway cuts through a jungle landscape of fern, palm, banana and tapioca trees, villages of stilt houses, and rubber plantations. Tourists head into the wood logs from the Federation.

On any day an inevitable sight is a Chinese funeral procession. Gaily panoplied trucks carry bands and crowds of mourners. Behind are Mrs. Chiat-moon, Mrs. Rawlings and Mrs. Haggerty.

The executive served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

WIDE expanses of glass in modern homes may present a bewildering challenge to active youngsters. Until they are thoroughly acquainted with which look like doors (and vice versa), it may be dents or a stick of bright tape.

FACETS FROM A CHELSEA FLAT

"All arts used to be aspirational. Few now are. One of them is the ballet, which . . . gives us standards of men and women as beautiful as we should like to be . . ." — The Bernard Berenson Treasury.

* * *

The Canadian National Ballet's appearance in Belleville awakens ballet memories for Mrs. Beamish, 208 John Street — memories of over two score years prior to World War II which she spent with her husband the Venerable Archdeacon George Ross Beamish, former rector of St. Thomas' Church, who was engaged in church affairs abroad.

"Before going to England," says Mrs. Beamish, "I must confess I knew nothing about the ballet and therefore had little interest in it.

"Upon our arrival in London, however, we obtained, through a Belleville friend, a two-story flat in Chelsea. It stood directly across the street from another in which, a lively pet dog, a white English sheep dog, named Pierrot, constantly paced a window.

"It wasn't long before our daughter (a small child then) and I began to take Pierrot for a daily run in Battersea Park by permission of his owner, whose busy schedule did not permit such luxury. He was, we discovered, the famed ballet dancer, Anton Dolin.

"I cannot claim I knew Anton (his real name was Pat Kay) but I did know of Sir Thomas Beecham and admiring he was! But became acquainted more closely with Dolin's work, when I was seated with the ballet in Russia), the magic and wonder of the Russian Ballet, which we had long held my complete devotion to this day."

A postscript to this story: It must be told when Anton Dolin's work took him away from London, he presented Pierrot, his beloved dog, to the Beamish family to have as their own. "And how we loved him!" Mrs. Beamish says.

"I must admit, to live in Chelsea, which is such a wonderful part of London was one of our most treasured experiences. During part it alive with English history."

In a letter to her mother in Belleville, dated November 23, 1928 from their Chelsea flat at 10 Glebe Place, Mrs. Beamish (whose kindness allows us to peek over her shoulder) wrote:

"Yesterday yesterday was Christmas presents. I want to get them off this week. It is quite late in getting them because it is so great. The shops are wonderful and being very busy now. I bought a beautiful mole-skin coat for $90.00 .

"This certainly is a very interesting city. Last Sunday morning I went to the Chelsea Parish Church, where Henry VIII married Jane Seymour a few days after the execution of Anne Boleyn. Sir Thomas More worshipped there with his family and was hurried to the tower from the church while attending service there.

"Katherine Parr, Queen Elizabeth's friend, Lady Jane Grey lived at the Manor House at Chelsea. Henry VIII's hunting lodge is just a few doors from us, and Thomas Carlyle's house is just around the corner in Cheyne Row. Mrs. Gaskell who wrote Cranford was born at 93 Cheyne Row. The Royal Hospital that Nell Gwynne gave to the old soldiers and sailors is just a few blocks away.

"Turner, Rosselle, Leigh Hunt, Whistler, W. De Morgan and Henry James all lived in Chelsea . . .

"Hubby (the Archdeacon) has just come from Bristol where he was a guest of the Stone family. Mrs. Stone is a most interesting woman and is a granddaughter of Lady Jane Lennox who buckled Wellington's sword on him when he was going to war — setting out for Waterloo. Her mother was the Duchess of Richmond, who gave the ball for the British Officers on the eve of Waterloo. (Read Byron — "There was a sound of revelry by night on Belgium's Capital . . .

"Mrs. Stone's father afterward became Governor of Canada and died from the bite of a fox that he was separating from his pet dog. She read Hubby the Memoirs handed down to her by her father and mother.

"Her great aunt, Lady Sarah Lennox ran away with Sir Peregrince-Maitland, Chief of Staff for Wellington, who is now in Canada. He was Governor of Upper Canada and lived at Government House, Toronto, then the capital of Upper Canada. She showed Hubby the pictures of these people . . .

"Hubby also preached in Bath and Wells and was packed to the doors. He had an amplifier in front of his pulpit to carry his voice. They took him to see the most famous Parish Church in the world — St. Mary Radcliffe. It was built in 1200 and is one of the English Cathedrals equal it in age, beauty or size. It is more imposing than Westminster Abbey and Hubby says the old Verger showed him all the old treasures and registers. He saw the entry of Chatterton's baptism and the marriage entries of Samuel Taylor Coleridge and Robert Southey with their signature and that of their wives."

Returned Gift in Cruel And Heartless Manner

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A woman in our office is as sweet as honey on the surface but the minute a back is turned she does her dirty work.

She exaggerates details until an ordinary incident becomes a juicy morsel of gossip. Last week I had a birthday. This woman came by my desk with a gift. I was so stunned I could do nothing but thank her. After a few moments I regained my composure and returned the gift — unopened. I told her I could not accept it.

She asked why and I said, "A gift should be given to a friend by a friend." She replied, "But I am your friend." I told her I didn't think of her that way.

Now I'm afraid I was a little rude. What do you think? — UNDECIDED.

ANN LANDERS

* * *

DEAR UNDECIDED — You were not rude. You were cruel. What a heartless thing to do!

If you were victimized by this woman's sharp tongue why didn't you tell her off at the time? This is the way to let people know you don't want their friendship.

Obviously the woman didn't know how you felt about her or she would not have bought you a gift. I don't know her and I don't know you, but based on your letter, I'll take her.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We have four children. The oldest is 10 years old, the youngest 14 months. Five months ago my wife took a part-time job to earn extra money which we didn't need. She left the children first with one neighbor then another — without pay. After a while the neighbors resented it and refused to keep the children.

Last month my wife took a full-time job and hired a sloppy, lazy woman who is nothing more than two arms and two legs. When I get home at night I must cook supper and straighten the house. My wife sails in at 6:30 p.m., eats, leaves the dishes and then goes off to an art class, a PTA meeting, a church study class or to a lecture. She expects me to be satisfied because she has a good figure and has given me four children. I need your help. — STEADY READER.

* * *

DEAR STEADY — First, keep your home together — for four very good reasons.

Second, you hire a competent housekeeper.

Third, see your clergyman about some joint-counseling. A woman who goes to PTA and church meetings and to lectures can't be all bad.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 13-year-old boy. I am glad my parents love me enough to tell me when I do something wrong. I used to think they were just mean, but I know better now. Good parents are supposed to make rules and see to it that their kids follow them.

I have a friend whose parents let him do anything he wants to do and honestly, Ann Landers, the kid is a mess. He is always in trouble.

Last night a girl called me on the phone and asked me to be her date at a party. I asked my mother and she said, "The answer is no and that goes for the next three years."

I was glad she said that. Now I don't have to think about dates for a long time. Please print my letter for kids who may not know that strict parents are the best kind. SMARTER NOW.

DEAR SMARTER — There's an old saying, "If youth but knew what age could tell." Age can learn a few things from youth too — and you've proved it again.

ANSWER:

I have mailed to you two grid, 2 former releases dated March 12/63 and July 24/64, giving blender recipes. Since these booklets accompanying yours are not adequate I would advise you to order through your book dealer "Mary Meade's Magic Recipes for the Electric Blender" by Ruth Glinn Greene. It is published by Bobbs Merrill and is $4.95.

Some common uses to which your blender may be put are: 1) grind coffee beans to suit your taste fresh for each pot of coffee you make; 2) chop nuts to any desired size in seconds; 3) make your own "grated" crumbs; 4) make soup, from leftover vegetables: Put 2 cups liquid (milk, broth or consomme) into blender goblet. Add 2/3 cup cooked vegetables cut in 1" pieces, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter and salt and pepper. Buzz until well mixed. Heat, stirring until thick. 5) Jiffy Meat Loaf: Into blender goblet put 2 slices bread, broken up, 1 egg, ½ cup water, 1 small onion quartered, 1 cut stalk celery, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce. Buzz until vegetables are chopped. Turn out into bowl and mix with 2 lbs. ground beef. Pack into loaf pan and bake at 350 deg. F. 75 minutes.

NOTE:

See last Monday's column in which I gave recipes for making milk shakes in blender.

QUESTION:

Have you a recipe for chocolate seven minute icing? I tried adding chocolate to ordinary seven minute icing and it was a flop — Mrs. A. H.

The Air Transport Command transports supplies for NATO wherever they are needed and they are trained to go anywhere at anytime. They have been sent to Egypt, the Congo and last summer to [illegible] during the crisis there, shown by Wing Commander Olsen was of a chinese boy, taken in Hong Kong with his family. Congregational Meeting

BRIDGE ST. UNITED CHURCH

The annual congregational meeting of Bridge Street United Church was held on the evening of February 3rd in the Sunday school auditorium.

Mr. Ivan Davis, Troy Mt. Davis, opened with a devotion al, assisted by Rev. Alfred Poulter, the minister of visitation. This was followed by a short memorial for members deceased during the past year.

The Board of Session expressed grateful thanks to all who had worked so willingly and efficiently in giving leadership and assistance to each department of the church and every facet of its work in the community.

Annual reports of the various committees and organizations in the church were presented in mimeographed form to those attending, also a comprehensive final report of the building committee.

The reading and discussion of the reports called for active interest in all departments.

MEMBERSHIP GAIN

It was noted there had been substantial gain in membership during 1964 with 115 new members joining the church and 53 lost through death and transfer. At present there are 775 families under pastoral care.

Full use is being made of the facilities of the new Christian Education addition, despite the lack of a trained director during the latter part of the year which necessarily limited some of the activities.

Mrs. Clemens, on behalf of the congregation, expressed thanks to the Rev. and Mrs. Davis for their leadership and participation, noting that this was the beginning of their 11th year with the church.

During the year the sum of approximately $102,000.00 was raised through the various departments; $22,868.00 of this was allocated to Missionary and Maintenance Fund and $29,000.00 to the building fund. It was interesting to note that of a total cost of approximately $200,000.00 for building and renovation started in 1961 only a debt of $59,000.00 was still owing on the project.

The Sunday Church School reported a membership total of 453, including pupils and staff.

ELECTED TO OFFICE

Reports of the nominating committees were read and approved and consisted of: election to the Board of Trustees, Mr. John Deacon; election to the Board of Stewards, Mr. Ivan Davis and Mr. W. Welch Sr.; election to the Board of Sessions, Dr. A. E. Miles and Mr. George Cumbria.

At the conclusion of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed with refreshments being served by a committee of the United Church Women.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEAGUE NOT A PARTICIPANT IN BELLEVILLE UNITED APPEAL'

The Belleville United Appeal 1960 financial statement published recently in the Ontario Intelligencer listed the Catholic Women's League as a participating agency and recipient of funds distributed by United Appeal. This should have read "Civic Action Committee" and was purely an oversight in the preparation of the report.

The Catholic Women's League, a national organization, is in no way associated with the local United Appeal whereas the Civic Action Committee, strictly a local welfare organization, was accepted as a participating agency in 1963 and has given outstanding co-operation to the United Way cause in this community.

Hats Off to Pearl Buck

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Now and then a man meets a lady he really feels honored to take his hat off to—even in a crowded public elevator.

Such a lady is Pearl Buck, one of the world's most admired women and the only member of her sex to win both a Nobel and a Pulitzer literary award.

Gray-haired, blue-eyed and matronly looking, Mrs. Buck is in her 73rd year.

"I decided not long ago during a trip to India that it was time for me to get done what I wanted to do in life," she remarked.

So she is taking dancing lessons, brushing up on French and preparing to learn Spanish. (She already knows Chinese, of course, and German.)

She also is writing four new books, which will bring her lifetime total so far to 67. They include her famed The Good Earth and 33 other best-selling novels.

She also runs a film-producing company and heads the Pearl S. Buck Foundation, which is trying to raise $10,000,000 to aid more than 300,000 unwanted children fathered by U.S. troops in Japan, Korea and other Far East lands.

As methodical as she is warm - hearted, Mrs. Buck writes from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. daily in her Pennsylvania farmhouse. She now prefers an old-fashioned pen to the typewriter. When things are going well, she turns out about 10 pages a day.

"Whenever I find something in life that interests me, I want to write about it," she said. "Since I've had a varied life, that has meant many books. But I don't sit down to write until I feel I have something to say."

Although her books have sold by the millions — and earned millions of dollars — she lives modestly. Her biggest extravagance is hats.

"I'm really rather silly about hats. I buy five or six at one time."

Her personal synonym for life is joy. She thinks most people who fail do so because they don't appreciate themselves—or others—enough.

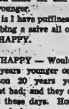
HER PHILOSOPHY

"People are really much better than they think they are," she remarked. "In every human relationship there must be a respect for the other person—not as you would want him to be, but as he is."

This is her philosophy:

"There are many kinds of love, but there must be some kind of love before there can be fulfillment—before there can be any progress, any fruit, or any content.

"To me love is the great energizer in life. Some believe hate is, but hate doesn't have the propulsive power like a rocket to get things off the ground. Love does."



Through all her literary labors, her heart's ear has been attuned to the cries of the world's handicapped or forgotten children. Mother of a retarded child herself, she has adopted and reared nine other children, including several of mixed Asian and American ancestry.

Horn-Rimmed Glasses Are Better Than Headaches

DEAR DORIS — I read not long ago where a person who wore glasses a long time looked awful without them. I do not think so because I took mine off and all my friends told me I looked twenty years younger.

Another problem is I have puffiness under my eyes. I tried rubbing it salve all over but nothing helps. — UNHAPPY.

DORIS CLARK

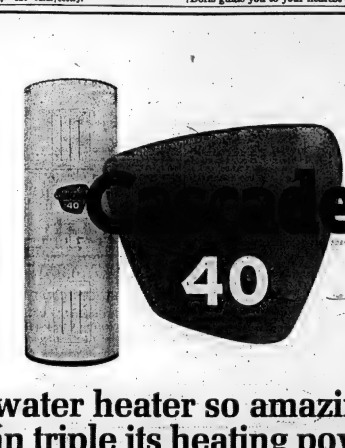
DEAR UNHAPPY — Would you rather look 20 years younger or see as well as a person 20 years younger? Glasses aren't that bad; and they come in attractive frames these days. Horn rims are better than headaches.

The puffiness is a symptom only your doctor can diagnose.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My wife's twin brother died recently. We were all very close and my wife and I have received a number of letters of sympathy. Can we send out cards of acknowledgement to our friends?

The widow tells me she is supposed to answer all of them. We should like to be able to answer the mail that has come to us personally. — BROTHER BOB.



DEAR BROTHER — It would be rude not to. A sister — and her husband — have the right to mourn and to receive sympathy. I prefer personal acknowledgement rather than printed cards with stereotyped messages.

* * *

NOTE FOR PERTURBED — I have a letter for you from a reader who sympathizes with you in your deep disappointment in your friend. I will be glad to forward it to you if you will write in again, identifying yourself as "Perturbed" and supplying your name and address.

A water heater so amazing it can triple its heating power automatically to meet the most outrageous demands

As your needs for hot water increase, so does the output of the Cascade 40 electric water heater. A 1000-watt lower element supplies plenty of hot water for normal use. But when your demands are unusually heavy, the 3000-watt top element automatically surges into action to supply hot water faster than you're ever likely to use it.

Cascade 40 is flameless, safe, clean. Cascade 40's tank is guaranteed for ten years. And no matter how much hot water you use, you save with Hydro's low rates. Ask your Hydro for more information about the Cascade 40 electric water heater.

Clearing Up 'Foggy Notions' Gives Life Specific Meaning

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

CLEARING UP

A person can be lost and still have a general idea of where he is. His problem is he does not know his position in any precise way.

Amelia Earhart's last words, radioed in 1937 from her plane over the Pacific, were these: "Position doubtful." Miss Earhart's problem was that she had only a vague idea of where she was. In general, she knew she was flying over the Pacific, but she had no precise knowledge of her location, indefiniteness as to where we are is perilous.

Someone may argue that uncertainty is useful on rare occasions. Perhaps! Diplomatic language is often purposefully vague and obscure. A diplomat declares, "My government will strongly oppose say and all attempts to . . ." But he does not make clear what he means by "oppose." Will his government issue a verbal protest? A written objection? Will the matter be taken to the Security Council of the United Nations? Will diplomatic relations be severed, and will ambassadors be withdrawn? Will an economic boycott be imposed, or will shots be fired? What does "oppose" mean? The diplomat prefers not to say. Vagueness has value for him. Keep the world guessing.

Countless people have wasted many years of their lives wandering from one job to another, stumbling from one religion to another, blundering from one marriage to another, because they were vague as to what they really wanted out of life. More than a few have been redeemed by discovering some central certainty.

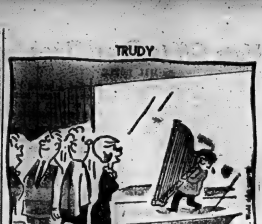
CLARITY NECESSARY

Clarity is necessary to spiritual progress. No one can win a football or basketball game unless he knows where the goalposts or baskets are. Spiritual progress comes from knowing where we are in relation to the standards and ideals toward which we are to move. Now, then, how can we replace vagueness with clear certainties?

First, we can insist upon seeing the good life in terms of particulars rather than in terms of unclear generalities. This was what Jesus did and taught. His clarity sometimes troubled His listeners, because a vague, general "righteousness" was less demanding than a call to specific deeds of love and mercy of justice and self-giving.

The word "neighbor" had a warm, comfortable sound, as long as it was not clear who was included by the term. When Jesus was asked by a lawyer, "Who is my neighbor?" He answered by telling a parable of a foreigner, who became for all time "the Good Samaritan." You remember the story, how a "certain man," whose name and nationality, race and religion were not given, was set upon by robbers, badly beaten, his goods stolen from him, and he was left near death. A priest passed by, but did not help the Samaritan who demonstrated victim. A Levite, one of special sanctity and purity, saw the wounded man, but offered him no assistance. Then came the what it means to be a neighbor. This half-breed, a member of a society discommensed by Jesus' own people, was not a neighbor in general, but a neighbor in particular. He soothed and dressed the stranger's wounds, placed him on his beast of burden, took him to an inn, paid his expenses, and watched over him. The neighbor was anyone and everyone in need and anyone and everyone who would serve that need. But Jesus made the point clear by describing "a certain man" and his particular predicament, and by telling of his Samaritan helper and precisely what he did to render assistance. The Samaritan preferred specific deeds of mercy to vague feelings of soft sentiment toward the unfortunate.

SPECIFIC TERMS



On another occasion when Jesus spoke of compassionate goodness He talked in specific terms. He clarified the meaning of kindness by mentioning particulars: a gift of food, a cooling drink, a welcome to a stranger, clothing to the naked, a visit to the sick and the imprisoned. (See Matthew 24). These are concrete examples, demonstrating that loving kindness is not a generalized sentiment to warm the heart, but intense care that seeks expression in particular acts. Instead of inquiring of us, "how do you feel toward others?" Jesus would ask, "precisely what have you done for others?"

This leads me to say another thing: live the best way you presently know, and then reflect upon your life. Take yesterday's and today's events and deeds; review them one by one. Attempt to interpret them and try to understand what each one means. Some vagueness as to what you really believe will disappear if you are honest about your actions. Your deeds are prudent pictures of your beliefs. What do they say about your trust in God and about the position of God above or among all your other loves? What do they say about your beliefs concerning life's purpose and destiny and about service to your fellowmen?

Isn't much of our fuzzy thinking about religion and the meaning of existence due to a reluctance to practise the best we already know? Do we learn about mechanics by thinking about mechanics or by doing mechanical work? Do we gain confidence in swimming by reading about swimming, or by plunging into the water and practising the best we have witnessed and heard about swimming? Every expert swimmer first took a few clumsy strokes. Confidence, certainty and mastery of the sport came from more and more actual swimming. So with praying, giving and the performance of compassionate deeds. We learn by doing.

Vague ideas about great matters become distinct, and creeds become clarified when notions are translated into actions.

To get a clear idea of the meaning of your faith, try translating creeds into deeds.

His Parish Covers Half North America

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) Rev. Homer Good's parish covers 15 widely-separated states and Canada.

The 51-year-old Baptist minister is full-time chaplain-counselor for the Hennis Freight Lines, a trucking firm based here.

The field of industrial chaplaincy is a relatively new one and has been called "industry's new dimension."

Mr. Good left a comfortable pastorate in nearby Kernersville a year ago after nearly a quarter-century in the pulpit.

"I've never tried to make employees think we have a minister," Mr. Good says. As a matter of fact, maybe I've been over the other way so that they do not consider me just as a minister."

Hennis Freight Lines has 2,700 employees working out of 54 terminals. More than 1,200 of these employees work in Winston-Salem.

In explaining the need for counselors in industry, Mr. Good said the company chaplain's task "is to just be here when you're needed."

In a recent month he spent 79 hours counselling employees. He conducts a voluntary worship service at the Winston-Salem terminal each Monday, fulfills speaking engagements, serves as relief pastor and travels periodically to the company's other terminals.

He uses the company's executive plane when necessary, and is called on by the company to notify families when there are injuries or deaths in accidents.

Our Knowledge Is Always Quite Limited in Scope

By Dr. Stuart K. Rosenberg

No one who once went to school any more than someone who once read a book, is really educated. Education that is not re-education is not education, at all.

Yet many teachers and schools do not help their students understand this most fundamental and elementary truth. Our knowledge about anything under the sun is always limited in scope and subject to revision. We have somehow come to understand this as regards scientific and technical skills.

We've let the suspicion when we learn that it has the past few years the American National Science Foundation has spent some 10 million dollars apiece to bring science text-books up to date. But it almost every other sort of education, we seem to make it impossible for students to remain open to novelty, surprise and renewed efforts to understand the world they live in. They go on living, after they leave their schools and universities, as if they've heard every thing before.

they should be tentative — ignorance, not wisdom, thinks that only one and one equal two.

It would do teachers well to impart more than knowledge, but open-mindedness too. Bodies of knowledge are limited in scope and subject to revision, and they should be so taught and learned that their limitations are seen and understood and the learners are always prepared for the possibility of change. This means that teachers should not only see themselves as dispensers and deliverers of truth, but also as prodders to enquiry.

Students need to know from their teachers that any writing of history, for example, always involves a selection among facts that History as such just does not exist. Students should know that it is less important to be certain of facts all the time, more important to be aware of the variety of meanings the same facts can have for different peoples.

When we are taught to understand the limitations as well as the uncertainties which characterize "knowledge," we can learn to feel more at ease with life's uncertainties. less dependent upon total Satisfaction answers that shut off thought and search. Instead of "yes" and "no" — the better answer is sometimes — "maybe."

The truly educated man is learning all the time. And the sooner teachers realize that adequate learning and knowing consists, not in being able to repeat what is learned, but in the ability to use it, apply it — and modify it — the better.

INSURANCE FACTS.....

From the Belleville Fire & Casualty Insurance Agents Association

In 1963, 34,473 people were injured in Ontario in automobile accidents. In 1964, 38,806 people were injured. An increase of 4,333 people injured in Ontario alone!

Your premium is reduced by 35% if you are three year accident free; so it pays to drive safely.

The Ontario Safety League states that Saturday is the worst day to drive and Tuesday is the safest.

In the first six months of 1964, motorists collided with 28.7% more deer cows, moose, dogs, skunks, horses and other animals than in 1963. It seems that animals are getting more careless all the time.

The Insurance Bureau of Canada has estimated, that when the final figures are completed, the Insurance Companies writing automobile and truck insurance will lose $20 million in 1964.

It is estimated that four drinks can cost you $512.00. The fine could be $300.00 for impaired driving, $150.00 for legal fees, $14.00 for police towing, $18.00 to file financial responsibility, $118.00 increase in auto insurance rates, $18.00 for getting the car fixed up after the suspension period is completed and $5.00 for a driver examination fee. Obviously it doesn't pay to drink and drive.

Lighting The Way

By Walter S. Cross

TOO BIG FOR THE JOB

Recently, some of our newspapers carried the account of a man in England, who had applied for the position of Mayor's sergeant. His application was processed in the usual way, and the man's qualifications seemed to be adequate. The Town Council were ready to hire this man, when they ran into a snag. The job required the Mayor's sergeant to wear a uniform. The applicant stood only five feet in height, but he weighed 216 pounds. His friends referred to him as "Mr. Five by Five". When he tried to get into the black and gold uniform, he could neither button up the waistcoat, nor the trousers. As a consequence, he failed in his attempt to land this position.

Of course, none of us really know . . . but this man's overweight was probably the result of intemperance. If we are right then this man's intemperance disqualified him for the position he wanted. Our lack of self-control is frequently the reason that we miss out on some of the best things in life. It could be a bad temper, an embroiled tongue, an uncontrolled appetite for food, drink, or pleasure. Any form of intemperance can be a hindrance to our living life at it's highest and best.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The National Hockey League's board of governors will huddle in their gilded cage in March to devise a plan for expansion, which doesn't mean that the circuit will expand in the immediate future.

A Los Angeles spokesman says his city is in the same boat as Frisco. "It's going to be hard for the NHL to keep Los Angeles out for very much longer and where LA goes, SF is likely to go.

In fact the television is a must since the league seeking a national television contract has been told that expansion is the price of a TV package.

Out on the west coast Los Angeles and San Francisco have been clamoring at the golden gates of the NHL for admission to the charmed circle of the eastern "six" for some time.

...Mel Swig, millionaire owner of the San Francisco Seals, says, "there is no getting around the fact that we are a minor league club in a major league town. Our fans deserve the best and regardless of what happens we will get into the majors."

It amounts to that the house will be ready if and when the owners decide to allow west coast tenants to occupy it. And the house that hockey jack built will have television deluxe.

James Piggott, LA owner, says, "We are always looking for a big league franchise. I haven't met with NHL people lately but there are other ways of promoting our case favorably. And we do want in. And I can tell you it's not very far off either."

A Pacific coast story says that Los Angeles and San Francisco's potential is tremendous. They are the key locations in the geographical spread United States television is interested demand before they will consider cutting pro hockey in on the bonanza which has benefited other sports league lately and is the real key to any NHL expansion.

It should be remembered, the coast people say, that the threat of the Western Hockey League claiming major league status and forcing a money war hasgn over the heads of the National Hockye League moguls.

"Don't forget Portland and Seattle," San Francisco's Swig warns pointedly. "Since operating its new 12,500-seat Coliseum Seattle has been doing a tremendous job at the box office and is battling Portland for the league attendance title."

"Portland has led the league in attendance each of the four previous seasons it has been in the league. It has a fine arena which may be a little small at 10,500, but it does the job with consistency. These are fine hockey towns which could support big-league teams."

Montreal and Toronto clubs enjoy a neat revenue from radio and television in Canada. The four clubs operating in the United States get the pygmy share of the take. It is only natural that Boston, New York, Chicago and Detroit want their games carried on a big network in that country.

This may force the hand of the NHL governors because the network approached stated that pro basketball had more national appeal and the NHL would have to go westward to get a national TV deal in the United States.

NHL president Clarence Campbell says, "If we did expand it would dilute the talent. Some 30 players would have to be supplied to the two teams from the present squads. That means the Rangers would have to give up six players. Who can they afford to give up? It would be stupid of us to expand just for the sake of expansion."

The revenue-seeking NHL could add to its present "take" only through a big TV network contract. But it is reported the league and network are at loggerheads. The league wants the contract first. The network wants guarantee of expansion before it signs a contract.

Win Curling Zone Finals

TORONTO (CP)—Bob Mann of Hanover, Ray Grant of Unionville, Russ Miller of London and Doug Rawson of Orillia won their zone finals Friday to qualify for the Ontario curling championships.

An eight - rink round - robin in Cobourg Feb. 10-12 will decide who represents Ontario at the national championships in Saskatoon next month.

John Ross of Toronto qualified for the provincial playoff earlier, and three other zone finals will be played Monday.

Mann's rink defeated R. Southerden of Centralia RCAF 9-8 and 14-7 Friday. Miller beat Don Campbell's Simcoe rink 11-4 and 12-7 in London. Grant defeated Bert Harrison of Peterborough in straight games in Oshawa. Rawson edged Don Wyman of Gravenhurst 8-7 and 6-4 at Camp Borden.

Twelve-Year-Old Wins Junior Crown

By RON MacDONALD

CALGARY (CP)—Karen Magnussen, a blonde, blue-eyed 12-year-old from Vancouver, Friday night pulled a fantastic upset and won the Canadian junior women's figure-skating crown.

Steve Hutchinson, 18, took the national junior men's crown to give Vancouver its third title in the first two days of the Canadian figure-skating championships.

Betty Ann and John McKilligan of Vancouver won the junior pairs championship Thursday.

Judy Henderson and John Bailey of Weston, Ont., edged Joni Graham and Don Phillips of Vancouver to win the junior ice-dance.

The championships were to wind up tonight with the final rounds in the senior competitions. Petra Burka of Toronto, Canada's woman Athlete of the Year in 1964 and third-place finisher in last year's world and Olympic women's championships, was the odds-on favorite to retain her Canadian senior women's crown.

Bets were off in the men's senior contest with defending champion Dr. Charley Snelling of Toronto facing stiff competition.

Miss Magnussen, from Vancouver's North Shores Winter Club, was in fifth place 45 points behind the leader after the first round of the junior women's competition.

But she turned in a superb exhibition of free-skating, including dramatic double and triple jumps, scissors splits and smooth spirals, to take the title in what was described as an almost unheard-of figure-skating comeback. Karen is a ballet student.

Cynthia Tiscombe, her clubmate who held the lead after the first round in the junior women's, slipped to fourth place after the final round. Linda Kwisak of the Toronto Cricket, Skating and Curling Club was second and Linda Carbonetto of the Blenheim, Ont., Figure-Skating Club was third.

Mary Church of Galt, skating with her left knee frozen medicinally to relieve the pain of strained ligaments suffered in a practice session, fell, placed fifth.

About 2,500 spectators were on hand Friday night for the championships at the Stampede Corral.

WON B.C. TITLE

Hutchinson won the British Columbia senior men's championship this year to gain a berth in the Canadian junior competition. He is from Vancouver's Kerrisdale Figure-Skating Club.

David McGillivray of the Toronto Cricket Club finished second in the junior men's singles and Archie Kerstal of Edmonton third.

Miss Henderson, 19, and Bailey, the junior dance winners, have been skating together for only four months, but Miss Henderson has been figure-skating solo for seven years and Bailey for eight.

Bailey was western Ontario senior men's champion in 1964 and this year he and Miss Henderson won the central Ontario senior dance competition.

All competitors in the Canadian championships except the junior pairs consist of two parts —the compulsory figures and free-skating. The junior pairs were solely free-skating.

Football Officials Needed

The call has gone out once again for budding football officials.

Stan Barbour, Bay of Quinte COSSA secretary-treasurer, announced this week that the training course will open here on Tuesday, February 9.

Mr. Jack Sisson, qualified intercollegiate official is again conducting the instruction and training courses. They will be held in the Belleville City Hall at seven o'clock on Tuesday evenings.

Barbour stressed the need for more officials, pointing out that some 25 completed the course last year and got plenty of work in the district handling high school games. New men are needed to supplement this group.

About ten men have signed up for this season's course but all those men are also requested to attend the opening period Tuesday.

"We like to get the games a season for these officials to handle", Barbour said, "and there is no need to feel backward about coming out. Some men feel they have been away from the sport too long to be of any help but that is the main purpose of these training courses - to acquaint the officials with the new rules and refresh their memories about the old ones."

He added that men who find the duties of a referee or umpire too difficult at first may begin in a lesser capacity, such as linesman, and work his way up to a referee.

'Trotters' Win Over Summerside

TRENTON — (Special) — The RCAF Globetrotters rode to an easy 10-2 victory over a weary Summerside Eagles RCAF squad here last night before some 600 fans.

The Eagles were plainly tired after a long flight from Prince Edward Island during which they developed plane trouble. The game did not start until 10.10 and lasted through 1. a.m.

Orval Granville former popular star of the Trotters is the captain of the Eagles. The Trotters showed their appreciation of Granville's efforts with them with a special presentation made during the game.

At that the game was productive of some good hockey especially in the first period when the Trotters held a slim 2-2 lead.

They scored five unanswered goals in the second period and two more in the third for the victory.

Keith MacDonald; Frankie Lewis and Austen Scott each scored a pair for the Trotters with Yvon Blanchard, Joe St. Pierre, Hobo Baker and Ralph Plane getting singles.

Ken Hutchins and Larry Boone scored for the Eagles.

Forced to Drop Out
Illness Snaps Crothers' Streak

PHILADELPHIA (CP)— Illness snapped Bill Crothers' winning streak at six races Friday night at the Philadelphia Inquirer Games.

Crothers, who won three races in as many nights last weekend and broke his own beaten since the start of the indoor track season, dropped out after four laps of a slow race, eventually won by John Dunkelberg of North Carolina in 2:14.5, and collapsed in the infield.

The 24-year-old silver medalist in the Olympic 800 metres at Tokyo mentioned the strain of his busy schedule. His coach, Fred Foot, said he had been suffering from a virus all week and was subject to dizzy spells. Crothers had been running last in the four - man field when he dropped out.

Dunkelberg defeated Noel Carroll of Ireland by six yards in 4:10.3.

Valery Butyhev of Russia finishing inches behind Carroll.

TWO RUSSIANS WIN

Two other Russians won their events, pole - vaulter Gennady Bliznetsov clearing 16 feet and Nor-Tee-Ovanyan winning the broad jump with a leap of 26 feet, 1¼ inches. A fourth Russian, Ana toly Mikhailov, didn't make the final in the hurdles.

Ajay Hoffman of Toronto was an easy winner in the two-mile in 9:40.6, well ahead of Tom Sullivan of Villanova and Eugene Leps of Toronto. Leps's time was 9:10.3.

Powers Charges Game 'Manipulated'

Has Evidence

TORONTO (CP) — A former National Hockey League referee, Eddie Powers, said Friday he has put before governors of the league evidence of what he considered an attempt to "manipulate the outcome" of a game in Boston in 1956.

Powers said in a prepared statement he also advised the governors Tuesday there was further evidence of manipulation of the outcome of games, evidence of prejudice toward some league teams on the part of those responsible for the officials of the league," and "evidence of intimidation of referees."

The game Powers claims was manipulated was played March 22, 1953, between Boston Bruins and New York Rangers. New York won 4-3.

Referee for the game was Daitch McArthur, who also left the NHL after the season. George Hayes and Walt Atanas were the linesmen.

Powers said he requested a meeting with league governors in Toronto, where evidence could be heard under oath.

HEARD FRIDAY

Although the governors advised him they would let him know their decision by Thursday, Powers said he heard only Friday, by way of a letter from NHL lawyers, "that the governors have declined to attend."

A press conference will be held "on or before the 15th of February" to air fully all the charges, the statement said.

Powers said in an interview Friday night he would say no more than what was contained in the statement.

Further problems Powers wishes to air include:

"Evidence of attempts to undermine the authority of the referees in the public eye, evidence of the failure of the president of the National Hockey League (Clarence Campbell) and the referee-in-chief (Carl Voss, who is scheduled to retire at the end of this season) to back up referees when necessary in disputes with owners, managers and players, and evidence of unfairness in regard of contracts forced upon National Hockey League officials."

FOLLOWED INCIDENT

Powers quit the NHL in the middle of his seventh season as referee. His resignation followed an incident in which National Canadiens coach Toe Blake was fined $200 by Campbell.

Powers blamed Campbell for not supporting him sufficiently. He later obtained apologies and an out-of-court cash settlement from Blake, Hec Canadiens and Montreal - Matin after launching a libel and slander suit.

The suit was based on remarks attributed to Blake's brother, officiating at hockey games in Montreal Jan. 31, 1953. Toronto Maple Leafs defeated the Canadiens 5-4.

Since his departure from the league, Powers has retired from hockey. He was a casualty inspector for the Construction Safety Association of Ontario.

In Montreal, NHL President Clarence Campbell declined to comment on Powers' statement.

Nothing Wrong With Eyes

"Can Read Labels on Whisky Bottles!"

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

"Bell," chuckled George Hayes, "I've tested my eyes for years in bars reading the labels on whiskey bottles I can still do it, so who needs an eye test?"

"I'm sure I can keep them officials and I can call it from 85 feet away. There's nothing wrong with my eyesight and there never has been."

With that, this former National Hockey League linesman adjusted his huge six-foot 218-pound frame on a bar stool at the Ingersoll Inn, a comfortable and friendly little spot about 1 miles west of Toronto. He talked with great feeling of his 10-year NHL career, abruptly terminated last Saturday because he refused to take an eye test as ordered by NHL president Clarence Campbell.

Hayes had walked the eight miles over snow-covered roads from his 50-acre farm at Beachville to talk about his past and his future. He kicked about his termination, was serious and bitter when talking about the deal he had received from the NHL.

Ruffling his shock of black hair, he declared "I'll live without the NHL."

"Two guys I'll never miss are Campbell and Carl Voss (NHL referee-in-chief). Campbell's a dictator. And Voss —well, you can't print what I think about him because he'd be a libel suit on me."

DRANK AFTER GAMES

About his drinking he said: "Sure, I took drinks after a game. Who doesn't? The players do. But not to excess. This is a tough racket. You've got to relax. But I've never taken a drink before a game. I've never been in a bar before a game."

One experience that still tickles him happened during a game at Montreal between Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs. Bob Pulford of the Leafs got the puck with nobody to check except Montreal goalkeeper "and I called an off-side."

"We're getting ready to face-off inside the Toronto blueline and Pulford says to me: 'Hayes, it don't matter, George? You have four - five beers last night and can't see too well!'"

Hayes' chuckle turns to me and says: 'George. That is an insult to you.' Then he turned to Bucko and said: 'He does not drink four-five bottles. He drink the whole case.'"

Then Ashley for the Bruins and Pelyk for Hawks were the goalgetters in the 1-1 tie.

Bruce Sutherland scored all three Bruins' goals and Pat Mulvihill getting both tallies for the Hawks.

Paul Ackerman scored twice for the novice Rangers with Dale Baemer, Andy Ricketts and Michael Flieger getting singles.

Terry Collins and David Sullivan starred for the Red Wings.

SIGN BULLOCKS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Amos Bullocks, a formidable National Football League ballhawk before he was struck by hepatitis, has been signed by British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League. The 2-year-old sat on the 1964 season. He was obtained from Dallas Cowboys as one of two players promised in return for tackle Bill Frank, traded away last fall by the Lions in the after math of a disciplinary battle.

"Lineman weren't even allowed in the pension plan until three years ago. . . . Campbell didn't want us to because we didn't make the money to put up the $200 a year. I'll be 45 years old next Sept. 17 and I haven't the slightest idea what I'll get because I haven't seen a statement since Oct. 4, 1963.

"Imagine, 19 years with one outfit. They fire me because I wouldn't have my eyes examined and there's nothing about eye tests in my contract. The only penalty I've liable for is a fine of $100."

He said his salary when he joined the NHL in 1946 was $2,000 a season plus $25 extra for every game he refereed. By 1947 it was $2,500. From 1948 to 1957 his basic contract was $5,000. That was raised to $6,500 in 1958 and in 1963 it went to $4,000 covering 80 league games. Linesmen received $50 for each additional game and $100 for each playoff contest.

"In 1963-64 I made about $6,500 including bonus, playoffs and league games."

He has officiated in 1,513 regular-season and all - star games "and I wouldn't have missed a minute of it."

He's a lucky Pacific life.

In 1940 he was kicked out of baseball for life. One night, while he was playing for Tillsonburg against Aylmer in an intermediate Ontario Baseball Association game, a free-for-all broke out.

"I played centre field. I was going to the dugout when a fan called me a name. I went after him. the umpire tried to intercept me so I just picked him up and threw him over the snow fence.

"I got the life suspension for that and was reinstated two years later. Meantime, I started refereeing hockey and it was a blessing in disguise."

Two years ago he was suspended indefinitely from the Ontario Amateur Softball Association when a brawl started during an Ingersoll - Goderich game. "I was coaching Ingersoll at the time," said George. Now he wonders what's going on in the NHL. "Figure it out. 76 officials have come and gone in the league since Campbell became president." Referees he recalls who have been fired are: Butch Keeling in 1950, Hugh McLean in 1951, George Gravel and Maurice Walsh in 1953, Jerry Olfiash in 1955, John Mahlenbecker and Gord Fewsany in 1956, Lou Maschio in 1957, Gaye Stewart in 1958 and Lou Fanelli in 1959.

"If Campbell doesn't like you, you've had it. Year? Who can say anything nice about that guy?"

Yvan Cournoyer, the rookie Canadien winger, will be in the lineup tonight. "Some players have been doing a lot less than Cournoyer," Blake said, "so we might as well use him against the Wings."

Other standings as the weekend begins show Toronto following Chicago and Montreal four points behind at 53, Detroit with 50 and New York at 39, 11 above Boston.

Sterner Sent To Baltimore

Six NHL Clubs Pair Off Over Weekend

Faloney Still Unsigned

MONTREAL (CP) — Quarterback Bernie Faloney headed for a 10-day skiing holiday in Vermont Friday without coming to terms with Montreal Alouettes for the 1965 Eastern Football Conference season.

Faloney, after a four-hour meeting Friday with the Alouette coach Jim Trimble to discuss a contract, declined to say if the interview nothing had been settled and the "situation is the same as before."

Asked if negotiations were going along amicably, Faloney replied, "Anything can be anything is it is done properly."

He declined to elaborate.

Trimble, 43, clubbed to an eight-player deal a month ago from Hamilton Tiger-Cats, reported he was seeking about $40,000 in an annual contract. He said earlier that Faloney figure was not out of line. He has yet to talk with M. E. (Ted) Morton, president and general manager of the Alouettes.

Faloney said in an interview that he and wife Jane plan to return to Hamilton after their holiday. He said he will continue his interest on a contract with the Alouettes from there.

Faloney was thought to be receiving $22,000 a year when with Hamilton and still had one year left to run on his contract.

REPORTER SALUTED

MONTREAL (CP) — Sports columnist Elmer (Ferg) Ferguson of the Montreal Star received a "happy birthday" salute Friday from officials of the Royal Canadian Golf Association during a banquet at the RCGA annual meeting here. Art Johnston of Winnipeg, retiring RCGA president, led the chorus in honor of the veteran columnists' 80th year. Ferguson has been covering the Montreal sports beat since 1910.

The National Hockey League moves into a set of home-and-home games this weekend with several transfers to and from the four clubs, including Ted Sterner, the defensive Swedish player, who got a ticket to Baltimore from New York.

Sterner, who has played a little for the Maple Leafs in Toronto tonight, Detroit Red Wings meet the Canadiens in Montreal and New York Rangers will be on Boston ice against the Bruins. The pairs for the games on the Chicago, Detroit and New York Sunday night.

The Bruins, down in the cellar with 28 points in the standings, have lost defenceman Bob Woytowich from Hershey and centre Jeannot Gilbert from Providence in the American Hockey League. They may be in the lineup against New York tonight.

In exchange, Boston shipped defenceman Bob McCord to Hershey and forward Ab McDonald to Providence.

The Rangers sent Sterner, the first Swedish player to play in NHL, and defenceman Bob Plager to Baltimore, reduced Andy roster to 18. On that dietory limit.

WILL OVER LIMIT

New York was two over the limit because of a seven-player trade with Chicago Friday night. Forwards Camille Henry and Dean Prentice went to Chicago in exchange for Camille Henry. There were also three minor - league players in the swap.

Emile Francis, general manager of the Rangers, said the club was happy about Ull's performance. "We're hoping he can be a regular next season," he said.

With the Canadiens and the Black Hawks tied at 97 points at the top of the standings, coach Toe Blake of Montreal spoke cautiously Friday night about the six games coming up over the next eight days.

"If we're still in first place after these games," he said, "I'll be very happy. I like to stay there. But it's going to take better efforts from several fellows to do so."

Yvan Cournoyer, the rookie Canadien winger, will be in the lineup tonight. "Some players

College Star

Given Fantastic Offer

NEW YORK (CP) — Cleveland Browns of the National Football League have offered Archie Roberts, Columbia University's star quarterback, a complicated deal which will enable the young man to have his cake and eat it too.

All indications are that Roberts will sign with the Browns, thereby gaining medical education for himself and his wife without passing up the chance to be a pro football player.

But the signing won't take place until June, when Roberts completes the baseball season at Columbia where he is a lefthanded batting shortstop.

The offer to the 21-year-old Roberts, which includes:

—A seven - year deal that would keep him on Cleveland's roster (the group that practises with the team but doesn't play) for three years so he can attend medical school.

—Tuition for himself and his wife Barbara at Western University medical school in Cleveland, where his wife already has been accepted.

—Maintenance of Roberts on the Browns payroll for the four years of medical school, two years of internship and one year of residency.

The other offers Roberts has had include one from New York Giants, and Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League, which in addition to a large salary and bonus offered to pay the tuition of Roberts and his wife at McGill University medical school.

Roberts is said to have had offers in the $100,000 class to play pro baseball, but the longer ball season would be a big handicap to his medical aspirations.

Minor Hockey

Two shutouts were recorded in the novice division last night. Rangers blanked Canadiens 5-0 and the Wings turning back the Leafs 2-0.

Three games were played in tyke classification. Wings blanking Rangers 3-0; Canadiens shading Hawks 2-1 and Bruins and Leafs playing to a 1-1 tie.

Peter Blain and Ron Cambers scored 16 points apiece for the losers, while "Zeke" Chambers led five.

Trenton Juniors' inability to score from the charity line cost them the game, as they were 13 for 26.

Terry Seeley was high Quinte scorer with 12 points. Phil Buddle, who carried a great deal of Quinte's rebounding load, scored 10 points, while Doug Dickey and David Middleton had eight apiece, and Harold Pinkie six.

Barry Harkey netted the game high of 17 points, with Cole, Larry and Scott contributing 16, nine and six respectively.

Ron Schaufele's outstanding all round play led the Trenton Bantams to victory, as he scored 11 points, controlled rebounding and was a defensive stalwart.

Paul Goodfellow and Ted Hunt scored 16 and 10 points for Quinte.

Chuvalo Dropped To Fifth

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo has been dropped two notches in the world ratings announced Friday by the World Boxing Association.

Chuvalo lost a unanimous decision Monday to former champion Floyd Patterson at New York. The Toronto fighter, ranked third in the December ratings, was dropped to fifth place.

The WBA, which does not recognize Cassius Clay as the champion, lists Eddie Terrell as the No. 1 contender for the vacant title. He is followed by Patterson, Eddie Machen, Zora Folley and Chuvalo.

Other Canadians ranked by the WBA are Joe Durelle of Sale Ste. Anne, N.B., who is fighting out of Trois Rivieres, Que., and Dave Hilton of St. John's, Nfld.

Durelle, cousin of former Canadian and British Empire light heavyweight champion Yvon Durelle, is listed as the No. 8 welterweight contender while Hilton is ranked 10th among the junior lightweights.

Big Names Well Back

Funseth Leads Hope Tourney

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) The $100,000 Bob Hope desert golf classic, which thus far has been a struggle between the unheralded "and the little known, went into a semi - final fourth round today.

Leading the way by one stroke was Rod Funseth of Spokane, Wash., and the shifting of golf courses among the four in use may be a big factor setting up Sunday's final round of the 90-hole tournament.

The 31 - year - old Funseth, whose biggest moment as a pro was a tie for second in the 1962 St. Paul Open and a $4,433 paycheque, went into today's play with a 54-hole score of 206.

One stroke back was Tommy Aaron, and tied at 208 were Don Januzy, Butch Baird and Kermit Zarley.

Perhaps significantly, Funseth, Aaron, Januzy and Baird tackled the Eldorado Country Club course, one of the toughest in the classic's sites.

In contrast, most of the big name players, including Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Bill Casper, Jr., and Tony Lema, hit the Indian Wells Country Club, which may be the easiest.

Nicklaus, at 211, was five shots off the pace, Palmer six and Casper only three. Lema, who had trouble on Eldorado's feared water — or 18th — hole, had a 77 for 216.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver was a model of consistency, putting together a 72-71-70—213. George Knudson of Toronto, who hasn't matched par in his three rounds, shot his second straight 73 for a total of 220.

Playing Ghoulish Mistress Simple for Glamor Girl

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How does a glamorous actress portray the ghoulish mistress of a haunted house?

Earlier this season I asked that of Yvonne de Carlo, the vampirish den mother of The Munsters.

"Simple," said Yvonne. "I follow the directions I received on the first day of shooting: 'Play her just like Donna Reed.'"

It seemed only fair to offer equal time to Carolyn Jones, the starkly shrouded mink of The Addams Family. I found her amid the bangsman's nooses and carnivorous plants of the Addams mansion. She led the way to her dressing room, where she served me lunch of home-made vegetable soup—"I make it by the cauldron."

Miss Jones displayed no competitive spirit toward The Munsters. She even admitted to watching the opposition, and she enjoys the show. But she remarked that there are differences.

"MORE HIP"

"Their stories are more down - to - earth and neighborhoody," she observed. "Our atmosphere is more elegant, more hip. We don't bothered with workaday problems, since Gomez (her series husband, John Astin) doesn't have to work. He is independently wealthy, as Charles Addams himself explained, one of his ancestors made a killing".

While Yvonne thinks of Donna Reed, Carolyn patterns her portrayal after the two little old ladies of Pasadena and Old Tucson.

"A lot of the character has come out of the costuming," she added. "My skirt is so narrow I can only mince along like Miss Marple. And by 1 developed a minimum of movement which contributes to the feeling of calmness and elegance."

Many another glamor girl would shudder at the role of Morticia, but Carolyn couldn't be happier. "It has brought me a whole new set of fans—the teen-agers," she said. "As for getting typed, I'm not worried. I was a star in films before I was a star on TV. People should remember that—I hope."

May Bar Soccer Stars

LONDON (AP)—British soccer circles see little chance of Peter Swan and Tony Kay — jailed on bribery charges — being allowed to play overseas.

The Prime Hamilton club of Canada's Eastern Professional Soccer League has said it wants to sign them. Both are serving four-month jail terms.

"Every national association is affiliated with the International Soccer Federation," one source said. "Any suspension applied by England, as a member country, would have to be observed by other (federation) members."

Swan, Sheffield Wednesday centre-half, and Kay, Everton and former Sheffield Wednesday wing-half, were among 10 professional soccer players jailed last month. They were convicted of a conspiracy to throw English League games in hopes of pulling off a betting coup. Both are England international.

Denis Follows, secretary of the English Football Association has said that life suspensions will follow "almost automatically."

None of the sentences were heavier. James Gauld, former Mansfield Town player who was a central figure in the conspiracy, received a four - year sentence.

The Professional Footballers' Association has said it is prepared to fight for the men to be allowed to take engagements overseas, even if they are banned from playing in Britain.

Redmen Beaten By Gaels 7-4

MONTREAL (CP) — Queen's University Golden Gaels got three goals from Doug Major and two from Bob Pond to trounce McGill University Redmen 7-4 in an Ontario - Quebec Athletic Association hockey game Friday night.

Three goals in little more than five minutes of the third period broke a tie and gave the Gaels the game.

Other Queen's scorers were Brian Gray and John Van Brunt.

McGill scorers were Skip Kerner, Bert Halliwell, Chris Bryant and Rick Pattee.

CANADIANS WELL BACK

DAVOS, Switzerland (Reuters) — Two Canadian entries finished far back in the field in Friday's opening run of the world tobogganing championships being held here.

Quebec Bonspiel

Top Trophy To Oshawa

By EDDY COLLISTER

QUEBEC (CP) — Bert White of Oshawa Curling Club captured the Chateau Frontenac Trophy Friday night, winning his ninth consecutive draw in the 52nd annual Quebec International Bonspiel.

White beat a rink from Hamilton Glendale Curling Club, skipped by J. Kemp 13-3 in the finals for the trophy, symbolic of the first division championship.

With only two draws left in the week - long event which would mean picking up the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy and the grand aggregate which goes to the rink with the fewest losses and most wins.

White needs to win only one game to pick up the grand aggregate.

In today's match White meets Ernie Dennisson of Burlington, Ont., his main threat in the race for the triple crown.

Dennisson won the finals in the third division Friday night to give him an 8-1 won - lost record.

White and Dennisson meet in the semi - finals for the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy, the top prize in the event.

Neil McLachlan of Sudbury beat Ray Malcnfant of the Quebec Victoria Curling Club 11-8 in the fifth division.

BIG STONE AGE MAN BELIEVE IN MAGIC!

In a cave inhabited by Stone Age man, William Beal (Edmund O'Brien) found it was full of holes the size of GREEN PEANUTS. When this happened, a scar-city of wild animals for the hand developed. Stone Age man probably SHORTENED his long arm by frequent hunting conditions. In drawings of hunting scenes on the walls, many mouths, rhinoceroses, bisons and bears are the SURROUNDED with ARROWS.

Beal is shown one form of proof of Stone Age ARTISTRY. Wearing a beard, he held in his hand a of reindeer's large antler's the legs of a deer and the tail of a horse.

Other illustrations from caves show men dressed in the skin of bears.

Mrs. William Harry had charge of the devotionals, and she was assisted by Mrs. Clay-ton Curtis, Mrs. Alva Meyers, Mrs. Fred Meyers, Mrs. Ken-neth Sifkile, Mrs. Arnold Harry and Mrs. Earl Sifkile. There were two guest speakers for the oc-casion, Mrs. Edison Sine, R.R. 2, Frankford, and Mrs. Leslie Finkle, Marsh Hill. Mrs. Finkle is in charge of leader-ship development for the Belle-ville Presbyterial area which includes women's United Church groups in Belleville, Trenton; as far as Napanee on the east, Trenton on the west, Marmora on the north, and Wel-lon on the south.

Mrs. Sine is the vice-presi-dent of the Hastings West reg-ion.

The speakers' aim is to im-prove the programs, introduce study and devotional books, ar-range for conferences, meth-ods of communication, increase missionary study, and generally be a leading organization relig-ious, informative and interest-ing. Mrs. Sine especially re-commended the study book on His Purpose, for discussion and meditation, and endorsed the new curriculum booklets on the courages young people to study their Bibles. She pointed out that the young people today will have broader education and further study than their parents possibly did and therefore they have need of a broader knowledge of Christian religion to combat conflicting ideologies.

A social hour was enjoyed and lunch was provided by the hostess.

MAILING ERRORS

G. C. Charlebois, District Di-rector of Postal Service for Ot-tawa 7, has advised that Sid-ney Township residents take more care with their mail. A recent check of the district showed that a number of let-ters were incorrectly addressed or lacked a proper address altogether. The num-ber of errors were no street and number in the address, rural routes were not indicated, no post office lock box patrons had their box and lock box number in the address. These mistakes affect the patrons di-rectly by causing delays in de-livery or no delivery of their mail. Better co-operation in future was solicited.

RCAF to Carry Canadian Gear To Finmark

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Above the Arctic circle — at 69 degrees north latitude—Norway has a common border with Russia.

It is one of only two NATO countries—the other is Turkey—which share a frontier with Rus-sia.

This month, several NATO countries, including Canada, will take the first steps toward formation of an airborne mo-bile reserve designed to protect the alliance's northern flank in Finnmark, the fjord-scarred top of Norway, and the southern flank in Turkey.

An RCAF Hercules transport plane will leave Fredericton Feb. 18 and an RCAF Yukon transport the same city the next day for Bardufoss, north of Nar-vik in far-north Norway.

The planes will carry Cana-dian equipment—early signals gear, for cold-weather testing and 53 army officers and men for the alteration exercise called Hinter Trail.

FIRST EQUIPMENT

The plan is to test equipment from several NATO countries, including those of the United States, Britain, Italy and Bel-gium as well as Canada.

The exercise will test the capability of NATO mobile units to live and operate during the far north in winter. Some NATO members have little experience in this field, though Canadians, Norwegians and Americans have.

The Bardufoss tests, which end Feb. 28, will be preliminary to a full-scale exercise, likely next winter, in the NATO sta-tions force in northern Norway

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: How do I obtain a CDN plate, and an International Driving Permit? I am going to Europe and will take my car. — A. W. Belleville

ANSWER: Only a recognized motor club such as the Ontario Motor League, which is affiliated with the Canadian Automobile Association, can issue these permits and plates. This tourist's driving licence is recognized internationally and valid in over 90 countries throughout the world which have signed a special agreement relating to international traffic. Canada has not signed this agreement and the International Driving Permit is not available to Canadians in general. However, because of the world-wide affiliations of the Canadian Automobile Association (CAA) of which the Ontario Motor League is a member, those permits are available to OML members.

QUESTION: We are planning our first trip to Florida. Could you give us the name of a hotel or motel, where we might stay in Miami, one that is not too expensive and where our money is accepted at par? — Mrs. F.T. Trenton.

ANSWER: There is one reasonably-priced hotel in Miami area that takes Canadian money at par. It's the Sorrento, next door to the Fountainbleau, Miami Beach. For complete Miami Beach listings write the Chamber of Commerce in Miami and Miami Beach.

QUESTION: We are planning a trip to Halifax, and would like to know the best route, — the Canadian or the American — also the quickest and how many miles from Belleville —R. H. Belleville ANSWER: Both routes are good but the quickest way to reach Halifax would be the American route crossing over at Cornwall and on No. 37 to No. 11 to Rouses Point, down No. 7 to Burlington to No. 2 all the way to Bangor, Maine, then No. 1 to St. John, No. 2 from there to Moncton and Amherst, then No. 4 and No. 2 to Halifax. You can return if you have time by the Trans-Canada Highway No. 2 from Halifax to Moncton, Fredericton, Edmunston, Riviere-du-Loup to Levis, the south side of Quebec City, and then take No. 9 to Highway No. 3, just south of Montreal, continue on No. 3 to Valleyfield, cross over to No. 2 and home. The distance to Halifax from Belleville by Trans-Canada route is approximately 1,175 miles and by the American route approximately 1,045 miles.

WATCH FOR SCHOOL BUSES

Ontario laws specify that motorists must not overtake and pass a school bus stopped on the highway when its rear red lights are flashing. They can only pass when the bus travels on and the lights stop flashing. If the school bus is going in the opposite direction but is stopped with the front amber lights flashing motorists must reduce speed to a reasonable rate while within 100 feet of the vehicle. These precautions will protect children getting on or off the bus.

FBI DISPLAY

Children are handed targets riddled by bullets after daily displays by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents at Washington.

The Golden Years

Man at Retirement Inherits Right to Get Into Trouble

By THOMAS COLLINS

You inherit, on the day you retire, a special "right" you probably have not had in your adult lifetime, and it can be a precious asset to you.

It is, in brief, the right to get into trouble.

Lyle W. Tomlinson, who retired four years ago from an industrial job and is now in trouble, explains how it works.

"My wife and I moved to our small town after I retired, and settled down to become part of the landscape. We joined the church, helped the good causes, and came to know most of the people in town. We didn't amount to much . . . we were just growing older. But it was a nice life.

"Then last year the Mayor came to me and asked me to serve as a member of the town's Housing Board. It paid $10 a meeting, and was an honor. It also was a can of worms. The Board had been involved for months in a fight over a Federal housing project just off the main street of town. There was a racial angle to the issue, and a good many people weren't speaking to each other because of it.

"WELL — WHY NOT?"

"Well, my first reaction was to ask myself why I should be drawn into that kind of mess. Then I wondered why not? At my age it didn't really matter if some people grew angry at me, called me names and wouldn't speak to me — provided I did something I thought was right. In my 40's or 50's I would have avoided such controversy as a matter of policy. At 68, I reasoned, it didn't matter much. And nobody was going to do me physical harm . . ."

He pointed out that he could not have afforded to get into such a controversy while on his job. His company would not have stopped him, but it would have wondered why, for Goodness' Sake, he couldn't have become involved in the Boy Scouts instead . . . and then would have reappraised his value to the company.

Mr. Tomlinson accepted the Housing Board job; publicly stated his views on the housing project, then set out to convert people of the town to his views. He has been at it nearly a year now, has made enemies, has been asked twice why he didn't move back where he came from and has lost a couple of friends.

"The town is about evenly divided on the housing project, so there's usually one person who thinks I'm a hero for every one who thinks I'm a bum," Mr. Tomlinson says. "But as I explained, this isn't important in retirement. The vital fact is that after 65, with your income guaranteed, you can afford to stand up and be counted, to fight for things you think are right. You don't have to be afraid to get into trouble . . ."

CHAMPION THEIR CAUSES

Mr. Tomlinson believes all retired men or women should candidly appraise the changed circumstances that have come to their lives, and ask themselves honestly if they should not now champion every cause they believe in.

"I have found it is medicine for the soul," he says. "At the sacrifice of the good-will of some people—which wouldn't feed you if you had it, — I have been able to stand for something I think is right. There's exhilaration in it. There's a deep satisfaction.

"You know, we really should have been standing up all our lives for causes. But we were cowards. Or we were not willing to endanger our jobs and security. After retirement there is no excuse, so perhaps it is a duty. But I think retired people would not do it for duty reasons . . . they should do it for the soul medicine that's in it."

Mr. Tomlinson suggests that every important political campaign, every local bond issue, every important decision faced by the local and state governments should bring the retired man and woman into action. "Not for gain, not to win favor, not just to make a noise. But to exercise a free people's right to speak up, and to do a bit for goodness.

"You'd be surprised how important it will make you feel."

Bomb North Viet Nam Again

Resume Raids Today

By JOHN T. WHEELER

DA NANG (AP)—U.S. and South Vietnamese planes struck again today at Communist North Viet Nam, hitting military camps and leaving them burning, the South Vietnamese air commander reported.

Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, flying the lead Vietnamese plane, was hit in the arm by shrapnel. He said anti-aircraft fire was heavy over the target areas.

Ky reported later the raid was made by 30 South Vietnamese propeller - driven Air Force skyraiders and four U.S. F-100s.

In Saigon, Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the armed forces commander, said the raid had destroyed 70 per cent of the targets hit.

IDENTIFY TARGETS

Ky identified the villages as Lien Cong Tay, That Le and Song Song, all near the frontier and along a route leading toward the border.

Ky said the four U.S. F-100s bombed an area just to the north of his target region, with excellent results.

One South Vietnamese air force plane was hit by anti-aircraft fire over the target and crashed near Da Nang on its return flight. The pilot parachuted and suffered a bruised shoulder. A second Vietnamese pilot was wounded by shrapnel in the neck but not seriously.

Ky said he understood one U.S. plane was hit by anti-aircraft fire but that there were no casualties among American personnel. Ky declined to say if there would be more raids on North Viet Nam.

"We came in very low just off the tree tops," Ky said. "Just before we reached the target we pulled up to release our bombs. That's when the flak hit us.

"Almost all of our 30 planes were hit as they dropped their high explosive and fragmentation bombs and turned home," Ky said.

The U.S. embassy announced the new raid first in Saigon. It said:

"In furtherance of the action announced yesterday by the acting Vietnamese premier and the U.S. ambassador, it has been made known that military action was taken today by government of Viet Nam and U.S. aircraft against other military installations in North Viet Nam.

The embassy gave no details of the raid.

WASHINGTON (AP) —U.S. and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers struck again today at military installations in Communist North Viet Nam as President Johnson prepared to meet top advisers to review the situation and hear from special emissary McGeorge Bundy.

The U.S. embassy in Saigon announced the new raids but gave no details. However, the Soviet news agency Tass reported in a dispatch from the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi that three U.S. planes had been shot down at Dong Hoi.

But the defence department

GENERAL ALARM — Nearly 75 firemen fought the million dollar fire in downtown Belleville Saturday evening. Three aerial ladders and close to 30 lines of hose poured hundreds of tons of water into doomed West Robertson Block. Front Street scene is at height of blaze.

West Robertson Block Including Five Stores, Business Firms Destroyed

Three Other Stores Damaged By Smoke, Water; Two Injured

Investigators today were still probing the cause of a fire which gouged a million dollars from Belleville's main street business complex.

The blaze, racing through the three-storey West Robertson Block on the city's Front Street early Saturday night, was still being traced to its source as firemen sifted the ruins this morning.

Today, possibly 75 people are out of work as a result.

It was racing through the seams of the building while some of its commercial occupants were still doffing their jackets at home . . . less than a half-hour after they had closed for the weekend.

Firemen fought the fire rampage for five hours before the tide tipped in their favor and the blaze was safely contained from spreading along adjoining business blocks.

However, striking out the blaze kept them on the job for another 12 hours. By noon Sunday they were still pouring water on smouldering rubble being surveyed by fire investigators.

By that time millions of gallons of water had been fired at the threat from a fire brigade battery reinforced by out-of-town units.

Narrow-lane access foiled attempts to bring up mobile fire equipment to the rear of the burning building believed built 90 or more years ago.

Neither was the struggle without incident. Two firemen were rushed to hospital by ambulance with injuries received during the battle . . . and later released after medical attention.

MILLION HOLE IN LOSS

Fire officials and business men burned out in the blaze agreed the collective loss was around a million dollars "either way".

One insurance adjuster added: "If you put a $1,225,000 down on the table as compensation you mightn't have much small change coming back".

In all, some 16 enterprises suffered total or partial loss in the blaze.

Aftermath for fire-stricken tenants: See page 16.

They ranged from commercial endeavors to amateur enterprise.

Most of the commercial enterprises had been in the block for years. But lost in the fire was the Loft Theatre, newly-constructed home of the Belleville Theatre Guild — a fully equipped modern little theatre on the third floor — proudly considered by its members as the crowning achievement of

Students Seek End Monarchy

By ALEX MORIN

OTTAWA (CP)—After showing little enthusiasm in a long list of committee-approved resolutions on international affairs, the general membership of the Canadian University Liberal Federation set the organization on its ears Sunday with a couple of suggestions from the floor.

The most controversial was approval of a resolution advocating an end to the monarchy in Canada.

Approved by a vote of 36 to 29, it would make the governor general Canada's chief of state in place of the Queen.

Another unexpected resolution saved for the end of the federation's annual meeting asked that the Liberal Party demand the resignation of Montreal MP Edward T. Asselin.

It said that the demand was in line with Prime Minister Pearson's call for political honesty and integrity within the party.

The resolution was prompted by a commission report which last year branded profits made in a land deal by Mr. Asselin as "objectionable, unconscionable and immoral."

In a speech to CULF delegates Saturday, Prime Minister Pearson said the Conservative Party was responsible for much of the bad publicity the government has been getting, and told the students not to be misled by headlines, but to read on in the small print for the facts.

"When a party is in difficulty as is the Conservative Party, and when they are so bitterly divided as they are, you can be sure they will do everything they possibly can to take the public mind off their difficulties by directing attention to ever unfounded they might be, against us."

Mr. Pearson said he was concerned about "any allegation and any charge and any insinuation" made against the Liberal Party or its members, but he would not allow "false insinuation and suspicious smokescreens . . . to pressure me into doing the wrong thing in order

Stonehill Leaving Canada

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mystery millionaire Harry Stonehill says he is leaving Canada today "fed up" and won't be back.

"The government doesn't want me to stay here because they are afraid of the American and Philippine governments," he said in an interview here Sunday night.

Stonehill made the comments in his third interview following two years of silence.

Friday, she described himself as a man "at the end of my rope", and pleaded: "I'm asking this country to give me a chance. Judge me by my actions in Canada. My family, myself . . . we want to stay here."

Sunday, he said his decision to leave Canada forever was sparked by an anonymous telephone threat against his life.

Stonehill said the government doesn't want him in Canada, and the press "has written nothing about me but lies" since he arrived here in 1963 after being deported from the Philippines by presidential order.

WINDS UP BUSINESS

He said he has wound up his businesses here and has sold several of his Philippine companies. His interests in the Philippines where he built his fortune are estimated by some at $30,000,000 to $40,000,000, although Stonehill values them at less than $13,000,000.

Missouri - born Stonehill, 47, came here from Mexico after being deported with associate Robert Brooks from the Philippines.

He sought landed immigrant status for himself, his wife and five children, but was turned down and asked to leave the country. He agreed to leave voluntarily by Jan. 9.

He was arrested in the United States in January and charged with violating the U.S. Bills of Lading Act. Later, the U.S. government charged him with failing to pay $13,600,000 in U.S. income tax.

When he returned to Canada, his name was linked with a "phoney" letter, supposedly from Premier Bennett, asking an assistant in Prime Minister Pearson's office to help obtain

Suggests 'Five Wise Men' Study UN Debt Problem

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The suggestion for a group of "five wise men," including Prime Minister Pearson, to deal with United Nations peacekeeping debts was under study today as the General Assembly prepared for a long adjournment.

Facing failure in attempts to settle the peace-keeping crisis, the assembly was to resume today after a weeks' recess to consider a handful of "housekeeping" problems.

There was growing feeling among delegates that the 19th session, hamstrung for two months by the peace-keeping crisis, was virtually over. Most expected that there would be no resumption until next September.

The idea of a group of "five wise men" was put forward by assembly president Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana. An informed source said he was circulating it as a "personal idea," and that he wondered whether it might be of value.

He suggested that the group travel to Moscow, London, Paris and Washington to seek settlement of the problem brought on by Soviet and French refusal to pay peace-keeping assessments levied by the assembly.

Pearson would be the only head of government on the body, as outlined by Quaison-Sackey.

The others he suggested were the assembly's last president, Carlos Sosa-Rodriguez of Venezuela, Poland's foreign minister, Adam Rapacki, UN Secretary-General U Thant and Quaison-Sackey himself.

A Canadian spokesman confirmed that Quaison-Sackey had put the idea of the Canadian delegation Thursday and that it had been reported to Ottawa. There was no indication when a reply would be made.

China Irate Over Raids, Russia Silent

TOKYO (AP) — China today called the U.S. air strike against North Viet Nam an "extremely serious provocation" but the first reaction from the Soviet Union was restrained.

The Chinese statement, carried by the official New China news agency, said:

"This was an extremely serious provocation by U.S. imperialism to extend the war to the Democratic Republic of (North) Viet Nam once again in defiance of world condemnation in an effort to avert total defeat in South Viet Nam."

Pravda, the only newspaper to appear in Moscow this morning, carried news of the raid in two brief items on page three. It also withheld publication of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's renewed promise to help North Viet Nam. Kosygin made it in a speech in Hanoi Sunday seven hours before the U.S. raid.

Lawyers Reconsider Payments

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Ontario lawyers who are cheated by lawyers working on questionable deals may find it harder to get their money back.

John Arnup, treasurer of the Law Society of Upper Canada, told the mid-winter meeting of the Ontario section of the Canadian Bar Association Saturday that a committee has been set up to study the role of the law profession.

He said the committee would take a hard look at the practice of a company or clients cheated by "so-called lawyers who are not really practising law at all, but are engaged in money - lending and real estate speculation."

Diefenbaker Retains PC Reins In Close Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—John Diefenbaker survived a weekend bid by Progressive Conservative dissidents to force a national leadership convention, but was under pressure today to permit a scrutiny of the executive's secret poll on the issue.

Quebec leader Leon Balcer, who wants the 69-year-old Opposition leader replaced, said Sunday a decision to reject the convention was "in conflict with the general trend" of Saturday's executive meeting at which Mr. Diefenbaker faced his most concerted opposition since he was elected leader in 1956.

"I trust Mr. Diefenbaker will have no objection to the examination of the complete figures and the voting slips on which they are based," Mr. Balcer said.

He made the statement after party president Dalton K. Camp, in a brief press release from party headquarters, said:

"As a result of the advice sought from the national executive of the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada at yesterday's (Saturday's) meeting, the proposal that that body recommend that a national leadership convention be called has been rejected."

Informants said the questionnaires, filled out by the 116 members of the executive who were present, were analysed by three men—Mr. Camp, national secretary Kenneth Binks and national director Richard Thrasher.

Mr. Camp had told reporters Saturday that in his view a substantial majority in favor of a convention would be required to warrant calling one, and that the results would not be announced.

Mr. Balcer did not elaborate on his statement, but informants said the secrecy surrounding the results indicated a growing demand within the party for a leadership convention.

One high party authority estimated that fewer than five votes separated those who opposed a convention and those who favored one.

Some estimates of the result appeared based on a standing vote at the closed meeting on whether the executive should express confidence or no-confidence in Mr. Diefenbaker.

Informants said a question proposed by the principal officers on whether delegates favored or opposed asking Mr. Diefenbaker to resign was rejected by a 55 to 53 vote.

After Mr. Diefenbaker and others objected to including the confidence motion in the questionnaires, the officers withdrew from the meeting to consider the objections raised. The Opposition Leader had argued that the executive had no business expressing confidence or otherwise when the leader had been elected by the national association.

Informants said the principal officers returned to the meeting after they unanimously agreed that the question should remain.

The delegates then answered three questions—whether they favored a leadership convention, whether a national policy committee should be established, and whether Mr. Diefenbaker should attend the flag-raising ceremony Feb. 15.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who led most of his party in opposing adoption of a maple leaf flag without English and French symbols, had asked that the flag question be included to give him guidance.

Mr. Diefenbaker emerged from the meeting smiling and made it clear he planned to remain at the head of the party.

He said there had been no vote on his leadership.

"There wouldn't be," he said. "The leadership is determined by national convention, and that was determined in 1956 and ratified several times since."

Asked whether the meeting would result in any change in his policies, the former prime minister said a person's principles were a matter of conscience.

Principles were not changed "by the passing whims of any group or individual," he added.

Mr. Diefenbaker summoned a special party caucus Friday, at which he was given a vote of confidence, but was reported to have received an unprecedented barrage of criticism.

Mr. Balcer's original demands provoked a controversy among English - speaking party members on the leadership issue, and they as well as some French - speaking members were reported to have come in for strong criticism at the caucus.

Mr. Balcer boycotted the caucus, choosing instead to present his views to the executive. Before the executive he avoided attacking Mr. Diefenbaker, informants said, in a bid to keep tempers down. He was said to have called for a convention and a shift in party policy.

Mr. Diefenbaker addressed the executive for between 60 and 90 minutes, filling out the morning session that was opened by preliminary remarks by Mr. Camp and Mr. Balcer.

During the luncheon adjournment Mr. Diefenbaker mingled with reporters and delegates on the second floor of the building.

Mr. Balcer, who triggered the latest threat to Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership by threatening to sit as an independent in the House of Commons, is to meet with his Quebec colleagues this week.

Offset Printing Method Not Answer to Good Color Reproduction Seminar Told

By DAVE STOCKAND

MONTREAL (CP)—Continuing publicity is being given to opening up more advertising space in Canadian daily newspapers by eye-catching color reproduction.

Present methods of putting color to use, and how best to reach the rainbow of its potentialities, were debated here Saturday.

The occasion was a seminar arranged by the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association and the Canadian Advertising Agencies Association.

Called Repro 3, it brought together publishing representatives and advertising men for discussion of the latest methods of producing materials for better effect and appearance in daily newspapers.

Speakers said success in providing vibrant and exciting color reproduction does not require enormous expenditure in new equipment.

Harry Templar of Toronto, CDNPA supervisor of technical services, said a great deal is being heard in publishing circles about materials available to daily newspapers for offset or rotogravure plants.

"Beautiful color reproduction and very expensive," he said.

CAN IMPROVE

"We know that a newspaper with its high speeds, porous paper and cheap inks carried by stereo metal can never hope to achieve the same high quality of reproduction and registration, but with a lot of hard work, research and interest a vast improvement over our present standard can be achieved."

Howard Gregory, production manager of the Montreal Star, Ltd., said he does not believe the future of newspaper color in Canada is in the offset printing method which now is used by more than 1,000 newspapers in the U.S.—about 100 of them dailies.

"Many people are inclined to believe that rich will be the case when automatic offset plate-making equipment is vastly improved," he said.

"Another school, and this is the theory I adhere to, is that our letterpress color will improve enough in the near future to stave off the offset threat."

Mr. Gregory said his firm is experimenting with a specially-designed engraving—"the likes of which has never been used before for newspapers."

"We hope" he said "that this new plate will increase the affinity for ink and give smooth solids without excessive ink volume."

up by the society 10 years ago.

Each lawyer now pays $100 a year into the fund.

Since its start, an average of more than 40 people a year have collected a total of $1,213,804. Almost all the lawyers involved were disbarred Mr. Arnup said.

In the general meeting of the conference, which wound up Saturday after two days, the lawyers voted 35 to 11 against a motion calling for laws making privileged the discussions between members of public bodies and clergymen, physicians and social workers.

CAUSE LITTLE TROUBLE

George Gedgwick, chairman of the National Parole Board, said at a panel meeting that most murders and murderers who have their sentences commuted cause little trouble when released.

Earlier, a five - man panel had debated the death penalty, with Toronto lawyer Joseph Sedgwick the only member in favor of retention.

Mr. Sedgwick didn't recall David Lewis, national vice-president of the New Democratic Party and another panel member, "or any other member of the Jewish community" protesting Israel's execution of Nazi Adolf Eichmann.

Mr. Lewis said Eichmann would have received life imprisonment if the death penalty had been abolished in Israel before Eichmann's trial.

Stanley Dinsdale of Toronto told another panel there should be legislation protecting jobs of workers who lose their union membership.

He said the loss of union membership often means "little more than starvation death" for the man involved. Others in the room could lose his membership because of a shift in the political winds.

Youth Proved Army Had Wrong Man

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — For 13 months British Army searched for Patrick O'Connor, 20, who deserted while serving with the army of occupying corps in West Germany in November, 1953.

Finally, through his national health insurance number, the search was tracked down. Patrick O'Connor, 20, working for a London catering firm.

He told them they had the wrong man.

They investigated and every bit of information they uncovered checked with the record of the wanted man, simply enforcing their conviction they had the right man.

Aside from the fact he had the national health number they were looking for and the same name, records also showed he was born in Southern Ireland and on the same date as the man they wanted.

When O'Connor persisted in his declaration of innocence, they sent him to hospital for a further check.

SCAR MATCHED

Hospital records found that the fillings in his teeth and a scar on his stomach matched those of the missing O'Connor.

For five days the army was satisfied it had the right man.

Then, the Dublin case was word from the mother of soldier O'Connor that her son was innocent. She claimed that the man in the guardroom was innocent.

Civilian O'Connor was released.

The string of coincidences that led to the mixup was described by an army spokesman Saturday as "too fantastic for words."

EVIDENCE TIED IN

"The whole business tied in so well," he added. "We felt absolutely sure he was the right man."

There was no explanation as to how the two O'Connors happened to have the same health card number, a fact which the army spokesman described as "incredible, for a start."

In Dublin, the mother of the soldier O'Connor said her son came home on leave and "didn't bother to return." He has been in trouble before, where the British army cannot touch him.

Air Turbulence Said Cause, 87 Persons Die

SANTIAGO (AP) — Vice President Eric Campans of the Chilean national airline LAN-Chile blamed air turbulence for the crash of its DC-6B Saturday in which all 87 persons aboard were killed.

Campans said the turbulence caused the plane to lose altitude and smash into a mountainside 11,700 feet up in the Andes.

It was Latin America's second — worst plane crash. A Brazilian airliner crashed in Lima, Peru, Nov. 27, 1962, killing 97 persons.

A rescue team reached the scene after a horseback and foot climb Monday. It said the plane hit 1,200 feet below the summit of La Corona Mountain.

There were 28 foreigners aboard.

The flight originated in Miami, Florida. It was to have landed at Buenos Aires and then go to Montevideo.

Passengers included a football team from the Chilean National Bank bound for Montevideo to play the Bank of Montevideo team.

First Playoff Game in Consols Won by White

A rink of Bill Henderson, Al McCullam, Ron Benn and Mac White as skip from the Quinte Curling Club took a big step toward competing in the Ontario finals for the British Consols Trophy and the right to compete in the Dominion finals in Sask. today when they defeated a rink of Ab Sewell, Merril Birch, Elliott Sherman with Bill Wagner of Ottawa as skip by a score of 9 to 6. The game was the first of a two-round three series to play in Cobourg in the Ontario finals on February 10th to 12th with eight rinks will compete. The game today was played at the RCAF Station Curling rink at the G3D depot.

The rinks were even at the end of the fourth end with the fifth, sixth and seventh blanked. White scored a pair in the eighth with Wagner counting one in the nine. The Quinte rink grabbed another pair on the tenth with the Ottawa rink scoring one in the eleventh. White scored a deuce in the twelfth to take the game nine to six.

The winning team reported the ice was in excellent condition and very fast and that all ended well throughout the game. The second game will be played at two o'clock and if a third is necessary it will be played at seven o'clock this evening.

CNR Switchmen 'Booking Off' To Aid Strikers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian National Railways switchmen here began booking off Sunday as "unfit for duty" in what industry sources described as a new tactic aimed to support striking Pacific Great Eastern Railway workers.

The move came as the previously - owned PGE was laying off almost its entire non-striking staff of 1,200 following a strike of conductors, brakemen and yard workers.

The PGA said it was closing down the entire line — from Vancouver to Dawson Creek in the northeastern corner of British Columbia — because of threats made against employees and their families.

The shutdown, except for emergency runs to keep certain points, was to be completed today.

Sunday night, switchmen of the federally - owned CNR held a union meeting. Some of the 350 switchmen at Vancouver yards began booking off following the meeting.

Sources close to the situation said the CNR switchmen were acting because they were asked to handle "hot" PGE boxcars on an interchange rail line here.

The switchmen were also said to be angry because nine CNR cranes were suddenly shipped west for refusing to take freight through picket lines set up by striking PGE employees. The men still were on suspension Sunday night.

The CNR officials met a while, said they had received no warning of any other move by switchmen. But in such a situation areas the railway was "ready, as always, to take legal steps to see that service to customers was maintained."

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC) struck the PGA Tuesday in a contract dispute involving wages and working conditions.

said no U.S. planes are missing.

Barrocks and guerrilla staging areas at Dong Hoi, just north of the border, were the chief targets Sunday as 40 U.S. Navy jets swooped down in a raid the United States said was in retaliation for the North Vietnamese shelling of a U.S. base in south Viet Nam.

The presidential aide returned Sunday from a South Viet Nam fact-finding trip and went to the White House late Sunday night.

3 AMERICANS KILLED

Less than 24 hours after the shelling of Pleiku Air Base which the Johnson administration said triggered the U.S. air strikes on North Viet Nam, Red Cong guerrillas fired mortars into Qui Nhon Air Base southwest of Saigon but did no damage. Eight Americans died at Pleiku.

Johnson ordered the "orderly withdrawal" of the 1,800 American dependents from South Viet Nam and the dispatch of a Hawk anti-aircraft missile battalion to the area.

On the diplomatic front, the U.S. government sent word to Moscow that it has agreed to the UN Security Council failing of the U.S. action and the Soviet veto.

As Johnson put it: The air strikes, to which South Vietnamese planes joined, were a "carefully limited" response to "a deliberate attack" against "We seek no wider war. Whether this course can be maintained is now in the North Vietnamese aggressors."

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said in Washington since the action "was a clear an necessary response to a test and a determination of Communist purpose and policy, a test that was clearly intended as a test by the North Vietnamese regime against the South Vietnamese government and the U.S. government."

SPECULATE ON TIMING

There was speculation that the North Vietnamese timed the attacks on the American base to coincide with Premier Alexei Kosygin's current visit in Hanoi, without his knowledge, in view of Kosygin's recent high-level offer of aid to North Viet Nam.

UN Ambassador Adlai Stevenson sent a letter to the Security Council that the air strike was a "defensive action" by the "politically inert effort . . . designed for broader political" in field of international politics."

The Viet Cong attacked the U.S. helicopter and airplane at Pleiku Air Base, in central South Viet Nam. In 10 minutes Communist mortar fire eight Americans, wounded more than 100, destroyed five helicopters and damaged about 17 other planes.

Other guerrilla simultaneously struck aviation gas storage tanks at Chop Chi Airfield and a series of villages near Nha Trang. Communist attacks on U.S. casualties but doing some damage.

DECIDE TO RETALIATE

The time was 2 a.m. Sunday Saigon time, 1 p.m. Saturday Washington time, Johnson convened the National Security Council at 7:45 p.m. and at the end of the session at 9 p.m. it was decided to strike back.

Within a matter of minutes — 12 hours after the Viet Cong barrage — American F-8s, F-100s and A-1H Skyraider fighter Ranger, Hancock and Coral Sea swooped over the Dong Hoi infiltration area. They were joined by land based South Vietnamese jets. Returning pilots reported "heavy fires, heavy smoke and substantial damage."

One A-4 from the Coral Sea was lost to ground fire and the pilot bailed out over the sea.

Radio Hanoi claimed, and the Pentagon denied, that four of the U.S. attackers were downed.

Through channels not made public, the U.S. government told the Russians of the nature and purpose of its action, informed sources said it was emphasized that the air strike was a "limited retaliation" and that the United States does not seek to widen the war. What response the Russians gave, if any, was not disclosed.

U.S. Allies also were officially informed of the matter through diplomatic channels.

Also lost was an important sub-post office, serving the entire downtown business section.

But in terms of vital immediacy, the partial destruction of two lawyers' offices and a public accountant's office — with their records — may possibly cause more immediate personal difficulties.

Also fearing irreplaceable loss was city photgrapher William Riley. Besides a gallery of personally-priceless award winning photographs, Mr. Riley may have suffered loss or damage to a filing system that contained 18 years of photo negatives.

The extent of damage to the records of these firms will not be fully known until they have sorted through the wrecks of their filing systems.

STRICKEN OCCUPANTS

This is a list of the buildings' occupants stricken in the blaze:

First Floor:

Schwab's Stationery and sub-post-office;

Shaw's Men's Wear;

Reward Shoe Store;

Laithmer Drug Store;

Georgia Salon;

Second Floor:

Ralph Graham - Ronald Cass, law offices;

Dr. Harold Craig, dental surgery;

T. A. MacHold, public accountant;

A. B. Little, tailor;

William Riley, photography studio;

Ettore's Accordion College;

Third Floor:

Belleville Theatre Guild;

Harry Morrison Dance Studio.

Adjoining businesses also suffered heavy damage from smoke and water as firefighters fought the blaze to a standstill.

These were:

Niagara Finance;

Reitman's (ladies' wear);

Whites Hardware.

The blaze erupted minutes before six p.m. — less than 30 minutes after most stores and offices in the block had closed for the weekend.

Store-owner T. A. Schwab said he had just arrived home and was sitting down to supper when his phone rang and a friend told him his store was afire.

About 5:40 p.m. a police constable, patrolling the river bank, took a drunk from the rear of the stores. He noticed nothing amiss at the time.

ALL FIREMEN ON JOB

At Lattimer's drug store and soda fountain the staff was just preparing to close following the slack after-rush Saturday shopping period, when the alarm was raised.

Perpetually anxious for the downtown area because of the number of older buildings making up its business pattern, the city fire department instantly turned out a general alarm.

All off-duty firemen were ordered back to their stations and standby orders were despatched neighboring communities to stand by under the Hastings-Prince Edward counties mutual fire aid scheme.

Fire lines were broken out to combat the blaze on a two-phase front. Aerial ladders were concentrated on Front Street while hose was paid out to the Moira River bank at the rear of the block.

The narrowness of an alley-way leading off Front Street to the back of the block, prevented access of any mobile fire equipment. An attempt to drive a pumper into the area off West Bridge Street was also foiled.

City police rolled in off-duty men to police the downtown area, sealing off Front Street between the Upper and Lower bridges.

By 6.15 the battle was joined in deadly earnest, with firefighters striving to contain the blaze within the block.

SMOKE BLANKETS AREA

Heavy smoke billowed up from the building blanketing the area in the early stages of the flight.

On Front Street, firemen fought the blaze with a score of lines, from the ground and in the air. The city's two aerial ladders were joined by Trenton's aerial truck shortly after the alarm. Firemen from Point Anne's and Desoronto's volunteer departments stood by in the city. A half dozen off-duty firefighters from the RCAF base at Trenton hastily donner their asbestos coveralls and voluntarily reported to Belleville Fire Chief Ted Poste for duty.

Meantime, at the rear of the block, firemen hastily paid out fire lines on the Moira River bank parking lot in strike at what appeared the origin of the blaze.

Storeroom extensions of the Front Street premises blazed fiercely for hours, at times washed the area in a glow brilliant as a sunset.

Hundreds of bystanders watched the fighters behind police-patrolled lines until mid night, when it was obvious the firefighters had won the battle to prevent the blaze spreading.

In the meantime, ammunition was carried out in buckets and baskets from the adjoining White's Hardware; smoke and water damage had been caused Niagara Finance offices and Reitman's dress shop.

TWO FIREMEN INJURED

And two firefighters had been injured.

Veterans fireman Fred Dainard was carried from the IAC offices after he succumbed to torn chest muscles, wrenched in manhandling hose lines. Fireman Barney Smith also was treated for minor eye injuries, caused by flying cinders.

The blaze also had its unexpected moments.

At one point, a cache of fireworks stored at the rear of Schwab's stationery exploded

Early in the blaze, hydro lines shorted, set off a spate of burglar alarms at police headquarters.

For Fire Chief Edward Poste it was also a crucial initiation.

The chief, who assumed his post in mid-week found himself with Belleville's costliest fire on his hands four days later.

His efforts and those of his deputy chief, Leo Culhane, drew praise from Mayor Ellis at the scene.

"The building was lost certainly," commented the mayor. "But the vital thing was to contain the loss of this fire—already out of control when our firemen arrived. The chief and his men, with the mutual aid reinforcements succeeded in doing that."

Notably in this last effort, added the mayor, was the contribution of Trenton's aerial ladder.

Chief Poste also had praise and thanks for the assistance given his men in the fight.

As firemen and tenants probed the ruins Sunday fire equipment still stood by to guard against any fresh flare-up. In the early afternoon it started to rain—and rain heavily.

It was 18 hours late.

Drivers Escape Injury in Two Accidents

TRENTON — A two-car accident on Front Street North, near O'Malley's store, around 10.50 p.m. Saturday, resulted in damages to both vehicles of $1,000. Drivers Clifton Bush of R.R. 2, Trenton, and Wilfred MacDonald of 38½ Francis St., Trenton, were not injured.

The accident occurred on O'Malley's curve on wet pavement, covered with a film of snow.

On Highway 33 in Murray township, just west of the CNR crossing, a collision Saturday between a panel truck driven by Charles Steenburg of 180 Dufferin Ave., Trenton, and a car driven by James Howard Buck of 32 Cedar Street, Trenton, resulted in damages assessed at $1,900, the Buick car being damaged to the extent of $1,500. Provincial police at Brighton say the Steenburg vehicle was stuck in the snow bank on a curve, and the driver of the second car failed to see the stationary light truck. Neither driver was injured.

Police Probing Theft of $100 From Office

TRENTON — Trenton police are investigating the theft Saturday night of $100 in cash from an office desk drawer and an undetermined amount of silver from the cash register at the Weese Motors office on Front St. The theft was discovered by Constable Gery Davis on foot patrol duty around 10.45 p.m.

The thief or thieves had broken a window in a rear door to the premises, and opened the door by reaching in through the hole in the window.

Real Cool Cat Has It Made In New Home

TRENTON — There's a real cool cat on Byron Street named "Butch," and when Butch gets through with rout-a-bouting of an evening, he retires to his "pad," and purrs, (in effect) "This beatnik stuff is okay, I guess, but the comforts of civilization for me."

Butch was a hobo when his present owners moved to Byron Street. He lived by sumfun fall and spring under a garden chair at the back of a television repair shop. By winter, he huddled under anything which offered shelter from the elements. Rough and ready, he was suspicious of everything and everbody. His chewed ears and countless scars bore mute testimony to his participation in neighbourhood fights. Food was something on four legs you chased and caught in the good weather . . . and something you scrounged out of garbage cans in the winter.

Last spring, when Mr. and Mrs. moved into the neighborhood, saucers of milk and kitchen scraps began to appear in the garage. Nearly every day there was one heaping saucer of prepared cat food. When he developed an infection from a scratch, a vet was called to administer penicillin. An electric heating pad appeared in his little wooden box in the garage. Butch huddled miserably in the box, but it wasn't too long before he felt perky enough to lap up the eggnogs Mrs. made for him. Soon, he was well enough to chase his shadow in the snow.

"Him I've got it made," says Butch, winking one eye cynically. But Mrs. knows, how happy he is to have a real home of his own and "folks," and love.

WATER DEARER

PARIS (AP) — Wine costs about the same but the price of water in the French capital has gone up. To raise money for the city's investment fund, water rates were increased from 41 to 50 centimes (8.2 to 10 cents) per cubic metre.

Mayor James MacDonald and Mr. Clifford A. Baker, members of the Trenton PUC, Friday presented Quarter Century certificates to five water works employees. Above, left to right, are E. R. Smithrim, Miss Anita Hyde and Jesse Goodsell. Back row: Mayor James MacDonald, James Page, Charles Brownson and Clifford A. Baker. Napoleon Miron, also awarded a certificate, was absent.

Six Employees Of Utilities Join Club

TRENTON — On Friday, six employees and former employees of the Trenton utilities joined the Quarter Century Club of the Canadian Division of the American Water Works Association.

Framed certificates, attesting to 25 years' service in the utilities' water division, were presented to former manager, E. R. Smithrim, the present manager, James Page, Charles Brownson, Jesse Goodsell and Miss Anita Hyde. Not able to attend the special presentation meeting was Napoleon Miron. Presentations were made by PUC chairman Clifford A. Baker and Mayor James MacDonald. Commissioner Charles Hilton was also unable to attend the meeting.

The citation noted that the employees thus honored had helped provide good, pure water to the municipality for the past quarter of a century.

Redistribution

A cursory glance at the proposed redistribution of Ontario ridings provides indications that the three-man Ontario redistribution commission has done a good job.

This verdict may not hold up in the light of a critical and extensive examination, but this is impossible to make until we have detailed figures on the number of voters in each of the 117 proposed ridings. Off-hand, though, it seems that the commission has not been afraid of cutting across long-standing political boundaries in order to achieve some semblance of equality in representation in the Legislature.

If there is one criticism which can be made at first glance, it must be of the increase in the number of ridings. The size of the Legislature is growing all the time and it is by no means certain that this increases its efficiency or the standard of the service it is able to give to the people of the province. It may well be, though, that closer examination will reveal that the increase was unavoidable if the commission was to prevent the existence of an unduly large number of ridings covering so much territory that the proper representation of regional interests would have been extremely difficult, or, on the other hand, the creation of a number of ridings containing a disproportionately small number of voters.

Here in this district the re-arrangement, though it provides fitting recognition of the increase in population in the Belleville-Trenton area, does not unduly re-arrange past alignments. The same can hardly be said of the lot of our neighbors to the west, where the lakeshore is included in the new Kawartha riding stretching back north of Peterborough.

Head-shaking over this change, though, is likely to be mild compared to that provoked by readjustments in some other parts of the province. One particular shake-up which we notice is in the Georgian Bay area, where two ridings represented by prominent Liberals, Ross Wilcher and E. C. Sargent, the latter a leadership aspirant at the last Liberal convention, have been amalgamated. The Liberals do not hold enough seats in the Legislature to permit them to accept that without a howl of protest. There will be protests, too, from some traditionally Conservative areas which appear to have been abandoned to the tender mercies of neighboring Liberal majorities. The New Democratic Party can also find something to complain about. One of the seats it holds in Toronto was eliminated. We think have reasonable assurance that the redistribution plan is basically fair. Where everybody is unhappy, the judge is proven impartial.

A Question of Discretion

Prime Minister Lester Pearson has given Joseph Sedgwick, well-known Toronto lawyer, an additional task. Mr. Sedgwick was already examining certain aspects of the manner in which immigration problems are handled when Mr. Pearson dumped another problem in his lap. What changes, if any, should be made in the discretional powers now exercised by the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration?

This question was shoved to the fore by several incidents which, if they did not hint at improper conduct, certainly at least suggested the possibility that such pressures could be applied under the present system.

The Minister of Citizenship and Immigration is dealing primarily with human beings and their personal problems. In such a field, it is almost essential that those who must make decisions should be given considerable leeway. They cannot be asked to stick to a blueprint without the danger that they will be forced to deal harshly, or even in an inhumane manner, with some individual. If there is ever a field in which circumstances ought to alter cases, it is this.

The difficulty is that, at present, there is no hint that the circumstances which may be permitted to alter cases are those involving the identity of people prepared to plead the immigrant's case, rather than the circumstances in which the immigrant himself finds himself.

Mr. Sedgwick, we are sure, will be able to suggest a better solution, but offhand the best guide which we can offer is that the minister ought to be prepared to consider the individual circumstances of every immigrant, except those who get some member of Parliament, high-ranking civil servant or business leader to intercede for them.

Speech is civilization itself. The word, even the most contradictory word, preserves contact — it is silence which isolates.—Thomas Mann.

Strep Infection Common Cause of the 'Croup'

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes croup and what can I do for it I have tried many remedies which friends have recommended. Sometimes they work, sometimes they don't.

Croup always seems to occur in the middle of the night and you can't rush out to the doctor. — A. F.

Croup is a form of laryngitis. A child's larynx is small to begin with. Then infection makes the vocal cords swollen and red. There may be spasm from frequent coughing — and then you have croup.

A strep infection is the most common cause, but the viruses of the common cold and influenza are frequent, too. It is less usual these days for diphtheria to be involved, at least in the larynx.

A cold or similar respiratory infection precedes the croup. It so happens that some children never have croup in spite of colds, but when a youngster does have it, he is likely to be a repeater until he outgrows it — the age bracket is generally from two to seven years. After that croup almost always ceases. Perhaps it is because the larynx is larger by that time.

Why croup flares up at night is something of a mystery, but fortunately it also can usually that the "bark" of croup has calmed them, and they have managed to give the child some relief.

If you have a child who is subject to croup, watch for the first signs of a cold or similar infection. There is no way of curing a cold, but you can make sure the child doesn't become too tired or chilled, and is kept as calm and comfortable as possible. Do your best, and you'll still have some attacks of croup but you can keep them from becoming so severe, and you can be on guard in case an attack starts.

There are all sorts of pet remedies; I happen to be a parent who went through this problem, and what worked best with my youngsters was steam with a little benzols added.

A warm poultice on the chest often helps. Occasionally an ice collar or "cold compress" on the neck may be helpful.

These are old-fashioned remedies, but they work, and both parents and children get more sleep.

Antibiotics have their place in keeping down infections, but they do not do any good with viruses. Your doctor will have to guide you as to when antibiotics will be of use.

Another old-fashioned remedy which still proves successful is ipecac to induce vomiting. This is unpleasant but often effective. Since too much ipecac can be dangerous, have your doctor advise in advance how much to use for a child of a given age.

Occasionally, and fortunately quite rarely, if obstruction of the airways cannot be relieved and a child's breathing is seriously impaired, it may be necessary for the doctor to resort to tracheotomy (an incision in the windpipe.)

But most of the time parents can provide sufficient relief themselves with simple methods.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has very hard pains in his chest sometimes for a second, sometimes two or three minutes. Could he have a heart condition? He refuses to see a doctor because he says if it is his heart he will never be able to get a hospital insurance. When I made an appointment for him, he broke it. — Mrs. M.

With so more than these pains to go on, it could be just or it could have absolutely nothing to do with that organ. If he has hospital insurance, it can be cancelled because an illness develops. And if he doesn't have such insurance, I'd suggest that he get some today and go to the doctor tomorrow and find out whether it is heart, stomach, neuritis or muscle spasm causing his pains.

• • •

Note to E. S.: No, psoriasis is not contagious; neither is there any specific cure, although it sometimes subsides spontaneously.

• • •

Measles can be fatal to young children. For an explanation of the seriousness of this disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Tribune Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., requesting the pamphlet "Measles, The Harmless Killer," and enclose a self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover handling.

Was This Trip Necessary?

Brantford Expositor

What is there about the consumer credit situation in Ontario that requires the committee of the Legislature investigating this matter to take an expense-paid trip to California?

About a dozen members of this committee and the wives of some of them left Jan. 4, for the United States border points. They were due back Jan. 18 via Washington and New York where, so it is reported, they have to "seek more data on consumer credit," all of it available by mail.

Some questions are in order, such as: how many members went; what exactly did they do in California; why was it necessary to go there, and what is the size of the bill the taxpayer will have to foot for this expedition, or possibly junket?

Strictly Personal
People Don't Know How To Listen

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was having a discussion with a woman I had just met at a party, on the general subject of education. About ten minutes after I had made a certain point she returned to it, and restated what she thought I had said.

I shook my head in disagreement. "Isn't that what you said?" she asked. "No," I replied, "that's what you heard, but not what I said." And I carefully repeated my original statement, which was quite different from her version.

Even highly trained persons don't know how to listen. Some years ago, two psychologists at Cambridge University made a recording of the discussion which followed a meeting of the Cambridge Psychological Society Th. recording was made without the knowledge of the members present.

Two weeks later, they wrote to all who had attended, asking them to write down everything they could recall about the discussion. The reports were then checked against the recorded version, and it was found that the average number of specific points recalled by any individual was less than 10 percent of the total recorded.

But the really remarkable thing, according to prof. Ian Hunter, in his book, "Memory" was that "of these recalled points, on the average no less than 42 percent of them were substantially incorrect."

Prof. Hunter goes on to report: "A large variety of errors and confusions appeared. Happenings were recalled which had never taken place at all or which had taken place on some other occasion and were wrongly recalled . . . What was recalled was not only fragmentary but also distorted and much was recalled which, in fact, had never happened."

It is the unconscious process called "interpretation" which falsifies and distorts so much of what we hear and read and see. We begin with certain preconceptions, and then go try to make experience fit into these preconceptions. It is terribly hard to dislodge them from our minds.

For example, when I am working a double-crostics puzzle and fill in a couple of letters of a word, I have already begun "interpreting" that word. And if, as sometimes happens, those letters are wrong, it is difficult for me to "erase" my mental picture and start afresh. The greatest enemy of finishing a puzzle is this kind of "mental block."

Many courses are offered on "how to speak;" but none that I know of on "how to listen" — an infinitely rarer and more precious trait.

Factory Runs Kindergarten

German Features

"Bring your baby along!" —this was the original form in which a Munich firm advertised for female employees. The novel idea of a Munich employer to establish infants' and small children's homes in his firms has now inspired numerous other West German enterprises to follow his example in order to attract one of West Germany's main shortage goods: labor.

A factory looking for female employees knows that many young women interested in working provided that they could bring their children along with them and know that they were in good hands. In other parts of the country, different branches of industry are trying to lure even their higher-class employees away from their kitchen stoves and back to the office despite their duties as mothers.

The discoverer of the factory-run kindergarten has meanwhile gone further and found guests in his works. The mothers need not pay more than $13 per month for this service—this including food and care.

But this by no means covers the whole cost. The kindergaries cost the factory owner $20,000 annually, and each nurse and kindergarten supervisor receives $2,500 a year.

The workers, on the other hand, pay at the most 10 per cent of their net earnings. And they enjoy further advantages if they can leave their children in their firm's baby hotel during vacations or for a weekend when the parents feel in need of a real rest.

The report of a water shortage in ten Ontario counties is a more whisper and most inadequately reveals the actual situation. Even in this, farmers do not advertise a difficulty of this kind, for a water shortage definitely depresses the value of a farm. The situation was serious enough before winter storms blocked the roads and stalled the trucks that day and night were drawing water for farm use.

With an annual average precipitation of 30 inches or more, in Old Ontario, wells and springs, and streams should be never-failing and they would be if the people living here behaved as they should. Sphere has did the things they know well enough should be done.

Many Lights Are Safer?

Watertown Times

Will the rear end of our automobiles become day-glo-accented, a moving multi-color lighted billboard?

Ohio State University engineers, carrying out a project sponsored by the National Academy of Sciences, say connected that a panel of red and green tail lights which glows with increasing or decreasing intensity depending on the speed of a car is far more effective in preventing rear end collisions than conventional tail lights.

A test car equipped with tured and ten green lights arranged in a horizontal panel across the rear end was driven 2,500 miles over an interstate highway near Columbus. Observational tests were from a second car and they indicated "substantial improvement" in driver's ease of following, safety, the engineers said.

Green lights were at the outer ends of the panel. Goes green light shining at each end of the panel means slight acceleration. As the car goes faster, additional green lights go on. While the car is coasting without a driver's foot on the brake, one read light goes on. Additional red lights illuminate as the driver applies his foot to the brake.

A system of this type might be of value out in the country on a two-lane road, on the thruway or on an interstate highway. But in cities it would be bewildering in some of the larger metropolitan areas.

In these localities restaurants, taverns, service stations and stores — all with their vari-colored neon signs — are competitive with the road-way. Add automobiles with 20 multi-color taillights flashing off and on and considerable confusion would result. In the maze of Christmas-tree-like surroundings a driver would have difficulty distinguishing moving objects from stationary structures.

Whistlers Are Scarce

London Times

Musical shows are as popular as ever they were and there is no danger of the male make of their predecessors. But the highest compliment that was ever paid to a composer and other artists in this line has fallen silent. Whistling is scarcely heard any longer in the streets in autumn, where it was once as inescapable as the falling leaf. The May strains of Maggie enlivens the stroller as little as did those of Oliver or Phoebe. My Fair Lady was a golden winner, but how few, failed to make herself audible as she milk cart the morning papers went round. It was a natural gift in the age of noisy, smelly towns plagued by frustrating traffic blocks, music to cheer strains spontaneously and cheerfully to the lips. Tunes may be better known, taken by and large as a whole, than they once were, but their popularity is not expressed in the whistling of lays and social comedy remains.

The musical has always depended on easy charm rather than on the power of its music. Its recent development has been the growth of style which makes up for lack of good tunes by more dramatic life. This may be a gain. But it does not seem to be one of whistling while we work.

Will Ask UN Council Meet If Warranted

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United States told the UN Security Council Sunday night that it will ask for a council meeting on Viet Nam "if the situation warrants it."

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson in a letter to council President Roger Seydoux of France informed the 11-nation council of the U.S. air raid on North Viet Nam. He said the raid was a "defensive action" against a "politically timed effort" to intensify Communist aggression in South Viet Nam.

Around the Tee

The walls of the Quinte Curling Club resounded on Saturday to the rhythms of swinging brooms, twirling stones, the twist and the Beatles and related species as 64 local junior curlers declared a winner for the Pepsi-Cola Trophy for junior curling for 1964-65. Six rinks were entered from the local high schools, six from OSD and four from Albert College. Much criticism is levelled at our young people today, but it unfounded if the spirit, the enthusiasm and the deportment at Saturday's bonspiel is any indication.

A delicious repast was served at noon by Mrs. Doris Bannon and her ladies and the juniors were most appreciative of the work this involved. Hamburgers were plentiful and Pepsi-Cola was available with the compliments of Mr. William Spinelli and the Pepsi-Cola Company.

The competition consisted of two ten end games, scored on a points basis. When the fog lifted at 3.30 p.m. the winners were declared and Mr. William Henderson was on hand to present the coveted Pepsi-Cola Trophy. WHOMP UP A HAMBURG DISH

You always love me when I give you hamburg dishes. So when I feel in need of a little tender loving care I whomp up a dandy, give it in the column, then wait for the mail to bring your comments.

Today's dish includes potatoes, making it a main-course casserole.

HAMBURG SCALLOP
(economical — serves 4):

This is going to end up in a casserole, so if you have one of them in which you can cook both on top of the stove and in the oven use it — like a corning ware casserole. If not use a frying pan for first step.

½ lb. ground chuck beef, 2 teaspoons finely chopped onion, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon flour, 1¼ cups milk, 2 cups pared thinly sliced raw potatoes, well-pack..l — 2 medium-large, 1 cup grated cheese (optional but recommended).

Melt the butter or margarine in a frying pan (or use above) and brown the beef and onion, stirring with a fork to break up the meat. Add the salt and flour, stir to blend, then stir in milk until thickened.

Arrange alternate layers of sliced potatoes, beef sauce, in a greased average-sized baking dish. Cover and bake 1 hour at 350 deg. Fahr. Remove cover, sprinkle with cheese, reduce heat to 300 deg. and bake 15 or 20 minutes longer.

Serve with a green vegetable such as broccoli, Brussels sprouts, green beans or spinach.

Variations: 1) Add 1 cup wafer-thin slices of carrot or celery. 2) Diced raw ham may be used instead of beef but salt would be omitted. 3) Sausage meat may be used but increase amount to 1 lb. and omit the butter or margarine and salt listed in ingredients.

HOMEMADE HAMBURGERS:

1 lb. ground chuck, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, ⅓ cup undiluted evaporated milk, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine.

Lightly mix beef, seasonings, onion and milk and shape into 4 or 6 patties. (The mixture will be quite moist to handle.) Have butter or margarine hot in frying pan, add patties and brown on each side, but do not overcook. Serve on buttered toasted buns with rings of onions and sliced tomatoes.

U.C.W. Meeting

VICTORIA U.C.W.

CARRYING PLACE — With the president, Mrs. Hubert Townsend, in the chair, the February meeting of Victoria U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Harmon Montgomery on Thursday evening.

Business matters were dealt with. The March meeting will be held at the president's home. Concise reports of the recent Presbyterial held at King St. Church, Trenton, were given by Mesdames Wetherell, Townsend and Pulver.

Mrs. Clifford Calnan introduced in a most interesting way the study on Trinidad. She read a letter from Miss Wagar, former art teacher at Peterborough Teachers' College, but now serving as a teacher in the Trinidad - Mission Field. Mrs. Calnan also read a letter from an 11-year-old Trinidad boy, a pen-pal of Mrs. Calnan's nephew. Then beautiful movies were shown of this southern island which depicted some of its people, industries, schools and especially the mission work carried on there. Thanks were extended to Mrs. Calnan; also to Mrs. Montgomery for the use of her home.

At the close of the U.C.W. meeting Mrs. Faulkner demonstrated embroidery painting and provided materials for all to try it out. A busy, interesting time was enjoyed and several pretty designs painted.

Mrs. Montgomery and committee served lunch.
